Lead Plaintiff Iron Workers Local No. 25 Pension Fund and Plaintiff Eastriver Partners, Inc. (“Plaintiffs”) make the following allegations, except as to allegations specifically pertaining to Plaintiffs and Plaintiffs’ counsel, based upon the investigation undertaken by Plaintiffs’ counsel, which investigation included analysis of publicly available news articles and reports, public filings, securities analysts’ reports and advisories about Focus Media Holding Limited (“Focus Media” or the “Company”), press releases and other public statements issued by the Company, and media reports about the Company, and believe that substantial additional evidentiary support will exist for the allegations set forth herein after a reasonable opportunity for discovery.

NATURE OF THE ACTION

1. This is a federal securities class action on behalf of a class consisting of all persons other than Defendants who purchased the American Depositary Shares (“ADSs”) of Focus Media in the Company’s secondary public offering on or about November 7, 2007 (the “Secondary Offering”) as well as purchasers of the Company’s ADSs between September 27, 2007 and November 19, 2007, inclusive (the “Class Period”) alleging violations of Sections 11, 12(a)(2) and 15 of the Securities Act of 1933 (“Securities Act”) and Sections 10(b) and 20(a) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (“Exchange Act”), as amended by the Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (“PSLRA”) and Rule 10b-5 promulgated thereunder (17 C.F.R. §240.10b-5).

2. This case is simple and straightforward. Focus Media finished its third fiscal quarter for 2007. Then, a month and a half later but before the Company had to publicly release its third quarter earnings, Focus Media, along with certain selling shareholders, sold 13.5 million Focus Media ADSs in the Secondary Offering raising more than $888 million. Ten days later, Focus Media released its fiscal results for the third quarter and reported sharply declining profit margins. The Company further detailed that it had made several acquisitions that had depressed its profit margins. In response to this announcement, the price of Focus Media ADS on the first day of trading after the announcement, declined to $52.00 per ADS more than 19% lower than the Secondary Offering price.

3. On September 27, 2007, Focus Media issued a press release announcing, among other things, guidance for its financial results for the quarter ending September 30, 2007 ("3Q07"). This guidance, however, misrepresented the financial performance of Focus Media for 3Q07 and did not disclose that the Company was considerably less profitable in 3Q07 than represented. On November 7, 2007, Focus Media completed the Secondary Offering, selling 13.5 million shares of Focus Media ADSs generating proceeds of $888 million.

4. The Registration Statement, which incorporated a Prospectus, issued in connection with the Secondary Offering, contained inaccurate statements of material fact, omitted to state other facts necessary to make the statements made therein not misleading and was not prepared in accordance with the rules and regulations governing its preparation. As described below, the Registration Statement misrepresented or omitted the following facts, among others: (i) the Company was much less profitable in 3Q07 than the Company had forecasted on September 27, 2007; (ii) the Company's profit margin problems were due, in part, to the Company's acquisition of various businesses in its Internet advertising division and billboard division during the first half of 2007 and margin contraction in its In-Store division; and (iii) the Company acquired non-digital billboards that would not be able to be converted to more profitable digital billboards until the expiration of lengthy contracts and receipt of governmental approval.

5. On November 19, 2007, after the close of trading, Focus Media announced its financial results for 3Q07 and reported a severe compression in its profit margins due to several acquisitions made during the first half of 2007 in its Internet advertising division and outdoor digital billboard division and due to problems in its In-Store division. The Company also, for the first time, disclosed that during the first half of 2007 it acquired non-digital billboards that are less profitable than digital billboards, which contributed to the margin compression. In response to this news, on November 20, 2007, the price of Focus Media ADSs dropped from $57.15 per ADS to $52.00 per ADS, on extremely heavy trading volume.

6. The following chart graphically depicts the key events during the relevant time period:

23. Credit Suisse, Citigroup and Merrill Lynch are collectively referred to herein as the "Underwriter Defendants." The Underwriter Defendants failed to perform adequate due diligence in connection with their roles as underwriters for the Secondary Offering and were negligent in failing to ensure that the Registration Statement and Prospectus were prepared properly and accurately.

PLAINTIFFS' CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

24. Plaintiffs bring this action as a class action pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 23(a) and 23(b)(3) on behalf of themselves and all persons other than Defendants who purchased the ADSs of Focus Media in the Secondary Offering as well as purchasers of the Company's ADSs between September 27, 2007 and November 19, 2007, inclusive and were damaged thereby (the "Class"). Excluded from the Class are Defendants herein, members of the immediate family of each of the Defendants, any person, firm, trust, corporation, officer, director or other individual or entity in which any Defendant has a controlling interest or which is related to or affiliated with any of the Defendants, and the legal representatives, agents, affiliates, heirs, successors-in-interest or assigns of any such excluded party.

25. The members of the Class are so numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. Focus Media sold more than 13.5 million ADSs in the Secondary Offering and approximately 112 million ADSs were outstanding during the Class Period (including the 5 million ADSs issued in the Secondary Offering). The precise number of Class members is unknown to Plaintiffs at this time but is believed to be in the thousands. In addition, the names and addresses of the Class members can be ascertained from the books and records of Focus Media or its transfer agent or the underwriters to the Secondary Offering. Notice can be provided to such record owners by a combination of published notice and first-class mail, using techniques and a form of notice similar to those customarily used in class actions arising under the federal securities laws.

26. Plaintiffs will fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests of the members of the Class. Plaintiffs have retained competent counsel experienced in class action litigation under the federal securities laws to further ensure such protection and intend to prosecute this action vigorously.

27. Plaintiffs' claims are typical of the claims of the other members of the Class because Plaintiffs and all the Class members' damages arise from and were caused by the same false and misleading representations and omissions made by or chargeable to Defendants. Plaintiffs do not have any interests antagonistic to, or in conflict with, the Class.

28. A class action is superior to other available methods for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy. Since the damages suffered by individual Class members may be relatively small, the expense and burden of individual litigation make it virtually impossible for the Class members to seek redress for the wrongful conduct alleged. Plaintiffs know of no difficulty that will be encountered in the management of this litigation that would preclude its maintenance as a class action.

29. Common questions of law and fact exist as to all members of the Class and predominate over any questions affecting solely individual members of the Class. Among the questions of law and fact common to the Class are:

(a) Whether the federal securities laws were violated by Defendants' acts as alleged herein;

(b) Whether the Prospectus and Registration Statement issued by Defendants to the investing public in connection with the Secondary Offering omitted and/or misrepresented material facts about Focus Media and its business;

(c) Whether Defendants' statements issued during the Class Period were materially false and misleading; and

SUBSTANTIVE ALLEGATIONS

The Company and Its Business

30. Focus Media describes itself as China's leading multi-platform digital media company. The Company purports to operate the largest out-of-home advertising network in China using audiovisual digital displays, based on the number of locations and number of flat-panel television displays in its network, and also claims to be a leading provider of Internet marketing solutions in China. Focus Media has stated that its goal is to create the largest multi-platform digital advertising network in China, reaching urban consumers at strategic locations and point-of-interests over a number of media formats, including audiovisual television displays in buildings and stores, advertising poster frames and other new and innovative media, such as outdoor light-emitting diode or LED digital billboard, mobile handset advertising networks and Internet advertising platforms.

31. Focus Media's segments its business into three "Networks," as follows: (i) the Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network, which focuses on providing out-of-home advertising through liquid crystal display or LCD flat-panel televisions displays, LED billboards, movie screens, and poster and digital frames, and includes its commercial location network, in-store network and poster frame network; (ii) the Mobile Handset Advertising Network, which refers to its mobile handset advertising services using wireless access protocol or WAP, short messaging service, or SMS, and mixed messaging services, or MMS, offered on the mobile telecommunications networks of China Mobile Communications Corporation, or China Mobile, and China United Telecommunications Corporation, or China Unicom; and (iii) the Internet Advertising Services Network, which refers to its Internet advertising agency and advertising services technology, including performance-based software suites.

Focus Media's Gross Margins and Profit Margins Are a Critical Element of Its Financial Performance

32. Gross margins and profit margins are an essential element in the evaluation of the financial performance of a company.

33. A gross margin is a company's total sales revenue minus its cost of goods sold, divided by the total sales revenue, expressed as a percentage. The gross margin represents the percent of total sales revenue that the company retains after incurring the direct costs associated with producing the goods and services sold by a company. The higher the percentage, the more the company retains on each dollar of sales to service its other costs and obligations. For example, if a company's gross margin for the most recent quarter was 35%, it would retain $0.35 from each dollar of revenue generated, to be put towards paying off, selling, general and administrative expenses, interest expenses and distributions to shareholders. Gross margin indicates how well management is using labor and materials to support the business. As stated on Zacks.com, an investment web site, "Gross margin is the best tool to analyze a young company's potential for profitability. This tells you the profit made on the cost of sales."

34. Profit margin is a ratio of profitability calculated as net income divided by revenues, or net profits divided by sales. It measures how much out of every dollar of sales a company actually keeps in earnings. A higher profit margin indicates a more profitable company that has better control over its costs compared to a company with a lower profit margin. Profit margin is displayed as a percentage; a 20% profit margin, for example, means the company has a net income of $0.20 for each dollar of sales. The earnings of a company do not provide a full picture of its financial performance. Increased earnings are good, but an increase does not mean that the profit margin of a company is improving. For instance, if a company has costs that have increased at a greater rate than sales, it leads to a lower profit margin. This is an indication that costs need to be under better control. For example, a company that has a net income of $10 million from sales of $100 million has a profit margin of 10% ($10 million/$100 million). If in the next year net income rises to $15 million on sales of $200 million, the company's profit margin would fall to 7.5%. So while the company increased its net income, it has done so with diminishing profit margins, resulting in a negative trend.

35. Analyzing the margin trend of a company is an important tool in determining the relative financial performance of a company from one period to the next. An increasing margin trend is favorable for the company and a decreasing margin trend is unfavorable.

36. Due to the importance of margins on the analysis of its business, Focus Media regularly reported its margins to investors and highlighted when margins were improving.

Additionally, research analysts were interested in learning details about Focus Media's margins, including details about whether margins would be improving or declining in specific business areas or on an overall blended basis.

37. For example, throughout 2007, Focus Media disclosed its margins when reporting on its financial performance and research analysts sought additional details on margins during conference calls with Company management.

38. On February 26, 2007, Focus Media reported its financial results for 4Q06. It reported that gross margin for its Commercial Location Network, including its LED Network for 4Q06 was "73% . . . increasing from 71.44% in the [previous quarter]," for the "Poster Frame Network, gross margin was 75.4% . . . rising from 70.7% in the [previous quarter]," and that "[o]n a blended basis for the entire Company, our gross margin for the fourth quarter was 68.5%, up from 65.3% in the previous quarter."

39. On a conference call with analysts on February 26, 2007 concerning the Company's financial results for 4Q06, Company executives responded to questions from analysts about gross margins. For example, Safa Rashtchy, an analyst from Piper Jaffray, asked: "Your gross margins were pretty healthy and saw a good increase. Again, is this what we could expect to be a sustainable level or was there any particular things that helped?" Defendant Wu responded in pertinent part as follows:

I think the gross margin, as we said for the Commercial Location Network, in the long term we expect gross margins to be over 75%. And right now it's 73%, and we are making good progress towards that goal.

For the residential market, we think long term gross margin will be 75%. It seems we're already there. And we think maybe we can continue to improve.

* * *

In the In-store Networks we think the gross margins, there is room to improve. We want to move towards 55%, 60% by end of 2007. We'll continue trying – to try our best to move towards this at that point. . . . That will of course, if we continue to invest more aggressively in the hypermarket, that will affect the gross margins – the timing of gross margins to hit that threshold.

So overall, on a non-seasonal basis, without factoring in the seasonality in our business, we think the long term gross margin, the gross margin will continue to improve for the fourth quarter of 2006.

40. On May 17, 2007, Focus Media reported its financial results for 1Q07 and reported that “[g]ross margin for the first quarter was 58.0%, as compared to 55.8% in the first quarter of 2006.” It reported that, in the first quarter 2007, “gross margin for the commercial location network (including our outdoor LED network and movie theater advertising business) was 61.7%; the in-store network gross margin was 24.7%; the poster frame network gross margin was 66.9%; Focus Media wireless gross margin was 56.5%.”

41. On a conference call with analysts on May 17, 2007 concerning the Company's financial results for 1Q07, analysts were particularly interested in the Company's gross margins. Aaron Kessler, an analyst from Piper Jaffray asked: “And then can you provide some color around the expense level in Q2? With the higher revenue than we expected, it appears that you're modeling at some higher operating expenses as well or maybe some lower gross margins, so a little guidance on that.” Defendant Wu responded to this question in pertinent part as follows:

On the margin actually, if you think about Focus Media business, in our business most of the media segments are fixed cost base business. So when, as we said, when the first quarter there's the Chinese new Year holiday during which most people taking time off, so no people in the office building, we do experience a little bit soft in seasonality. So the margin we believe is normal. It doesn't reflect a longer trend. But it has to do-more with the seasonality of the business.

42. That same analyst next asked another question about margins in the Wireless business:

And finally just on the Wireless business, that appeared up about 50% sequentially and also the margins were very strong. I think you indicated last quarter that the margins might tick down given that there's a one time benefit last quarter. Could you just give us some commentary on the strength of the Wireless business?

43. Defendant Wu responded to this question in pertinent part as follows:

Sure. For the Wireless business, we do see very strong momentum in 2007. If you think about the growth margin this quarter, actually it's lower than Q4 because Q4 we had a one time rebate for mobile operators. Typically those rebate fees are paid at the end of the year. So we believe today that gross margin of the Mobile business is sustainable going forward.

44. The next question from an analyst on the May 17, 2007 conference call also concerned the Company's margins. Jason Helfstein, an analyst from CIBC World Markets asked, in pertinent part, the following:

Thank you. Three questions.

The first with respect to this quarter, very healthy utilization or occupancy growth this quarter particularly in tier-I markets. Does that set you up for strong pricing in the second quarter? That's question one.

Question two, we did notice however that the average direct cost or the margin per display for the Commercial business did tick up more than we thought. We expected that to be flat to down. Just any talk with respect to the margins in the Commercial Location network.

45. Defendant Jian responded to the question from Jason Helfstein in pertinent part as follows:

First of all, Jason to answer your first question. We expect a very healthy pricing trend going forward, especially today in the high utilization cities versus the smaller cities we have in our network, we have already, have the price ready and start talking to our clients. We will make an announcement and put it on our website very shortly for the price increase for the later part of the year. So overall we believe the pricing trend is very healthy.

On the margins for the Commercial Location network, if you think about the margin compared actually quarter-over-quarter, it's quite similar to first quarter of 2006. So we still expect long term gross margin for the Commercial Location business, without taking into consideration seasonality, will be about 75%. So basically we think that the Commercial Location network this quarter is affected by seasonality.

But otherwise we continue to believe for the big cities, which we have very high utilization rate today, the gross margin will be higher. But for the smaller cities where the utilization is relatively lower, which means the cities we just started our network, the gross margin will be lower given the fixed cost nature of the business. But we believe the long-term gross margin of the overall Commercial Location network will be over 75%.

46. Later during the May 17, 2007 conference call, another analyst also asked about the Company's margins. Lin Shi, an analyst from Lehman Brothers, asked, in pertinent part, the following:

My first question is on the gross profit margin of Commercial Location network. On a year-on-year basis I notice there's a slight drop, about 1.5%. But on the other hand we've seen the occupancy rate and ASP both go up quite a bit on a year-to-year basis. Given the nature of the fixed cost business, so I just wonder what's the reason behind the gross margin decline?

47. Defendant Wu responded to the question from Lin Shi as follows:

That's [as I said before] because last year we had many less cities versus this year. And this year it's a much bigger network. So I think that helps to hopefully answer your question. Because there are many more of cities, which are tier-III, tier-IV, tier-V cities which have low occupancy rate. And this therefore has a lower gross margin. So on a blended basis it's decreased slightly. So there's really, on a city by city basis, this overall gross margin are improving.

48. On September 27, 2007, Focus Media reported its financial results for 2Q07 and reported that its gross margin for its "digital out-of-home business was 63.1%. Within the digital out-of-home business, commercial location network gross margin was 65.0%, in-store network gross margin was 28.4%, and the poster frame network gross margin was 71.6%." Focus Media also reported that "[b]lended gross margin for the company for the second quarter was 54.6%, as compared to 56.9% in the second quarter of 2006. . . ."

49. On a conference call with analysts on September 27, 2007 concerning the Company's financial results for 2Q07, analysts were once again interested in the Company's gross margins. For example, James Mitchell, an analyst from Goldman Sachs, asked the following:

Okay, it's much more appropriate, but it makes my life harder. Just one other question from me, then. On Allyes, you commented that you see margins expanding over time. I guess, for the second quarter, it looked like it was a 27% or so gross margin for the business. Do you see that margin expanding relatively quickly as you [enjoy] merger synergies, or do you see that margin expanding more gradually over time as you change the business model?

50. Defendant Wu responded to the question from James Mitchell as follows:

I think, if you look at what we said -- mentioned in the press release, 90% of our Internet advertising business still is digital media service, which is interactive agency business, itself is a lower margin. I think we discussed a little bit on the call when we acquired Allyes. Those margins can continue to improve as the revenue base becomes larger, revenue growth becomes larger, and also due to the larger media buying power of our Internet advertising business.

So coming back to your question, here, it's going to be a gradual improvement. Still today, the digital media service is still the majority of our Internet advertising business. Going forward, we see from two areas for the margin improvement. One is continued improvement of margin in the digital media service business, as we talked about earlier, due to revenue base growth as well as media buying power and also increasing operating efficiency.

But also, we see a change of the revenue mix in our Internet advertising business, because, if you look at digital performance media, itself is a higher margin business. So as that particular business contributing more and change the mix of those different contributions, we do see the margin of the Internet advertising business will improve. But those will be gradual processes.

51. Research analysts covering Focus Media also stressed the Company's margins in research reports on the Company.

52. A March 12, 2007 research report by Deutsche Bank commented on Focus Media's margins and associated future margins with the success of the Allyes acquisition. The Deutsche Bank research report stated, in pertinent part:

Management of Focus Media is confident that net margins of Allyes will expand as its revenues scale up due to operating leverage and some cost synergies from centralizing certain corporate functions.

Based on our sensitivity analysis and estimates, with net margins going up, the Allyes acquisition will be slightly accretive to Focus' bottom line with 2007E, 08E and 09E EPS up by 7%, 6% and 8% to US$2.70, US$3.96 and US$4.97, respectively.

53. A March 16, 2007 research report by Independent International Investment Research PLC “reiterated a BUY on fundamental grounds” for Focus Media and stated: “[g]oing forward, we expect Focus Media to continue to report healthy top-line growth with improvement in margins.”

54. A May 18, 2007 research report by Deutsche Bank raised that firm’s price target and reiterated its Buy rating on Focus Media and stated in pertinent part: “[w]e expect margins to rebound in 2Q as sales ramp.”

55. A September 28, 2007 research report by WR Hambrecht & Co raised that firm’s price target and reiterated its Buy rating on Focus Media and stated in pertinent part: “management expects margins (27% GM in Q2:07) to improve over time as the company increases its revenue mix of technology-based products (over traditional advertising consulting business).”

Focus Media Forecasts Strong Growth for 3Q07

56. On September 27, 2007, three days before the close of fiscal 3Q07, Focus Media issued a press release announcing its financial results for 2Q07, the period ending June 30, 2007 (the “9/27/07 Press Release”). The 9/27/07 Press Release was filed with the SEC on Form 6-K on October 2, 2007. The 9/27/07 Press Release provided earnings guidance for 3Q07 and stated in pertinent part as follows:

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

The Company estimates its total revenues for the third quarter of 2007 will range from $132 million to $135 million. Third quarter 2007 net income excluding share-based compensation expense and intangible assets amortization expense resulting from acquisitions (non-GAAP) is expected to be between $52 million and $54 million or $0.41 to $0.43 per fully diluted ADS based on 126 million total ADS equivalent average shares outstanding. Due to higher-than-expected growth in our Internet advertising business, the company also raises its total revenues estimates for full year 2007 to a range of $440 million to $450 million, as compared to the previously announced range of $390 million to $400 million.

57. On September 27, 2007, Focus Media held a conference call with analysts and reiterated the financial forecasts for 3Q07 contained in the 9/27/07 Press Release.

58. Focus Media did not publicly change its business outlook for 3Q07 after September 27, 2007. The Prospectus (defined below), under the Where You Can Find Additional Information section on p. 160, stated that the “SEC also maintains a website that contains reports, proxy statements and other information about issuers, such as us, who file electronically with the SEC.” Thus, the Prospectus referred investors to its SEC filings, including the 9/27/07 Press Release. The next public disclosure concerning the Company’s financial results for 3Q07 was when the Company disclosed its actual results on November 19, 2007. Thus, at the time of the Secondary Offering, Focus Media had not altered its business outlook for 3Q07 even though that quarter had been closed for more than 1 month.

59. As discussed below, Focus Media’s actual financial results for 3Q07 were considerably worse than represented on September 27, 2007.

The Secondary Offering

60. On or about November 1, 2007, Focus Media filed a Form F-1/A Registration Statement (the “Registration Statement”) with the SEC for the Secondary Offering.

61. On or about November 7, 2007, the Prospectus (the “Prospectus”) with respect to the Secondary Offering, which forms part of the Registration Statement, became effective and more than 13.5 million shares of Focus Media’s ADSs at $64.75 per ADS were sold to the public, thereby raising more than $888 million. The Company sold 5 million ADSs and other selling shareholders identified in the Prospectus, including Defendant Tan, sold 8,720,873 ADSs in the Secondary Offering. Each ADS represented 5 ordinary Company shares.

62. Underwriter Defendants Citigroup, Credit Suisse and Merrill Lynch served as lead underwriters and Joint Bookrunners for the Secondary Offering. Each of the Underwriter

Defendants purchased 4,390,679 ADSs from the Company and selling shareholders and sold those shares to public investors in the Secondary Offering. CIBC World Markets Corp. and Piper Jaffray & Co. served as co-managers for the Secondary Offering and purchased 343,023 ADSs and 205,813 ADSs respectively, and sold those shares to public investors in the Secondary Offering. The Underwriter Defendants earned at least $25,586,681 as a result of their sale of Company ADSs in the Secondary Offering.

Focus Media Experienced an Undisclosed Contraction in Its Margins

63. During 3Q07, Focus Media suffered from a contraction in its gross and net margins, resulting in the Company being less profitable than disclosed to the marketplace. Focus Media did not disclose the decline in profit margins for 3Q07 until after the Secondary Offering. Gross margin, or the percentage of sales left after deducting production costs, fell to 50.9% in 3Q07 from 65.3% a year earlier (i.e., 3Q06).

64. Various factors caused the contraction in Focus Media's margins during 3Q07. The factors included, among others, margin problems due to several acquisitions by Focus Media during the first half of 2007 in its Internet advertising division and billboard division and margin compression in Focus Media's In-Store division.

65. Focus Media made several acquisitions during the first half of 2007.

66. In March 2007, the Company acquired Allyes, which operates an Internet advertising agency and service technology business. During 2007, the Company also acquired several other companies in the internet advertising space. The consolidation of these companies into Allyes had a negative impact on the Company's margins.

67. During the second quarter of 2007, Focus Media acquired a leading outdoor billboard operator in China, which operates over 200 outdoor billboard locations in major commercial centers in China. This outdoor billboard operator owned static (i.e., non-digital) billboards which are less profitable than the digital billboards owned by Focus Media prior to the acquisition. Focus Media planned to upgrade some of these non-digital billboards to digital billboards upon the expiration of existing contracts. These static billboards, however, were subject to relatively long advertising contracts of 1-2 years which needed to expire before Focus Media could alter their terms or convert the billboards to digital billboards. Furthermore, Focus Media would need governmental approval in order to convert a static billboard to a digital billboard.

68. Focus Media did not disclose sufficient details about these acquisitions to investors at the time of the acquisitions or in the Prospectus. Importantly, Focus Media did not inform investors that it acquired non-digital billboards with smaller margins compared with digital billboards.

69. Focus Media encountered problems with its In-Store division during the 3Q07, resulting in a significant decline in profit margins. The In-Store division had gross margins of 36.2% in 3Q06 and gross margins of 28.4% during 2Q07. During 3Q07, the In-Store division had gross margins of 17.7%, a decrease of 18.5 from 3Q06 and a decrease of 10.7 from 2Q07.

The Registration Statement Contained Inaccurate
Statements of Material Fact and Omitted Material Information Required to Be Disclosed Therein

70. The Registration Statement contained numerous inaccurate statements of material fact and omitted material information required to be disclosed therein.

71. The Registration Statement provided general information about various Company acquisitions during the first half of 2007.

72. The Registration Statement, stated in pertinent part as follows:

Acquisitions in the six months ended June 30, 2007 (unaudited):

In January and February 2007, the Group acquired five companies which provide in-elevator poster frame advertising services. . . .

In March 2007, the Group acquired five companies which provide mobile handset advertising services. . . .

In March 2007, the Group acquired a billboard advertising company. The purchase consideration is contingent upon the operating results over the next three years. The Group made an advance payment of $3 million, which will be deducted from the contingent purchase price consideration.

In March 2007, the Group completed the acquisition of Allyes Information Technology Company Limited, or Allyes, a Cayman Islands company, which operates an Internet advertising marketing agency and technology services company through its PRC affiliated entities. Allyes is the largest Internet advertising agency and provider of Internet advertising technology in China. The purchase price consideration was $70 million in cash and 19,969,080 ordinary shares having a fair value of $154,281,112, or $7.726 per ordinary share. Additional consideration of 9,662,458 ordinary shares is issuable, contingent upon Allyes meeting certain earnings targets during the twelve month period from April 1, 2007 to March 31, 2008.

In the second quarter of 2007, the Group completed acquisitions of eight companies which primarily provide mobile handset advertising, Internet advertising and outdoor billboard advertising services, for an aggregate purchase considerations of approximately $7.5 million plus additional consideration contingent upon the achievement of certain earnings targets over the next one to three fiscal years. The Group also made an advance payment of $16.3 million, which will be deducted from the contingent purchase price consideration.

73. The Registration Statement, stated in pertinent part as follows:

We continue, from time to time, to make acquisitions to expand our existing networks and to enter into new areas of business. For instance, in the first half of 2007, we acquired companies to expand our mobile handset advertising network and outdoor LED billboard network as well as entering into the Internet advertising business through several acquisitions including Allyes. We expect that acquisitions will continue to be an important component of our growth strategy.

In March 2007, we acquired Allyes, which operates an Internet advertising services and technology business.

74. The statements referenced above in ¶¶72-73 were each an inaccurate statement of material fact because they failed to disclose that recent Company acquisitions had a negative impact on the Company's overall profit margins and that Focus Media's gross margins for 3Q07 fell to 50.9% from 65.3% a year earlier and from 54.6% in 2Q07. The statements referenced above in ¶72 that “the Group acquired a billboard advertising company” and in ¶73 that Focus Media “acquired companies to expand” its “outdoor LED billboard network” were each an inaccurate statement of material fact because Focus Media did not acquire LED billboards but acquired non-digital billboards that had smaller profit margins than LED billboards and the Company’s plan was to eventually convert some of these non-digital billboards to LED billboards after their lengthy contracts expired and after the Company obtained governmental approval. Furthermore, the statements referenced above in ¶¶72-73 were each an inaccurate statement of material fact because they failed to disclose that the Company’s consolidation of acquisitions in the Internet advertising business resulted in a contraction in the Company’s blended profit margins and profit margins in the Internet advertising division. Indeed, for 3Q07, Focus Media’s gross margins in its Internet advertising division had declined to 23% as compared to 27.1% in 2Q07.

75. The Registration Statement, stated in pertinent part as follows:

The significant increase in our operating results since we commenced our current business operations is attributable to a number of factors, including the substantial expansion of our digital out-of-home advertising networks, the ongoing expansion of our mobile handset advertising network, the introduction of Internet advertising services into our platform, the successful execution and integration of strategic acquisitions, such as Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL and Allyes, and the growing acceptance of our multi-platform network as an appealing advertising medium by our clients.

We expect our future growth to be driven by a number of factors and trends including:

* * *

- Our ability to increase sales of advertising time slots and extend the duration of our advertising cycle on our commercial location and in-store networks;

* * *

- Our ability to successfully operate and market our new outdoor LED billboard network;
- Our ability to successfully operate and market our new Internet advertising services network; and
- Our ability to acquire and integrate companies that operate advertising businesses complementary to our existing operations.

76. The statements referenced above in ¶75 were each inaccurate statements of material fact because at the time of the Secondary Offering, the Company had suffered a significant reduction in its profit margins as a result of, among other things: (i) recent Company acquisitions in the Internet advertising division and billboard division; and (ii) problems in the Company's in-store division. Indeed, Focus Media's gross margins for 3Q07 fell to 50.9% from 65.3% a year earlier and from 54.6% in 2Q07. The statements referenced above in ¶75 that the Company's "significant increase in . . . operating results" is attributable to "the introduction of Internet advertising services into our platform" were each an inaccurate statement of material fact because they failed to disclose that the Company's consolidation of acquisitions in the Internet advertising business resulted in a contraction in the Company's blended profit margins and profit margins in the Internet advertising division. Indeed, for 3Q07, Focus Media's gross margins in its Internet advertising division had declined to 23% as compared to 27.1% in 2Q07. Furthermore, the statements referenced above in ¶75 were each inaccurate statements of material fact because the Company acquired non-digital billboards and would not be able to convert those billboards to LED billboards until the expiration of lengthy contracts and receipt of governmental approval.

77. The Registration Statement positively highlighted the Company's financial results for the first six months of 2007 but failed to disclose the negative profit margin trend in 3Q07. The Registration Statement, stated in pertinent part as follows:

Gross Profit. As a result of the foregoing, our gross profit increased by 101.5% from $46.5 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $93.6 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. Our overall gross margin decreased during the same period from 55.8% to 54.8% primarily due to the addition of our Internet advertising services network in the first half of 2007, which has lower margins. For the six months ended June 30, 2007, our gross margin for our digital out-of-home advertising network amounted to 60.1%, including gross margins for our commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks of 62.8%, 26.4% and 67.9%, respectively, compared to a gross margin for our digital out-of-home advertising networks of 61.0% for the six months ended June 30, 2006, including gross margins of 62.0%, 29.3% and 62.0% for our commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks, respectively. Gross margin for mobile handset advertising network increased from 21.8% for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to 56.6% for the six months ended June 30, 2007. Gross margin for our Internet advertising services network was 27.1% for the six months ended June 30, 2007. In the future, our gross margin may fluctuate depending on the respective financial performance and stage of development of each of our networks as well as the relative contribution to our revenues and costs of each network.

78. The statements referenced above in ¶77 were each an inaccurate statement of material fact because they omitted to disclose that: (i) the Company's margins in 3Q07 trended significantly downward compared with 3Q06 and 2Q07; (ii) the Company's gross margins in 3Q07 fell to 50.9% from 65.3% a year earlier and from 54.6% in 2Q07; (iii) Company acquisitions during the first half of 2007 negatively impacted the Company's profit margins; (iv) the Company's profit margins for 3Q07 were significantly smaller than the Company forecasted on September 27, 2007; (v) the Company's In-Store gross margins for 3Q07 fell to 17.7% from 28.4% in 2Q07; and (vi) the Company's Internet advertising division's gross margins fell to 23% from 27.1% in 2Q07.

79. The Registration Statement described the Company's billboard division as consisting of LED billboards even though that division also consisted of non-digital billboards with lower profit margins. In fact, the Prospectus described the network that operated the non-digital billboards as the LED billboard network.

80. The Registration Statement, Overview subsection of Business, stated in pertinent part as follows:

Our Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network which focuses on providing out-of-home advertising through LCD flat-panel televisions displays, LED billboards, movie screens, and poster and digital frames, includes our commercial location network, in-store network and poster frame network:

- our commercial location network, consisting of:

- our outdoor LED billboard network, which refers to our network of leased 5' x 5' LED digital billboards installed on the street-sides in major shopping districts and other locations with high pedestrian traffic in Shanghai;

81. The Registration Statement, stated in pertinent part as follows:

A majority of the content displayed on our commercial location and in-store networks consists of advertisements which are broadcast repeatedly approximately 60 times throughout a day. Advertisements on our outdoor LED billboard network are broadcast repeatedly approximately 120 times throughout a day.

* * *

As of June 30, 2007, our outdoor LED billboard network consisted of approximately 200 leased 5' x 5' digital billboards placed along curbsides in high-pedestrian traffic areas in Shanghai.

82. The Registration Statement, stated in pertinent part as follows:

Outdoor LED billboard network. In April 2006, we commenced operations of an outdoor LED billboard network consisting of 5' x 5' LED digital billboards that are installed on the street-sides in major shopping districts and other locations with high pedestrian traffic in Shanghai. Full-color audiovisual commercials are displayed on the digital billboards in a repeating six-minute cycle. The commercials displayed on the LED billboards are highly visible even during bright daylight. As of June 30, 2007, the number of the LED billboards in our street-side outdoor LED billboard network in prime commercial and shopping areas reached approximately 200. We market this part of our network under the name "iStreet Network."

83. The Registration Statement, stated in pertinent part as follows:

Advertising Contracts. We offer advertisers five-, fifteen- or thirty-second time slots on our out-of-home television advertising networks, including our commercial location, in-store, outdoor LED billboard and movie theater advertising networks. For our commercial location network, our standard advertising package includes a time slot on our entire network or a particular channel in each city in which the advertiser wishes to display the advertisement. For our movie theater advertising network, time slots are sold on a regional or entire network basis. Our sales are made pursuant to written contracts with commitments ranging from one week to several months.

84. The statements referenced above in ¶¶80-83 were each inaccurate statements of material fact because they failed to disclose that the LED billboard division contained non-digital billboards, that advertisements are not “broadcast” over these billboards in a “repeating cycle,” and that the Company would not be able to convert those billboards to LED billboards until the expiration of lengthy contracts and receipt of governmental approval. Furthermore, calling the billboard network the “LED” billboard network was an inaccurate statement of material fact because that network also contains non-LED billboards.

85. Under applicable SEC rules and regulations governing the preparation of the Registration Statement and Prospectus, the Prospectus was required to disclose both that: (i) the Company’s margins in 3Q07 trended significantly downward compared with 3Q06 and 2Q07; (ii) the Company’s gross margins in 3Q07 fell to 50.9% from 65.3% a year earlier and from 54.6% in 2Q07; (iii) Company acquisitions during the first half of 2007 negatively impacted the Company’s profit margins in 3Q07; (iv) the Company’s profit margins for 3Q07 were significantly smaller than the Company forecasted on September 27, 2007; (v) the Company’s In-Store gross margins for 3Q07 fell to 17.7% from 28.4% in 2Q07; (vi) the Company’s Internet advertising division’s gross margins fell to 23% from 27.1% in 2Q07; and (vii) the Company acquired non-digital billboards which have smaller profit margins than LED billboards and that even though the Company planned to convert these billboards to LED billboards, the conversions could only take place after the expiration of lengthy contracts and governmental approval. The Prospectus failed to contain any such disclosures.

86. Pursuant to Item 4(a) of Form 424B4, the Registration Statement was required to furnish the information required by Part I of Form 20-F. Under Item 5(D) of Part I of Form 20-F an issuer is required to, among other things, “discuss, for at least the current fiscal year, any known trends, uncertainties, demands, commitments or events that are reasonably likely to have a material effect on the company's net sales or revenues, income from continuing operations, profitability, liquidity or capital resources, or that would cause reported financial information not necessarily to be indicative of future operating results or financial condition." Additionally, under Item 8(B) of Form 20-F, the Registration Statement was required to disclose "whether or not any significant change has occurred since the date of the annual financial statements, and/or since the date of the most recent interim financial statements, if any, included in the document."

87. The fact that the Company's margins had significantly trended downward during 3Q07 and that Company acquisitions during the first half of 2007 had contributed to this downtrend were required to be disclosed in the Registration Statement but were not. Indeed, at the time of the Secondary Offering, the Company had already completed the 3Q07 and its actual financial results showed that the Company was less profitable than the Company forecasted on September 27, 2007. The Company had also completed acquisitions, such as of the non-digital billboards and of Internet advertising companies, which negatively impacted earnings.

88. Under Item 3(D) of Part I of Form 20-F, the Registration Statement was required to "prominently disclose risk factors that are specific to the company or its industry and make an offering speculative or one of high risk. . . ." Additionally, pursuant to Item 3 of Form F-1, the Registration Statement was required to furnish the information required by Item 503 of Regulation S-K. Under Item 503(c) of Regulation S-K, an issuer is required to, among other things, provide a "discussion of the most significant factors that make the offering risky or speculative."

89. The fact that: (i) the Company was much less profitable in 3Q07 than the Company had disclosed on September 27, 2007 and the fact that the Company had not corrected this forecast; and (ii) the Company acquired non-digital billboards that would not be able to be converted to LED billboards until the expiration of lengthy contracts and receipt of governmental approval, were significant factors that made the Secondary Offering speculative or one of high risk and were required to be disclosed in the Registration Statement but were not. This risk materialized shortly after the Secondary Offering on November 19, 2007 when the Company announced its financial results for 3Q07 and more fully described the Company's acquisitions and their negative impact on the Company's financial performance.

Post Secondary Offering Disclosures

90. On November 19, 2007, after the close of the market, Focus Media issued a press release announcing its financial results for the third quarter of 2007, the period ending September 30, 2007 (the "11/19/07 Press Release"). Among other things, the Company reported in the 11/19/07 Press Release that its gross margins for 3Q07 had declined due to several recent acquisitions and due to problems with its In-Store division. The Company's margins were considerably less than forecasted on September 27, 2007. Compared with the forecast from September 27, 2007, the Company's revenues were greater but earnings were in-line, resulting in smaller margins than forecasted. Thus, the Company required $151.4 million in revenues (or approximately 12% - 15% more in revenues than the $132-135 million forecasted) to generate the same earnings forecasted, resulting in much smaller margins than reflected in the business outlook from 9/27/07. The 11/19/07 Press Release stated in part:

Highlights for Third Quarter 2007:

-- Total revenues grew 149.6% year-over-year and 33.6% quarter-over-quarter to $151.4 million.

-- Net income for the third quarter was $46.6 million, up 72.6% year-over-year and 23.6% quarter-over-quarter. Fully diluted net income per ADS for the third quarter of 2007 was $0.37. . . .

Gross profit for the third quarter of 2007 was $77.1 million, representing an increase of 99.9% compared to $38.6 million for the corresponding period a year ago and a 24.7% increase compared to $61.8 million in the second quarter 2007. In the third quarter 2007, gross margin for our digital out-of-home business was 62.7%. Within our digital out-of-home advertising networks, commercial location network gross margin was 64.7%, in-store network gross margin was 17.7%, and the in-elevator poster frame network gross margin was 71.1%.

91. The 11/19/07 Press Release disclosed – for the first time - that the Company had acquired non-digital billboards and that those billboards had a negative impact on profit margins for 3Q07. The 11/19/07 Press Release also reported that the Company would need to wait for contracts on those billboards to expire, and would need to obtain governmental approval, before the billboards could be converted to digital billboards. The 11/19/07 Press Release stated in pertinent part:

Commercial location gross margin was impacted by the acquisition of a leading outdoor billboard operator in China, which operates over 200 highly attractive outdoor billboard locations in major commercial centers in China. Excluding the non-digital outdoor billboard business we acquired in the second quarter of 2007, commercial location gross margin would have been 74.6%. We plan to upgrade some of these sites to digital LED billboards upon expiration of the current contracts with advertisers. The acquisition provides Focus Media with a stronger strategic position for the growth of outdoor digital billboard business in the future.

92. The 11/19/07 Press Release reported the negative impact that the Company's In-Store business and acquisitions in the Internet advertising division had on its gross margins for 3Q07:

The gross margin for our Internet advertising business was 23.0% in the third quarter 2007, lower than the previous quarter due to several small acquisitions to strengthen the market leadership of Allyes. Blended gross margin for the company for the third quarter was 50.9%, as compared to 54.6% in the second quarter of 2007, primarily due to the contribution of the lower-margin Internet advertising business and in-store business.

93. The 11/19/07 Press Release also disclosed that during 3Q07, the In-Store division had gross margins of 17.7%, a decrease of 18.5 from 3Q06 and a decrease of 10.7 from 2Q07.

94. Focus Media also held a conference call with analysts on November 19, 2007 (the "11/19/07 Conf. Call"), during which Company executives reiterated the financial results of 3Q07. During the 11/19/07 Conf. Call, Defendant Jiang, in response to a question about the advertising contracts for the static billboards acquired during 2Q07, stated: "Typical advertising contract[s] in the China outdoor billboard business is roughly about one year or two years.” Defendant Jiang also discussed the long process involved with converting static billboards to digital billboards:

In terms of the converting traditional billboards to digital billboards, there are a lot of factors we need to take into consideration such as lighting impact on the surrounding neighborhood, such as the weight tolerance of the current construction, the current building, electricity supply. And of course we need to get government approval if we convert a traditional poster to a digital billboard. So all those things take time to work. Of course, it's reduced the work. The biggest entry barrier are basically access to the sites itself.

95. Following the Company's earnings release, on November 20, 2007, the price of Focus Media ADSs dropped from $57.15 per ADS to $52.00 per ADS on extremely heavy trading volume. The next day, on November 21, 2007, the price of Focus Media ADSs continued to decline and closed at $50.35 per ADS.

96. An article on Bloomberg on November 19, 2007 titled Focus Media Shares Decline as Profitability Misses Estimates reported that Focus Media's stock dropped due to a contraction in the Company's margins and described the impact that the acquisitions of internet advertising businesses had on margins. The article stated in pertinent part as follows:

Focus Media Holding Ltd. declined 5.3 percent in U.S. after-hours trading after profitability dropped to the lowest since July 2005, when China's largest publicly traded advertising company first sold shares.

The Shanghai-based company said its gross margin, or the percentage of sales left after deducting production costs, fell to 50.9 percent in the third quarter from 65.3 percent a year earlier. That missed estimates from analysts at Piper Jaffray & Co. and Susquehanna Financial Group.

Focus Media bought Web ad businesses to win a bigger share of China's advertising market as the nation's economy grew by more than 11 percent for three consecutive quarters. The acquisitions eroded the company's margins, said Piper Jaffray's Aaron Kessler.

“Margins are a near-term concern” that led to the decline in the stock, said Kessler, who rates Focus Media “outperform.” He had estimated a gross margin of 60.5 percent while Susquehanna Financial's Ming Zhao had expected the margin to be 58 percent.

97. Research analysts issued research reports commenting on the drop in the Company's stock price. A November 20, 2007 research report by CIBC World Markets titled Emotion is Driving Stock on Transparency; Estimates Unchanged, stated: "We believe the sell-off is largely driven by an emotional response to FMCN's lack of transparency." This research report stated in part:

On 9/27, management provided 3Q revenue guidance 13% ahead of Street expectations, with the implication that upside was from organic growth. However, after reporting 3Q earnings on Monday night, we learned that the upside was entirely from the acquisition of billboard and online assets.

* Moreover, these acquired static billboards are somewhat out of the company's core-expertise. While the company plans to upgrade these to LED displays, its previous outdoor digital displays have not been a success, in our view. Moreover, until these displays are upgraded (presumably some time in 2008), margins are likely to remain below its commercial business. As such, prior '08 estimates were artificially inflated by including these revenues at commercial margins, and we have accordingly adjusted our '08 for the static billboard margins.

* While we don't have an issue with the company's acquisition strategy, which is generating accretive returns above its cost of capital, the lack of disclosure is an issue for many investors.

98. A research report from SIG Susquehanna Financial Group, LLLP on November 30, 2007 stated that Focus Media "has acquired [approximately] 200 billboards whose relatively low profitability diluted overall margin."

COUNT I

Violations of Section 11 of the Securities Act Against All Defendants

99. Plaintiffs repeat and reallege each and every allegation contained above as if fully set forth herein.

100. This Count is brought pursuant to Section 11 of the Securities Act, 15 U.S.C. §77k, and is asserted against all Defendants.

101. The Registration Statement for the Secondary Offering was inaccurate and misleading, contained untrue statements of material facts, omitted facts necessary to make the statements made therein not misleading, and omitted to state material facts required to be stated therein.

102. Focus Media is the registrant for the Secondary Offering. As issuer of the shares, Focus Media is strictly liable for the materially inaccurate statements contained in the Registration Statement and the Prospectus and the failure of the Registration Statement and Prospectus to be complete and accurate.

103. The Individual Defendants each signed the Registration Statement either personally or through an Attorney-in-Fact and/or caused its issuance. The Individual Defendants each had a duty to make a reasonable and diligent investigation of the truthfulness and accuracy of the statements contained in the Registration Statement. They had a duty to ensure that such statements were true and accurate, that there were no omissions of material fact that would make the statements misleading and that the documents contained all facts required to be stated therein. In the exercise of reasonable care, the Individual Defendants should have known of the material misstatements and omissions contained in the Registration Statement and also should have known of the omissions of material fact that were necessary to make the statements made therein not misleading. As such, the Individual Defendants are liable to the Plaintiffs and the Class.

104. The Underwriter Defendants were each underwriters, as that term is used in Section 11(a)(5) of the Securities Act, with respect to the Secondary Offering and the Company's securities sold through the Registration Statement. The Underwriter Defendants were required to investigate with due diligence the representations contained therein to confirm that they did not contain materially misleading statements or omit material facts. None of the Underwriter Defendants made a reasonable investigation or possessed reasonable grounds for the belief that the statements described herein, which were contained in the Registration Statement and Prospectus, were true, were without omission of any material facts, and/or were not misleading.

105. By reasons of the conduct herein alleged, each Defendant violated Section 11 of the Securities Act.

106. Plaintiff Eastriver Partners acquired Focus Media ADSs in the Secondary Offering, and in reliance on, the Registration Statement and without knowledge of the untruths and/or omissions alleged herein. Plaintiffs and the Class sustained damages when the price of Focus Media's ADSs declined substantially due to material misstatements in the Registration Statement and Prospectus.

COUNT II

Violations of Section 12(a)(2) of the Securities Act Against All Defendants

107. Plaintiffs repeat and reallege each and every allegation contained above as if fully set forth herein.

108. This Count is brought pursuant to Section 12(a)(2) of the Securities Act, 15 U.S.C. §77l, on behalf of Plaintiffs and the Class, against all Defendants.

109. Defendants were sellers and offerors and/or solicitors of purchasers of the ADSs offered pursuant to the Prospectus. Defendants issued, caused to be issued, and/or signed the Registration Statement in connection with the Secondary Offering. The Registration Statement contained a Prospectus which was used to induce investors, such as the Plaintiffs and the other members of the Class, to purchase Focus Media's common stock.

110. The Prospectus contained untrue statements of material fact, omitted to state other facts necessary to make the statements made not misleading, and omitted material facts required to be stated therein. The Individual Defendants' actions of solicitation included participating in the preparation of the false and misleading Prospectus and in "Road Shows" to promote the Secondary Offering. Focus Media and the Underwriter Defendants, acting through their employees, agents and others, solicited such purchases for their personal financial gain through the preparation and dissemination of the Prospectus.

111. Pursuant to the Underwriting Agreement, each of the Underwriter Defendants purchased a total of at least 4,390,679 Focus Media ADSs at the public offering price, less an underwriting discount in the Secondary Offering.

112. The Underwriter Defendants participated in the preparation and dissemination of the false and misleading Prospectus for their own financial benefit. But for their participation in the Secondary Offering, including their solicitation as set forth herein, the Secondary Offering could not and would not have been accomplished. Specifically, the Underwriter Defendants:

- (a) made the decision to conduct the Secondary Offering and do it at the price set forth in the offering documents. The Underwriter Defendants drafted, revised and/or approved the Prospectus. The Prospectus was calculated to create interest in Focus Media ADSs and was widely distributed by or on behalf of these Defendants for that purpose;

- (b) finalized the Prospectus and caused it to become effective; and

- (c) conceived and planned the Secondary Offering and orchestrated all activities necessary to affect the sale of these securities to the investing public, by issuing securities, promoting the securities and supervising their distribution and ultimate sale to the investing public.

113. As set forth more specifically above, the Prospectus contained untrue statements of material fact and omitted to state material facts necessary in order to make the statements, in light of circumstances in which they were made, not misleading.

114. Plaintiffs and the other Class members did not know, nor could they have known, of the untruths or omissions contained in the Prospectus.

115. The Defendants named in this Count were obligated to make a reasonable and diligent investigation of the statements contained in the Prospectus to ensure that such statements were true and that there was no omission of material fact required to be stated in order to make the statements contained therein not misleading. None of the Defendants named in this Count made a reasonable investigation or possessed reasonable grounds for the belief that the statements contained in the Prospectus were accurate and complete in all material respects. Had they done so, these Defendants would have known of the material misstatements and omissions alleged herein.

116. By reason of the conduct alleged herein, these Defendants violated §12(a)(2) of the Securities Act. Accordingly, Plaintiff Eastriver Partners and members of the Class who hold Focus Media ADSs purchased in the Secondary Offering have the right to rescind and recover the consideration paid for their Focus Media ADSs and hereby elect to rescind and tender their Focus Media common stock to the Defendants sued herein. Plaintiff and Class members who have sold their Focus Media ADSs are entitled to rescissory damages.

COUNT III

Violation of Section 15 of the Securities Act Against the Individual Defendants

117. Plaintiffs repeat and reallege each and every allegation contained above as if fully set forth herein.

118. This Count is brought pursuant to Section 15 of the Securities Act against the Individual Defendants.

119. Each of the Individual Defendants acted as controlling persons of Focus Media within the meaning of Section 15 of the Securities Act by virtue of his position as a director and/or senior officer of Focus Media. By reason of their senior management positions and/or directorships at the Company, as alleged above, these Individual Defendants, individually and acting pursuant to a common plan, had the power to influence and exercised the same to cause Focus Media to engage in the conduct complained of herein. By reason of such conduct, the Individual Defendants are liable pursuant to Section 15 of the Securities Act.

120. Each of the Individual Defendants was a culpable participant in the violations of Sections 11 and 12(a)(2) of the Securities Act alleged in Counts I and II above, based on their having signed the Registration Statement and having otherwise participated in the process which allowed the Secondary Offering to be successfully completed.

Materially False and Misleading Statements Issued During the Class Period

121. For the purposes of this section of the Complaint, the term “Defendants” refers only to Defendants Focus Media, Jiang, Tan and Wu.

122. The statements referenced in ¶¶ 72, 73, 75, 77, 80-83 from the Registration Statement are incorporated herein by reference. These statements were materially false and misleading when made for the reasons set forth above.

123. On September 27, 2007, three days before the close of fiscal 3Q07, Focus Media issued a press release announcing its financial results for 2Q07, the period ending June 30, 2007. The 9/27/07 Press Release was filed with the SEC on Form 6-K on October 2, 2007. The 9/27/07 Press Release provided earnings guidance for 3Q07 and stated as follows:

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

The Company estimates its total revenues for the third quarter of 2007 will range from $132 million to $135 million. Third quarter 2007 net income excluding share-based compensation expense and intangible assets amortization expense resulting from acquisitions (non-GAAP) is expected to be between $52 million and $54 million or $0.41 to $0.43 per fully diluted ADS based on 126 million total ADS equivalent average shares outstanding. Due to higher-than-expected growth in our

Internet advertising business, the company also raises its total revenues estimates for full year 2007 to a range of $440 million to $450 million, as compared to the previously announced range of $390 million to $400 million.

124. The statements referenced in ¶123 were each materially false and misleading when made because they failed to disclose and misrepresented the following material adverse facts:

(a) At the time of the 9/27/07 Press Release, Defendants knew, or were reckless in not knowing, that Focus Media would generate approximately $151.5 million in revenues compared with the statement on September 27, 2007 that the Company is forecasted to generate $132-135 million in revenues but would still earn the forecasted approximately $52-$54 million in non-GAAP net income. Thus, the Company's profit margins would be considerably less in 3Q07 than forecasted even though there would be an increase in revenues;

(b) the Company's gross margins in 3Q07 fell to approximately 50.9% from 65.3% a year earlier and from 54.6% in 2Q07;

(c) Company acquisitions during the first half of 2007 negatively impacted the Company's profit margins in 3Q07;

(d) the Company's In-Store gross margins for 3Q07 fell to 17.7% from 28.4% in 2Q07;

(e) the Company's Internet advertising division's gross margins fell to approximately 23% from 27.1% in 2Q07; and

(f) the Company acquired non-digital billboards which have smaller profit margins than LED billboards and that even though the Company planned to convert these billboards to LED billboards, the conversions could only take place after the expiration of lengthy contracts and governmental approval.

125. Also on September 27, 2007, Focus Media held a telephone conference with analysts in connection with its financial results for 2Q07 ("the 9/27/07 Conf. Call"). On the 9/27/07 Conf.

Call, Focus Media reiterated its business forecast for 3Q07 that was contained in the 9/27/07 Press Release.

126. On the 9/27/07 Conf. Call, Defendant Wu provided Focus Media's business outlook for 3Q07 and stated that he expects that "the total revenue for the third quarter of 2007 to be between $132m and $135m, non-GAAP fully diluted earnings per ADS to be between $0.41 and $0.43."

127. The statements referenced above in ¶126 were each materially false and misleading for the reasons set forth in ¶124.

128. On the 9/27/07 Conf. Call, Defendant Jiang stated in pertinent part that going forward Focus Media will:

be able to increase the margin of Internet advertising business of Allyes. So going forward, for the Internet advertising business, the focus will be two areas. One is to achieve higher growth, higher -- hopefully higher than industry growth for the Internet advertising industry and also focus on improving the margin of the Internet advertising business of Focus Media.

129. On the 9/27/07 Conf. Call, Defendant Wu responded to a question about the expansion of the margins in the Internet advertising business:

James Mitchell - Goldman Sachs - Analyst

Okay, it's much more appropriate, but it makes my life harder. Just one other question from me, then. On Allyes, you commented that you see margins expanding over time. I guess, for the second quarter, it looked like it was a 27% or so gross margin for the business. Do you see that margin expanding relatively quickly as you [enjoy] merger synergies, or do you see that margin expanding more gradually over time as you change the business model?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

I think, if you look at what we said -- mentioned in the press release, 90% of our Internet advertising business still is digital media service, which is interactive agency business, itself is a lower margin. I think we discussed a little bit on the call when we acquired Allyes. Those margins can continue to improve as the revenue base becomes larger, revenue growth becomes larger, and also due to the larger media buying power of our Internet advertising business.

So coming back to your question, here, it's going to be a gradual improvement. Still today, the digital media service is still the majority of our Internet advertising business. Going forward, we see from two areas for the margin improvement. One is continued improvement of margin in the digital media service business, as we talked about earlier, due to revenue base growth as well as media buying power and also increasing operating efficiency.

But also, we see a change of the revenue mix in our Internet advertising business, because, if you look at digital performance media, itself is a higher margin business. So as that particular business contributing more and change the mix of those different contributions, we do see the margin of the Internet advertising business will improve. But those will be gradual processes.

130. The statements referenced in ¶¶128-29 were each materially false and misleading because they failed to disclose and misrepresented the following material adverse facts:

(a) Margins in the Internet advertising division for 3Q07 were not going to “improve as the revenue base becomes larger” or “expand” but in fact margins for the Internet advertising division were going to contract as revenues increase during 3Q07;

(b) Company acquisitions in the Internet advertising division during the first half of 2007 negatively impacted the Company's profit margins in 3Q07; and

(c) the Company's Internet advertising division's gross margins fell to 23% from 27.1% in 2Q07.

Additional Scienter Allegations

131. As alleged herein, Defendants acted with scienter in that Defendants knew, or recklessly disregarded, that the public documents and statements issued or disseminated in the name of the Company (or in their own name) were materially false and misleading; knew or recklessly disregarded, that such statements or documents would be issued or disseminated to the investing public; and knowingly and substantially participated or acquiesced in the issuance or dissemination of such statements or documents as primary violations of the federal securities laws. Defendants, by virtue of their receipt of information reflecting the true facts regarding Focus Media, their control over, and/or receipt and/or modification of Focus Media's allegedly materially misleading misstatements, were active and culpable participants in the fraudulent scheme alleged herein.

132. Defendants knew and/or recklessly disregarded the falsity and misleading nature of the information which they caused to be disseminated to the investing public. The ongoing fraudulent scheme described herein could not have been perpetrated during the Class Period without the knowledge and complicity or, at least, the reckless disregard of the personnel at the highest levels of the Company, including the Individual Defendants.

133. As alleged herein, at the time of the 9/27/07 Press Release and Conf. Call and at the time of the Secondary Offering, each of the Individual Defendants was aware of the true financial performance of Focus Media for 3Q07 and that the Company's margins were considerably smaller than represented on September 27, 2007 and that the margins were trending downward. Indeed, as stated by an analyst from Susquehanna Financial Group in a research report on September 28, 2007, "[s]ince guidance was given near the end of 3Q, we should believe the accuracy of company guidance is very high." Furthermore, each of the Individual Defendants knew, or recklessly disregarded, that Company acquisitions during the first half of 2007 had negatively impacted the Company's profit margins. Nevertheless, Defendants pushed forward with the Secondary Offering even though it was priced based upon an inaccurate perception of the Company's financial performance.

134. Additionally, the fraud alleged herein relates to the core business of Focus Media so knowledge of the fraud may be imputed to the Individual Defendants. Given Defendants' knowledge of the declining financial condition of Focus Media, the positive statements detailed above, made contemporaneously with that knowledge, were false and/or misleading.

135. Defendants' materially false and misleading statements and material omissions caused Focus Media's ADSs to be artificially inflated.

136. Additionally, each Defendant possessed substantial motives for misrepresenting Focus Media's financial status, operations, and prospects throughout the Class Period.

137. In August 2007, the Company's ADSs traded at $34.57 per ADS and rose to $64.75 at the time of the Secondary Offering. Defendants and selling shareholders capitalized on Focus Media's artificially inflated stock price by raising more than $888 million through the sale of Company ADSs in the Secondary Offering at $64.75 per ADS, close to the all-time high of 65.10 per ADS for the Company's ADSs. Shortly after the Secondary Offering, the Company's ADSs declined and never again reached $64.74 per ADS. The Company's ADSs closed at $27.05 per ADS on June 22, 2008.

138. The Company sold 5 million ADSs and raised $172,850,000 and other selling shareholders identified in the Prospectus, including Defendant Tan, sold 8,720,873 ADSs in the Secondary Offering raising more than $564 million. Defendant Tan personally sold 7,166,124 ADSs, representing 99% of his total holdings in the Company, and raised more than $464 million.

139. Recognizing that Focus Media's valuation would decline after the announcement of its results for 3Q07, Defendants timed the Secondary Offering so that it was priced before the Company announced its disappointing financial results for 3Q07 in order to maximize the amount of money they could raise in the Secondary Offering.

Applicability of Presumption of Reliance:
Fraud on the Market Doctrine

140. At all relevant times, the market for Focus Media ADSs was an efficient market for the following reasons, among others:

(a) Focus Media ADSs met the requirements for listing, and were listed and actively traded on the NASDAQ, a highly efficient and automated market;

(b) as a regulated issuer, Focus Media filed periodic public reports with the SEC and the NASDAQ;

(c) Focus Media regularly communicated with public investors via established market communication mechanisms, including through regular disseminations of press releases on the national circuits of major newswire services and through other wide-ranging public disclosures, such as communications with the financial press and other similar reporting services; and

(d) Focus Media was followed by several securities analysts employed by major brokerage firms who wrote reports which were distributed to the sales force and certain customers of their respective brokerage firms. Each of these reports was publicly available and entered the public marketplace.

141. As a result of the foregoing, the market for Focus Media ADSs promptly digested current information regarding Focus Media from all publicly available sources and reflected such information in Focus Media's share price. Under these circumstances, all purchasers of Focus Media ADSs during the Class Period suffered similar injury through their purchase of Focus Media ADSs at artificially inflated prices and a presumption of reliance applies.

Transaction and Loss Causation

142. The material misrepresentations and omissions particularized in this Complaint directly or proximately caused or were a substantial contributing cause of the damages sustained by Plaintiffs and other members of the Class.

143. As described herein, during the Class Period, Defendants engaged in the fraudulent scheme, and made or caused to be made a series of materially false or misleading statements about Focus Media and its financial performance.

144. The scheme, including the material misstatements and omissions, had the cause and effect of creating in the market an unrealistically positive assessment of Focus Media's business and financial performance, thus causing Focus Media ADSs to be overvalued and artificially inflated during the Class Period. Defendants' scheme, including the materially false and misleading statements during the Class Period, resulted in Plaintiffs purchasing the Company's ADSs at artificially inflated prices.

145. Defendants' improper conduct caused the damages complained of herein. When the material misstatements and omissions made by Defendants on September 27, 2007 and in the Prospectus became known to investors, on November 20, 2007 the price of Focus Media ADSs dropped from $57.15 per ADS to $52.00 per ADS, approximately 9%, on extremely heavy trading volume. The next day, on November 21, 2007, the price of Focus Media ADSs continued to decline and closed at $50.35 per ADS, an additional drop of more than 3%.

146. As a result of these revelations, and the corresponding drop in the price of Focus Media's ADSs, Plaintiffs and Class members suffered real economic loss.

147. Further, the timing and magnitude of Focus Media ADSs' price decline negate any inference that the losses suffered by Plaintiffs were caused by changed market conditions, microeconomic or industry factors or Company-specific facts unrelated to Defendants' fraudulent conduct. The economic loss, i.e., damages, suffered by Plaintiffs and other members of the Class was a direct result of Defendants' fraudulent scheme to artificially inflate the price of Focus Media and the subsequent significant decline in the value of Focus Media ADSs when the true state of the Company's operations and finances were revealed to the market and investors.

No Safe Harbor

148. The statutory safe harbor provided for forward-looking statements under certain circumstances does not apply to any of the allegedly false statements pleaded in this Complaint.

Many of the specific statements pleaded herein were not identified as “forward-looking statements” when made. To the extent there were any forward-looking statements, there were no meaningful cautionary statements identifying important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those in the purportedly forward-looking statements. Alternatively, to the extent that the statutory safe harbor does apply to any forward-looking statements pleaded herein, Defendants are liable for those false forward-looking statements because, at the time each of those forward-looking statements was made, the particular speaker knew that the particular forward-looking statement was false, and/or the forward-looking statement was authorized and/or approved by an executive officer of Focus Media who knew that those statements were false when made.

149. By virtue of the foregoing, Defendants have violated Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act, and Rule 10b-5 promulgated thereunder. As a direct and proximate result of Defendants’ wrongful conduct, Plaintiffs and the other members of the Class suffered damages in connection with their respective purchases and sales of the Company’s securities during the Class Period.

COUNT IV

Violation of Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act and Rule 10b-5 Promulgated Thereunder Against Defendants Focus Media, Jiang, Tan and Wu

150. Plaintiffs repeat and reallege each and every allegation contained in the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein. In this Count, the term “Defendants” refers only to Defendants Focus Media, Jiang, Tan and Wu.

151. During the Class Period, Defendants disseminated or approved the false statements specified above, which they knew or recklessly disregarded were misleading in that they contained misrepresentations and failed to disclose material facts necessary in order to make the statements made, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading.

152. Defendants violated Section 10(b) of the Exchange Act and Rule 10b-5 in that they:

- (a) Employed devices, schemes, and artifices to defraud;
- (b) Made untrue statements of material facts or omitted to state material facts necessary in order to make the statements made, in light of the circumstances under which they were made, not misleading; or
- (c) Engaged in acts, practices, and a course of business that operated as a fraud or deceit upon Plaintiffs and others similarly situated in connection with their purchases of Focus Media ADSs during the Class Period.

153. Plaintiffs and the Class have suffered damages in that, in reliance on the integrity of the market, they paid artificially inflated prices for Focus Media ADSs. Plaintiffs and the Class would not have purchased Focus Media ADSs at the prices they paid, or at all, if they had been aware that the market prices had been artificially and falsely inflated by Defendants' misleading statements.

154. As a direct and proximate result of these Defendants' wrongful conduct, Plaintiffs and the other members of the Class suffered damages in connection with their purchases of Focus Media ADSs during the Class Period.

COUNT V

Violation of Section 20(a) of the Exchange Act Against Defendants Jiang, Tan and Wu

155. Plaintiffs repeat and reallege each and every allegation contained in the foregoing paragraphs as if fully set forth herein. In this Count, the term "Defendants" refers only to Defendants Jiang, Tan and Wu.

156. Defendants Jiang, Tan and Wu acted as controlling persons of Focus Media within the meaning of Section 20(a) of the Exchange Act as alleged herein. By virtue of their high-level positions, and their ownership and contractual rights, participation in and/or awareness of the Company's operations and/or intimate knowledge of the false financial statements filed by the Company with the SEC and disseminated to the investing public, Defendants Jiang, Tan and Wu had the power to influence and control and did influence and control, directly or indirectly, the decision-making of the Company, including the content and dissemination of the various statements which Plaintiffs contend are false and misleading. Defendants Jiang, Tan and Wu were provided with, or had unlimited access to, copies of the Company's reports, press releases, public filings and other statements alleged by Plaintiffs to be misleading prior to and/or shortly after these statements were issued and had the ability to prevent the issuance of the statements or cause the statements to be corrected.

157. In particular, each of these Defendants had direct and supervisory involvement in the day-to-day operations of the Company and, therefore, is presumed to have had the power to control or influence the particular conduct giving rise to the securities violations as alleged herein, and exercised the same.

158. As set forth above, Defendants each violated Section 10(b) and Rule 10b-5 by their acts and omissions as alleged in this Complaint. By virtue of their positions as controlling persons, Defendants Jiang, Tan and Wu are liable pursuant to Section 20(a) of the Exchange Act. As a direct and proximate result of Defendants' wrongful conduct, Plaintiffs and other members of the Class suffered damages in connection with their purchases of the Company ADSs during the Class Period.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs, on behalf of themselves and the Class, prays for judgment as follows:

A. declaring this action to be a class action properly maintained pursuant to Rules 23(a) and (b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure;

B. awarding Plaintiffs and other members of the Class damages together with interest thereon;

C. with respect to Count II, Ordering that the Secondary Offering be rescinded;

D. awarding Plaintiffs and other members of the Class their costs and expenses of this litigation, including reasonable attorneys' fees, accountants' fees and experts' fees and other costs and disbursements; and

E. awarding Plaintiffs and other members of the Class such other and further relief as may be just and proper under the circumstances.

SAFE HARBOR: FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This announcement contains forward-looking statements. These statements are made under the "safe harbor" provisions of the U.S. Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. These forward-looking statements can be identified by terminology such as "will," "expects," "anticipates," "future," "intends," "plans," "believes," "estimates" and similar statements. Our Business

We are China's leading multi-platform digital media company, operate the largest out-of-home advertising network in China using audiovisual digital displays, based on the number of locations and number of flat-panel television displays in our network, and also are a leading provider of Internet marketing solutions in China. It is our goal to create the largest multi-platform digital advertising network in China, reaching urban consumers at strategic locations and point-of-interests over a number of media formats, including audiovisual television displays in buildings and stores, advertising poster frames and other new and innovative media, such as outdoor light-emitting diode or LED digital billboard, mobile handset advertising networks and Internet advertising platforms. As of June 30, 2007, our out-of-home advertising network consists of our digital out-of-home advertising network, our mobile handset advertising network and our Internet advertising services network:

Our Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network which focuses on providing out-of-home advertising through liquid crystal display or LCD flat-panel televisions displays, LED billboards, movie screens, and poster and digital frames, includes our commercial location network, in-store network and poster frame network:

- our commercial location network, which consists of:
  - our LCD display network, which refers to our network of flat-panel television displays placed in high-traffic areas of commercial and public buildings marketed to advertisers as a network or as seven separate channels targeting different types of consumers — our premier A and B office building channels, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels;
  - our outdoor LED billboard network, which refers to our network of leased 5' x 5' LED digital billboards installed on the street-sides in major shopping districts and other locations with high pedestrian traffic in Shanghai; and
  - our movie theater advertising network, which refers to our right to sell advertising time on movie screens for the three minutes prior to movie screenings at movie theaters in China.
- our in-store network, which refers to our network of flat-panel television displays placed in specific product areas inside stores with high-traffic concentrations such as selected consumer product sections, the main aisles and check-out lines in large-scale chain retail stores, or hypermarkets, as well as inside selected supermarkets and convenience stores; and
- our poster frame network, which refers to our network of traditional and digital advertising poster frames placed mainly in the elevators and public areas of residential complexes which we market under the brand name Framedia;

Our Mobile Handset Advertising Network, which refers to our mobile handset advertising services using wireless access protocol or WAP, short messaging service, or SMS, and mixed messaging services, or MMS, offered on the mobile telecommunications networks of China Mobile Communications Corporation, or China Mobile, and China United Telecommunications Corporation, or China Unicom; and

Our Internet Advertising Services Network, which refers to our Internet advertising agency and advertising services technology, including performance-based software suites.

We derive revenue principally by:

- selling advertising time slots on our out-of-home television networks, which include our commercial location network and our in-store network;
- by selling frame space on our poster and digital frame network;
- selling advertisements on our mobile handset advertising network; and
- providing advertising agency and technology services and software for online advertising.

A majority of the content displayed on our commercial location and in-store networks consists of advertisements which are broadcast repeatedly approximately 60 times throughout a day. Advertisements on our outdoor LED billboard network are broadcast repeatedly approximately 120 times throughout a day.

Our poster frame network consists of advertising poster frames placed in elevators and public areas in residential complexes and commercial locations. Our advertising posters include both traditional printed posters as well as digital LCD poster frames with integrated sound, all-angle and remote control technologies. Generally two or three advertising poster frames can be placed in each elevator.

Advertisements on our mobile phone advertising network are advertisements that are sent to mobile phone users over China Mobile and China Unicom's networks.

Our Internet advertising services network, which we acquired through our acquisition of Allyes in March 2007, uses proprietary software applications provide online ad publishing, creative production, tracking, targeting, and performance analysis. We also provide performance-based online advertising services providing advertisers with pay by CPA (cost-per-action), which directly links advertising cost with performance. Our Internet advertising services network has integrated advertising resources from over 5,000 popular websites, making it the largest performance-based online advertising network in China.

As of December 31, 2006, over 4,000 advertisers purchased advertising time on our advertising networks. Our five largest advertising clients in terms of revenue, which include leading international and domestic brand name advertisers, were Dong Feng Auto (including joint venture brands with Toyota and Peugeot), China Mobile, Samsung, NEC and Motorola, which together accounted for approximately 10.1% of our revenue in 2006.

Since we commenced our current business operations in May 2003, we have experienced significant growth in our network and in our financial results. As of June 30, 2007, we operated our commercial location network directly in over fifty major cities throughout China, including Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou and Shenzhen. As of June 30, 2007, we covered approximately 40 additional cities through contractual arrangements with regional distributors. Between January 1, 2005 and June 30, 2007, the number of displays in our commercial location network increased from 15,415 to 89,687. As of June 30, 2007, our outdoor LED billboard network consisted of approximately 200 leased 5' x 5' digital billboards placed along curbsides in high-pedestrian traffic areas in Shanghai. We had installed over 161,435 advertising poster frames and our in-store network consisted of 41,322 flat-panel displays placed in 3,995 store locations in our directly operated cities, including 1,205 hypermarkets, 734 supermarkets and 2,056 convenience stores.

For the six months ended June 30, 2007, we recorded total revenues of $170.6 million and net income of $54.0 million as compared to total revenues of $83.3 million and net income of $26.1 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006. In 2006, we recorded total revenues of $211.9 million and net income of $83.2 million as compared to total revenues of $68.2 million and net income of $23.5 million in 2005.

Table of Contents*Our Strategies, Risks and Uncertainties

Our objective is to become the leading multi-platform digital media brand in China's advertising industry. We intend to achieve this objective by implementing the following strategies:

- Enhance our market position and revenues by expanding our networks;
- Identify and create new networks and advertising channels that target specific consumer demographics and expand network capacity;
- Promote our brand name and augment our service offerings to attract a wider client base and increase revenues; and
- Continue to explore new digital media opportunities to target segmented consumer groups.

See "Business — Strategies" for additional details on our strategies.

Our ability to realize our business objectives and execute our strategies is subject to risks and uncertainties, including the following:

- our ability to successfully integrate and manage our recently acquired entities, businesses and networks into our existing business;
- our limited operating history for our current operations and the short history of the out-of-home television advertising sector that make it difficult for you to evaluate the viability and prospects of our business;
- competition from present and future competitors in China's growing advertising market, particularly large multi-national advertisers that may now more readily compete in China;
- our limited ability to control and oversee the everyday business activities or regulatory compliance of our regional distributors; and
- the possibility that the PRC government could determine that our operating structure does not comply with PRC government restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry, which could potentially subject us to severe penalties.

See "Risk Factors" and other information included in this prospectus for a discussion of these and other risks.

Our Corporate History and Structure

We were incorporated on April 11, 2003 as an international business company formed under the laws of the British Virgin Islands, and changed our corporate domicile to the Cayman Islands on April 1, 2005. Our ADSs representing our ordinary shares have been quoted on the Nasdaq Global Market Inc. since our initial public offering on July 13, 2005. Due to PRC government restrictions that apply to foreign investment in China's advertising industry, our advertising business is currently conducted through contractual arrangements among us, our subsidiaries and our consolidated affiliated entities in China. Focus Media Advertisement, several of its subsidiaries and Shanghai New Focus Media Advertisement Co., Ltd., or New Focus Media Advertisement, Shanghai New Structure Advertisement Co., Ltd., or New Structure Advertisement, Shanghai Framedia Advertisement Development Co., Ltd., or Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Shiji Shenghuo Advertisement Co., Ltd., or Guangdong Framedia, Beijing Focus Media Wireless Co., Ltd., or Focus Media Wireless, and seven PRC entities affiliated with Allies hold the requisite licenses to provide advertising services in China. Except for New Focus Media Advertisement, which is our indirect subsidiary, we refer to these companies collectively as our PRC operating affiliates. These contractual arrangements enable us to:

- exercise effective control over our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries;
- receive a substantial portion of the economic benefits from our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries; and

- have an exclusive option to purchase all or part of the equity interests in our PRC operating affiliates and all or part of the equity interests in Focus Media Advertisement's subsidiaries, as well as all or part of the assets of Focus Media Advertisement, in each case when and to the extent permitted by PRC law.

See "Our Corporate Structure" and "Related Party Transactions" for further information on our contractual arrangements with these parties.

Recent Developments

Audit Committee Investigation. As a result of an audit committee investigation prompted by allegations raised by the U.S. counsel representing an anonymous investor, we failed to timely file our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F. The unnamed investor, described as holding a short position in our ADSs at the time of the allegations in June 2007, alleged that: (a) Everease, a company previously run by our founder and CEO, Jason Jiang, is a related party as a result of ongoing ties between Everease and Mr. Jiang and members of Mr. Jiang's family; and (b) we made undisclosed rebate payments to a third-party advertising agency through Everease in order to inflate our reported financial performance. Our audit committee commenced an investigation of the allegations on June 28, 2007. It hired independent U.S. legal counsel and independent forensic accountants, who reviewed documents and interviewed witnesses. On September 25, 2007, the audit committee completed its investigation and discussed the results with our independent registered public accounting firm. Based upon its review of the evidence, the audit committee concluded that nothing had come to its attention — apart from the initial allegations that gave rise to the investigation — that would cause the audit committee to believe that we made undisclosed rebate payments to a third party advertising agency through Everease. We informed the investigators that we concluded that Everease is a related party based upon information developed during the investigation. See "Related Party Transactions" for further information on our contractual arrangements with Everease. On September 25, 2007, we filed our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F.

Appointment of Director. On September 28, 2007, we appointed David Ying Zhang as our independent director, bringing our total number of directors to nine and giving us a majority of independent directors on our board. See "Management".

Compliance with Nasdaq Listing Requirements. On October 4, 2007, we received a letter from Nasdaq Listing Qualifications notifying us that we had regained compliance with all Nasdaq listing qualifications by filing our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F.

Our statements of operations for 2004, 2005 and 2006 and our balance sheets as of December 31, 2005 and 2006 are derived from those financial statements that have been included elsewhere in this prospectus. Our statement of operations for each of the six months ended June 30, 2006 and 2007 and balance sheet data as of June 30, 2006 and 2007 has been derived from our unaudited consolidated financial data which has been included elsewhere in this prospectus.

In April 2005, we commenced commercial operations of our in-store network and through our acquisition of Framedia, we commenced operation of our poster frame network on January 1, 2006. In February 2006, we acquired Target Media and in March 2006, we acquired Focus Media Wireless. In March 2007, we acquired Allies.

Table of ContentsCONSOLIDATED PRO FORMA FINANCIAL DATA OF FOCUS MEDIA,
TARGET MEDIA AND ALLYES

The following unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information is derived from the historical financial statements of Focus Media Holding Limited, appearing elsewhere in this prospectus, after giving effects to the pro forma adjustments described in the notes thereto. Financial information with respect to the acquisitions is derived from the historical financial statements and management accounts of Target Media Holdings Limited, or Target Media and Allyes Information Technology Company Limited, or Allyes, appearing elsewhere in this prospectus.

The preparation of the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations appearing below is based on financial statements prepared in accordance with US GAAP. These principles require the use of estimates that affect the reported amounts of revenues and expenses. Actual results could differ from those estimates. The objective of the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations is to provide information on the impact of the acquisitions of Target Media and Allyes. The acquired businesses have permitted us to expand our network of out-of-home consumers and to expand into the Internet advertising services business.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations for the year ended December 31, 2006 presents adjustments as if the acquisitions of Target Media and Allyes had been consummated on January 1, 2006. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations for the six months ended June 30, 2007 presents adjustments as if the acquisition of Allyes had been consummated on January 1, 2007.

The following unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations should be read in conjunction with the historical consolidated financial statements, unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations and the "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" included elsewhere in this prospectus.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information presented in this prospectus includes all the adjustments, consisting of normal recurring adjustments, necessary for a fair presentation of the operating results in the historical periods. However, because such adjustments are based on estimates such as the estimated amortization period for the acquired intangible assets for Allyes, it is not intended to show how the consolidated companies would have actually performed if the events described above had in fact occurred on the dates assumed or to project the results of operations or financial position for any future date or period. In addition, the financial information of Target Media for the period between January 1, 2006 and February 28, 2006, and the financial information of Allyes for the period between January 1, 2007 and March 28, 2007, the respective dates of the acquisitions, have not been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm but is derived from management accounts. Accordingly, the financial information for the two-month period ended February 28, 2006 and the period from January 1, 2007 through March 28, 2007 of Target Media and Allyes, respectively, that has been used to calculate the pro forma financial information for the six-month and twelve-month periods ended June 30, 2007 and December 31, 2006, may differ significantly from any actual consolidated statements of operations had it been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm. See "Risk Factors — The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information included in this prospectus contains financial information that has not been audited or reviewed by an independent certified public accounting firm, and that is derived in part by estimates, and accordingly the pro forma financial information may differ significantly from the actual consolidated financial information".

	(In thousands of U.S. dollars)
Cash consideration	$ 70,000
Fair Value of ordinary shares issued	154,698

Table of ContentsRISK FACTORS

You should consider carefully all of the information in this prospectus, including the risks and uncertainties described below, before making an investment in our ADSs. Any of the following risks could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operations. In any such case, the market price of our ADSs could decline, and you may lose all or part of your investment.

Risks Relating to Our Business and Industry

Our failure to timely file our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F as a result of allegations raised by an anonymous investor holding a short position in our ADSs may subject us to shareholder litigation, which may materially and adversely affect our business.

As a result of the audit committee investigation of allegations raised by attorneys representing an anonymous investor, we failed to timely file our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F. The unnamed investor, described as currently holding a short position in our ADSs, alleged that: (a) Everease, a company previously run by our founder and CEO, Jason Jiang, is a related party as a result of ongoing ties between Everease and Mr. Jiang and members of Mr. Jiang's family; and (b) we were making undisclosed rebate payments to a third-party advertising agency through Everease in order to inflate our reported financial performance.

Our audit committee commenced its investigation of the allegations on June 28, 2007. It hired independent U.S. legal counsel and independent forensic accountants, who reviewed documents and interviewed witnesses.

On September 25, 2007, our audit committee completed its previously disclosed investigation into allegations made by U.S. counsel to an investor described as holding a short position in our stock. The results of the investigation have been discussed with our independent registered public accounting firm. Based upon its review of the evidence, the audit committee concluded that nothing had come to its attention — apart from the initial allegations that gave rise to the investigation — that would cause the audit committee to believe that we made undisclosed rebate payments to a third party advertising agency through another advertising agency, namely, Everease. We have informed the investigators that we have concluded that Everease is a related party based upon information developed during the investigation. Based upon its review of the evidence, the audit committee concurs with our conclusion that Everease should be deemed a related party. For detailed descriptions of our related party transactions with Everease, see "Related Party Transactions — Transactions with Everease; — Other Related Party Transactions — Loan from Relative of Jason Nanchun Jiang." On September 25, 2007, we filed our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F.

Our failure to timely file our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F as a result of the allegations subjected us to delisting review by the Nasdaq Listing Qualifications Panel. We received a Nasdaq Staff Determination letter on July 10, 2007 that we were not in compliance with the filing requirement for continued listing as set forth in Nasdaq Marketplace Rule 4320(e)(12). On October 4, 2007, we received a letter from Nasdaq Listing Qualifications notifying us that we had regained compliance with all Nasdaq listing qualifications by filing our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F.

In addition, as a result of these allegations, we may be subject to shareholder litigation, which may divert the attention of our management and force us to expend resources to defend against such claims. Any litigation may have a material and adverse effect on our business and future results of operations.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information included in this prospectus contains financial information that has not been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm and that is derived in part by estimates, and accordingly the pro forma financial information may differ significantly from the actual consolidated financial information.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information presented in this prospectus includes all the adjustments, consisting of normal recurring adjustments, necessary for a fair presentation of the operating results in the historical periods. However, because such adjustments are based on estimates such as the estimated amortization period for the acquired intangible assets for Target Media and Allies, it is not intended to show how the consolidated companies would have actually performed if the events described above had in fact occurred on the dates assumed or to project the results of operations or financial position for any future date or period.

In addition, the financial information of Target Media for the period between January 1, 2006 and February 28, 2006 (date of acquisition) and Allyes for the period between January 1, 2007 and March 28, 2007 (date of acquisition) has not been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm but is derived from management accounts. Accordingly, the financial information of Target Media and Allyes for that period, including the statements of operations relating to Target Media and Allyes, that has been used to calculate the pro forma financial information as of and for the year ended December 31, 2006 and six-month period ended June 30, 2007 may differ significantly from any actual consolidated financial information had it been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm. See "Consolidated Pro Forma Financial Data of Focus Media, Target Media and Allyes".

We have a limited operating history, which may make it difficult for you to evaluate our business and prospects.

We began operations of our commercial location network in May 2003. In addition, we have operated our in-store network since April 2005 and acquired and began to operate our poster frame network from January 2006 under the brand name "Framedia". In March 2006, September 2006 and March 2007, respectively, we added a mobile handset advertising network, an outdoor LED billboard advertising network, a movie theater advertising network and an Internet advertising services network to our business. Accordingly, we have a very limited operating history for our current operations upon which you can evaluate the viability and sustainability of our business and its acceptance by advertisers and consumers. It is also difficult to evaluate the viability of our use of audiovisual advertising displays in commercial buildings, hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores and other out-of-home commercial locations and our use of advertising poster frames in residential complexes, SMS-, MMS- and WAP-based mobile handset advertising and Internet advertising services as a business model because we do not have sufficient experience to address the risks frequently encountered by early stage companies using new forms of advertising media and entering new and rapidly evolving markets. These circumstances may make it difficult for you to evaluate our business and prospects.

We derive a substantial majority of our revenues from the provision of advertising services, and advertising is particularly sensitive to changes in economic conditions and advertising trends.

Demand for advertising time slots and advertising frame space on our networks, and the resulting advertising spending by our clients, is particularly sensitive to changes in general economic conditions and advertising spending typically decreases during periods of economic downturn. Advertisers may reduce the money they spend to advertise on our networks for a number of reasons, including:

- a general decline in economic conditions;
- a decline in economic conditions in the particular cities where we conduct business;
- a decision to shift advertising expenditures to other available advertising media; or
- a decline in advertising spending in general.

A decrease in demand for advertising media in general and for our advertising services in particular would materially and adversely affect our ability to generate revenue from our advertising services, and our financial condition and results of operations.

Our quarterly operating results are difficult to predict and may fluctuate significantly from period to period in the future.

Our quarterly operating results are difficult to predict and may fluctuate significantly from period to period based on the seasonality of consumer spending and corresponding advertising trends in China. In addition, advertising spending generally tends to decrease during January and February each year due to the Chinese Lunar New Year holiday. We also experience a slight decrease in revenues during the hot summer months of July and

August each year, when there is a relative slowdown in overall commercial activity in urban areas in China. As a result, you may not be able to rely on period to period comparisons of our operating results as an indication of our future performance. Factors that are likely to cause our operating results to fluctuate, such as the seasonality of advertising spending in China, a deterioration of economic conditions in China and potential changes to the regulation of the advertising, Internet and wireless communications industries in China, are discussed elsewhere in this prospectus. If our revenues for a particular quarter are lower than we expect, we may be unable to reduce our operating expenses for that quarter by a corresponding amount, which would harm our operating results for that quarter relative to our operating results from other quarters.

Our failure to maintain existing relationships or obtain new relationships with businesses that allow us to access to desirable locations and platforms on which we operate our network could harm or reverse our growth potential and our ability to increase our revenues.

Our ability to generate revenues from advertising sales depends largely upon our ability to provide large networks of flat-panel displays placed in desirable building, commercial and store locations, of advertising poster frames placed in residential complexes, to secure desirable locations of large outdoor LED digital billboards, throughout major urban areas in China and access to wireless communications and Internet service providers. We also depend on the ability of our third-party location provider to secure desirable LED digital billboard locations for our outdoor LED network. This, in turn, requires that we develop and maintain business relationships with real estate developers, landlords, property managers, hypermarkets, retailers and other businesses and locations in which we rent space for our displays and digital billboards, and wireless communications network and Internet service providers and websites. Although a majority of our display placement agreements and advertising frame placement agreements have terms ranging from three to five years and two to three years, respectively, and upon expiration give us the right to renew the agreement on terms no less favorable than those offered by competing bidders, we may not be able to maintain our relationships with them on satisfactory terms, or at all. If we fail to maintain our relationships with landlords and property managers, or if a significant number of our existing display or advertising frame placement agreements are terminated or not renewed or if we fail to maintain our relationship with our location provider of LED billboard space, advertisers may find advertising on our networks unattractive and may not wish to purchase advertising time slots or advertising frame space on our networks, which would cause our revenues to decline and our business and prospects to deteriorate. Moreover, if we are unable to maintain relationships with wireless communications network operators and Internet service providers, we would be unable to maintain our mobile handset advertising and Internet advertising services networks.

Under some of our display placement agreements in Guangzhou, Shenzhen, Dalian and Chongqing, the property manager has the right to terminate the agreement if landlords or tenants in the building lodge complaints about our flat-panel displays. In addition, some of our display placement agreements in other cities allow the property manager to terminate the agreement if we fail to keep each flat-panel display operational for a minimum amount of time each year. If these tenants complain about our displays, or if the property manager claims we have failed to keep the flat-panel displays operational for the stipulated number of days each year, we may be required to remove our panels from these commercial locations.

In accordance with PRC real estate laws and regulations, prior consent of landlords and property managers is required for any commercial use of the public areas or facilities of residential properties. With regard to our network of advertising poster frames and some of our flat-panel displays placed in the elevators and public areas of residential complexes, we have entered into frame or display placement agreements with property managers and landlords. For those frame or display placement agreements entered into with property managers, we intend to obtain or urge property managers to obtain consents from landlords. However, if the landlords of a residential complex object to our placing advertising poster frames or flat-panel displays in the elevators and public areas of the complex, we may be required to remove our advertising poster frames or flat-panel displays from the complex and may be subject to fines. We may not be able to successfully expand our out-of-home advertising network into new regions or diversify our network into new advertising networks or media platforms, which could harm or reverse our growth potential and our ability to increase our revenues.

If we are unable to obtain or retain desirable placement locations for our flat-panel displays, advertising poster frames and outdoor LED billboards on commercially advantageous terms or if the supply of desirable locations diminishes or ceases to expand, we could have difficulty in maintaining or expanding our network, our operating margins and earnings could decrease and our results of operations could be materially and adversely affected.

Our location costs, which include lease payments to landlords and property managers under our display placement agreements, maintenance and monitoring fees and other associated costs, comprise a significant portion of our cost of revenues. In 2005, our location costs accounted for 61.7% of our cost of revenues and 24.0% of our total revenues, respectively. In 2006, our location costs accounted for 66.2% of our cost of revenues and 24.3% of our total revenues, respectively. For the six months ended June 30, 2007, our location costs accounted for 73.7% of our cost of revenues and 33.3% of our total revenues, respectively. In the future, we may need to increase our expenditures on our display and frame placement agreements to obtain new and desirable locations, to renew existing locations, and to secure favorable exclusivity and renewal terms. In addition, lessors of space for our flat-panel displays, advertising poster frames and LED billboards may charge increasingly higher display location lease fees, or demand other compensation arrangements, such as profit sharing. If we are unable to pass increased location costs on to our advertising clients through rate increases, our operating margins and earnings could decrease and our results of operations could be materially and adversely affected.

In addition, in more developed cities, it may be difficult to increase the number of desirable locations in our network because most such locations have already been occupied either by us or by our competitors, or in the case of outdoor LED billboards, because the placement of outdoor installments may be limited by municipal zoning and planning policies. In recently developing cities, the supply of desirable locations may be small and the pace of economic development and construction levels may not provide a steadily increasing supply of desirable commercial and residential locations. If, as a result of these possibilities, we are unable to increase the placement of our out-of-home television and poster frame advertising networks into commercial and residential locations that advertisers find desirable, we may be unable to expand our client base, sell advertising time slots and poster frame space on our network or increase the rates we charge for time slots and poster frame space, which could decrease the value of our network to advertisers.

If we are unable to attract advertisers to advertise on our networks, we will be unable to maintain or increase our advertising fees and the demand for time on our networks, which could negatively affect our ability to grow revenues.

The amounts of fees we can charge advertisers for time slots on our out-of-home television networks depend on the size and quality of our out-of-home television networks and the demand by advertisers for advertising time on our out-of-home television networks. Advertisers choose to advertise on our out-of-home television networks in part based on the size of the networks and the desirability of the locations where we have placed our flat-panel displays and where we lease LED digital billboards as well as the quality of the services we offer. If we fail to maintain or increase the number of locations, displays and billboards in our networks, diversify advertising channels in our networks, or solidify our brand name and reputation as a quality provider of advertising services, advertisers may be unwilling to purchase time on our networks or to pay the levels of advertising fees we require to remain profitable.

In addition, the fees we can charge advertisers for frame space on our poster frame network depends on the quality of the locations in which we place advertising poster frames, demand by advertisers for frame space and the quality of our service. If we are unable to continue to secure the most desirable residential locations for deployment of our advertising poster frames, we may be unable to attract advertisers to purchase frame space on our poster frame network.

Our failure to attract advertisers to purchase time slots and frame space on our networks will reduce demand for time slots and frame space on our networks and the number of time slots and amount of frame space we are able to sell, which could necessitate lowering the fees we charge for advertising time on our network and could negatively affect our ability to increase revenues in the future.

Our acquisitions of Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL, Allyes and any future acquisitions may expose us to potential risks and have an adverse effect on our ability to manage our business.

Selective acquisitions, such as our recent acquisitions of Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL and Allyes, form part of our strategy to further expand our business. If we are presented with appropriate opportunities, we may acquire additional businesses, services or products that are complementary to our core business. Our integration of the acquired entities into our business may not be successful and may not enable us to expand into new advertising platforms as well as we expect. This would significantly affect the expected benefits of these acquisitions. Moreover, the integration of Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless and Allyes into our operations has required, and will continue to require, significant attention from our management. Future acquisitions will also likely present similar challenges.

The diversion of our management's attention and any difficulties encountered in any integration process could have an adverse effect on our ability to manage our business. In addition, we may face challenges trying to integrate new operations, services and personnel with our existing operations. Our recent acquisitions and possible future acquisitions may also expose us to other potential risks, including risks associated with unforeseen or hidden liabilities, the diversion of resources from our existing businesses and technologies, our inability to generate sufficient revenue to offset the costs, expenses of acquisitions and potential loss of, or harm to, relationships with employees and advertising clients as a result of our integration of new businesses and new regulations governing cross-border investment by PRC residents. In addition, we cannot assure you that we will be able to realize the benefits we anticipate from acquiring Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL, Allyes and other companies, or that we will not incur costs, including those relating to intangibles or goodwill, in excess of our projected costs for these transactions. The occurrence of any of these events could have a material and adverse effect on our ability to manage our business, our financial condition and our results of operations.

There may be unknown risks inherent in our acquisitions of Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL and Allyes, which could result in a material adverse effect on our business.

Although we have conducted due diligence with respect to the major acquisitions we have undertaken and undertake, we may not be aware of all of the risks associated with the targets of such acquisitions including Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL and Allyes. Any discovery of adverse information concerning Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL or Allyes since we acquired these entities could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operations. While we are entitled to seek indemnification in certain circumstances, successfully asserting indemnification or enforcing such indemnification could be costly and time consuming or may not be successful at all.

Our recent entry into mobile handset advertising and Internet advertising services through our acquisitions of Focus Media Wireless and Allyes, respectively, may expose us to risks associated with operating in the telecommunications and Internet industries in China which could materially affect our financial condition or results of operation.

In March 2006, we completed our acquisition of Focus Media Wireless, which operates a mobile handset advertising service over China Mobile's and China Unicom's mobile telecommunications networks. As a result, we now operate a portion of our advertising network on mobile telecommunications networks and are subject to risks associated with operations in the telecommunications sector in China. In addition, in March 2007, we acquired Allyes, which operates an Internet advertising agency and service technology business. Our operation of the business of Allyes subjects us to risks associated with operations in the Internet sector in China. These potential risks include:

- loss or deterioration of our relationship with China Mobile or China Unicom, the two primary mobile telecommunications operators in China that currently provide wireless value-added services to mobile phone users;
- loss or deterioration of our relationship with Internet service providers who use our mobile handset advertisement platform;

- failure to reach traditional advertisers and to take advantage of marketing networks through our existing business;
- changes in operating policies or guidelines by mobile telecommunications operators applicable to all wireless value-added service providers using their platforms or which restrict content supplied by others to us;
- regulation of the telecommunications sector in China that could impose burdensome approval or licensing requirements on value-added service providers such as advertising companies that sell advertising time on mobile telecommunications networks;
- a decision by either or both China Mobile and China Unicom to directly enter into the mobile handset advertising business;
- consumer dissatisfaction with, or any related regulations restricting, the use or “pushing” of unsolicited advertisements, commonly known as “spam”;
- the performance and reliability of the Internet infrastructure and mobile telecommunications network;
- changes in technology in the Internet and mobile telecommunications industries; and
- the continued growth of the Internet, e-commerce industries and wireless value-added services.

As a result of any such change or event, the operation of our advertising network using the mobile telecommunications networks of the mobile telecommunications operators in China may be disrupted, which could in turn lower our advertising revenues or result in higher operating costs to us, and we cannot assure you that our financial condition and results of operation would not be materially adversely affected.

In addition, under PRC law, the services offered by Focus Media Wireless may be deemed value-added telecommunication services, which requires an operation permit that has a valid period of five years. Focus Media Wireless has been granted the operation permit for its wireless advertising operations. If the permit is revoked or if we are unable to renew the operation permit upon expiration, we will be required to suspend our services relating to our mobile handset advertising network, and our advertising service revenue derived from this portion of our network would be adversely affected.

One or more of our regional distributors could engage in activities that are harmful to our reputation in the industry and to our business.

As of June 30, 2007, we covered approximately 40 out of the approximately 90 cities where we provide our commercial location network through contractual arrangements with regional distributors. Under these arrangements, we provide our business model and operating expertise to local advertising companies in exchange for their acting as regional distributors of our advertising services. We also sell our flat-panel displays to our regional distributors, who are responsible for developing and maintaining an advertising network in office buildings and other commercial locations in the city where they operate. We also grant our regional distributors the right to use our “Focus Media” brand name and logo. However, our contractual arrangements with our regional distributors do not provide us with control or oversight over their everyday business activities, and one or more of our regional distributors may engage in activities that violate PRC laws and regulations governing the advertising industry and advertising content, or other PRC laws and regulations generally. Some of our regional distributors may not possess all the licenses required to operate an advertising business, or may fail to maintain the licenses they currently hold, which could result in local regulators suspending the operations of the network in those cities. In addition, we do not independently review the advertising content that our regional distributors display on the portion of our commercial location network that they operate independently, and our regional distributors may include advertising content on their part of the commercial location network and violate PRC advertising laws or regulations or expose them and us to lawsuits or result in the revocation of their business license. If any of these events occurs, it could harm our reputation in the industry.

Failure to manage our growth could strain our management, operational and other resources and we may not be able to achieve anticipated levels of growth in the new networks and media platforms we are beginning to operate, either of which could materially and adversely affect our business and growth potential.

We have been rapidly expanding, and plan to continue to rapidly expand, our operations in China. We must continue to expand our operations to meet the demands of advertisers for larger and more diverse network coverage and the demands of current and future landlords and property managers for installing and configuring flat-panel displays, advertising poster frames and outdoor LED billboards in our existing and future commercial, store, residential and curbside locations. This expansion has resulted, and will continue to result, in substantial demands on our management resources. It has also increased our need for a reliable supply of equipment, particularly flat-panel displays and large LED digital billboards for our out-of-home television networks which are manufactured by a few third-party contract assemblers according to our specifications. To manage our growth, we must develop and improve our existing administrative and operational systems and, our financial and management controls and further expand, train and manage our work force. As we continue this effort, we may incur substantial costs and expend substantial resources in connection with any such expansion due to, among other things, different technology standards, legal considerations and cultural differences. We may not be able to manage our current or future international operations effectively and efficiently or compete effectively in such markets. We cannot assure you that we will be able to efficiently or effectively manage the growth of our operations, recruit top talent and train our personnel. Any failure to efficiently manage our expansion may materially and adversely affect our business and future growth.

As we continue to expand into new networks and new media platforms, we expect the percentage of revenues derived from our commercial location network to decline. However, the new advertising networks and media platforms we pursue may not present the same opportunities for growth that we have experienced with our commercial location network and, accordingly, we cannot assure you that the level of growth of our networks will not decline over time. Moreover, we expect the level of growth of our commercial location network to decrease as many of the more desirable locations have already been leased by us or our competitors.

If advertisers or the viewing public do not accept, or lose interest in, our out-of-home advertising network, our revenues may be negatively affected and our business may not expand or be successful.

The market for out-of-home advertising networks in China is relatively new and its potential is uncertain. We compete for advertising spending with many forms of more established advertising media. Our success depends on the acceptance of our out-of-home advertising network by advertisers and their continuing interest in these mediums as components of their advertising strategies. Our success also depends on the viewing public continuing to be receptive towards our advertising network. Advertisers may elect not to use our services if they believe that consumers are not receptive to our networks or that our networks do not provide sufficient value as effective advertising mediums. Likewise, if consumers find some element of our networks, such as the audio feature of our commercial location, in-store and outdoor LED billboard networks, to be disruptive or intrusive, commercial locations and stores may decide not to place our flat-panel displays in their properties and advertisers may view our advertising network as a less attractive advertising medium compared to other alternatives. In that event, advertisers may determine to reduce their spending on our advertising network. If a substantial number of advertisers lose interest in advertising on our advertising network for these or other reasons, we will be unable to generate sufficient revenues and cash flow to operate our business, and our advertising service revenue, liquidity and results of operations could be negatively affected.

If the Internet and, in particular, Internet marketing are not broadly adopted in China, our ability to generate revenue and sustain profitability from Allyes could be materially and adversely affected.

Our future revenues and profits from our online advertising agency business we operate through Allyes are dependent in part upon advertisers in China increasingly accepting the use of the Internet as a marketing channel, which is at an early stage in China. Penetration rates for personal computers, the Internet and broadband in China are all relatively low compared to those in more developed countries. Furthermore, many Chinese Internet users are not accustomed to using the Internet for e-commerce or as a medium for other transactions. Many of our current and potential clients have limited experience with the Internet as a marketing channel, and have not historically devoted a significant portion of their marketing budgets to Internet marketing and promotion. As a result, they may not consider the Internet as effective in promoting their products and services as traditional print and broadcast media.

The growth of our online advertising agency business is substantially dependent on the acceptance of the cost-per-thousand-impressions, or CPM Internet advertising sales model, and certain performance-based Internet advertising sales models, including CPC and CPA models, by industry participants in China.

The most prevalent Internet advertising sales model in China currently is cost-per-day, whereby web publishers are paid based on the number of days an Internet ad is on display without regard to the ad's effectiveness or the number of times the ad is displayed. We believe that the full advantages of Internet marketing in general and our Internet marketing solutions specifically can only be fully realized when more sophisticated Internet advertising sales models such as cost-per-thousand-impressions, or CPM, cost-per-click, or CPC, and cost-per-action, or CPA, are used to purchase ad space. If CPM, CPC and CPA fail to gain acceptance in China, our Internet marketing solutions will be less attractive to industry participants, and the market for those solutions may develop more slowly than we expect or even decline, which would materially and adversely affect our prospects and our business. In addition, if industry participants in China favor other newly-developed Internet advertising sales models incompatible with CPM, CPC or CPA, sales of our Internet marketing solutions may suffer and our revenue and profitability may be materially and adversely affected.

If the delivery of ads or the use of cookies is limited or blocked, our ability to update and expand our user data would be hindered and demand for our Internet marketing solutions could decline.

Our business may be adversely affected by practices and technologies that impair or undermine the performance of our Internet marketing solutions. For example, Internet users may use software designed to filter or prevent the delivery of Internet ads, including pop-up and pop-under ads; block, disable or remove cookies used by our Internet marketing technologies; or misrepresent measurements of advertising effectiveness. In particular, because we rely on cookies to obtain data about Internet users for our database of user information, widespread usage of software in China that disables or removes cookies would limit our ability to update and expand our user information and hinder our ability to provide effective targeted Internet marketing solutions to our clients. We cannot assure you that the proportion of Internet users who employ these or other similar technologies will not increase, thereby diminishing the efficiency of our Internet marketing solutions and causing demand for those solutions to decline.

Our role through Allyes as a supplier of ad space may harm our reputation as an independent purchasing agent and the reputation of our performance-based advertising network as a marketplace for ad space.

We currently participate in both the purchase and supply of Internet ad space through our online advertising agency business. We also facilitate purchases by our clients of ad space on our performance-based advertising network and may act as sales representative to other web publishers in the future. In addition, we supply ad space that we purchase from web publishers on our performance-based advertising network from time to time to advertisers. Our role as a supplier of ad space might harm both our reputation as an independent purchasing agent and the reputation of our performance-based advertising network as a marketplace for ad space. If our reputation as an independent purchasing agent or the reputation of our performance-based advertising network is harmed, our clients may not purchase ad space from us and our business, financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely affected.

Our Internet advertising business could be materially and adversely affected if we are unable to introduce new or enhanced Internet marketing services and technologies that meet our clients' requirements.

Our future success depends in part upon our ability to enhance and integrate our existing Internet marketing services and technologies that we provide through Allyes and to introduce new, competitively priced services and technologies with features that meet evolving client requirements, all in a timely and cost-effective manner. A number of factors, including the following, could have a negative impact on the success of our services and technologies:

- our failure to anticipate changes in clients' requirements;
- our competitors' introduction of new services and technologies ahead of our new services and technologies, or their introduction of superior or cheaper services and technologies;
- our failure to adapt to Internet advertising technology trends and evolving industry standards; and
- delays or difficulties in technology integration, customization or development.

The business and prospects of our online advertising agency business could be harmed if "click-through" fraud is not detected.

We are exposed to the risk of fraudulent clicks on ads posted on the performance-based advertising network of Allyes by individuals seeking to increase the advertising fees paid to our web publishers. We may in the future have to refund revenue that our advertisers have paid to us and that was later attributed to click-through fraud. Click-through fraud occurs when an individual clicks on an ad displayed on a website for the sole intent of generating the revenue share payment to the publisher rather than to view the underlying content. From time to time we have experienced fraudulent clicks on the performance-based advertising network of Allyes and we do not allow our advertisers to be charged for such fraudulent clicks. This negatively affects the profitability of our online advertising agency business, and this type of fraudulent act could hurt our brand. If fraudulent clicks are not detected, the affected advertisers may experience a reduced return on their investment in our performance-based advertising network, which could lead the advertisers to become dissatisfied with our online advertising agency business, and in turn lead to loss of advertisers and the related revenue. Furthermore, fraudulent clicks directed at our performance-based advertising network or at other performance-based advertising platforms might encourage the perception among advertisers in China that performance-based sales models like CPC and CPA are not effective, which could slow or even reverse the development of those sales models in China. This could adversely affect our business and our prospects.

System failures could significantly disrupt the operations of our online advertising agency business, which would cause us to lose clients or ad inventory.

Our ability to successfully provide clients with Internet marketing services and our performance-based advertising network, and our ability to access user information depends on the continuing and uninterrupted performance of our systems. Sustained or repeated system failures that interrupt our ability to provide services to clients, including failures affecting our ability to deliver ads quickly and accurately and to access our user information base to provide targeted solutions, would reduce significantly the attractiveness of our services to advertisers and web publishers. Our online advertising agency business could be materially and adversely affected by any damage or failure that impacts data integrity or interrupts or delays our operations. Our computer systems are vulnerable to damage from a variety of sources, including telecommunications failures, power outages, malicious or accidental human acts, and natural disasters. Moreover, despite network security measures, our servers are potentially vulnerable to physical or electronic break-ins, computer viruses and similar disruptive problems in part because we cannot control the maintenance and operation of our third-party data centers. Despite the precautions taken, unanticipated problems affecting our systems could cause interruptions in the delivery of our solutions in the future and our ability to provide a record of past transactions. Our data centers and systems incorporate varying degrees of redundancy. All data centers and systems may not automatically switch over to their redundant counterpart. We carry no business insurance policies to compensate us for losses that could occur due to any failures in our systems.

If our Internet marketing technologies contain design or performance defects, our reputation and business may be harmed and we may need to expend significant resources to address liability.

Technologies as complex as ours may contain design and/or performance defects which are not detectable even after extensive internal testing. Such defects may become apparent only after widespread commercial use. Any design or performance defects in our Internet marketing technologies could have a material and adverse effect on our reputation and business. It is not clear whether China's existing product liability laws apply to technology products like ours. We cannot assure you that if our Internet marketing technologies are found to have design or performance defects, we will not be liable for product liability claims in China. We do not carry any product liability insurance. Our contracts with our clients currently do not contain provisions to completely limit our exposure to liabilities resulting from product liability claims. Although we have not experienced any product liability claims to date, we cannot assure you that we will not do so in the future.

Additionally, we rely on our Internet marketing technologies (particularly our ad serving technology) to enhance our Internet marketing services and our performance-based advertising network. Any defect in those technologies could hinder the effectiveness of our Internet marketing services and our performance-based advertising network, which would have a material and adverse effect on our competitiveness, business and future prospects.

We may be liable for content that we serve onto web publishers' websites, which could increase our expenses.

We purchase ad space and then serve our clients' ads into that ad space. We are liable under PRC law to ensure that the content of the ads that we serve are fair and accurate and are in full compliance with applicable law. Additionally, we may be liable to third-parties for content in our clients' ads that we serve on web publishers' websites or deliver through our performance-based advertising network if those ads contain artwork, text or other content that violates third-parties' copyrights, trademarks, or other intellectual property rights or if the content is defamatory. We typically indemnify web publishers against liability arising from the content or nature of ads that we serve on their websites. Any claims or counterclaims against us could harm our reputation, be time-consuming, could result in costly litigation and could divert management's attention.

The successful operation of our business depends upon the performance and reliability of the Internet infrastructure and fixed telecommunications networks in China.

Our business depends on the performance and reliability of the Internet infrastructure in China. Almost all access to the Internet is maintained through state-owned telecommunication operators under the administrative control and regulatory supervision of the Ministry of Information Industry of China. In addition, the national networks in China are connected to the Internet through international gateways controlled by the PRC government. These international gateways are the only channels through which a domestic user can connect to the Internet. We cannot assure you that a more sophisticated Internet infrastructure will be developed in China. We or our clients may not have access to alternative networks in the event of disruptions, failures or other problems with China's Internet infrastructure. In addition, the Internet infrastructure in China may not support the demands associated with our growth strategies. For example, we intend to expand our sales of rich media technologies, which are bandwidth-intensive. Limited bandwidth in China may hamper the effectiveness of our rich media technologies, which could harm our prospects and business and require us to purchase additional servers in our content distribution network.

We depend on the leadership and services of Jason Nanchun Jiang, who is our founder, chairman, chief executive officer and our largest shareholder, and our business and growth prospects may be severely disrupted if we lose his services.

Our future success is dependent upon the continued service of Jason Nanchun Jiang, our founder, chairman and chief executive officer and our largest shareholder. We rely on his industry expertise and experience in our business operations, and in particular, his business vision, management skills, and working relationships with our employees, our other major shareholders, many of our clients and landlords and property managers of the locations in our network. We do not maintain key-man life insurance for Mr. Jiang. If he was unable or unwilling to continue in his present position, or if he joined a competitor or formed a competing company in violation of his employment agreement and noncompetition agreement, we may not be able to replace him easily or at all. As a result, our business and growth prospects may be severely disrupted if we lose his services.

We may need additional capital and we may not be able to obtain it, which could adversely affect our liquidity and financial position.

We believe that our current cash and cash equivalents and cash flow from operations will be sufficient to meet our anticipated cash needs including for working capital and capital expenditures, for the foreseeable future. We may, however, require additional cash resources due to changed business conditions or other future developments. If these sources are insufficient to satisfy our cash requirements, we may seek to sell additional equity or debt securities or obtain a credit facility. The sale of convertible debt securities or additional equity securities, could result in additional dilution to our shareholders. The incurrence of indebtedness would result in increased debt service obligations and could result in operating and financing covenants that would restrict our operations and liquidity.

Our ability to obtain additional capital on acceptable terms is subject to a variety of uncertainties, including:

- investors' perception of, and demand for, securities of alternative advertising media companies;
- conditions of the U.S. and other capital markets in which we may seek to raise funds;
- our future results of operations, financial condition and cash flows;
- PRC governmental regulation of foreign investment in advertising services companies in China;
- economic, political and other conditions in China; and
- PRC governmental policies relating to foreign currency borrowings.

We cannot assure you that financing will be available in amounts or on terms acceptable to us, if at all. Any failure by us to raise additional funds on terms favorable to us could have a material adverse effect on our liquidity and financial condition.

If we are unable to adapt to changing advertising trends and the technology needs of advertisers and consumers, we will not be able to compete effectively and we will be unable to increase or maintain our revenues which may materially and adversely affect our business prospects and revenues.

The market for out-of-home advertising requires us to continuously identify new advertising trends and the technology needs of advertisers and consumers, which may require us to develop new features and enhancements for our advertising network. The majority of our displays use 17-inch LCD screens. We also have a growing number of displays that use larger LCD and plasma screens as well as large size LED digital billboards. Portions of our poster frame network are being upgraded to use digital poster LCD displays. Through our recent acquisition of Focus Media Wireless, we now also provide advertising services to mobile phone users over the mobile phone networks of China Mobile and China Unicom, while Allyes provides online advertising services to advertising customers. In the future, subject to relevant PRC laws and regulations, we may use other technology, such as cable or broadband networking, advanced audio technologies and high-definition panel technology. We may be required to incur development and acquisition costs in order to keep pace with new technology needs but we may not have the financial resources necessary to fund and implement future technological innovations or to replace obsolete technology. Furthermore, we may fail to respond to these changing technology needs. For example, if the use of wireless or broadband networking capabilities on our advertising network becomes a commercially viable alternative and meets all applicable PRC legal and regulatory requirements, and we fail to implement such changes on our commercial location network and in-store network or fail to do so in a timely manner, our competitors or future entrants into the market who do take advantage of such initiatives could gain a competitive advantage over us. If we cannot succeed in developing and introducing new features on a timely and cost-effective basis, advertiser demand for our advertising networks may decrease and we may not be able to compete effectively or attract advertising clients, which would have a material and adverse effect on our business prospects and revenues.

We may be subject to, and may expend significant resources in defending against, government actions and civil suits based on the content and services we provide through our digital out-of-home advertising networks mobile handset advertising network or Internet advertising services network.

PRC advertising laws and regulations require advertisers, advertising operators and advertising distributors, including businesses such as ours, to ensure that the content of the advertisements they prepare or distribute are fair and accurate and are in full compliance with applicable law. Violation of these laws or regulations may result in penalties, including fines, confiscation of advertising fees, orders to cease dissemination of the advertisements and orders to publish an advertisement correcting the misleading information. In circumstances involving serious violations, the PRC government may revoke a violator's license for advertising business operations.

As an out-of-home advertising service provider, we are obligated under PRC laws and regulations to monitor the advertising content that is shown on our out-of-home advertising networks for compliance with applicable law. In addition, each of our regional distributors is obligated under PRC laws and regulations to monitor the advertising content shown on the portion of our out-of-home television advertising network each of them operates. In general, the advertisements shown on our out-of-home television advertising network and the portion of our advertising network operated by our regional distributors have previously been broadcast over public television networks and have been subjected to internal review and verification of such networks. We and our regional distributors are still separately required to independently review and verify these advertisements for content compliance before displaying the advertisements. In addition, where a special government review is required for specific product advertisements before broadcasting, we and our regional distributors are separately obligated to confirm that such review has been performed and approval has been obtained. We employ, and our regional distributors are required under the terms of our agreements with them to employ, qualified advertising inspectors who are trained to review advertising content for compliance with relevant PRC laws and regulations. In addition, for advertising content related to specific types of products and services, such as alcohol, cosmetics, pharmaceuticals and medical procedures, we and our distributors are required to confirm that the advertisers have obtained requisite government approvals including the advertiser's operating qualifications, proof of quality inspection of the advertised products, government pre-approval of the contents of the advertisement and filing with the local authorities. We endeavor to comply, and encourage our regional distributors to take measures to comply, with such requirements, including by requesting relevant documents from the advertisers. Starting in January 2006, we began to operate a network of advertising poster frames placed primarily in elevators and public areas of residential complexes. The advertisements shown on our poster frame network are defined as print advertisements under PRC laws and regulations and are also subject to the same legal requirements as advertisements shown on our out-of-home television advertising networks. Outdoor advertisements must be registered with the local branch of the State Administration for Industry and Commerce, or SAIC, before dissemination, and advertising distributors are required to submit a registration application form and the content of the advertisement to the local SAIC and receive an advertising registration certificate from the local SAIC. Our reputation will be tarnished and our results of operations may be adversely affected if advertisement shown on our out-of-home television advertising networks, poster frame network or outdoor LED network is provided to us by our advertising clients in violation of relevant PRC advertising laws and regulations or that the supporting documentation and government approvals provided to us by our advertising clients in connection with such advertising content are not complete or that the advertisements that our regional distributors have procured for broadcasting on our network have not received required approval from the relevant local supervisory bodies or are not content compliant.

In addition, we commenced operation of our outdoor LED billboard network in April 2006. The placement and installation of LED billboards are subject to municipal zoning requirements and governmental approvals, including application for an outdoor advertising registration certificate for each LED billboard subject to a term of use of no more than six years for each LED billboard. If the existing LED billboards placed by our LED location provider or us are required to be removed, the attractiveness of this portion of our advertising network will be diminished. Moreover, failure by an owner of LED billboards to maintain outdoor advertising registration certificates would result in the inability to lease or market such space for the placement of advertisements.

China has also enacted regulations governing telecommunication service providers and the distribution of news and other information. In the past, the Chinese government has stopped the distribution of information over the Internet and telecommunications networks that it believes to violate Chinese law, including content that is pornographic or obscene, incites violence, endangers national security, is contrary to the national interest or is defamatory. China Unicom and China Mobile also have their own policies regarding the distribution of inappropriate content by wireless value-added service providers and have punished certain providers for distributing inappropriate content, including the imposition of fines and service suspensions. Focus Media Wireless undertakes to the telecommunication operators which grant us access to their mobile phone networks that we will not distribute any advertisements with illegal content. We require the Internet service providers which use our mobile handset advertising platform to provide us the same undertaking, but we cannot completely control the content of their advertisements. If any of the content that we deliver through our mobile handset advertising network is found to violate Chinese laws and regulations or the policies of China Mobile and China Unicom, we could be subject to fines or suspensions.

Moreover, civil claims may be filed against us for fraud, defamation, subversion, negligence, copyright or trademark infringement or other violations due to the nature and content of the information displayed on our advertising network. If consumers find the content displayed on our advertising network to be offensive, landlords, property managers, other location providers or telecommunication network operators may seek to hold us responsible for any consumer claims or may terminate their relationships with us.

In addition, if the security of our content management system is breached through the placement of unauthorized compact flash, or CF, cards in our flat-panel displays and unauthorized images, text or audio sounds are displayed on our advertising network, viewers or the PRC government may find these images, text or audio sounds to be offensive, which may subject us to civil liability or government censure despite our efforts to ensure the security of our content management system. Any such event may also damage our reputation. If our advertising viewers do not believe our content is reliable or accurate, our business model may become less appealing to viewers in China and our advertising clients may be less willing to place advertisements on our advertising network.

We may be subject to intellectual property infringement claims, which may force us to incur substantial legal expenses and, if determined adversely against us, may materially disrupt our business.

We cannot be certain that our advertising displays or other aspects of our business do not or will not infringe upon patents, copyrights or other intellectual property rights held by third parties. Although we are not aware of any such claims, we may become subject to legal proceedings and claims from time to time relating to the intellectual property of others in the ordinary course of our business. If we are found to have violated the intellectual property rights of others, we may be enjoined from using such intellectual property, and we may incur licensing fees or be forced to develop alternatives. In addition, we may incur substantial expenses in defending against these third party infringement claims, regardless of their merit. Successful infringement or licensing claims against us may result in substantial monetary liabilities, which may materially and adversely disrupt our business.

Unauthorized use of our intellectual property by third parties, and the expenses incurred in protecting our intellectual property rights, may adversely affect our business.

We regard our copyrights, trademarks, trade secrets and other intellectual property as critical to our success. Unauthorized use of the intellectual property used in our business may adversely affect our business and reputation.

We have historically relied on a combination of trademark and copyright law, trade secret protection and restrictions on disclosure to protect our intellectual property rights. We enter into confidentiality and invention assignment agreements with all our employees. We cannot assure you that these confidentiality agreements will not be breached, that we will have adequate remedies for any breach, or that our proprietary technology will not otherwise become known to, or be independently developed by, third parties.

We are in the process of registering in China many of the trademarks used in our business. We cannot assure you that any of our trademark applications will ultimately proceed to registration or will result in registration with scope adequate for our business. Some of our pending applications or registration may be successfully challenged or invalidated by others. If our trademark applications are not successful, we may have to use different marks for affected services or technologies, or enter into arrangements with any third parties who may have prior registrations, applications or rights, which might not be available on commercially reasonable terms, if at all.

In addition, policing unauthorized use of our proprietary technology, trademarks and other intellectual property is difficult and expensive, and litigation may be necessary in the future to enforce our intellectual property rights. Future litigation could result in substantial costs and diversion of our resources, and could disrupt our business, as well as have a material adverse effect on our financial condition and results of operations.

We face significant competition, and if we do not compete successfully against new and existing competitors, we may lose our market share, and our profitability may be adversely affected.

We compete with other advertising companies in China. We compete for advertising clients primarily on the basis of network size and coverage, location, price, the range of services that we offer and our brand name. We also face competition from other out-of-home television advertising network operators for access to the most desirable locations in cities in China. Individual buildings, hotels, restaurants and other commercial locations and hypermarket, supermarket and convenience store chains may also decide to independently, or through third-party technology providers, install and operate their own flat-panel television advertising screens. Our in-store network faces competition with similar networks operated by domestic out-of-home advertising companies, including Shanghai Xicheng Cultural Dissemination Co., Ltd., also known as CGEN. Our Internet advertising services compete with those provided by domestic and international advertising agencies, including the WPP Group. We also compete for overall advertising spending with other alternative advertising media companies, such as Internet, wireless communications, street furniture, billboard, frame and public transport advertising companies, and with traditional advertising media, such as newspapers, television, magazines and radio.

In the future, we may also face competition from new entrants into the out-of-home television advertising sector. Our sector is characterized by relatively low fixed costs and, as is customary in the advertising industry, we do not have exclusive arrangements with our advertising clients. In addition, since December 10, 2005, wholly foreign-owned advertising companies are allowed to operate in China, which may expose us to increased competition from international advertising media companies attracted to opportunities in China.

Increased competition could reduce our operating margins and profitability and result in a loss of market share. Some of our existing and potential competitors may have competitive advantages, such as significantly greater financial, marketing or other resources, or exclusive arrangements with desirable locations, and others may successfully mimic and adopt our business model. Moreover, increased competition will provide advertisers with a wider range of media and advertising service alternatives, which could lead to lower prices and decreased revenues, gross margins and profits. We cannot assure you that we will be able to successfully compete against new or existing competitors.

We do not maintain any business liability disruption or litigation insurance coverage for our operations, and any business liability, disruption or litigation we experience might result in our incurring substantial costs and the diversion of resources.

The insurance industry in China is still at an early stage of development. Insurance companies in China offer limited business insurance products and do not, to our knowledge, offer business liability insurance. While business disruption insurance is available to a limited extent in China, we have determined that the risks of disruption, cost of such insurance and the difficulties associated with acquiring such insurance on commercially reasonable terms make it impractical for us to have such insurance. As a result, we do not have any business liability, disruption or litigation insurance coverage for our operations in China. Any business disruption or litigation may result in our incurring substantial costs and the diversion of resources.

These have been historical deficiencies with our internal controls and these remain areas of our internal and disclosure controls that require improvements, and we are exposed to potential risks from legislation requiring companies to evaluate controls under Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002.

While we believe that we currently have adequate internal control procedures in place, we are still exposed to potential risks from legislation requiring companies to evaluate controls under Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. Under the supervision and with the participation of our management, we have evaluated our internal controls systems in order to allow management to report on, and our registered independent public accounting firm to attest to, our internal controls, as required by Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act. We have performed the system and process evaluation and testing required in an effort to comply with the management certification and auditor attestation requirements of Section 404. As a result, we have incurred additional expenses and a diversion of management's time. If we are not able to continue to meet the requirements of Section 404 in a timely manner or with adequate compliance, we might be subject to sanctions or investigation by regulatory authorities, such as the SEC or the Nasdaq Global Market. Any such action could adversely affect our financial results and the market price of our ADSs.

In connection with their audit of our consolidated financial statements as of and for the period ended December 31, 2006, our auditors identified one significant deficiency under standards established by the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States), or the PCAOB, in our internal accounting controls. Specifically, the auditors noted that, with regard to determination of related party status, we lack a process for timely review of changes in relationships with companies that were excluded from related party status in prior years, namely with Everease Advertising & Communication Ltd., or Everease. Following the identification of this significant deficiency, we have consulted with our audit committee and are taking remedial steps to address the deficiency, including reviewing our policies for the evaluation of transactions with past related party companies. If we are unable to implement solutions to any weaknesses in our existing internal and disclosure controls and procedures, or if we fail to maintain an effective system of internal and disclosure controls in the future for our company and for companies that we acquire, we may be unable to accurately report our financial results or prevent fraud and investor confidence and the market price of our ADSs may be adversely impacted.

Risks Relating to Regulation of Our Business and to Our Structure

If the PRC government finds that the agreements that establish the structure for operating our China business do not comply with PRC governmental restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry, we could be subject to severe penalties.

Substantially all of our operations are or will be conducted through Focus Media Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd., or Focus Media Technology, Framedia Investment and Beijing Dotad Technology Co., Ltd., or Dotad Technology, our indirectly wholly-owned operating subsidiaries in China, Focus Media Digital Information Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd., or Focus Media Digital, a 90%-owned subsidiary of Focus Media Technology, and New Allyes Information Technology Co., Ltd., or New Allyes Technology, which we collectively refer to as our PRC operating subsidiaries, and through our contractual arrangements with several of our consolidated affiliated entities in China. PRC regulations require any foreign entities that invest in the advertising services industry to have at least two years of direct operations in the advertising industry outside of China. Since December 10, 2005, foreign investors have been allowed to own directly 100% of PRC companies operating an advertising business if the foreign entity has at least three years of direct operations in the advertising business outside of China or less than 100% if the foreign investor has at least two years of direct operations in the advertising industry outside of China. We do not currently directly operate an advertising business outside of China and cannot qualify under PRC regulations any earlier than two or three years after we commence any such operations outside of China or until we acquire a company that has directly operated an advertising business outside of China for the required period of time. Accordingly, our PRC operating subsidiaries are currently ineligible to apply for the required licenses for providing advertising services in China. Substantially all of our advertising business is currently provided through our contractual arrangements with our PRC operating subsidiaries' consolidated affiliated entities in China, which we collectively refer to as our PRC operating affiliates, including Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries with regard to our out-of-home television networks, Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia and New Structure Advertisement with regard to our poster frame network, Focus Media Wireless with regard to our mobile handset advertising network, and seven PRC companies with regard to our online advertising agency business which operate the business of Allyes, and which we refer to as the Allyes operating affiliates. Our PRC operating affiliates are currently owned in each case either (i) by two PRC citizens designated by us or (ii) by two PRC entities owned by our subsidiaries or by our designated appointees. Our PRC operating affiliates and certain of their respective subsidiaries hold the requisite licenses to provide advertising services in China. Our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries directly operate our advertising network. We have been and are expected to continue to be dependent on these PRC operating affiliates and their subsidiaries to operate our advertising business for the foreseeable future. We have entered into contractual arrangements with PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries, pursuant to which we, through our PRC operating subsidiaries, provide technical support and consulting services to our PRC operating affiliates and their subsidiaries. In addition, we have entered into agreements with our PRC operating affiliates and each of their shareholders which provide us with the substantial ability to control these affiliates and their existing and future subsidiaries.

If we, our existing or future PRC operating subsidiaries and affiliates are found to be in violation of any existing or future PRC laws or regulations or fail to obtain or maintain any of the required permits or approvals, the relevant PRC regulatory authorities, including the SAIC, which regulates advertising companies, would have broad discretion in dealing with such violations, including:

- revoking the business and operating licenses of our PRC subsidiaries and affiliates;
- discontinuing or restricting our PRC subsidiaries' and affiliates' operations;
- imposing conditions or requirements with which we or our PRC subsidiaries and affiliates may not be able to comply;
- requiring us or our PRC subsidiaries and affiliates to restructure the relevant ownership structure or operations; or
- restricting or prohibiting our use of the proceeds of this offering to finance our business and operations in China.

The imposition of any of these penalties would result in a material and adverse effect on our ability to conduct our business.

We rely on contractual arrangements with our PRC operating affiliates and their subsidiaries and shareholders for our China operations, which may not be as effective in providing operational control as direct ownership.

We have in the past relied, and to a lesser but significant extent will continue in the future to rely, on contractual arrangements with our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries and shareholders to operate our advertising business. For a description of these contractual arrangements, see the sections titled "Our Corporate Structure" and "Related Party Transactions". These contractual arrangements may not be as effective in providing us with control over our PRC operating affiliates and their subsidiaries as direct ownership. If we had direct ownership of our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries, we would be able to exercise our rights as a shareholder to effect changes in the board of directors of those companies, which in turn could effect changes, subject to any applicable fiduciary obligations, at the management level. However, under the current contractual arrangements, as a legal matter, if our PRC operating affiliates or any of their subsidiaries and shareholders fails to perform its or his respective obligations under these contractual arrangements, we may have to incur substantial costs and resources to enforce such arrangements, and rely on legal remedies under PRC law, including seeking specific performance or injunctive relief, and claiming damages, which we cannot assure you to be effective. For example, if Jason Nanchun Jiang were to refuse to transfer his equity interest in Focus Media Advertisement to us or our designee when we exercise the purchase option pursuant to these contractual arrangements, or if Mr. Jiang were otherwise to act in bad faith toward us, then we may have to take legal action to compel him to fulfill his contractual obligations. In addition, Focus Media Advertisement, which holds certain of the business licenses required to operate our advertising network in China, is jointly owned and effectively managed by Mr. Jiang and Mr. Yu. Similarly, each of the Allies operating affiliates, which hold the licenses necessary to operate the business of Allies, is jointly owned by a set of two PRC nationals. Accordingly, it may be difficult for us to change our corporate structure or to bring claims against our PRC operating affiliates if they do not perform their obligations under its contracts with us or if any of the PRC citizens who hold the equity interest in our PRC operating affiliates do not cooperate with any such actions.

Many of these contractual arrangements are governed by PRC law and provide for the resolution of disputes through either arbitration or litigation in the PRC. Accordingly, these contracts would be interpreted in accordance with PRC law and any disputes would be resolved in accordance with PRC legal procedures. The legal environment in the PRC is not as developed as in other jurisdictions, such as the United States. As a result, uncertainties in the PRC legal system could limit our ability to enforce these contractual arrangements. In the event we are unable to enforce these contractual arrangements, we may not be able to exert effective control over our operating entities, and our ability to conduct our business may be negatively affected.

Contractual arrangements we have entered into among our subsidiaries and affiliated entities may be subject to scrutiny by the PRC tax authorities and a finding that we owe additional taxes or are ineligible for our tax exemption, or both, could substantially increase our taxes owed, and reduce our net income and the value of your investment.

Under PRC law, arrangements and transactions among related parties may be subject to audit or challenge by the PRC tax authorities. If any of the transactions we have entered into among our subsidiaries and affiliated entities are found not to be on an arm's-length basis, or to result in an unreasonable reduction in tax under PRC law, the PRC tax authorities have the authority to disallow our tax savings, adjust the profits and losses of our respective PRC entities and assess late payment interest and penalties. See "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operation — Taxation" for a discussion of the transactions referred to above. A finding by the PRC tax authorities that Focus Media Digital, Shanghai Focus Media Advertising Agency Co., Ltd., or Focus Media Advertising Agency, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement or New Structure Advertisement are ineligible for their tax exemptions, would substantially increase our taxes owed and reduce our net income and the value of your investment. As a result of this risk, you should evaluate our results of operations and financial condition without regard to these tax savings.

We rely principally on dividends and other distributions on equity paid by our wholly-owned operating subsidiaries to fund any cash and financing requirements we may have, and any limitation on the ability of our operating subsidiary to pay dividends to us could have a material adverse effect on our ability to conduct our business.

We are a holding company, and we rely principally on dividends and other distributions on equity paid by our PRC operating subsidiaries for our cash requirements, including the funds necessary to service any debt we may incur. If any of our PRC operating subsidiaries incurs debt on its own behalf in the future, the instruments governing the debt may restrict their ability to pay dividends or make other distributions to us. In addition, the PRC tax authorities may require us to adjust our taxable income under the contractual arrangements our PRC operating subsidiaries currently have in place with our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries in a manner that would materially and adversely affect our PRC operating subsidiaries' ability to pay dividends and other distributions to us. Furthermore, relevant PRC laws and regulations permit payments of dividends by our PRC operating subsidiaries only out of their retained earnings, if any, determined in accordance with PRC accounting standards and regulations. Under PRC laws and regulations, each of our PRC operating subsidiaries is also required to set aside a portion of its net income each year to fund specific reserve funds. These reserves are not distributable as cash dividends. In addition, subject to certain cumulative limits, the statutory general reserve fund requires annual appropriations of 10% of after-tax income to be set aside prior to payment of dividends. As a result of these PRC laws and regulations, our PRC operating subsidiaries and our PRC operating affiliates are restricted in their ability to transfer a portion of their net assets to us whether in the form of dividends, loans or advances. As of December 31, 2006, the amount of these restricted portions was approximately $223,386,461. Any limitation on the ability of our PRC operating subsidiaries to pay dividends to us could materially and adversely limit our ability to grow, make investments or acquisitions that could be beneficial to our businesses, pay dividends, or otherwise fund and conduct our business.

Our business operations may be affected by legislative or regulatory changes.

There are no existing PRC laws or regulations that specifically define or regulate out-of-home television or mobile handset advertising. Changes in laws and regulations or the enactment of new laws and regulations governing placement or content of out-of-home advertising or distribution of mobile handset advertising, our business licenses or otherwise affecting our business in China may materially and adversely affect our business prospects and results of operations. For example, the PRC government has promulgated regulations allowing foreign companies to hold a 100%-interest in PRC advertising companies starting from December 10, 2005. We are not certain how the PRC government will implement this regulation or how it could affect our ability to compete in the advertising industry in China.

PRC regulation of loans and direct investment by offshore holding companies to PRC entities may delay or prevent us from using funds to make loans or additional capital contributions to our PRC operating subsidiaries and affiliates.

As an offshore holding company of our PRC operating subsidiaries and affiliates, we may make loans to our PRC subsidiaries and consolidated PRC affiliated entities, or we may make additional capital contributions to our PRC subsidiaries. Any loans to our PRC subsidiaries or consolidated PRC affiliated entities are subject to PRC regulations and approvals. For example:

- loans by us to Focus Media Technology, Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology, or New Allies Technology or any other of our foreign invested enterprises, to finance its activities cannot exceed statutory limits and must be registered with the PRC State Administration of Foreign Exchange or its local counterpart; and
- loans by us to our PRC operating affiliates or their respective subsidiaries, which are domestic PRC enterprises, must be approved by the relevant government authorities and must also be registered with the PRC State Administration of Foreign Exchange or its local counterpart.

We may also determine to finance Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital and New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement or any of our foreign invested enterprises through Focus Media Technology, Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology and New Allies Technology or our other PRC operating affiliates, by means of capital contributions. These capital contributions must be approved by the PRC Ministry of Commerce or its local counterpart. Because our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries are domestic PRC enterprises, we are not likely to finance their activities by means of capital contributions due to regulatory issues relating to foreign investment in domestic PRC enterprises, as well as the licensing and other regulatory issues discussed in "Regulation of Our Industry" in this prospectus. We cannot assure you that we can obtain these government registrations or approvals on a timely basis, if at all, with respect to future loans or capital contributions by us to Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement Framedia Investment, Focus Media Advertisement, Dotad Technology, New Allies Technology or any of their respective subsidiaries. If we fail to receive such registrations or approvals, our ability to use our funds and to capitalize our PRC operations would be negatively affected which would adversely and materially affect our liquidity and our ability to expand our business.

Risks Relating to the People's Republic Of China

Substantially all of our assets are located in China and substantially all of our revenues are derived from our operations in China. Accordingly, our business, financial condition, results of operations and prospects are subject, to a significant extent, to economic, political and legal developments in China.

The PRC's economic, political and social conditions, as well as governmental policies, could affect the financial markets in China and our liquidity and access to capital and our ability to operate our business.

The PRC economy differs from the economies of most developed countries in many respects, including the amount of government involvement, level of development, growth rate, control of foreign exchange and allocation of resources. While the PRC economy has experienced significant growth over the past, growth has been uneven, both geographically and among various sectors of the economy. The PRC government has implemented various measures to encourage economic growth and guide the allocation of resources. Some of these measures benefit the overall PRC economy, but may also have a negative effect on us. For example, under current PRC regulations, starting December 10, 2005, foreign entities are allowed to directly own 100% of a PRC advertising business if the foreign entity has at least three years of direct operations of an advertising business outside of China, or to directly own less than 100% of a PRC advertising business if the foreign entity has at least two years of direct operations of an advertising business outside of China. This may encourage foreign advertising companies with more experience, greater technological know-how and larger financial resources than we have to compete against us and limit the potential for our growth. Moreover, our financial condition and results of operations may be adversely affected by government control over capital investments or changes in tax regulations that are applicable to us.

The PRC economy has been transitioning from a planned economy to a more market-oriented economy. Although the PRC government has implemented measures since the late 1970s emphasizing the utilization of market forces for economic reform, the reduction of state ownership of productive assets and the establishment of improved corporate governance in business enterprises, a substantial portion of productive assets in China is still owned by the PRC government. In addition, the PRC government continues to play a significant role in regulating industry development by imposing industrial policies. The PRC government also exercises significant control over China's economic growth through the allocation of resources, controlling payment of foreign currency-denominated obligations, setting monetary policy and providing preferential treatment to particular industries or companies. Since late 2003, the PRC government implemented a number of measures, such as raising bank reserves against deposit rates to place additional limitations on the ability of commercial banks to make loans and raise interest rates, in order to slow down specific segments of China's economy which it believed to be overheating. These actions, as well as future actions and policies of the PRC government, could materially affect our liquidity and access to capital and our ability to operate our business.

The PRC legal system embodies uncertainties which could limit the legal protections available to you and us.

The PRC legal system is a civil law system based on written statutes. Unlike common law systems, it is a system in which decided legal cases have little precedential value. In 1979, the PRC government began to promulgate a comprehensive system of laws and regulations governing economic matters in general. The overall effect of legislation over the past 26 years has significantly enhanced the protections afforded to various forms of foreign investment in China. Each of our PRC operating subsidiaries and affiliates is subject to PRC laws and regulations. However, these laws, regulations and legal requirements change frequently, and their interpretation and enforcement involve uncertainties. For example, we may have to resort to administrative and court proceedings to enforce the legal protection that we enjoy either by law or contract. However, since PRC administrative and court authorities have significant discretion in interpreting and implementing statutory and contractual terms, it may be more difficult to evaluate the outcome of administrative and court proceedings and the level of legal protection we enjoy than in more developed legal systems. For example, these uncertainties may impede our ability to enforce the contracts we have entered into with the Group. In addition, such uncertainties, including the inability to enforce our contracts, could materially and adversely affect our business and operation. In addition, intellectual property rights and confidentiality protections in China may not be as effective as in the United States or other countries. Accordingly, we cannot predict the effect of future developments in the PRC legal system, particularly with regard to the advertising industry, including the promulgation of new laws, changes to existing laws or the interpretation or enforcement thereof, or the preemption of local regulations by national laws. These uncertainties could limit the legal protections available to us, including our ability to enforce our agreements with the Group, and other foreign investors, including you.

If tax benefits currently available to us in PRC were no longer available under the new Enterprise Income Taxes (EIT) law which will be effective on January 1, 2008, our effective income tax rates for our PRC operations could increase.

We are incorporated in the Cayman Islands where no income taxes are imposed.

We generated substantially all our net income from our PRC operations. Our China operations are conducted through various subsidiaries and variable interest entities, or VIEs. Pursuant to the PRC Income Tax Laws, our subsidiaries and VIEs are generally subject to EIT at a statutory rate of 33%, which comprises 30% national income tax and 3% local income tax. Some of the Company's subsidiaries and VIEs are newly incorporated enterprises engaged in advertising industry which are entitled to a two-year tax exemption holiday, commencing from the first operating year. One of our VIEs, Beijing Focus Media Wireless Co., Ltd., is a qualified new technology enterprise and under PRC Income Tax Laws are subject to a preferential tax rate of 15%, plus a three-year tax exemption followed by three years with a 50% reduction in the tax rate, commencing from the first profitable year.

On March 16, 2007, the PRC National People's Congress passed the China Corporate Income Tax Law which will change the income tax rates for most enterprises from 33% at the present to 25%. This new law will become effective on January 1, 2008. There will be a transition period for enterprises, whether foreign-invested or domestic, which currently receive preferential tax treatments granted by relevant tax authorities. Enterprises that are subject to an enterprise income tax rate lower than 25% may continue to enjoy the lower rate and gradually transition to the new tax rate within five years after the effective date of the new law. Enterprises that are currently entitled to exemptions or reductions from the standard income tax rate for a fixed term may continue to enjoy such treatment until the fixed term expires. Preferential tax treatments will continue to be granted to industries and projects that are strongly supported and encouraged by the state, and enterprises that qualify as "new and high technology enterprises strongly supported by the state" will be entitled to a 15% enterprise income tax rate.

Most of the Company's subsidiaries and VIEs are expected to transition from 33% to 25% starting from January 1, 2008. Those that currently enjoy a lower tax rate of 15% will gradually transition to the uniform tax rate of 25% from 2008 to 2012 unless the company obtains the "new and high technology enterprise" status under the new tax law.

We may be deemed a Chinese resident enterprise under the EIT Law and be subject to PRC taxation on our worldwide income.

The EIT Law also provides that enterprises established outside of China whose "de facto management bodies" are located in China are considered "resident enterprises" and will generally be subject to the uniform 25% enterprise income tax rate as to their global income, including income we receive from our subsidiaries. The EIT Law, however, does not define the term "de facto management bodies" and it is currently unclear under what situations an enterprise's "de facto management body" would be considered to be located in China. Substantially all of our management is currently based in China, and may remain in China after the effectiveness of the EIT Law. Therefore, we may be treated as a Chinese resident enterprise for enterprise income tax purposes. The tax consequences of such treatment are currently unclear, as they will depend on regulations that have not yet been issued that would implement the EIT Law, and on local tax authorities' ability to follow such regulations in tax administration. See "Dividends payable by us to our foreign investors may become subject to withholding taxes under PRC tax laws" and "Gains on the sales of our shares or ADSs may become subject to PRC income taxes" below.

Recent PRC regulations relating to offshore investment activities by PRC residents may increase our administrative burden and restrict our overseas and cross-border investment activity. If our shareholders who are PRC residents fail to make any required applications and filings under such regulations, we may be unable to distribute profits and may become subject to liability under PRC laws.

The PRC National Development and Reform Commission, or NDRC, and SAFE recently promulgated regulations that require PRC residents and PRC corporate entities to register with and obtain approvals from relevant PRC government authorities in connection with their direct or indirect offshore investment activities. These regulations apply to our shareholders who are PRC residents and may apply to any offshore acquisitions that we make in the future.

Under the SAFE regulations, PRC residents who make, or have previously made, direct or indirect investments in offshore companies will be required to register those investments. In addition, any PRC resident who is a direct or indirect shareholder of an offshore company is required to file with the local branch of SAFE, with respect to that offshore company, any material change involving capital variation, such as an increase or decrease in capital, transfer or swap of shares, merger, division, long term equity or debt investment or creation of any security interest over the assets located in China. If any PRC shareholder fails to make the required SAFE registration, the PRC subsidiaries of that offshore parent company may be prohibited from distributing their profits and the proceeds from any reduction in capital, share transfer or liquidation, to their offshore parent company, and the offshore parent company may also be prohibited from injecting additional capital into their PRC subsidiaries. Moreover, failure to comply with the various SAFE registration requirements described above could result in liability under PRC laws for evasion of applicable foreign exchange restrictions.

We cannot assure you that all of our shareholders who are PRC residents will comply with our request to make or obtain any registrations or approvals required under these regulations or other related legislation. Furthermore, as the regulations are relatively new, the PRC government has yet to publish implementing rules, and much uncertainty remains concerning the reconciliation of the new regulations with other approval requirements. It is unclear how these regulations, and any future legislation concerning offshore or cross-border transactions, will be interpreted, amended and implemented by the relevant government authorities. The failure or inability of our PRC resident shareholders to comply with these regulations may subject us to fines and legal sanctions, restrict our overseas or cross-border investment activities, limit our ability to inject additional capital into our PRC subsidiaries and the ability of Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement, Framedia Investment or New Allyes Technology, our PRC subsidiaries, to make distributions or pay dividends, or materially and adversely affect our ownership structure. If any of the foregoing events occur, our acquisition strategy and business operations and our ability to distribute profits to you could be materially and adversely affected.

The PRC tax authorities may require us to pay additional taxes in connection with our acquisitions of offshore entities that conducted their PRC operations through their affiliates in China.

Our operations and transactions are subject to review by the PRC tax authorities pursuant to relevant PRC laws and regulations. However, these laws, regulations and legal requirements change frequently, and their interpretation and enforcement involve uncertainties. For example, in the case of some of our acquisitions of offshore entities that conducted their PRC operations through their affiliates in China, we cannot assure you that the PRC tax authorities will not require us to pay additional taxes in relation to such acquisitions, in particular where the PRC tax authorities take the view that the previous taxable income of the PRC affiliates of the acquired offshore entities needs to be adjusted and additional taxes be paid. In the event that the sellers failed to pay any taxes required under PRC law in connection with these transactions, the PRC tax authorities might require us to pay the tax, together with late-payment interest and penalties. See “Management’s Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations — Acquisitions”.

A new PRC rule on mergers and acquisitions may subject us to sanctions, fines and other penalties and affect our future business growth through acquisition of complementary business.

On August 8, 2006, six PRC government and regulatory authorities, including the PRC Ministry of Commerce and the Chinese Securities Regulatory Commission, or the CSRC, promulgated a rule entitled “Provisions regarding Mergers and Acquisitions of Domestic Enterprises by Foreign Investors,” or the New M&A Rule, which became effective on September 8, 2006. The New M&A Rule, among other things, requires that an offshore specific purpose vehicle, or SPV, formed for the listing purpose through acquisition of PRC domestic entity and controlled by PRC residents should obtain approval from the CSRC prior to publicly listing its securities on an overseas stock market. Based on consultation with the International Department of the CSRC regarding its interpretation of the New M&A Rule, our PRC counsel, Global Law Offices, advised us that the CSRC approval was not required for this offering. However, we cannot assure you that the relevant PRC government agency, including the Ministry of Commerce or other applicable departments of the CSRC, would reach the same conclusion as our PRC counsel. If the CSRC or other PRC regulatory body subsequently determines that the CSRC’s approval was required for this offering, we may face sanctions by the CSRC or other PRC regulatory agencies. In such event, these regulatory agencies may impose fines and penalties on our operations in the PRC, limit our operating privileges in the PRC, delay or restrict the repatriation of the proceeds from this offering into the PRC, or take other actions that could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations, reputation and prospects, as well as the trading price of our ADSs.

The New M&A Rule also established additional procedures and requirements that could make merger and acquisition activities by foreign investors more time-consuming and complex, including requirements in some instances that the Ministry of Commerce be notified in advance of any change-of-control transaction in which a foreign investor takes control of a PRC domestic enterprise. In the future, we may grow our business in part by acquiring complementary businesses, although we do not have any plans to do so at this time. Complying with the requirements of the New M&A Rule to complete such transactions could be time-consuming, and any required approval processes, including obtaining approval from the Ministry of Commerce, may delay or inhibit the completion of such transactions, which could affect our ability to expand our business or maintain our market share.

Restrictions on currency exchange may limit our ability to utilize our revenues effectively.

Substantially all of our revenues and operating expenses are denominated in Renminbi. The Renminbi is currently convertible under the “current account”, which includes dividends, trade and service-related foreign exchange transactions, but not under the “capital account”, which includes foreign direct investment and loans. Currently, each of our PRC subsidiaries may purchase foreign exchange for settlement of “current account transactions”, including payment of dividends to us, without the approval of SAFE. However, we cannot assure you that the relevant PRC governmental authorities will not further limit or eliminate our ability to purchase foreign currencies in the future. Since a significant amount of our future revenues will be denominated in Renminbi, any existing and future restrictions on currency exchange may limit our ability to utilize revenues generated in Renminbi to fund our business activities outside China, if any, or expenditures denominated in foreign currencies. Foreign exchange transactions under the capital account are still subject to limitations and require approvals from, or registration with, the State Administration of Foreign Exchange and other relevant PRC governmental authorities. This could affect the ability of each of Focus Media Technology and Framedia Investment to obtain foreign exchange through debt or equity financing, including by means of loans or capital contributions from us.

Fluctuations in exchange rates could result in foreign currency exchange losses.

Because our earnings and cash and cash equivalent assets are denominated in Renminbi and the net proceeds from this offering will be denominated in U.S. dollars, fluctuations in exchange rates between U.S. dollars and Renminbi will affect the relative purchasing power of these proceeds and our balance sheet and earnings per share in U.S. dollars following this offering. In addition, appreciation or depreciation in the value of the Renminbi relative to the U.S. dollar would affect our financial results reported in U.S. dollar terms without giving effect to any underlying change in our business or results of operations. Since July 2005 the Renminbi is no longer pegged solely to the U.S. dollar. Instead, it is reported to be pegged against a basket of currencies, determined by the People’s Bank of China, against which it can rise or fall by as much as 0.3% each day. For example, on October 23, 2007 the Renminbi was revalued against the U.S. dollar to approximately RMB 7.5020 to the U.S. dollar. The Renminbi may appreciate or depreciate significantly in value against the U.S. dollar in the long term, depending on the fluctuation of the basket of currencies against which it is currently valued or it may be permitted to enter into a full float, which may also result in a significant appreciation or depreciation of the Renminbi against the U.S. dollar. Fluctuations in the exchange rate will also affect the relative value of any dividend we issue in the future which will be exchanged into U.S. dollars and earnings from and the value of any U.S. dollar-denominated investments we make in the future.

Very limited hedging transactions are available in China to reduce our exposure to exchange rate fluctuations. To date, we have not entered into any hedging transactions in an effort to reduce our exposure to foreign currency exchange risk. While we may decide to enter into hedging transactions in the future, the availability and effectiveness of these hedges may be limited and we may not be able to successfully hedge our exposure at all. In addition, our currency exchange losses may be magnified by PRC exchange control regulations that restrict our ability to convert Renminbi into foreign currency.

Any future outbreak of severe acute respiratory syndrome or avian flu in China, or similar adverse public health developments, may severely disrupt our business and operations.

From December 2002 to June 2003, China and other countries experienced an outbreak of a new and highly contagious form of atypical pneumonia now known as severe acute respiratory syndrome, or SARS. On July 5, 2003, the World Health Organization declared that the SARS outbreak had been contained. Since September 2003, however, a number of isolated new cases of SARS have been reported, most recently in central China in April 2004. During May and June of 2003, many businesses in China were closed by the PRC government to prevent transmission of SARS. In addition, many countries, including China, have encountered incidents of the H5N1 strain of bird flu, or avian flu. This disease, which is spread through poultry populations, is capable in some circumstances of being transmitted to humans and is often fatal. A new outbreak of SARS or an outbreak of avian flu may result in health or other government authorities requiring the closure of our offices or other businesses, including office buildings, retail stores and other commercial venues, which comprise the primary locations where we provide our digital out-of-home advertising services. Any recurrence of the SARS outbreak, an outbreak of avian flu or a development of a similar health hazard in China, may deter people from congregating in public places, including a range of commercial locations such as office buildings and retail stores. Such occurrences would severely impact the value of our digital out-of-home advertising networks to advertisers, significantly reduce the advertising time purchased by advertisers and severely disrupt our business and operations.

Risks Relating to this Offering, Our ADSs and Our Trading Markets

The price of our ADSs has been volatile and may continue to be volatile, which may make it difficult for holders to resell the ADSs when desired or at attractive prices.

The trading price of our ADSs has been and may continue to be subject to wide fluctuations. Since July 13, 2005, the closing prices of our ADSs on the Nasdaq Global Market has ranged from $8.90 to $63.00 per ADS and the last reported sale price on October 31, 2007 was $62.00. From July 13, 2005 until April 10, 2007, we used an ADS-to-share ratio of 10-to-one. Starting April 11, 2007, we reduced this ratio to five-to-one. All ADS trading prices on the Nasdaq set forth in this prospectus, including historical trading and closing prices, have been adjusted to reflect the new ADS-to-share ratio of five-to-one. Our ADS price may fluctuate in response to a number of events and factors. The financial markets in general, and the market prices for many PRC companies in particular, have experienced extreme volatility that often has been unrelated to the operating performance of such companies.

In addition to market and industry factors, the price and trading volume for our ADSs may be highly volatile for specific business reasons. Factors such as variations in our revenues, earnings and cash flow, announcements of new investments, cooperation arrangements or acquisitions, and fluctuations in market prices for our advertising network could cause the market price for our ADSs to change substantially. Any of these factors may result in large and sudden changes in the volume and price at which our ADSs will trade. We cannot give any assurance that these factors will not occur in the future.

The sale or availability for sale of substantial amounts of our ADSs could adversely affect their market price.

In connection with this offering, we have agreed not to sell any ordinary shares or ADSs for 90 days after the date of this prospectus without the written consent of the Merrill Lynch and subject to certain exceptions. The underwriters may from time to time continue to release other securities of ours that are currently subject to lock-up, subject to applicable regulations of the National Association of Securities Dealers, or NASD. We cannot predict what effect, if any, market sales of securities held by our significant shareholders or any other shareholder or the availability of these securities for future sale will have on the market price of our ADSs. See “Underwriting” and “Shares Eligible for Future Sale” for a more detailed description of the restrictions on selling our securities after this offering.

We have in the past failed to comply with Nasdaq Marketplace Rules, including the timely filing of our annual report and maintaining a majority of independent directors on our board of directors.

Our failure to timely file our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F subjected us to delisting review by the Nasdaq Listing Qualifications Panel. See “— Our failure to timely file the 2006 annual report on Form 20-F as a result of allegations raised by an anonymous investor holding a short position in our ADSs may subject us to shareholder litigation and delisting review, either of which may materially and adversely affect our business”. In addition, in the past we previously failed to maintain a majority of independent directors on our board of directors, which put us out of compliance with Nasdaq Marketplace Rule 4350. See “Management”. On October 4, 2007, we received a letter from Nasdaq Listing Qualifications notifying us that we had regained compliance with all Nasdaq listing qualifications by filing our annual report for 2006.

Our historical failure to comply with Nasdaq Marketplace Rules has on one occasion subjected us to delisting review. If for any reason we fail to maintain compliance with Nasdaq Marketplace Rules in the future, we could be subject to additional delisting procedures and sanctions, which could affect our reputation and the market value of our securities, and could result in shareholder litigation, which may divert the attention of our management and force us to expend resources to defend against such claims. Any litigation may have a material and adverse effect on our business and future results of operations.

A significant percentage of our outstanding ordinary shares is beneficially owned by Jason Nanchun Jiang, our founder, chairman and chief executive officer, and as a result, he may have significantly greater influence on us and our corporate actions by nature of the size of his shareholdings relative to our public shareholders.

Following this offering, Jason Nanchun Jiang will beneficially own approximately 10.53% of our outstanding ordinary shares, or 10.37% if the underwriters exercise their option to purchase additional ADSs in full. Accordingly, Jason Nanchun Jiang has significant influence in determining the outcome of any corporate transaction or other matter submitted to the shareholders for approval, including mergers, consolidations and the sale of all or substantially all of our assets, election of directors and other significant corporate actions. Further, Jason Nanchun Jiang is also an 85% shareholder of our affiliated PRC entity, Focus Media Advertisement, with which we have contractual arrangements that are essential to our business. The continuing cooperation of Focus Media Advertisement, and its shareholders, branches and subsidiaries, is important to our business. Without Jason Nanchun Jiang's consent, we could be prevented from entering into transactions or conducting business that could be beneficial to us. Accordingly, Mr. Jiang's control of Focus Media Advertisement could hinder any change in control of our business, particularly where such change of control would benefit shareholders other than Mr. Jiang. It would be difficult for us to change our corporate structure if any disputes arise between us and Mr. Jiang or if he fails to carry out his contractual and fiduciary obligations to us. Thus, Jason Nanchun Jiang's interests as an officer and employee may differ from his interests as a shareholder or from the interests of our other shareholders, including you.

Anti-takeover provisions in our charter documents may discourage any hostile acquisition attempt by a third party, which could limit our shareholders' opportunity to sell their shares at a premium.

Our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association include provisions that could limit the ability of others to acquire control of us, modify our structure or cause us to engage in change-of-control transactions. These provisions could have the effect of depriving our shareholders of an opportunity to sell their shares at a premium over prevailing market prices by discouraging third parties from seeking to obtain control of us in a tender offer or similar transaction.

For example, our board of directors will have the authority, without further action by our shareholders, to issue preference shares in one or more series and to fix the powers and rights of these shares, including dividend rights, conversion rights, voting rights, terms of redemption and liquidation preferences, any or all of which may be greater than the rights associated with our ordinary shares. Preference shares could thus be issued quickly with terms calculated to delay or prevent a change in control or make removal of management more difficult. In addition, if the board of directors issues preference shares, the market price of our ordinary shares may fall and the voting and other rights of the holders of our ordinary shares may be adversely affected.

In addition, some actions require the approval of a supermajority of at least two thirds of our board of directors which, among other things, would allow our non-independent directors to block a variety of actions or transactions, such as a merger, asset sale or other change of control, even if all of our independent directors unanimously voted in favor of such action, further depriving our shareholders of an opportunity to sell their shares at a premium. In addition, our directors serve terms of three years each, which terms are not staggered. The length of these terms could present an additional obstacle against the taking of action, such as a merger or other change of control, that could be in the interest of our shareholders.

We are a Cayman Islands company and, because judicial precedent regarding the rights of shareholders is more limited under Cayman Islands law than under U.S. law, you may have less protection of your shareholder rights than you would under U.S. law.

Our corporate affairs are governed by our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association, the Cayman Islands Companies Law and the common law of the Cayman Islands. The rights of shareholders to take action against the directors, actions by minority shareholders and the fiduciary responsibilities of our directors to us under Cayman Islands law are to a large extent governed by the common law of the Cayman Islands. The common law of the Cayman Islands is derived in part from comparatively limited judicial precedent in the Cayman Islands as well as from English common law, which has persuasive, but not binding, authority on a court in the Cayman Islands. The rights of our shareholders and the fiduciary responsibilities of our directors under Cayman Islands law are not as clearly established as they would be under statutes or judicial precedent in some jurisdictions in the United States. In particular, the Cayman Islands has a less developed body of securities laws than the United States. In addition, some U.S. states, such as Delaware, have more fully developed and judicially interpreted bodies of corporate law than the Cayman Islands.

As a result of all of the above, public shareholders may have more difficulty in protecting their interests in the face of actions taken by management, members of the board of directors or controlling shareholders than they would as public shareholders of a U.S. company.

Judgments obtained against us by our shareholders may not be enforceable.

We are a Cayman Islands company and substantially all of our assets are located outside of the United States. All of our current operations are conducted in the PRC. In addition, most of our directors and officers are nationals and residents of countries other than the United States. A substantial portion of the assets of these persons are located outside the United States. As a result, it may be difficult for you to effect service of process within the United States upon these persons. It may also be difficult for you to enforce in U.S. courts judgments obtained in U.S. courts based on the civil liability provisions of the U.S. federal securities laws against us and our officers and directors, most of whom are not resident in the United States and the substantial majority of whose assets are located outside of the United States. In addition, there is uncertainty as to whether the courts of the Cayman Islands or the PRC would recognize or enforce judgments of United States courts against us or such persons predicated upon the civil liability provisions of the securities laws of the United States or any state. In addition, there is uncertainty as to whether such Cayman Islands or PRC courts would be competent to hear original actions brought in the Cayman Islands or the PRC against us or such persons predicated upon the securities laws of the United States or any state.

The voting rights of holders of ADSs are limited by the terms of the deposit agreement.

Holders of our ADSs may only exercise their voting rights with respect to the underlying ordinary shares in accordance with the provisions of the deposit agreement. Upon receipt of voting instructions from a holder of ADSs in the manner set forth in the deposit agreement, the depositary will endeavor to vote the underlying ordinary shares in accordance with these instructions. Under our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association and Cayman Islands law, the minimum notice period required for convening a general meeting is ten days. When a general meeting is convened, you may not receive sufficient notice of a shareholders' meeting to permit you to withdraw your ordinary shares to allow you to cast your vote with respect to any specific matter at the meeting. In addition, the depositary and its agents may not be able to send voting instructions to you or carry out your voting instructions in a timely manner. We will make all reasonable efforts to cause the depositary to extend voting rights to you in a timely manner, but we cannot assure you that you will receive the voting materials in time to ensure that you can instruct the depositary to vote your shares. Furthermore, the depositary and its agents will not be responsible for any failure to carry out any instructions to vote, for the manner in which any vote is cast or for the effect of any such vote. As a result, you may not be able to exercise your right to vote and you may lack recourse if your ordinary shares are not voted as you requested.

The depositary for our ADSs will give us a discretionary proxy to vote our ordinary shares underlying your ADSs if you do not vote at shareholders' meetings, except in limited circumstances, which could adversely affect your interests.

Under the deposit agreement for the ADSs, the depositary will give us a discretionary proxy to vote our ordinary shares underlying your ADSs at shareholders' meetings if you do not vote, unless:

- we have failed to timely provide the depositary with our notice of meeting and related voting materials;
- we have instructed the depositary that we do not wish a discretionary proxy to be given;

Table of Contents

- we have informed the depositary that there is substantial opposition as to a matter to be voted on at the meeting;
- a matter to be voted on at the meeting would have a material adverse impact on shareholders; or
- voting at the meeting is made on a show of hands.

The effect of this discretionary proxy is that you cannot prevent our ordinary shares underlying your ADSs from being voted, absent the situations described above, and it may make it more difficult for shareholders to influence the management of our company. Holders of our ordinary shares are not subject to this discretionary proxy.

You may not receive distributions on our ordinary shares or any value for them if it is illegal or impractical to make them available to you.

The depositary of our ADSs has agreed to pay you the cash dividends or other distributions it or the custodian for our ADSs receives on our ordinary shares or other deposited securities after deducting its fees and expenses. You will receive these distributions in proportion to the number of our ordinary shares your ADSs represent. However, the depositary is not responsible if it is unlawful or impractical to make a distribution available to any holders of ADSs. For example, it would be unlawful to make a distribution to a holder of ADSs if it consists of securities that require registration under the Securities Act but that are not properly registered or distributed pursuant to an applicable exemption from registration. The depositary is not responsible for making a distribution available to any holders of ADSs if any government approval or registration required for such distribution cannot be obtained after reasonable efforts made by the depositary. We have no obligation to take any other action to permit the distribution of our ADSs, ordinary shares, rights or anything else to holders of our ADSs. This means that you may not receive the distributions we make on our ordinary shares or any value for them if it is illegal or impractical for us to make them available to you. These restrictions may have a material and adverse effect on the value of your ADSs.

You may be subject to limitations on transfer of your ADSs.

Your ADSs are transferable on the books of the depositary. However, the depositary may close its books at any time or from time to time when it deems expedient in connection with the performance of its duties. The depositary may close its books from time to time for a number of reasons, including in connection with corporate events such as a rights offering, during which time the depositary needs to maintain an exact number of ADS holders on its books for a specified period. The depositary may also close its books in emergencies, and on weekends and public holidays. The depositary may refuse to deliver, transfer or register transfers of our ADSs generally when our books or the books of the depositary are closed, or at any time if we or the depositary thinks it is advisable to do so because of any requirement of law or any government or governmental body, or under any provision of the deposit agreement, or for any other reason.

We have not determined a specific use for a portion of our net proceeds from this offering and we may use these proceeds in ways with which you may not agree.

We have not determined a specific use for a portion of our net proceeds of this offering. Our management will have considerable discretion in the application of these proceeds received by us. You will not have the opportunity, as part of your investment decision, to assess whether the proceeds are being used appropriately. You must rely on the judgment of our management regarding the application of the net proceeds of this offering. The net proceeds may be used for corporate purposes that do not improve our profitability or increase our ADS price. The net proceeds from this offering may also be placed in investments that do not produce income or lose value.

Dividends payable by us to our foreign investors may become subject to withholding taxes under PRC tax laws.

Under the EIT Law, dividends payable to foreign investors which are “derived from sources within the PRC” may be subject to income tax at the rate of 20% by way of withholding. Since we are a holding company and substantially all of our income will come from dividends that we receive from our PRC subsidiaries, dividends that we declare from such income may be deemed “derived from sources within the PRC” for purposes of the EIT Law and therefore subject to a 20% withholding tax. While the EIT Law stipulates that such taxes may be exempted or reduced, no rules or guidance implementing the EIT Law have been issued yet, and it is unclear under what circumstances, and to what extent, such tax would be exempted or reduced.

The EIT Law also provides that dividend income between “qualified resident enterprises” is exempted income, which may imply that dividends we receive from our PRC subsidiaries would be exempt from tax, but we cannot assure you that we will be able to obtain such treatment for dividends paid to us by our PRC subsidiaries. Moreover, if we are deemed to be a PRC resident enterprise under the EIT law, a foreign investor in us may be able to claim the benefits of any income tax treaty between his or her resident country and China. We cannot assure you, however, that treaty benefits will be available to you (for example with respect to the withholding tax rate on dividends) even if we are deemed a PRC resident enterprise.

If we are required under the EIT Law to withhold PRC income tax on our dividends payable to our foreign shareholders and ADSs holders, the value of your investment in our ADSs may be materially and adversely affected.

Gains on the sales of our shares or ADSs may become subject to PRC income taxes.

Under the EIT Law, our foreign enterprise shareholders and enterprise ADSs holders may be subject to a 20% income tax upon any gains they realize from the transfer of their shares or ADSs, if such income is regarded as income from “sources within the PRC.” What will constitute “sources within the PRC” and whether or not there will be any exemption or reduction in taxation for our foreign corporate investors, however, are unclear since no rules or guidance concerning the new tax law has been issued yet. If our foreign shareholders and ADSs holders are required to pay PRC income tax on the transfers of their shares or ADSs, the value of your investment in our ADSs may be materially and adversely affected.

Although we believe that our expectations expressed in these forward-looking statements are reasonable, we cannot assure you that our expectations will turn out to be correct. Our actual results could be materially different from or worse than our expectations. Important risks and factors that could cause our actual results to be materially different from our expectations are generally set forth in “Risk Factors”, “Management’s Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations”, “Business” and other sections of this prospectus.

This prospectus also contains data relating to the advertising industry that includes projections based on a number of assumptions. The advertising market may not grow at the rates projected by market data, or at all. The failure of these markets to grow at the projected rates may have a material adverse effect on our business and the market price of our ADSs. In particular, the relatively new and rapidly changing nature of the out-of-home advertising sector subjects any projections or estimates relating to the growth prospects or future condition of our sector to significant uncertainties. Furthermore, if any one or more of the assumptions underlying the market data turns out to be incorrect, actual results may differ from the projections based on these assumptions. You should not place undue reliance on these forward-looking statements.

The forward-looking statements made in this prospectus relate only to events or information as of the date on which the statements are made in this prospectus. We undertake no obligation to update any forward-looking statements to reflect events or circumstances after the date on which the statements are made or to reflect the occurrence of unanticipated events.

Table of ContentsOUR CORPORATE STRUCTURE*Our History

Our predecessor company, Shanghai Aiqi Advertisement Co., Ltd., or Aiqi Advertisement, was established by immediate family members of Jason Nanchun Jiang in September 1997 and operated as an advertising agency. In May 2003, Aiqi Advertisement discontinued its advertising agency business, was renamed Shanghai Focus Media Advertisement Co., Ltd., commenced operation of our out-of-home television advertising network in China and reorganized its shareholdings. At the same time, we entered into arrangements with Focus Media Advertisement that resulted in the consolidation of Focus Media Advertisement. Following this reorganization Jason Nanchun Jiang continued to hold a controlling interest in Focus Media Advertisement.

In conjunction with the change in our business model in May 2003 and to facilitate foreign investment in our company, we established our offshore holding company, Focus Media Holding Limited as a company registered in the British Virgin Islands in April 2003. In April 2005, we completed the process of changing Focus Media Holding Limited's corporate domicile to the Cayman Islands and we are now a Cayman Islands company. On July 13, 2005, our ADSs were listed for quotation on the Nasdaq Global Market. Throughout our operating history, we have expanded our existing businesses and entered into new business areas through acquisitions. The following paragraphs present the material acquisitions we have entered into during the past three years.

In January 2006, we acquired Framedia, which operates networks of advertising poster frames placed primarily in elevators and public areas of residential complexes in China. In February 2006, we acquired Target Media. Target Media operated an out-of-home advertising network using flat-panel displays placed in elevator lobbies and other public areas in commercial buildings, hospitals, hotels, banks, residential buildings, convenience stores and other locations in cities in China. Following the acquisition of Target Media, we combined Target Media's network into our existing commercial location and in-store networks. Other than holding their existing contracts, the former Target Media entities no longer conduct any operations, and the combined network is operated through our existing corporate entities. In March 2006, we acquired Focus Media Wireless, which operates a mobile handset advertising delivery platform on the mobile telecommunications networks of China Mobile and China Unicom. In September 2006, we acquired a 70% equity interest in ACL, which through its affiliated PRC entity, leases screen time from movie theaters in cities in China, which it then sells as screen time slots to advertisers. We continue, from time to time, to make acquisitions to expand our existing networks and to enter into new areas of business. For instance, in the first half of 2007, we acquired companies to expand our mobile handset advertising network and outdoor LED billboard network as well as entering into the Internet advertising business through several acquisitions including Allyes. We expect that acquisitions will continue to be an important component of our growth strategy.

In March 2007, we acquired Allyes, which operates an Internet advertising services and technology business.

Our Corporate Structure and Contractual Arrangements

Substantially all of our operations are conducted in China as follows:

- with regard to the operation of our out-of-home television networks, through Focus Media Technology, our indirect wholly-owned subsidiaries in China, Focus Media Digital, a 90%-owned subsidiary of Focus Media Technology, and New Focus Media Advertisement, a 90%-owned subsidiary of Focus Media Digital, and through our contractual arrangements with several of our consolidated affiliated entities in China, including Focus Media Advertisement, and its subsidiaries. Focus Media Advertisement owns the remaining 10% equity interest in Focus Media Digital and New Focus Media Advertisement;
- with regard to the operation of our poster frame network, through Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia and New Structure Advertisement, each of which is 90% owned by Focus Media Advertisement and 10% owned by Focus Media Advertising Agency, respectively;
- with regard to the operation of our mobile handset advertising network, through Focus Media Wireless, which is 90% owned by Focus Media Advertisement and 10% owned by Focus Media Advertising Agency, respectively; and

- with regard to the operation of the Internet advertising marketing agency business of Allyes, through seven PRC operating companies, which we refer to as the Allyes operating affiliates, each of which is owned by PRC citizens.

Each of Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology, Allyes Information Technology Co., Ltd. and their respective affiliated entities and shareholders, have entered into contractual arrangements substantially similar to those control agreements entered into among Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisements, Focus Media Advertisement and its shareholders and subsidiaries. See “Related Party Transactions — Agreements Among Us, Our Wholly Foreign-Owned Enterprises, Our PRC Operating Affiliates and Their Shareholders and Subsidiaries”.

In connection with its entry into the World Trade Organization, China is required to relax restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry in China. Accordingly, PRC regulations stipulate that starting from December 10, 2005, foreign investors are allowed to directly own 100% of PRC companies operating an advertising business if the foreign entity has at least three years of direct operations in the advertising business outside of China or to directly own less than 100% if the foreign entity has at least two years of direct operations in the advertising business outside of China. We do not currently directly operate an advertising business outside of China and cannot qualify for direct ownership of a PRC advertising company under PRC regulations any earlier than two or three years, respectively, after we commence any such operations or until we acquire a company which has directly operated an advertising business for the required period of time. We do not currently know how or when we will be able to qualify under these regulations. Even if we do qualify in the future, it may be burdensome or not cost effective for us to meet the required criteria for direct ownership. If and when we qualify for direct ownership, we intend to explore the commercial feasibility of changing our current structure, including possibly direct ownership of Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries, taking into consideration relevant cost, market, competitive and other factors. In the event we take such steps, we cannot assure you that we will be able to identify or acquire a qualified foreign company for a possible future restructuring or that any restructuring we may undertake to facilitate direct ownership will be successful.

The following diagram of our current corporate structure includes our primary businesses and the primary entities involved in the operation of those businesses and excludes dormant entities and entities, which aside from holding existing contracts, no longer conduct any operations:

Accordingly, since we have not been involved in the direct operation of an advertising business outside of China, our domestic PRC subsidiaries, Focus Media Technology, Framedia Investment, Focus Media Digital and New Allyes Technology, which are considered foreign-invested, are currently ineligible to apply for the required advertising services licenses in China. Our advertising business is currently mainly provided through contractual arrangements with our consolidated affiliated entities in China, including (i) Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries with regard to our commercial location, in-store and outdoor LED networks, (ii) Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia and New Structure Advertisement with regard to our poster frame network, (iii) Focus Media Wireless with regard to our mobile handset advertising network, and (iv) each of the seven Allyes operating affiliates, and each of their respective shareholders with regard to our Internet advertising services network. Focus Media Advertisement is owned by two PRC citizens, Jason Nanchun Jiang, our chairman and chief executive officer, and Jimmy Wei Yu, one of our directors. Each of Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia, New Structure Advertisement and Focus Media Wireless is owned by Focus Media Advertisement and Focus Media Advertising Agency. Each of the Allyes operating affiliates is owned by two PRC citizens. Each of Focus Media Advertisement, several of its subsidiaries, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement, Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia, New Structure Advertisement, Focus Media Wireless, and the Allyes operating affiliates, which we refer to collectively as our PRC operating affiliates, holds the requisite licenses to provide advertising, telecommunications or Internet services in China, as applicable. In 2006, we began operating a portion of our advertising business through our 90%-owned indirect subsidiary Focus Media Advertisement after which time we will no longer entirely rely on contractual arrangements with our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries and shareholders for the operation of our advertising business.

We have been and are expected to continue to be dependent on our PRC operating affiliates to operate our advertising business until we acquire them as our wholly-owned subsidiaries. We and Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement, Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology, New Allyes Information Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. and New Allyes Technology, which we refer to as our wholly-foreign owned entities, have entered into contractual arrangements with their respective PRC operating affiliates and shareholders, pursuant to which:

- we are able to exert effective control over our PRC operating affiliates;
- a substantial portion of the economic benefits of our PRC operating affiliates will be transferred to us; and
- each of our wholly-foreign owned entities or their respective designees has an exclusive option to purchase all or part of the equity interests in our PRC affiliated entities or their respective nominee holders, or, in some cases, all or part of the assets of our PRC affiliated entities, in each case when and to the extent permitted by PRC law.

Each of our contractual arrangements with our PRC affiliated entities and their respective shareholders and subsidiaries can only be amended with the approval of our audit committee or another independent body of our board of directors. See "Related Party Transactions" for further information on our contractual arrangements with these parties.

In the opinion of Global Law Office, our PRC legal counsel:

- the respective ownership structures of Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective PRC operating affiliates and subsidiaries are in compliance with existing PRC laws and regulations;
- the contractual arrangements among Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective PRC operating affiliates, subsidiaries and shareholders, in each case governed by PRC law are valid, binding and enforceable, and will not result in any violation of PRC laws or regulations currently in effect; and
- the PRC business operations of Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective PRC operating affiliates and subsidiaries as described in this prospectus, are in compliance with existing PRC laws and regulations in all material respects.

We have been advised by our PRC legal counsel, however, that there are substantial uncertainties regarding the interpretation and application of current and future PRC laws and regulations. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the PRC regulatory authorities, in particular the SAIC which regulates advertising companies, will not in the future take a view that is contrary to the above opinion of our PRC legal counsel. We have been further advised by our PRC counsel that if the PRC government finds that the agreements that establish the structure for operating our PRC advertising business do not comply with PRC government restrictions on foreign investment in advertising businesses, we could be subject to severe penalties. See “Risk Factors — If the PRC government finds that the agreements that establish the structure for operating our China business do not comply with PRC governmental restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry, we could be subject to severe penalties”, “— Our business operations may be affected by legislative or regulatory changes” and “— The PRC legal system embodies uncertainties which could limit the legal protections available to you and us”.

Table of ContentsUSE OF PROCEEDS

We estimate that we will receive net proceeds from this offering of approximately $299.2 million, or approximately $419.5 million if the underwriters exercise their option in full to purchase additional ADSs, in each case based on an assumed public offering price of US$62.00 per ADS which was the last trading price of our ADSs on October 31, 2007, after deducting underwriting discounts and the estimated offering expenses payable by us. We will not receive any of the proceeds from the sale of ADSs by the selling shareholders. A US$1.00 increase (decrease) in the assumed public offering price of US$62.00 per ADS would increase (decrease) the net proceeds we expect to receive by US$4.85 million.

We anticipate using the net proceeds of this offering to fund potential acquisitions. We may use any remaining amounts for our future general corporate purposes.

The foregoing represents our current intentions with respect to the use of the net proceeds of this offering based upon our present plans and business conditions, but our management will have significant flexibility and discretion in applying the net proceeds of the offering. The occurrence of new business opportunities, unforeseen events or changed business conditions may result in application of the proceeds of this offering in a manner other than as described in this prospectus. At this time, we have not entered into advanced discussions or negotiations with respect to any potential material acquisitions.

To the extent that the net proceeds we receive from this offering are not immediately applied for the above purposes, we intend to invest our net proceeds in short-term, interest bearing debt instruments or bank deposits. These investments may have a material adverse effect on the U.S. federal income tax consequences of your investment in our ADSs. It is possible that we may become a passive foreign investment company for United States federal income tax purposes, which could result in negative tax consequences for you. These consequences are described in more detail elsewhere in this prospectus.

In utilizing the proceeds of this offering in the manner described above, as an offshore holding company of our PRC operating subsidiaries and affiliates, we may make loans to our PRC subsidiaries and consolidated PRC affiliated entities, or we may make additional capital contributions to our PRC subsidiaries. Any loans to our PRC subsidiaries or consolidated PRC affiliated entities are subject to PRC regulations and approvals. For example:

- loans by us to Focus Media Technology and Focus Media Digital through Focus Media Technology, each a foreign invested enterprise, to finance its activities cannot exceed statutory limits and must be registered with the State Administration of Foreign Exchange or its local counterpart; and
- loans by us to Focus Media Advertisement or its subsidiaries, which are domestic PRC enterprises, must be approved by the relevant government authority and must also be registered with the State Administration of Foreign Exchange or its local counterpart.

We may also determine to finance Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement through Focus Media Technology, Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology or New Allies Information by means of capital contributions. These capital contributions must be approved by the PRC Ministry of Commerce or its local counterpart. Because Focus Media Advertisement, Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia, New Structure Advertisement, Focus Media Wireless, New Allies Information and their respective subsidiaries are domestic PRC enterprises, we are not likely to finance their activities by means of capital contributions due to regulatory issues relating to foreign investment in domestic PRC enterprises, as well as the licensing and other regulatory issues discussed in "Regulation of Our Industry". We cannot assure you that we can obtain these government registrations or approvals on a timely basis, if at all, with respect to future loans or capital contributions by us to Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement, Framedia Investment, Focus Media Wireless, Focus Media Advertisement, New Allies Information or any of their respective subsidiaries.

Table of ContentsDIVIDEND POLICY

We have not previously declared any dividends. In 2004, we recorded deemed dividends of $8.3 million, $2.2 million and $13.4 million in connection with our Series A, Series B and Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares, of which $4.9 million of the deemed dividend related to the difference between the fair value at that time of the Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares and ordinary shares in connection with a sale of 9,729,600 ordinary shares by Jason Nanchun Jiang, our chairman and CEO, to a third-party investor, which shares were redesignated as Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares. These deemed dividends were not cash dividends and upon conversion of our Series A, Series B and Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares into ordinary shares, we are no longer required to record deemed dividends prospectively. We currently intend to retain all available funds and any future earnings for use in the operation and expansion of our business and do not anticipate paying any cash dividends on our ordinary shares, or indirectly on our ADSs, for the foreseeable future.

Future cash dividends, if any, will be at the discretion of our board of directors and will depend upon our future operations and earnings, capital requirements and surplus, general financial condition, shareholders' interests, contractual restrictions and other factors as our board of directors may deem relevant. In addition, we can pay dividends only out of our profits or other distributable reserves. Any dividend we declare will be paid to the holders of ADSs, subject to the terms of the deposit agreement, to the same extent as holders of our ordinary shares, less the fees and expenses payable under the deposit agreement. Other distributions, if any, will be paid by the depositary to holders of our ADSs in any means it deems legal, fair and practical. Any dividend will be distributed by the depositary, in the form of cash or additional ADSs, to the holders of our ADSs. Cash dividends on our ADSs, if any, will be paid in U.S. dollars. See "Description of American Depositary Shares".

Table of ContentsEXCHANGE RATES

Our operating businesses are currently conducted in China and substantially all of our revenues and expenses are denominated in Renminbi. The People's Bank of China, or PBOC, sets and publishes daily a base exchange rate with reference primarily to the supply and demand of Renminbi against a basket of currencies in the market during the prior day. The PBOC also takes into account other factors, such as the general conditions existing in the international foreign exchange markets. Since 1994, the conversion of Renminbi into foreign currencies, including Hong Kong dollars and U.S. dollars, has been based on rates set by the PBOC, which are set daily based on the previous day's inter-bank foreign exchange market rates and current exchange rates in the world financial markets. From 1994 to July 20, 2005, the official exchange rate for the conversion of Renminbi to U.S. dollars was generally stable. Although PRC governmental policies were introduced in 1996 to reduce restrictions on the convertibility of Renminbi into foreign currency for current account items, conversion of Renminbi into foreign exchange for capital items, such as foreign direct investment, loans or securities, requires the approval of the State Administration for Foreign Exchange and other relevant authorities. On July 21, 2005, the PRC government introduced a managed floating exchange rate system to allow the value of the Renminbi to fluctuate within a regulated band based on market supply and demand and by reference to a basket of currencies. On the same day, the value of the Renminbi appreciated by 2.0% against the U.S. dollar. Since then, the PRC government has made, and may in the future make, further adjustments to the exchange rate system. The PBOC announces the closing price of a foreign currency traded against the Renminbi in the inter-bank foreign exchange market after the closing of the market on each working day, and makes it the central parity for the trading against the Renminbi on the following working day.

The conversion of Renminbi into U.S. dollars in this prospectus is based on the noon buying rate in The City of New York for cable transfers of Renminbi as certified for customs purposes by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. For your convenience, this prospectus contains translations of Renminbi at $1.00 to RMB 7.6120, which was the prevailing rate on June 30, 2007. The prevailing rate at October 31, 2007 was $1.00 to RMB 7.4682. We make no representation that any Renminbi or U.S. dollar amounts could have been, or could be, converted into U.S. dollars or Renminbi, as the case may be, at any particular rate, the rates stated below, or at all. The PRC government imposes controls over its foreign currency reserves in part through direct regulation of the conversion of Renminbi into foreign exchange and through restrictions on foreign trade.

Table of ContentsSELECTED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL AND OPERATING DATA

The following selected consolidated financial information has been derived from our consolidated financial statements. Our consolidated financial statements are prepared by including the financial statements of Focus Media Advertisement, formerly Aiqi Advertising, through May 2003 and our consolidated financials, which include the consolidation of Focus Media Advertisement, Shanghai Perfect Media, Focus Media Wireless and the entities that operate our Internet advertising services network as variable interest entities, thereafter and are presented in accordance with U.S. GAAP. Our statements of operations for 2004, 2005 and 2006 and our balance sheets as of December 31, 2005 and 2006 are derived from those financial statements that has been included elsewhere in this prospectus.

Our selected consolidated financial information for the years ended December 31, 2002 and 2003 have been derived from Focus Media Advertisement audited consolidated financial statements, which are not included in this prospectus. Our statement of operations for each of the six months ended June 30, 2006 and 2007 and balance sheet data as of June 30, 2006 and 2007 has been derived from our unaudited consolidated financial data which has been included elsewhere in this prospectus. We have prepared the unaudited consolidated financial data on the same basis as the audited consolidated financial statements and have included, in our opinion, all adjustments, consisting only of normal and recurring adjustments, that we consider necessary for a fair presentation of the financial information set forth in those statements. Our historical results for any prior or interim period are not necessarily indicative of results to be expected for a full fiscal year or for any future period. The selected consolidated financial information for the periods and as of the dates indicated should be read in conjunction with our financial statements and the accompanying notes and "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations".

Prior to May 2003, we operated as an advertising agency, the operations and services of which differ markedly from our current business. As an advertising agency, we assisted media companies in selling their advertising time or space to companies seeking to advertise in exchange for a commission. In May 2003, we ceased acting as an advertising agency and commenced our current business as an operator of an out-of-home advertising network, consisting first of our commercial location network. In April 2005, we commenced commercial operations of our in-store network and through our acquisition of Framedia, we commenced operation of our poster frame network on January 1, 2006. In February 2006, we acquired Target Media and in March 2006, we acquired Focus Media Wireless. In March 2007, we acquired Allies.

Overview

Our out-of-home advertising network consists of (i) our digital out-of-home advertising networks, comprising our commercial location network, in-store network and poster frame network, (ii) our mobile handset advertising network; and (iii) our Internet advertising services network. We have experienced significant revenue and earnings growth, and the size of our network has grown significantly since we commenced our current business operations in May 2003.

The significant increase in our operating results since we commenced our current business operations is attributable to a number of factors, including the substantial expansion of our digital out-of-home advertising networks, the ongoing expansion of our mobile handset advertising network, the introduction of Internet advertising services into our platform, the successful execution and integration of strategic acquisitions, such as Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL and Allyes, and the growing acceptance of our multi-platform network as an appealing advertising medium by our clients.

We expect our future growth to be driven by a number of factors and trends including:

- Overall economic growth in China, which we expect to contribute to an increase in advertising spending in major urban areas in China where consumer spending is concentrated;
- Our ability to increase sales of advertising time slots and extend the duration of our advertising cycle on our commercial location and in-store networks;
- Our ability to increase sales of frame space on our poster frame network;
- Our ability to expand our client base through promotion of our services and cross-selling;
- Our ability to identify and create new advertising channels by establishing separate advertising networks that enable advertisers to target a diverse range of consumer groups with specific demographic profiles;
- Our ability to successfully enter into the mobile handset advertising business, in part through our recent acquisition of Focus Media Wireless;
- Our ability to successfully operate and market our new outdoor LED billboard network;
- Our ability to successfully operate and market our new Internet advertising services network; and
- Our ability to acquire and integrate companies that operate advertising businesses complementary to our existing operations.

Because our primary source of revenue is our advertising service revenue, we focus on factors that directly affect our advertising service revenue such as the size and scope of our network, the quality of the locations where we place our network and the price we charge for our advertising time slots after taking into account any discounts.

As we continue to expand our network, we expect to face a number of challenges. We have expanded our network rapidly, and we, as well as our competitors, have occupied many of the most desirable locations in China's major cities. In order to continue expanding our network in a manner that is attractive to potential advertising clients, we may continue to enter into new advertising media platforms and to establish additional stand-alone networks that provide effective channels for advertisers. In addition, we must react to continuing technological innovations, such as the potential uses of wireless and broadband technology in our network, and changes in the regulatory environment.

Our financial results for 2006 also include those of Framedia that we acquired on January 1, 2006, of Target Media that we acquired on February 28, 2006 and, starting in the second quarter of 2006, those of Focus Media Wireless that we acquired in March 2006. Starting in March 2007, our financial results also include those of Allyes, the acquisition of which we completed in March 2007.

Revenues

In 2004, 2005 and 2006, and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, we had total revenues of $29.2 million, $68.2 million, $211.9 million and $170.6 million, respectively. We generate revenues from the sale of advertising time slots on our digital out-of-home advertising networks, from the sale of frame space on our poster frame network, from advertising services through our mobile handset advertising network and, since April 2007, from Internet advertising services and software. Our advertising service revenue includes the sale of advertising time slots on our network, as well as a small amount of revenue attributable to other advertising related services we provide to our advertising clients. We also derive revenues from the sale of our flat-panel displays to regional distributors, which we refer to as our advertising equipment revenue. In 2004, 2005 and 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, our advertising service revenue accounted for 90.1%, 98.0%, 99.1% and 99.6% of our total revenues, respectively. Advertising Service Revenue

Sources of Revenue. We derive most of our total revenues from the sale of time slots and frame space on our digital out-of-home advertising networks to unrelated third parties and to some of our related parties. We report our advertising revenue between related and unrelated parties because historically more than 10% of our advertising service revenues came from clients related to some of our directors. Our advertising services to related parties were provided in the ordinary course of business on the same terms as those provided to our unrelated advertising clients on an arm's-length basis.

Our advertising service revenue is recorded net of any sales discounts and agency rebates from our standard advertising rate cards that we may provide to our advertising clients. These discounts include volume discounts and other customary incentives offered to our advertising clients, including additional broadcast time for their advertisements if we have unused time slots or frame space available in a particular city's advertising cycle, and represent the difference between our standard rate card and the amount we charge our advertising clients. Our advertising clients include advertisers that directly engage in advertisement placements with us and advertising agencies retained by some advertisers to place advertisements on the advertiser's behalf. We occasionally agree to pay advertising agency customers sales rebates calculated on the revenues generated by them. We expect that our advertising service revenue will continue to be the primary source, and constitute the substantial majority of, our revenues for the foreseeable future.

Our advertising service revenue reflects a deduction for business taxes and related surcharges incurred in connection with our operations. Their revenues are subject to a sales tax consisting of approximately 5.55% business tax and a cultural industries tax ranging from 0% to 4.0% on revenues earned from their advertising services provided in China. We deduct these amounts from our advertising service revenues to arrive at our total revenues attributable to advertising services.

Factors that Affect Our Advertising Service Revenue

Digital Out-of-home Advertising Service Revenues

Prices for advertising services on our digital out-of-home advertising networks also vary significantly from city to city as income levels, standards of living and general economic conditions vary significantly from region to region in China, which in turn affect the advertising rates we are able to charge for time slots and frame space.

Commercial Location Network

Our advertising service revenue derived from our commercial location network is directly affected by the average price we charge for the advertising package provided to our customers, after taking into account any discount offered, as well as by the following factors:

- LCD display network. The number of flat-panel displays in our network and the desirability, quality and pedestrian traffic of the locations where we are able to lease space to install our flat-panel displays and;
- Outdoor LED billboard network. The number of publicly placed LED billboards in our network and the desirability, quality and pedestrian traffic of the locations of the LED billboards we own or lease from third-parties; and
- Movie theater advertising network. The number of movie theaters in which we have leased screen time, our expansion into additional theaters, and the length of the leased screen time, which is currently three minutes per screening per theater prior to movie screenings at movie theaters.

In-store Network

Our advertising service revenue derived from our in-store network is directly affected by the number of flat-panel displays in our network, the number of hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores in the network, and the average price we charge for the advertising package provided to our customers, after taking into account any discount offered.

Table of ContentsPoster Frame Network

Our advertising service revenue derived from our poster frame network is directly affected by:

- the number of frames in our poster frame network. We sell frame space on our poster frame network on a per frame basis. Increasing the number of residential and other locations on our poster frame network allows us to increase the number of frames on our network, thereby increases the available frame space for sale to advertisers. As we upgrade the network to incorporate more digital poster frames, we will also increase the available space as multiple advertisements can be placed on a digital frame on time-shared basis; and
- the average price we charge for frame space on a per frame basis, after taking into account any discount offered.

Mobile Handset Advertising Service Revenues

Our advertising service revenue derived from our mobile handset advertising network is directly affected by:

- the number of messages we deliver to mobile phone users. We charge advertisers fees based on the number of successfully delivered messages; and
- the average price we charge per message.

Internet Advertising Service Revenues

As of March 2007, we derive revenue from our Internet advertising business operated by Allyes. Our advertising service revenue derived from our Internet advertising services is directly affected by:

- the number of customers who purchase agency services from us. We agree to provide advertising agency services and technology, and we charge fees based on the size and duration of the advertising campaign and the number of daily impressions or “hits” on the Internet advertisement; and
- our ability to identify relevant Internet user traffic and deliver effective advertisements for our advertising clients

Network Expansion. Many of the most desirable locations for our digital out-of-home advertising network have been occupied, either by our network as a result of our expansion or by our competitors. As a result, we will need to rely on means other than the rapid increase in the number of locations, flat-panel displays, LED billboards and advertising poster frames in order to continue growing our revenues. We have focused, and expect to continue to focus, on developing new channels in our out-of-home television advertising networks and entering into new types of advertising media operations to continue to grow our revenues and to address these potential capacity constraints on our existing network. These steps have included: (1) expanding our digital out-of-home advertising network through increasing the size and scope of our existing commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks, and adding new media such as LED billboards and movie theater screens to our out-of-home television networks, (2) establishing discrete stand-alone channels on our commercial location network, such as our premier A and B office building, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels and (3) expanding our media platform into new areas such as mobile handset advertising services and Internet advertising services and software packages. We expect to continue to explore opportunities to open up additional channels on our existing network and to enter into new advertising media platforms in China. We intend to continue expanding our out-of-home advertising network both through increasing the number of locations, displays and advertising poster frames on our commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks and through strategic acquisition of competitors and businesses that complement our existing out-of-home advertising network. In addition, we entered into new advertising platforms through Focus Media Wireless’ mobile handset advertising network and our outdoor LED billboard network, and into Internet advertising services through our recent acquisition of Allyes. We believe these measures will enable us to continue the future growth of our business.

Seasonality. Our advertising service revenue is subject to key factors that affect the level of advertising spending in China generally. In addition to fluctuations in advertising spending relating to general economic and market conditions, advertising spending is also subject to fluctuations based on the seasonality of consumer spending. In general, a disproportionately larger amount of advertising spending is concentrated on product launches and promotional campaigns prior to the holiday season in December. In addition, advertising spending generally tends to decrease in China during January and February each year due to the Chinese Lunar New Year holiday as office buildings and other commercial venues in China tend to be closed during the holiday. We believe this effect will be less pronounced with regard to advertising spending on our in-store network, as we believe commercial activity in hypermarkets and supermarkets is stable or even enhanced during the period of Chinese Lunar New Year. We also experience a slight decrease in revenues during the hot summer months of July and August each year, when there is a relative slowdown in overall commercial activity in urban areas in China. Our past experience, although limited, indicates that our revenues would tend to be lower in the first quarter and higher in the fourth quarter of each year, assuming other factors were to remain constant, such as our advertising rates and the number of available time slots on our network.

Revenue Recognition. We typically sign standard advertising contracts with our advertising clients, which require us to run the advertiser's advertisements on our network in specified cities for a specified period, typically from four to twelve weeks. We do not bill our advertising clients under these contracts until we perform the advertising service by broadcasting the advertisement on our network. Advertising service revenues are recognized in accordance with Topic 13 of Staff Accounting Bulletin ("SAB") "Revenue Recognition (SAB 101 and SAB 104)" when all four of the following criteria are met: (i) persuasive evidence of agreement exists; (ii) delivery of service has occurred; (iii) the price is both fixed and determinable; and (iv) collection of the resulting receivable is reasonably assured.

For digital out-of-home advertising revenues, net of agency rebates are recognized ratably over the period in which the advertisement is displayed. Revenue collected from our poster frame network is recognized in substantially the same manner as revenues collected under the advertising contracts used for our commercial location and in-store networks. For mobile handset advertising revenues, advertising revenues primarily consists of service revenue for delivering advertisement and other messages to the targeted mobile phone devices through channels provided by telecommunication vendors. Revenues from such services, net of agency rebates, are recognized when these messages are delivered to the vendor's channels. For Internet advertising services revenue, revenues primarily consist of revenues from advertising and advertising-related services and revenues from sales of Adforward software. We sell Adforward subscriptions and perpetual licenses, from which revenues are recognized in accordance with the Statement of Position ("SOP") No. 97-2 "Software Revenue Recognition", as amended by SOP No. 98-9, "Modification of SOP No. 97-2, Software Revenue Recognition, With Respect to Certain Transactions." Under SOP No. 97-2, revenues are recognized for subscription arrangements ratably over the subscription period for those with fixed fees and as earned (based on actual usage) under our variable fee arrangements. For perpetual license agreements, revenue is generally recognized when delivery has occurred, software has been installed and training has been provided as we do not currently have vendor-specific objective evidence of fair value, or VSOE, for either installation or training services. When we are considered as an agent, we recognize revenue on a net basis.

We generally collect our advertising service fees by billing our advertising clients within 60 to 90 days after completion of the advertising contract and book these unbilled or unpaid amounts as accounts receivable until we receive payment or determine the account receivable to be uncollectible.

Our accounts receivable are general unsecured obligations of our advertising clients and we do not receive interest on unpaid amounts. We make specific reserves for accounts that we consider to be uncollectible. We also provide a general reserve for uncollectible accounts that we reassess on an annual basis. We made no provision for uncollectible accounts in 2003. In 2004, 2005, 2006 and six months ended June 30, 2007, we made provision of $173,837, $396,657, $1,308,554 and $4,163,933, respectively, for accounts receivable that were outstanding for longer than six months. The average number of days outstanding of our accounts receivable, including from related parties, was 51, 70, 66 and 91, respectively, as of December 31, 2004, 2005, 2006 and June 30, 2007.

Other Revenue

We also derive a portion of our total revenues from the sale of flat-panel displays to our regional distributors on a cost-plus basis, and franchise fee which we record as other revenue. Other revenue represented 9.9%, 2.0%, 0.9% and 0.4% of our total revenues in 2004, 2005 and 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. Other revenue derived from sale of flat-panel displays is recorded net of the 17% value added tax to which equipment sales in China are subject. We expect that other revenue as a percentage of our total revenues will continue to be low.

Cost of Revenues

Our cost of revenues consists of costs directly related to the offering of our advertising services and costs related to our sales of advertising equipment.

The following table sets forth our cost of revenues, divided into its major components, by amount and percentage of our total revenues for the periods indicated:

Advertising Service Costs

Our cost of revenues related to the offering of our advertising services on our advertising network consists of location costs, flat-panel display depreciation costs, amortization of acquired intangible assets and other cost items, including salaries for and travel expenses incurred by our network maintenance staff and costs for materials.

Our location costs for our out-of-home television networks consist of:

- rental fees and one-time signing payments we pay to landlords, property managers and stores pursuant to the display placement agreements we enter into with them;
- commissions and public relations expenses we incur in connection with developing and maintaining relationships with landlords and property managers; and
- maintenance fees for keeping our displays in proper operating condition.

Generally, we capitalize the cost of our media displays and recognize depreciation costs on a straight-line basis over the term of their useful lives, which we estimate to be five years. The primary factors affecting our depreciation costs are the number of flat-panel displays in our network and the unit cost for those displays, as well as the remaining useful life of the displays.

Amortization of acquired intangible assets consists of operating and broadcasting rights, lease agreements, completed technology and others. We expect our results of operations for a period of at least seven years beginning in 2006 to be negatively affected by the amortization of intangible assets in relation to, among other things, material contracts and customer lists as a result of several acquisitions, particularly Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless and Allyes.

Our other cost of revenues consists of salary for and travel expenses incurred by our network maintenance staff and costs for materials and maintenance in connection with the upkeep of our advertising network. The primary factor affecting our other costs of revenues is the size of our network maintenance staff. As the size of our network increases, we expect our network maintenance staff, and associated costs, to increase in absolute terms, but to decrease as a percentage of total revenues.

Commercial Location Network. Location costs are the largest component of our cost of revenues for our commercial location network. The primary factors affecting the amount of our location costs include the number of display placement agreements we enter into and the rental fees we pay under those agreements. We expect these costs to decrease as a percentage of our advertising service revenue for our commercial location network in the future, as our advertising service revenue for our commercial location network is expected to increase faster than the additional cost we incur from entering into new display placement agreements and any increases we may experience in renewing existing display placement agreements. However, when our display placement agreements expire, we may be unable to renew these agreements on favorable terms and the rental fee portion of our location costs attributable to these existing locations could increase. As we continue to increase the size of our network and as we update and replace our existing displays with new technology, our depreciation costs in connection with our commercial location network are expected to increase.

In-store Network. The primary costs of revenues connected with our in-store network are location costs resulting from rental and maintenance fees and depreciation costs for our displays. We expect these costs to continue to increase in 2007 as we expand our in-store network.

Poster Frame Network. The primary costs of revenues connected with our poster frame network are location costs resulting from rental fees. Depreciation costs for our frames and other costs for salary and maintenance fees also account for a significant portion of cost of revenues for our poster frame network. We expect these costs to increase in 2007 as we expand and upgrade our poster frame network but to decrease as a percentage of advertising service revenue for our poster frame network.

Mobile Handset Advertising Network. The primary costs of revenues connected with our mobile handset advertising network are message costs charged by telecommunications network operations. We expect these costs to increase as the number of advertising messages and campaigns on this network increases.

Internet Advertising Services Network. The primary costs of revenues connected with our Internet advertising services network are advertising space leasing costs charged by gateway websites and research and development costs in connection with the development of Internet advertising software packages. We expect these costs to increase as we continue to expand this part of our business as Internet use continues to grow in China.

Other Costs

Other costs consists of the amounts we pay to the contract assembler who purchases the components and assembles them into the flat-panel displays we sell to our regional distributors. Other costs were 6.6%, 1.4%, 0.4%, 0.4% and 0.2% of our total revenues in 2004, 2005, 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2006 and June 30, 2007, respectively. The primary factors affecting other costs are the number of flat-panel displays we sell and the unit cost we pay to our contract assembler for each such flat-panel display.

Table of ContentsOperating Expenses and Net Income

Our operating expenses consist of general and administrative, selling and marketing expenses, other operating income. In 2004, our operating expenses also included a goodwill impairment loss. The following table sets forth our operating expenses, divided into their major categories by amount and as a percentage of our total revenues for the periods indicated.

General and Administrative. General and administrative expenses primarily consist of salary and benefits for management, finance and administrative personnel, share-based compensation expense for our administrative staff, office rental, maintenance and utilities expenses, depreciation of office equipment, other office expenses and professional services fees. General and administrative expenses were 13.7%, 13.4%, 12.1% and 11.9% of our total revenues in 2004, 2005 and 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. Salaries and benefits accounted for 20.2%, 26.9%, 23.3% and 19.7% of our general and administrative expenses in 2004, 2005, 2006 and six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. We expect that our general and administrative expenses will be relatively stable as a percentage of total revenues in the near term but to increase in absolute terms as we hire additional personnel and incur additional costs in connection with the expansion of our business and with being a publicly traded company, including costs of enhancing our internal controls.

Selling and Marketing. Our selling and marketing expenses primarily consist of salaries and benefits, share-based compensation expense for our sales staff, marketing and promotional expenses, amortization of certain acquired intangible assets such as customer base, and other costs related to supporting our sales force. Selling and marketing expenses were 11.9%, 14.0%, 12.2% and 13.5% of our total revenues in 2004, 2005, 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. As we acquired more of our regional distributors, continue to expand our client base and have commenced operation of new advertising platforms, we increased our sales force, which resulted in an increase in salary expenses. We now budget approximately 15% of our advertising revenues to be used for selling and marketing in 2007. We expect selling and marketing expenses to remain relatively stable as a percentage of total revenues.

Share-based Compensation. Prior to 2006, our share-based compensation expense relating to general and administrative and selling and marketing primarily consists of the amortized portion of deferred share-based compensation recognized by us. We issued options representing 10.87% of our issued share capital under our 2003 Employee Share Option Scheme, or the 2003 Option Plan. In addition, we have issued options representing 3.95% of our issued share capital under our 2005 Share Option Plan, or the 2005 Option Plan. Our share-based compensation relating to general and administrative accounted for 11.6%, 7.5%, 23.8% and 23.2% of our general and administrative expenses in 2004, 2005, 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. Share-based compensation relating to selling and marketing accounted for 0.8%, 0.5%, 8.1% and 18.0% of our selling and marketing expenses in 2004, 2005, 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. The share-based compensation has increased following the effectiveness, as of January 2006, of Statement of Financial Accounting

Standards No. 123(R) relating to share-based compensation, which requires us to record the fair value of such awards as compensation expense. As a result, we recorded total share-based compensation expense of $8.4 million and $9.4 million for 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively.

Critical Accounting Policies

We prepare our financial statements in conformity with U.S. GAAP, which requires us to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities on the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the financial reporting period. We continually evaluate these estimates and assumptions based on the most recently available information, our own historical experience and on various other assumptions that we believe to be reasonable under the circumstances. Since the use of estimates is an integral component of the financial reporting process, actual results could differ from those estimates. Some of our accounting policies require higher degrees of judgment than others in their application. We consider the policies discussed below to be critical to an understanding of our financial statements as these policies address some of the most significant accounts in our financial statements and their application places the most significant demands on our management's judgment.

Share-based Compensation

Through 2005, we accounted for our share option plan using the intrinsic value method under Accounting Principles Board, or APB, No. 25. Effective the beginning of 2006, we adopted Statement of Financial Accounting Standards, or SFAS, No. 123-R, "Share-Based Payment", and elected to adopt the modified prospective application method. SFAS No. 123-R requires us to use a fair-value based method to account for share-based compensation. Accordingly, share-based expense is measured at the grant date, based on the fair value of the award, and is recognized as expense over the employees' requisite service period. Our share option plans are described in Note 10 to our consolidated financial statements.

We estimated the fair value of share options granted using the Black-Scholes-Merton option pricing model, which requires the input of highly subjective assumptions, including the estimated expected life of the share options, estimated forfeitures and the price volatility of the underlying shares. The assumptions used in calculating the fair value of share options represent management's best estimates, but these estimates involve inherent uncertainties and the application of management judgement. As a result, if factors change and we use different assumptions, our share-based compensation expense could be materially different in the future. In addition, we estimate our expected forfeiture rate and recognize the expense only for those shares expected to vest. These estimations are based on past employee retention rates and our expectations of future retention rates. We will prospectively revise our estimated forfeiture rates based on actual history. Our compensation expense may change based on changes to our actual forfeitures of these share options.

Income Taxes

We account for income taxes under the provisions of SFAS No. 109, "Accounting for Income Taxes", with the required disclosures as described in Note 11 to our consolidated financial statements. We record a valuation allowance to reduce our deferred tax assets to the amount that we believe is more likely than not to be realized. In the event we were to determine that we would be able to realize our deferred tax assets in the future in excess of their recorded amount, an adjustment to our deferred tax assets would increase our income in the period such determination was made. Likewise, if we determine that we would not be able to realize all or part of our net deferred tax assets in the future, an adjustment to our deferred tax assets would be charged to our income in the period such determination is made. We record income tax expense on our taxable income using the balance sheet liability method at the effective rate applicable to each of our affiliated entities in China in our consolidated statements of operations and comprehensive income.

Goodwill and Long-lived Assets Impairment

We test goodwill for possible impairment on an annual basis as of December 31 of each year and at any other time if an event occurs or circumstances change that would more likely than not reduce the fair value of a reporting unit below its carrying amount. Circumstances that could trigger an impairment test between annual tests include, but are not limited to:

- a significant adverse change in the business climate or legal factors;
- an adverse action or assessment by a regulator;
- unanticipated competition;
- loss of key personnel;
- the likelihood that a reporting unit or a significant portion of a reporting unit will be sold or disposed of;
- a change in reportable segments;
- results of testing for recoverability of a significant asset group within a reporting unit; and/or

As of December 31, 2004, 2005, 2006 and June 30, 2007, we had a goodwill balance of $9.1 million, $13.3 million, $739.7 million and $924.2 million, respectively, which is not deductible for tax purposes. We incurred a goodwill impairment loss of $58,397 in 2004 in connection with our acquisition of Perfect Media which is part of the commercial location reporting segment. In conducting our annual impairment test, we undertook a valuation of Perfect Media using the expected present value of cash flow and the income approach valuation methods, which resulted in a goodwill impairment loss of $58,397 in 2004, indicating that the value of Perfect Media was less than what we paid at the time we acquired it.

The fair value of each reporting unit is determined by allocating our total fair value among our reporting units using a certain valuation technique. We may incur additional goodwill impairment charges in the future although we cannot predict whether this will occur when we perform our goodwill impairment test each year.

We test long-lived assets for possible impairment if an event occurs or circumstances change that would more likely than not reduce the fair value of an asset group below its carrying amount. Asset recoverability is an area involving management judgement, requiring assessment in two steps as to whether the carrying value of assets can be supported by (1) the undiscounted future cash flows and (2) the net present value of future cash flows derived from such assets using cash flow projections which have been discounted at an appropriate rate. In calculating the net present value of the future cash flows, certain assumptions are required to be made in respect of highly uncertain matters such as revenue growth rates, gross margin percentages and terminal growth rates.

Taxation

Cayman Islands, the British Virgin Islands and Hong Kong

Under the current laws of the Cayman Islands, the British Virgin Islands and Hong Kong, neither Focus Media Holding Limited, incorporated in the Cayman Islands, nor Infoachieve Limited and Dotad Holdings Limited, incorporated in the British Virgin Islands, are subject to tax on its income or capital gains. Focus Media Hong Kong, our wholly owned subsidiary incorporated in Hong Kong, is subject to profits tax rate of 17.5% on its assessable profits, yet interest derived from deposits placed in Hong Kong with authorized institutions are exempted from the Hong Kong profits tax. In addition, payment of dividends by either company is not subject to withholding tax in those jurisdictions.

PRC

Our PRC entities are subject to PRC business tax. We primarily pay business tax on gross revenues generated from our advertising services. Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement and Framedia Advertisement, pay a 5% business tax, whereas Focus Media Wireless pays a 3% business tax on the gross revenues derived from advertising services and this business tax is deducted from total revenues in calculating the net revenues. Focus Media Technology and Focus Media Digital pay a 5% business tax on the gross revenues derived from their contractual arrangements with Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries and these taxes are primarily recorded in operating expenses.

In addition to business tax and cultural industries tax imposed on our advertising business and VAT imposed on our sales of advertising equipment. Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital and Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries, including Focus Media Advertising Agency and New Focus Media Advertisement, are subject to PRC enterprise income tax on their taxable income, except to the extent some of them enjoy temporary tax exempt status as described in further detail below.

Pursuant to PRC law, enterprise income tax is generally assessed at the rate of 33% of taxable income. Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries and New Focus Media Advertisement are currently subject to this 33% enterprise income tax. State Administration of Taxation and its delegates of the PRC are authorized to grant an exemption from enterprise income tax of up to two years to newly established domestic companies that have no direct foreign ownership and that are financially independent and engaged in consulting services, technology services or the information industry, which includes advertising services. A qualifying company must apply for this tax-exempt status for each of the two years separately. Focus Media Digital and Focus Media Advertising Agency were established in October 2004 and both were granted exemptions from enterprise income tax in 2004 and 2005. In 2006 and 2007, we continued our tax exempt status through New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement, New Structure Advertisement and Focus Media Wireless, which were established during the period from October 2005 to June 2006 and have obtained tax-exempt approval for 2006 and 2007.

In November 2004, Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Advertisement and some of its subsidiaries sold all of their flat-panel display equipment to Focus Media Digital at fair market value. As a result of this sale, Focus Media Technology and Focus Media Advertisement recorded a non-cash charge to earnings in the aggregate of $4,773,030 in the fourth quarter of 2004, which reflected the difference between the fair market value of the equipment and its then current book value. In addition, since its establishment, through December 31, 2005, Focus Media Advertising Agency has generated revenue by selling time slots on our advertising network and pays a dissemination fee to Focus Media Advertisement and its certain subsidiaries, which places advertisements for Focus Media Advertising Agency's clients on our network. Finally, Focus Media Agency also license technology used in our business operations from Focus Media Digital in exchange for license fees paid to Focus Media Digital. As a result of Focus Media Agency's amortization of the license fee paid to Focus Media Digital, it incurred a charge to earnings of $3.7 million in the fourth quarter of 2004. See "Related Party Transactions" for further information on these transactions and contractual agreements. Although these transactions were eliminated upon consolidation as transactions among members of our consolidated companies for financial accounting purposes, they did have the affect of reducing our total income tax expense and increasing our after tax net income in 2004.

As a result of these transactions, our effective tax rates were 71.6% and 2.8% in 2004 and 2005, respectively. Excluding the non-recurring non-cash charge resulting from the change in fair value of derivative liability associated with Series B convertible redeemable preference shares and goodwill impairment loss, our effective tax rate for 2004 would have been 7.0%. The tax savings resulting from the non-cash charge to earnings from the write-down of flat-panel display equipment in 2004 and the charge to earnings from the amortization of the license fee paid in 2004 will not continue in the future.

In December 2005, we established New Focus Media Advertisement which has received tax-exempt approval for 2006 and 2007. We further incorporated New Focus Media Agency and Focus Media Defeng Advertisement in 2006 which also received tax-exempt approval for 2006 and 2007. Besides, New Structure Advertisement, which was incorporated in October 2005, also received its tax-exempt approval for 2006 and 2007. Focus Media Wireless, as a high-tech company incorporated in Zhonguancun District, Beijing, China, is exempted from income tax from 2006 to 2008, plus a 50% reduction holiday from 2009 to 2011.

In December 2005, Focus Media Digital sold all of its flat-panel display equipment to New Focus Media Advertisement at fair market value and Focus Media Digital sold all of its technology to New Focus Media Advertisement in January 2006 at a fixed fee. As of January 2006, New Focus Media Advertisement generates revenue by selling time slots on our advertising network and pays a dissemination fee to Focus Media Advertisement and its certain subsidiaries, which places advertisements for New Focus Media Advertisement's clients on our network. Both New Focus Media Agency and Focus Media Defeng Advertisement act as advertising agencies for New Focus Media Advertisement and receive agency fees. While these transactions are eliminated upon consolidation as they are transactions among members of our consolidated group for financial accounting purposes, they effectively reduce our effective tax rate to 1.3% for 2006. We also expect these transactions will reduce our total income tax expense and increase our after tax net income in 2007. See “Related Party Transactions” for further information on these transactions and contractual agreements. In addition, upon expiration of these tax exemptions, we will consider available options, in accordance with applicable law, that would enable us to qualify for further tax exemptions, if any, to the extent they are then available to us.

Under PRC law, arrangements and transactions among related parties may be subject to audit or challenge by the PRC tax authorities. If any of the transactions described above are found not to be on an arm’s-length basis, or to result in an unreasonable reduction in tax under PRC law, the PRC tax authorities have the authority to disallow our tax savings, adjust the profits and losses of our respective PRC entities and assess late-payment interest and penalties. A finding by the PRC tax authorities that we are ineligible for the tax savings we achieved in 2004, 2005 and 2006, or that we expect to achieve in 2007, or that Focus Media Digital, Focus Media Advertising Agency, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Structure Advertisement, or Framedia Advertisement are ineligible for their tax exemptions, would substantially increase our taxes owed and reduce our net income and the value of your investment. As a result of this risk, you should evaluate our results of operations and financial condition without regard to these tax savings. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to Regulation of Our Business and to Our Structure — Contractual arrangements we have entered into among our subsidiaries and affiliated entities may be subject to scrutiny by the PRC tax authorities and a finding that we owe additional taxes or are ineligible for our tax exemption, or both, could substantially increase our taxes owed, and reduce our net income and the value of your investment.”

On March 16, 2007, the PRC National People’s Congress passed the China Corporate Income Tax Law which will change the income tax rates for most enterprises from 33% at the present to 25%. This new law will become effective on January 1, 2008. There will be a transition period for enterprises, whether foreign-invested or domestic, which currently receive preferential tax treatments granted by relevant tax authorities. Enterprises that are subject to an enterprise income tax rate lower than 25% may continue to enjoy the lower rate and gradually transition to the new tax rate within five years after the effective date of the new law. Enterprises that are currently entitled to exemptions or reductions from the standard income tax rate for a fixed term may continue to enjoy such treatment until the fixed term expires. Preferential tax treatments will continue to be granted to industries and projects that are strongly supported and encouraged by the state, and enterprises that qualify as “new and high technology enterprises strongly supported by the state” will be entitled to a 15% enterprise income tax rate.

Most of the Company’s subsidiaries and VIEs are expected to transition from 33% to 25% starting from January 1, 2008. Those that currently enjoy a lower tax rate of 15% will gradually transition to the uniform tax rate of 25% from 2008 to 2012 unless the company obtains the “new and high technology enterprise” status under the new tax law.

Recently Issued Accounting Standards

In February 2007, the FASB issued SFAS No. 159, The Fair Value Option for Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities, (“SFAS 159”). SFAS No. 159 permits entities to choose to measure many financial instruments and certain other items at fair value. SFAS No. 159 is effective for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007.

In September 2006, the FASB issued SFAS No. 157, “Fair Value Measurements” (“SFAS 157”), which defines fair value, establishes a framework for measuring fair value in generally accepted accounting principles, and expands disclosures about fair value measurements. SFAS 157 applies under most other accounting pronouncements that require or permit fair value measurements and does not require any new fair value measurements. This statement is effective for financial statements issued for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007, and interim periods within those fiscal years, with earlier application encouraged. The provisions of SFAS 157 should be applied prospectively as of the beginning of the fiscal year in which the statement is initially applied, except for a limited form of retrospective application for certain financial instruments. The Group is currently evaluating the impact, if any, of this statement on the consolidated combined financial statements.

Since we commenced our current business operations in May 2003, we have acquired numerous companies to expand the coverage of our network in China and to acquire businesses that are complementary to our operations. See “Our Recent Significant Acquisitions” for descriptions of the most recent such acquisitions.

Some of the businesses we acquired had entities located both in and outside of China. The consideration we paid for these businesses was made in two parts, one part for the entity located in China, and the other part for the entity located outside of China. For consideration paid to acquire entities located in China, we withheld on behalf of sellers who are natural persons 20% of the amount by which the acquisition price exceeded the registered capital of such PRC entity as required under the PRC Individual Income Tax Law and related implementation rules. We were not required to and did not withhold any tax in connection with payments made to acquire the entities located outside of China. See “Risks Relating to the People’s Republic of China — The PRC tax authorities may require us to pay additional taxes in connection with our acquisitions of offshore entities that conducted their PRC operations through their affiliates in China”.

The financial statements of:

Certain quarterly financial information related to each fiscal quarters of the fiscal year ended December 31, 2006 are presented differently from previously announced information in the Forms 6-K furnished to the SEC on May 26, 2006, August 21, 2006, November 20, 2006 and February 26, 2007 as a result of the following:

Advertising agency rebates for each fiscal quarter of the fiscal year ended December 31, 2006. We classified $88,537, $624,365, $425,807, $257,205 and $774,260 advertising agency rebates, respectively, as selling expenses rather than as a reduction of revenues in the quarter ended March 31, June 30, September 30, December 31, 2006 and March 31, 2007, respectively. This adjustment resulted in a decrease in the originally reported gross margin and a decrease to reported selling expenses from our filings on Form 6-K dated May 26, 2006, August 21, 2006, November 20, 2006, February 26, 2007 and June 12, 2007, respectively. The foregoing reclassifications did not affect net income or earnings per share.

Results of Operations

Six Months Ended June 30, 2007 Compared to Six Months Ended June 30, 2006

Total Revenues. Our total revenues increased substantially from $83.3 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $170.6 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 due primarily to an increase in our advertising service revenue.

Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network. Advertising service revenue from our digital out-of-home advertising network, which includes our commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks, increased 60.8% from $79.5 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $127.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007, primarily due to a 59.6% increase in revenues from our commercial location network and a 97.0% increase in revenues from our poster frame network.

- Commercial location network. Advertising service revenue from our commercial location network increased significantly from $51.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $82.7 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. The increase in advertising service revenue is attributable to: (i) continued acceptance of our media by an increasing number of advertising clients; (ii) the steady expansion of our media network, including the number of LCD displays and LED billboards on our network; and (iii) the sale of tailored advertising packages including through the seven specialized channels on our commercial location network and by targeting advertising campaigns on specific lists of buildings requested by advertising clients.
- In-store network. Advertising service revenue from our in-store network, increased 17.8% to $13.9 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 from $11.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006. This increase was attributable to steady sales of advertising services on the network as it continued to increase in size. Specifically, the number of displays installed in the in-store network amounted to 41,322 as of June 30, 2007, up from 35,511 as of June 30, 2006. The number of hypermarkets in our networks, where we derives most of our in-store network revenue, increased from 872 as of June 30, 2006 to 1,205 as of June 30, 2007.

- Poster frame network. Advertising service revenue from our poster frame network increased 97.0% to $31.2 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 compared to $15.8 million for the same period in 2006. This increase in revenue is primarily attributable to robust sales as the total number of frames installed nearly doubled from 82,200 as of June 30, 2006 to 161,435 as of June 30, 2007.

Mobile Handset Advertising Network. Advertising service revenue from our mobile handset advertising network increased from $3.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $16.9 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 due to the increasing acceptance by advertisers of mobile handset advertising as telecommunications services and mobile handset ownership continues to grow in China.

Internet Advertising Services Network. We commenced providing Internet advertising services and software solutions in March 2007 upon our acquisition of Allyes. Advertising service revenue from our Internet advertising services network totalled $25.2 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 attributable primarily to sales of our digital media services, sales of our performance-based advertising service 'SmartTrade' and sales of our Internet advertising software package 'AdForward'.

Cost of Revenues. Our cost of revenues increased significantly from $36.5 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $76.7 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 due to increases in costs of expanding and maintaining our digital out-of-home advertising networks and mobile handset advertising network as well as from costs related to our Internet advertising services network, which we began to incur in April 2007 upon the acquisition of Allyes.

Digital out-of-home advertising costs. Cost of revenues associated with our digital out-of-home advertising networks increased 49.6% from $34.1 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $51.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. This increase is primarily attributable to increased costs associated with the expansion of our commercial location network and an increase in the number of LED billboards.

- Net advertising service cost — commercial location network. Our net advertising service cost for our commercial location network increased substantially from $19.7 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $30.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. This increase was due to (i) the substantial increase in our advertising service business on our commercial location network between these two periods including substantial increases in our location costs due to a substantial increase in the number of commercial locations where we entered into display placement agreements, (ii) an increase in flat-panel display depreciation costs as a result of an increase in the number of flat-panel displays we own and operate directly from 69,446 as of June 30, 2006 to 85,101 as of June 30, 2007; (iii) our acquisition of 5 regional distributors during this period, (iv) an increase in other direct costs associated with maintaining the network and (v) payments associated with our lease of curbside LED billboards and screen time at movie theaters.
- Net advertising service cost — in-store network. We incurred $10.2 million in net advertising service cost for our in-store network for the six months ended June 30, 2007 compared to $8.4 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006, consisting of location costs and depreciation costs relating to the installation and maintenance of our in-store network.
- Net advertising service cost — poster frame network. Our net advertising service cost for our poster frame network increased 66.5% to $10.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 compared to $6.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006, attributable to location costs and depreciation costs relating to the installation and maintenance of poster frames on our network as we significantly increased the number of traditional poster frames on our network and, in June 2007, began to incur location costs associated with our digital poster frames.

Net advertising service cost — mobile handset advertising network. Net advertising service cost associated with our mobile handset advertising network increased significantly from $2.4 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $7.3 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. These costs consist primarily of message costs charged by mobile operators.

Net advertising service cost — Internet advertising service network. We incurred net advertising service costs of $18.4 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. These costs consist primarily of advertising space leasing costs charged by gateway websites.

Gross Profit. As a result of the foregoing, our gross profit increased by 101.5% from $46.5 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $93.6 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. Our overall gross margin decreased during the same period from 55.8% to 54.8% primarily due to the addition of our Internet advertising services network in the first half of 2007, which has lower margins. For the six months ended June 30, 2007, our gross margin for our digital out-of-home advertising network amounted to 60.1%, including gross margins for our commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks of 62.8%, 26.4% and 67.9%, respectively, compared to a gross margin for our digital out-of-home advertising networks of 61.0% for the six months ended June 30, 2006, including gross margins of 62.0%, 29.3% and 62.0% for our commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks, respectively. Gross margin for mobile handset advertising network increased from 21.8% for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to 56.6% for the six months ended June 30, 2007. Gross margin for our Internet advertising services network was 27.1% for the six months ended June 30, 2007. In the future, our gross margin may fluctuate depending on the respective financial performance and stage of development of each of our networks as well as the relative contribution to our revenues and costs of each network.

Operating Expenses. Our operating expenses increased significantly from $20.3 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $41.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. Operating expenses remained relatively consistent as a percentage of revenues, 24.4% for the six months ended June 30, 2006 compared to 24.0% for the six months ended June 30, 2007. The increase in operating expenses was primarily due to increases in our selling and marketing expenses and in our general and administrative expenses associated with the growth of our business, and in share-based compensation expenses under SFAS 123-R.

- General and Administrative. General and administrative expenses increased substantially from $10.7 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $20.3 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 mainly due to an increase in the size of our administrative staff and corresponding increases in expenses for salary and benefits as our operations have grown, increases in share-based compensation expense and increases in costs associated with being a publicly listed company.
- Selling and Marketing. Selling and marketing expenses increased substantially from $9.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $23.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 due to increases in marketing and promotional expenses by our sales force, and in salary and benefits associated with the expansion of our sales force as well as share-based compensation expenses.

Income from Operations. As a result of the foregoing, we had income from operations of $52.6 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 compared to $26.1 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006.

Income Before Income Taxes and Minority Interest. Income before income taxes and minority interest was $27.1 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 compared to $57.3 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007, which included interest income and other income (expenses).

- Interest Income. Interest income increased from $1.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $4.6 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. This interest income was the result of a significant increase in our cash and cash equivalents balances resulting from our follow-on public offerings.
- Income Taxes. Our income taxes were $1.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 with an effective tax rate of 3.6% compared to $3.3 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 with an effective tax rate of 5.7%. The increase resulted from newly acquired subsidiaries with higher effective tax rates.

Net Income. As a result of the foregoing, our net income increased 106.9% from $26.1 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $54.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007.

Year Ended December 31, 2006 Compared to Year Ended December 31, 2005

Total Revenues. Our total revenues increased substantially from $68.2 million in 2005 to $211.9 million in 2006 due to an increase in our advertising service revenue.

Our total advertising service revenue increased significantly from $66.9 million in 2005 to $210.0 million in 2006, including the advertising service revenues derived from our poster frame network amounting to $40.9 million and $10.1 million from mobile handset advertising network primarily as a result of our acquisitions in 2006.

Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network. Advertising service revenue from our digital out-of-home advertising network increased significantly from $66.9 million in 2005 to $199.9 million in 2006, primarily due to rapid growth in revenues from our commercial location network as well as from the addition of revenues from our poster frame network.

- Commercial location network. Advertising service revenue from our commercial location network increased significantly from $61.4 million in 2005 to $132.1 million, including $13.8 million to related parties in 2006. The increase in advertising service revenue for our commercial location network is attributable to:
  - An increase in the number of flat-panel displays on our network from 48,226 as of December 31, 2005 to 85,460 as of December 31, 2006 including our regional distributors;
  - Our network reach increased from 58 cities as of December 31, 2005, including 26 cities directly operated by our company and 32 cities operated by our regional distributors, to 91 cities as of December 31, 2006, including 51 cities directly operated by our company and 40 cities operated by our regional distributors;
  - We gained an additional seven minutes of advertising cycle time from each of the regional distributors we acquired between January 1, 2006 and December 31, 2006; and
  - The increase in the average selling price was largely due to increased demand in our Tier II cities, while the average selling price of our advertising services in our Tier I cities increased between these two periods.
- In-store network. Advertising service revenue from our in-store network, which commenced operations in April 2005, totaled $26.9 million in 2006. We expect the contribution to our total revenues from our in-store network to increase in the near future.
- Poster frame network. We generated $40.9 million in net revenues from our poster frame network in 2006. We commenced operation of our poster frame network in 2006 following our acquisition of Framedia.

Mobile handset advertising network. We generated $10.1 million in net revenues from our mobile handset advertising network in 2006. We commenced operations of this network in May 2006.

Other revenues increased from $1.3 million in 2005 to $1.9 million in 2006, primarily from license fees that we received from our overseas franchise companies. By the end of 2006, we granted licenses to approximately 10 overseas franchise companies using the Focus Media brand in operating local LCD advertising networks in India, Malaysia, Indonesia, the Philippines, the Gulf Cooperation Council region (including Saudi Arabia), Hong Kong, Taiwan and Singapore.

Cost of Revenues. Our cost of revenues increased significantly from $26.7 million in 2005 to $81.4 million in 2006 due to increases in our net advertising service cost for our commercial location network, our in-store network and two new business lines: our poster frame network and mobile handset advertising network.

Net Advertising Service Cost — Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network. Our net advertising service cost for our digital out-of-home advertising network increased significantly from $25.7 million in 2005 to $74.6 million in 2006, primarily as a result of substantial growth in the size of our commercial location network and in-store network as well as costs associated with our poster frame network following our acquisition of Framedia.

- Net advertising service cost — commercial location network. Our net advertising service cost for our commercial location network increased substantially from $18.3 million in 2005 to $42.8 million in 2006. This increase was due to the substantial increase in our advertising service business on our commercial location network between these two periods. Our location costs increased substantially from $11.3 million in 2005 to $25.8 million in 2006 due to a substantial increase in the number of commercial locations where we entered into display placement agreements. Our rental fees increased as a percentage of total revenues between these two periods as a result of (1) a significant increase in the number of locations in our commercial location network, including those previously operated by Target Media; and (2) average increased rental payments for the renewal of display placement agreements in the more desirable locations on our commercial location network. Flat-panel display depreciation costs increased from $3.4 million in 2005 to $9.2 million in 2006, as a result of an increase in the number of flat-panel displays we own and operate directly from 45,049 as of December 31, 2005 to 80,623 as of December 31, 2006 and to our acquisition of Target Media and 3 regional distributors during this period. Other cost of revenues related to net advertising service cost increased from $3.2 million in 2005 to $6.1 million in 2006 as a result of (1) increase in number of personnel responsible for monitoring the network following the acquisition of Target Media; (2) an increase in the volume of CF cards we purchased even as the per-unit cost of CF cards decreased and (3) an increase in salary and benefit expenses for personnel responsible for location relations and display placement agreements with landlords and property managers and for maintaining and monitoring our network.

- Net advertising service cost — in-store network. We began incurring net advertising service cost relating to our in-store network in April 2005 when we launched our in-store network. We incurred $18.1 million in net advertising service cost for our in-store network in 2006, consisting of location costs of $12.7 million and depreciation costs relating to the installation and maintenance of our in-store network amounting to $3.5 million.
- Net advertising service cost — poster frame network. We began incurring net advertising service cost relating to our poster frame network in 2006 following our acquisition of Framedia. We incurred $13.6 million in net advertising service cost for our poster frame network in 2006, consisting primarily of frame costs and depreciation costs relating to the installation and maintenance of the poster frames.
- Net advertising service cost — mobile handset advertising network. We began incurring net advertising service cost relating to our mobile handset advertising network in 2006 following our acquisition of Dotad, now known as Focus Media Wireless. We incurred $6.1 million in net advertising service cost for our mobile handset advertising network in 2006, primarily consisting of message costs charged by mobile network providers
- Other cost. We incurred net advertising equipment costs of $975,747 in 2005 compared to $764,959 in 2006, which decrease reflects the fact that we have acquired many of our fastest-growing regional distributors. We expect net advertising equipment costs to continue to decrease.

Gross Profit. As a result of the foregoing, our gross profit increased from $41.5 million in 2005 to $130.5 million in 2006 and our overall gross margin increased during the same period from 60.8% to 61.6%. The increase in our gross margin was due to a combination of the continuous increase in the sell-out rate and cost optimization.

Operating Expenses. Our operating expenses increased significantly from $18.7 million in 2005 to $50.1 million in 2006. This increase was primarily due to increases in our selling and marketing expenses and in our general and administrative expenses associated with the growth of our business.

- General and Administrative. General and administrative expenses increased substantially from $9.1 million in 2005 to $25.7 million in 2006 mainly due to an increase in the size of our administrative staff and corresponding increases in expenses for salary and benefits as well as accounting and administrative costs related to being a public company. In addition, in connection with the options granted to our directors, employees and consultants since July 2004, we recorded stock-based compensation of $6.1 million in 2006 following the adoption of SFAS No. 123 (revised 2005), “Share-Based Payment”.
- Selling and Marketing. Selling and marketing expenses increased substantially from $9.6 million in 2005 to $25.8 million in 2006 due to increases in marketing and promotional expenses by our sales force and in salary and benefits associated with the expansion of our sales force.

Income from Operations. As a result of the foregoing, we had income from operations of $22.8 million in 2005 compared to $80.4 million in 2006.

Income Before Income Taxes and Minority Interest. Income before income taxes and minority interest was $24.4 million in 2005 compared to $84.3 million in 2006.

- Interest Income, net. Interest income, net of interest expenses increased from 1.8 million in 2005 to $4.3 million in 2006. This interest income was the result of a significant increase in our cash and cash equivalents balances resulting from cash payments collected from our advertising operations and proceeds from our follow-on offerings.
- Other Expense, net. We recorded net other expense of $161,148 in 2005 compared to other income of $287,539, in 2006.
- Income Taxes. Our income taxes were $694,453 in 2005 compared to $1,043,538 in 2006.
- Minority Interests. We had minority interests expense of $144,433 and $104,773 in 2005 and 2006, respectively, in connection with the pro rata income attributable to minority shareholders of our subsidiaries.

Net Income. As a result of the foregoing, we recorded net income of $83.2 million in 2006 compared to net income of $23.5 million in 2005.

Total Revenues. Our total revenues increased substantially from $29.2 million in 2004 to $68.2 million in 2005 due to an increase in our advertising service revenue which was partially offset by a decrease in advertising equipment revenue.

Our total advertising service revenue increased significantly from $26.3 million in 2004 to $66.9 million in 2005.

Digital out-of-home advertising network. Advertising service revenue from our digital out-of-home advertising network, which in 2004 and 2005 consisted of only our commercial location network, increased significantly from $26.3 million in 2004 to $61.4 million, including $7.2 million to related parties in 2005. The increase in advertising service revenue for our commercial location network is attributable to:

- Increased acceptance of our network among our advertising clients, which we believe is primarily due to the increased coverage and effectiveness of our network that grew from 15,415 flat-panel displays as of December 31, 2004 to 48,226 displays as of December 31, 2005, including our regional distributors;
- Our network reach increased from 34 cities as of December 31, 2004, including 11 cities directly operated by our company and 23 cities operated by our regional distributors, to 58 cities as of December 31, 2005, including 26 cities directly operated by our company and 32 cities operated by our regional distributors;
- We gained an additional seven minutes of advertising cycle time from each of our regional distributors after we acquired them between January 1, 2005 and December 31, 2005; and
- On July 1, 2005, we extended the cycle time in our directly operated Tier II cities from nine minutes to twelve minutes.

The decrease in the average selling price was largely due to growth in sales of advertising services with lower selling prices in our Tier II cities, while the average selling price of our advertising services in our Tier I cities increased between these two periods.

In-store network. Advertising service revenue from our in-store network, which commenced operations in April 2005, totaled $5.5 million in 2005. We expect the contribution to our total revenues from our in-store network to increase in the near future.

Our advertising equipment revenue decreased from $2.9 million in 2004 to $1.3 million in 2005. This decrease was primarily attributable to our acquisition of a number of our regional distributors during 2004 and 2005 because, following each acquisition, we no longer sell flat-panel displays to each former regional distributor. This decrease was also partially attributable to decreased sales to our existing regional distributors, as the initial installation of the network in their respective cities of operation was largely completed in 2004 and the first quarter of 2005. We expect advertising equipment revenue to remain stable or decrease over time as we continue to acquire our existing regional distributors and as the most desirable cities for the establishment of similar networks by regional distributors become saturated.

Cost of Revenues. Our cost of revenues increased significantly from $8.7 million in 2004 to $26.7 million in 2005 due to increases in our net advertising service cost for our commercial location network and our in-store network and in our net advertising equipment cost.

- Net advertising service cost. Our net advertising services cost for our digital out-of-home advertising network which during 2004 and 2005 consisted only of commercial location network, increased substantially from $6.8 million in 2004 to $18.3 million in 2005. This increase was due to the substantial increase in our advertising service business on our commercial location network between these two periods. Our location costs increased substantially from $4.6 million in 2004 to $11.3 million in 2005 due to a substantial increase in the number of commercial locations where we entered into display placement agreements. Our rental fees increased as a percentage of total revenues between these two periods as a result of (1) a significant increase in the number of locations in our commercial location network (2) increased rental payments for the renewal of display placement agreements in the more desirable locations on our commercial location network offset in part by lower rental payments paid for new locations in our commercial location network because of a further reduction in the number of available desirable locations that command more expensive rental fees. Flat-panel display depreciation costs increased from $774,375 in 2004 to $3.4 million in 2005, as a result of an increase in the number of flat-panel displays we own and operate directly from 12,786 as of December 31, 2004 to 45,049 as of December 31, 2005 and to our acquisition of 14 regional distributors during this period. Other cost of revenues related to net advertising service cost increased from $1.4 million in 2004 to $3.2 million in 2005 as a result of (1) an increase in the volume of CF cards we purchased even as the per-unit cost of CF cards decreased and (2) an increase in salary and benefit expenses for personnel responsible for location relations and display placement agreements with landlords and property managers and for maintaining and monitoring our network.
- Net advertising service cost — in-store network. We began incurring net advertising service cost relating to our in-store network in April 2005 when we launched our in-store network. We incurred $7.4 million in net advertising service cost for our in-store network in 2005, consisting of location costs and depreciation costs relating to the installation and maintenance of our in-store network.
- Net advertising equipment cost. We incurred net advertising equipment costs of $1.9 million in 2004 compared to $975,747 in 2005, which decrease reflects the fact that we have acquired many of our fastest-growing regional distributors. We expect net advertising equipment costs to continue to decrease.

Gross Profit. As a result of the foregoing, our gross profit increased from $20.5 million in 2004 to $41.5 million in 2005 although our overall gross margin decreased during the same period from 70.0% to 60.8%. The decrease in our gross margin was largely a result of increased rental payments, including fixed initial payments, to stores and depreciation costs incurred as we launched our in-store network.

Operating Expenses. Our operating expenses increased significantly from $7.5 million in 2004 to $18.7 million in 2005. This increase was primarily due to increases in our business tax, our selling and marketing expenses and in our general and administrative expenses associated with the growth of our business, such as salaries and costs associated with preparing to become a publicly listed company.

- General and Administrative. General and administrative expenses increased substantially from $4.0 million in 2004 to $9.1 million in 2005 mainly due to an increase in the size of our administrative staff and corresponding increases in expenses for salary and benefits as well as accounting and administrative costs relating to being a public company. In addition, in connection with the options granted to our directors, employees and consultants since July 2004, we recorded stock based compensation of $683,186 in 2005.
- Selling and Marketing. Selling and marketing expenses increased substantially from $3.5 million in 2004 to $9.6 million in 2005 due to increases in marketing and promotional expenses by our sales force, and in salary and benefits associated with the expansion of our sales force.

Income from Operations. As a result of the foregoing, we had income from operations of $13.0 million in 2004 compared to $22.8 million in 2005.

Income Before Income Taxes and Minority Interest. Income before income taxes and minority interest was $1.3 million in 2004 compared to $24.4 million in 2005, which included interest income and other income (expenses) and change in fair value of series B convertible redeemable preferred shares in 2004.

- Interest Income, net. Interest income increased from $9,739 in 2004 to $1.8 million in 2005. This interest income was the result of a significant increase in our cash and cash equivalents balances resulting from cash payments collected from our advertising operations, sales of our preference shares and proceeds from our initial public offering.
- Other Expense, net. We recorded net other expense of $3,843 in 2004 compared to other expense of $161,148 in 2005.
- Change in Fair Value of Series B Convertible Redeemable Preferred Shares. We incurred a change in fair value of series B convertible redeemable preferred shares of $11.7 million in 2004. Upon the occurrence of our initial public offering in July 2005, all outstanding preference shares were converted into ordinary shares, and accordingly we did not incur any change in fair value of series B convertible redeemable preferred shares in 2005.
- Income Taxes. Our income taxes were $907,550 in 2004 compared to $694,453 in 2005, which decrease resulted from the fact that in 2005, we derived most of our revenue from Focus Media Advertising Agency, which had no tax liability during this period, whereas during 2004, we derived most of our revenues from Focus Media Advertisement, which had tax liability.
- Minority Interest. We had minority interest income of $13,516 and minority interest expense of $144,433 in 2004 and 2005, respectively, in connection with the pro rata income attributable to minority shareholders of four of our subsidiaries.

Net Income. As a result of the foregoing, we recorded net income of $23.5 million in 2005 compared to net income of $372,752 in 2004.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

Cash Flows and Working Capital

To date, we have financed our operations primarily through cash generated from operating activities and sales of equity in private and public transactions. As of June 30, 2007, we had approximately $187.6 million in cash and cash equivalents. As we have expanded our network, entered into a large number of display placement agreements, increased our acquisition of regional distributors and related businesses, and made strategic acquisitions, our cash needs for such acquisitions, the purchase of flat-panel displays, payment of our location and maintenance costs and employee costs increased significantly and accounted for the net cash used in investing activities. Our cash and cash equivalents primarily consist of cash on hand and liquid investments with original maturities of three months or less that are deposited with banks and other financial institutions. We generally deposit our excess cash in interest bearing bank accounts. Although we consolidate the results of our PRC operating affiliates in our consolidated financial statements and we can utilize their cash and cash equivalents in our operations through our PRC operating affiliates, we do not have direct access to the cash and cash equivalents or future earnings of our PRC operating affiliates. However, these cash balances can be utilized by us for our normal operations pursuant to our agreements with our PRC operating affiliates that provide us with effective control over our PRC operating affiliates. In addition, we have access to the cash flows of Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries through contractual arrangements with our subsidiaries Focus Media Technology and Focus Media Digital, which provide technical and other services in exchange for fees. See “Related Party Transactions — Agreements Among Us, Our Wholly Foreign-Owned Subsidiaries, Our PRC Operating Affiliates and Their Shareholders and Subsidiaries”.

We expect to require cash in order to fund our ongoing business needs, particularly the location costs connected with the placement of our television displays, to fund the ongoing expansion of our network and for payments in connection with our acquisitions. Other possible cash needs may include the upgrading of technology on our network as well as any payment of claims that could be made against us. We have not encountered any difficulties in meeting our current cash needs.

The following table shows our cash flows with respect to operating activities, investing activities and financing activities in 2004, 2005 and 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2006 and 2007:

	2004	2005	2006	2006	2007
	(In thousands of U.S. dollars)
Net cash provided by operating activities	$ 4,045	$ 11,269	$ 93,355	$ 17,393	$ 56,568
Net cash (used) in investing activities	(11,070)	(117,667)	(121,994)	(98,668)	(158,126)
Net cash provided by financing activities	28,978	119,169	153,521	167,476	116,583
Net increase in cash and cash equivalent	21,953	13,984	127,958	86,031	22,981

We had net cash provided by operating activities of $4.0 million, $11.3 million, $93.4 million and $56.6 million for 2004, 2005, 2006 and six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. This was primarily attributable to net income generated from the operation of our advertising network, and adjusted by share-based compensation expense, minority interests, depreciation and amortization expenses, bad debt provision expenses, and change in current assets and liabilities.

We had net cash used in investing activities of $158.1 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007, primarily in connection with the acquisition of companies, including Allyes, prepayments made to acquire certain companies engaged in poster frame advertising business, mobile handset advertising business, outdoor billboards advertising business and Internet advertising services business, purchase of equipment used to expand our networks, and rental deposits paid for locations on our out-of-home television, poster frame and outdoor LED billboard networks. Our acquisition of Allyes involved our payment of $70.0 million in cash and issuance of $154.3 million of our ordinary shares to the seller parties at a fixed value of $7.726 per ordinary share. We had net cash used in investing activities of $122.0 million in 2006, primarily in connection with the acquisition of companies, including Target Media and Focus Media Wireless, subsidiaries and regional distributors, purchase of equipment used to expand our networks, and rental deposits paid for locations on our out-of-home television, poster frame and outdoor LED billboard networks. Our acquisition of Framedia involved our payment of $39.6 million in cash and issuance of $55.4 million of our ordinary shares to the seller parties at a fixed value of $2.456 per ordinary share. In addition, in connection with the earn-out payment for Framedia, we issued an additional 35,830,619 Focus Media ordinary shares, at a fair value of $6.639 per ordinary share, to the seller parties in 2007. Pursuant to the share purchase agreement we entered into with E-Times and Skyvantage, we paid the seller parties $5.0 million. We also paid $94.0 million in cash and issued 77 million ordinary shares to the shareholders of Target Media. The issuance of such additional ordinary shares will also result in lower earnings per share or per ADS when we calculate our earnings for 2007 than would otherwise be the case were such additional shares not issued. We had net cash used in investing activities of $117.7 million in 2005, primarily in connection with the acquisition of companies, subsidiaries and regional distributors, purchase of equipment used to expand our commercial location and in-store networks, and rental deposits paid for locations on both our commercial location and in-store networks. We had net cash used in investing activities of $11.1 million in 2004. This was primarily attributable to our purchase of property and equipment for the operation of our network, rental deposits made in connection with our display placement agreements and our acquisition of eleven businesses, eight of which were our former regional distributors.

We had net cash provided by financing activities of $116.6 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007, primarily from the proceeds of $115.0 million, net of issuance costs, from our follow-on offering in January 2007. $153.5 million net cash was provided by financing activities in 2006, primarily from the proceeds of $142.7 million, net of issuance costs, from our follow-on offerings. $119.2 million net cash was provided by financing activities in 2005, primarily from the proceeds of our initial public offering in July 2005. We had net cash provided by financing activities of $29.0 million in 2004. This was attributable to the proceeds from the issuance of our Series B and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares, offset slightly by the repayment of a short-term loan from one of our shareholders.

We believe that our current cash and cash equivalents, cash flow from operations and the proceeds from our recent follow-on offerings will be sufficient to meet our anticipated cash needs, including for working capital and capital expenditures, for the foreseeable future. These additional cash needs may include costs associated with the expansion of our network, such as the purchase of flat-panel displays, LED digital billboards, digital poster frames and increased location cost, including in connection with our acquisitions of business and regional distributors. We are also required under PRC law to set aside 10% of our after-tax profits into a general reserve fund. We expect that revenues from operation of our advertising network and the proceeds from our offerings will be sufficient to cover any such obligations and costs. We may, however, require additional cash resources due to changed business conditions or other future developments. If these sources are insufficient to satisfy our cash requirements, we may seek to sell debt securities or additional equity securities or obtain a credit facility. The sale of convertible debt securities or additional equity securities could result in additional dilution to our shareholders. The incurrence of indebtedness would result in debt service obligations and could result in operating and financial covenants that would restrict our operations. We cannot assure you that financing will be available in amounts or on terms acceptable to us, if at all.

From time to time, we evaluate possible investments, acquisitions or divestments and may, if a suitable opportunity arises, make an investment or acquisition or conduct a divestment.

Contractual Obligations and Commercial Commitments

The following table sets forth our contractual obligations and commitments with definitive payment terms on a consolidated basis which will require significant cash outlays in the future as of December 31, 2006.

	Payments Due December 31
	Total	2007	2008	2009	2010	Thereafter
Display and poster frame placement agreement obligations	$ 107,242	$ 46,186	$ 31,363	$ 19,098	$ 8,683	$ 1,912
Office premise lease obligations	4,198	1,971	1,153	773	251	50
Total contractual obligations	$ 111,440	$ 48,157	$ 32,516	$ 19,871	$ 8,934	$ 1,962

Other than certain leasing arrangements relating to the placement of our flat-panel and office premises, as of December 31, 2006, we did not have any long-term debt obligations, operating lease obligations or purchase obligations.

As of December 31, 2006, we had no other indebtedness, material contingent liabilities, or material mortgages or liens. We intend to meet our future funding needs primarily through net cash provided from operating activities and the proceeds of this offering. Our objective is to maintain the safety and liquidity of our cash. Therefore we intend to keep our cash and cash equivalents in short-term bank deposits and short-term bonds.

By June 30, 2007, the Group completed several business acquisitions in which the considerations were partially or fully contingent on future earnings targets for the one to three years ended from the respective dates of acquisition. The aggregate contingent consideration is estimated by management to be approximately $292.5 million, of which $42.8 million has been paid out as deposit for acquisition of subsidiaries. The rest of the payment is contingent on future earnings targets over the next one to four fiscal years.

Capital Expenditures

The following table sets forth our historical capital expenditures for the periods indicated. Actual future capital expenditures may differ from the amounts indicated below.

	2004	2005	2006	2006	2007

Total capital expenditures	$ 6,373	$ 36,765	$ 22,878	$ 11,608	$ 25,265

Our capital expenditures were made primarily to acquire flat-panel displays for our advertising network. Our capital expenditures are primarily funded by net cash provided from operating activities. We expect our capital expenditures in 2007, in an amount of approximately $40.0 million, to primarily consist of purchases of components for our flat-panel displays and new digital poster frames as we continue to expand our commercial location network and in-store network and expand and upgrade our poster frame network. We also intend to upgrade our financial, accounting systems and internal control systems. As opportunities arise, we may make additional acquisitions of regional distributors and other businesses that complement our operations. We believe that we will be able to fund these upgrades and equipment purchases through the revenues we generate, and do not anticipate that these obligations will have a material impact on our liquidity needs.

Foreign Exchange

We maintain our accounts in Renminbi and substantially all of our revenues and expenses are denominated in Renminbi, while we report our financial results in U.S. dollars. Fluctuations in exchange rates, primarily those involving the U.S. dollar against the Renminbi, may affect our reported operating results in U.S. dollar terms. In addition, we will receive the proceeds of this offering in U.S. dollars and changes in the U.S. dollar/Renminbi exchange rate could affect the buying power of those proceeds. Under the current foreign exchange system in the PRC, our operations in the PRC may not be able to hedge effectively against currency risk, including any possible future Renminbi devaluation. Moreover, due to the recent devaluation of the U.S. dollar against the Euro and several other currencies, the PRC government recently revised its decade-old policy of pegging the value of the Renminbi to the U.S. dollar. As of July 21, 2005 the Renminbi is no longer pegged solely to the U.S. dollar. Instead, it will be pegged against a basket of currencies, determined by the People's Bank of China, against which it can rise or fall by as much as 0.3% each day. For example, on July 21, 2005 the Renminbi was revalued against the U.S. dollar to approximately RMB 8.11 to the U.S. dollar, representing an upward revaluation of 2.1% of the Renminbi against the U.S. dollar, as compared to the exchange rate on the previous day. See "Risk Factors — Risks Relating to the People's Republic of China — Fluctuations in exchange rates could result in foreign currency exchange losses".

Restricted Net Assets

Relevant PRC laws and regulations permit payments of dividends by our PRC subsidiaries only out of their retained earnings, if any, as determined in accordance with PRC accounting standards and regulations. In addition, PRC laws and regulations require that annual appropriations of 10% of after-tax income should be set aside prior to payment of dividends as a general reserve fund. As a result of these PRC laws and regulations, our PRC subsidiaries and our affiliated PRC entities are restricted in their ability to transfer a portion of their net assets to us whether in the form of dividends, loans or advances. As of December 31, 2005 and 2006, the amount of our restricted net assets was approximately $75.9 million and $223.4 million, respectively.

Off-Balance Sheet Commitments and Arrangements

We have not entered into any financial guarantees or other commitments to guarantee the payment obligations of any third parties. In addition, we have not entered into any derivative contracts that are indexed to our own shares and classified as shareholder's equity, or that are not reflected in our consolidated financial statements. Furthermore, we do not have any retained or contingent interest in assets transferred to an unconsolidated entity that serves as credit, liquidity or market risk support to such entity. Moreover, we do not have any variable interest in any unconsolidated entity that provides financing, liquidity, market risk or credit support to us or engages in leasing, hedging or research and development services with us.

Quantitative and Qualitative Disclosures About Market Risk

Interest Rate Risk

Our exposure to interest rate risk primarily relates to the interest income generated by excess cash, which is mostly held in interest-bearing bank deposits. We have not used derivative financial instruments in our investment portfolio. Interest earning instruments carry a degree of interest rate risk. We have not been exposed nor do we anticipate being exposed to material risks due to changes in market interest rates. However, our future interest income may fall short of expectations due to changes in market interest rates.

Foreign Currency Risk

Substantially all our revenues and expenses are denominated in Renminbi. We have not had any material foreign exchange gains or losses. Although in general, our exposure to foreign exchange risks should be limited, the value of your investment in our ADSs will be affected by the foreign exchange rate between U.S. dollars relative to the Renminbi because the value of our business is effectively denominated in Renminbi, while the ADSs will be traded in U.S. dollars. Furthermore, a decline in the value of the Renminbi could reduce the U.S. dollar equivalent of the value of the earnings from, and our investments in, our subsidiaries and PRC-incorporated affiliates in China. In addition, appreciation or depreciation in the value of the Renminbi relative to the U.S. dollar would affect our reported financial results in U.S. dollar terms. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to the People’s Republic of China — Fluctuations in exchange rates could result in foreign currency exchange losses”.

Inflation

In recent years, China has not experienced significant inflation, and thus inflation has not had a significant effect on our business historically. According to the National Bureau of Statistics of China, the change in the Consumer Price Index in China was 0.7%, (0.8)%, 1.2%, 3.9%, 1.8% and 1.5% in 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006, respectively.

Table of ContentsBUSINESS*Overview

We are China's leading multi-platform digital media company, operate the largest out-of-home advertising network in China using audiovisual digital displays, based on the number of locations and number of flat-panel television displays in our network, and also are a leading provider of Internet marketing solutions in China. It is our goal to create the largest multi-platform digital advertising network in China, reaching urban consumers at strategic locations and point-of-interests over a number of media formats, including audiovisual television displays in buildings and stores, advertising poster frames and other new and innovative media, such as outdoor LED digital billboard, mobile handset advertising networks and Internet advertising platforms. As of June 30, 2007, our out-of-home advertising network consists of our digital out-of-home advertising network, our mobile handset advertising network and our Internet advertising services network:

Our Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network which focuses on providing out-of-home advertising through LCD flat-panel televisions displays, LED billboards, movie screens, and poster and digital frames, includes our commercial location network, in-store network and poster frame network:

- our commercial location network, consisting of:
  - our LCD display network, which refers to our network of flat-panel television displays placed in high-traffic areas of commercial and public buildings marketed to advertisers as a network or as seven separate channels targeting different types of consumers — our premier A and B office building channels, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels;
  - our outdoor LED billboard network, which refers to our network of leased 5' x 5' LED digital billboards installed on the street-sides in major shopping districts and other locations with high pedestrian traffic in Shanghai; and
  - our movie theater advertising network, which refers to our right to sell advertising time on movie screens for the three minutes prior to movie screenings at movie theaters in China.
- our in-store network, which refers to our network of flat-panel television displays placed in specific product areas inside stores with high-traffic concentrations such as selected consumer product sections, the main aisles and check-out lines in large-scale chain retail stores, or hypermarkets, as well as inside selected supermarkets and convenience stores; and
- our poster frame network, which refers to our network of traditional and digital advertising poster frames placed mainly in the elevators and public areas of residential complexes which we market under the brand name Framedia;

Our Mobile Handset Advertising Network, which refers to our mobile handset advertising services using wireless access protocol or WAP, short messaging service, or SMS, and mixed messaging services, or MMS, offered on the mobile telecommunications networks of China Mobile Communications Corporation, or China Mobile, and China United Telecommunications Corporation, or China Unicom; and

Our Internet Advertising Services Network, which refers to our Internet advertising agency and advertising services technology, including performance-based software suites.

We derive revenue principally by:

- selling advertising time slots on our out-of-home television networks, which include our commercial location network and our in-store network;
- by selling frame space on our poster and digital frame network;
- selling advertisements on our mobile handset advertising network; and
- providing advertising agency and technology services and software for online advertising.

Table of Contents

A majority of the content displayed on our commercial location and in-store networks consists of advertisements which are broadcast repeatedly approximately 60 times throughout a day. Advertisements on our outdoor LED billboard network are broadcast repeatedly approximately 120 times throughout a day.

Our poster frame network consists of advertising poster frames placed in elevators and public areas in residential complexes and commercial locations. Our advertising posters include both traditional printed posters as well as digital LCD poster frames with integrated sound, all-angle and remote control technologies. Generally two or three advertising poster frames can be placed in each elevator.

Advertisements on our mobile phone advertising network are advertisements that are sent to mobile phone users over China Mobile and China Unicom's networks.

Our Internet advertising services network, which we acquired through our acquisition of Allyes in March 2007, uses proprietary software applications to provide online ad publishing, creative production, tracking, targeting, and performance analysis. We also provide performance-based online advertising services providing advertisers with pay by CPA (cost-per-action), directly link advertising cost with performance. Our Internet advertising services network has integrated advertising resources from over 5,000 popular websites, making it the largest performance-based online advertising network in China.

As of December 31, 2006, over 4,000 advertisers purchased advertising time on our advertising networks. Our five largest advertising clients in terms of revenue, which include leading international and domestic brand name advertisers, were Dong Feng Auto (including joint venture brands with Toyota and Peugeot), China Mobile, Samsung, NEC and Motorola, which together accounted for approximately 10.1% of our revenue in 2006.

Our network has the following key features:

- Substantially all of the content we broadcast or place on our digital out-of-home advertising network consists of advertisements.
- The advertising cycle on our commercial location network consists of advertising content broadcast repeatedly approximately 60 times per day, approximately 120 times per day in the case of our outdoor LED network, and is sold to advertising clients according to advertising packages purchased from us, and for three minutes before the screening of each showing of a film in the case of our movie theater advertising network.
- The advertising cycle of our out-of-home television advertising networks is broadcast repeatedly for approximately twelve-hours per day.
- The majority of our flat-panel displays contain a 17-inch LCD screen, while the remainder contain larger size plasma or LCD screens.
- Over 160,000 450 mm x 600 mm advertising poster frames, including, as of August 31, 2007, approximately 7,000 digital poster frames have been installed in elevators on our poster frame network.
- Approximately 200 5' x 5' LED digital billboards that we lease from a third party and that are installed on the street-sides in major shopping districts and other locations with high pedestrian traffic in Shanghai.
- A mobile handset advertising platform that delivers approximately eight million messages per day with a customer base of over 100 wireless value-added service providers in China and a database of over 70 million mobile handset users with SMS, MMS or WAP capability.
- An Internet advertising services network that offers performance-based advertising services and Internet advertising publishing software suites.

Since we commenced our current business operations in May 2003, we have experienced significant growth in our network and in our financial results. As of June 30, 2007, we operated our commercial location network directly in over fifty major cities throughout China, including Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou and Shenzhen. As of June 30, 2007, we covered approximately 40 additional cities through contractual arrangements with regional distributors. Between January 1, 2005 and June 30, 2007, the number of displays in our commercial location network increased from 15,415 to 89,687. As of June 30, 2007, our outdoor LED billboard network consisted of approximately 200 leased 5' x 5' digital billboards placed along curbsides in high-pedestrian traffic areas in Shanghai. We had installed over 161,435 advertising poster frames and our in-store network consisted of 41,322 flat-panel displays placed in 3,995 store locations in our directly operated cities, including 1,205 hypermarkets, 734 supermarkets and 2,056 convenience stores.

Our Competitive Strengths

We believe we have the following competitive strengths:

Effective and Focused Advertising Network Accepted by Both Advertisers and Consumers.

Since commencing our current business operations in May 2003, we have created an advertising network that:

- Targets Segmented Consumer Groups. Our flat-panel displays, LED billboards and poster frames are primarily placed in venues that have a high concentration of consumers with higher-than-average disposable incomes or that have a high concentration of consumers who are likely to be interested in particular types of products and services. As a result, our network enables advertisers to target consumers with demographic profiles attractive to them. Moreover, our network allows advertisers to further segment these consumers through separate specified advertising channels, such as our premier A and B office building, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels, which are marketed as stand-alone channels of our commercial location network. Because our network is able to target specific consumer groups, it allows advertisers to more cost-effectively reach consumers with demographic profiles desirable to them.
- Reaches Captive Viewers in Low Distraction Environments. Our displays are placed in lobbies, near elevator banks, in elevators, on high-traffic urban curbsides and in other environments where there are few broadcast or display media competing for viewers' attention, which we believe increases the effectiveness of our network.
- Tailored Advertising Solutions. Through the various media platforms and specialized channels on our network, we are able to offer tailored advertising solutions to our customers to enable them to target the consumers and locations that are most important to them. For example, we are increasingly providing custom advertising packages to our customers that focus exclusively on a certain suite of buildings, networks and channels accordingly to their requests and needs.

We believe these characteristics and advantages of our business model have made us an effective and well-accepted alternative advertising medium with a strong market position that enables us to compete successfully in China's advertising market.

The Largest Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network in China with Nationwide Coverage.

We believe we operate the largest digital out-of-home advertising network in China based on the number of locations and the number of displays in our network. As of June 30, 2007, we operated:

- 85,010 flat-panel displays installed in over 90 cities in China, and through our regional distributors, we also operated approximately 4,677 flat-panel displays in approximately 40 cities in China;
- 41,322 flat-panel displays installed in 1,205 hypermarkets, 734 supermarkets and 2,056 convenience stores in cities in China; and
- 161,435 poster frames available for sale installed in elevators primarily in residential buildings. As of August 31, 2007, our poster frame network also included 6,796 digital poster frames;
- over 200 5' by 5' LED digital billboards placed in high pedestrian traffic outdoor locations in Shanghai; and
- the right to broadcast advertising on movie theater screens for three minutes prior to the screening of each movie in major cities in China.

Out-of-home Advertising Network with Multiple Media Platforms Provides Advertisers with Complementary and Reinforcing Avenues to Reach Targeted Consumers.

Our network provides advertisers with multiple advertising media to reach their target audience. Our network currently enables advertisers to reach (1) consumers with higher than average incomes through our commercial location network, (2) consumers at the point-of-purchase through our in-store network, (3) consumers as they leave and return home through our poster frame network, (4) mobile handset users throughout the day via our mobile handset advertising network, (5) urban consumers throughout the day via our strategically placed outdoor LED billboards in shopping and high pedestrian traffic areas in Shanghai and (6) internet users through our performance-based Internet advertising services and software suites. By offering advertisers a range of advertising media that can reach consumers during different times of the day in a wide variety of locations, we believe our network has enhanced appeal to advertisers over competitors who offer limited advertising media or channels to advertisers. We believe that by offering multiple advertising media platforms, we enable advertisers to reach a wide range of consumers with complementary and mutually reinforcing advertising campaigns and are better able to attract advertisers who want to reach targeted consumer groups through a number of different advertising media in different venues and at different times of the day.

Sustainable Competitive Advantages through the Size of Our Network and Our Exclusive, Renewable Agreements.

We believe the following factors provide us with a sustainable business advantage over existing and prospective competitors:

- Early Market Presence and Coverage in Many of the Most Desirable Locations. We were one of the first companies to establish a large-scale out-of-home television advertising network in commercial buildings and other commercial locations in China. By recognizing this market opportunity and entering this sector early, we have occupied many of the most desirable locations and have grown the size of our network, which we believe has created high barriers to entry for potential competitors. We believe that we have secured a high percentage of the most desirable locations in many of China's major urban centers, and that this early mover advantage is important because landlords and building managers typically permit only one out-of-home television advertising network operation in each building. We believe that, through our acquisition of Target Media, we have enhanced these advantages. Through our acquisition of Framedia, we also have gained a strong market presence in the poster frame advertising market in residential complexes. We also believe we have established the first outdoor LED digital billboard advertising network in China, currently comprising over 200 5' x 5' LED digital billboards placed in high pedestrian traffic outdoor locations in Shanghai that we lease from a third-party location provider.

- Large-scale Network that Attracts Advertising Clients. Our multi-platform out-of-home advertising network includes flat-panel displays located in a wide range of commercial, retail locations and in-store locations in over 90 cities in China, poster frames placed in residential complexes in cities in China, LED digital billboards placed in high pedestrian curbside locations in Shanghai, and advertising services provided to mobile handset users. We believe the extent of our network coverage makes us more attractive to advertising clients than competing networks. Through the number of advertising media platforms we operate and the national scope of our network, we enable advertising clients to reach a wide audience in urban consumer markets across China. We believe the size and scope of our network has attained a scale that draws advertising clients to our network and gives us a competitive edge over competing networks as well as over many traditional advertising media.
- Exclusive and Renewable Display Placement Agreements. As of June 30, 2007, the majority of our display placement agreements on our out-of-home television advertising networks give us the exclusive right to place our flat-panel displays in the elevator and lobby areas of the locations in which we operate and, in the cities we operate directly, give us the right to renew the contract under terms that are no less favorable than those offered by competing bidders, enabling us to maintain exclusive coverage of many of the most desirable locations in our network for significant lengths of time.

We believe our high market share of desirable locations in key cities in China, the wide extent of our network coverage and the exclusivity and renewal terms contained in the majority of our display placement agreements with landlords and property managers create higher barriers to entry for potential competitors than other out-of-home and outdoor advertising business models.

Our Brand Name And Reputation Have Attracted A Large Base Of Leading Advertising Clients.

We believe we have established a well recognized brand name in the advertising industry in China by developing a reputation for innovative and effective delivery of large-scale yet focused high-quality advertising to consumers with desirable demographic profiles. This has enabled us to develop a strong client base consisting of major international and brand name advertisers such as Dong Feng Auto (including joint venture brands with Toyota and Peugeot), China Mobile, Samsung, NEC and Motorola, which together accounted for approximately 10.1% of our revenue in 2006. All of our top ten advertisers based on total advertising contracts in 2005 had entered into advertising contracts with us in 2006. Moreover, the total contract amount accounted for by our top ten advertisers increased by approximately 123.5% from 2005 to 2006. In addition, as of December 31, 2006, more than 4,000 advertisers purchased advertising time on our out-of-home television display networks. The strength and depth of our client base enhance our reputation in the industry and position us to further expand our advertising network.

We believe our acquisitions of Framedia, Focus Media Wireless and Allyes have further enhanced our brand name as a leading digital media company in China.

Strong Management and Sales Team with Extensive Industry Experience.

We have assembled a management and sales team with extensive experience in China's advertising industry. Jason Nanchun Jiang, our founder, chairman, chief executive officer and a principal shareholder, has over 10 years of experience in China's advertising industry, including his previous experience until 2003 as chief executive officer of Shanghai Everease Advertising Corporation, or Everease. Daniel Wu, our chief financial officer, has over six years of experience in investment banking, including for Merrill Lynch and Lehman Brothers, and served as chief financial officer of Harbour Networks, a telecommunications equipment provider in China. In August 2005, we hired our chief operating officer Cindy Chan, who was deputy general manager for iMPACT, ZenithOptimedia's outdoor media department and the largest outdoor media buyer in China. With our acquisition of Framedia, Zhi Tan, who was chairman and chief executive officer of Framedia and now serves as our president and director. Following our acquisition of Target Media, David Yu, the founder and former chairman and chief executive officer of Target Media, continues to act as co-chairman. Following our acquisition of Allyes, David Zhu, the founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Allyes, had added his entrepreneurial and management expertise and remains on as chief executive officer of Allyes. In addition, we employ experienced and knowledgeable managers to run operations in each of the cities we operate directly. Our marketing managers have many years of experience in the advertising industry in China and have worked for a number of major domestic and international advertising firms in China. We believe the strength, experience and diverse background of our management and sales teams have enabled us to expand our advertising network, enhance our reputation in our industry and build up a strong client base.

Our Strategies

Our objective is to become the number one multi-platform digital media company in China. We intend to achieve this objective by implementing the following strategies:

Enhance Our Market Position and Revenues by Expanding Our Networks.

We intend to aggressively expand our out-of-home digital media networks in order to erect barriers to expansion and entry by current and prospective competitors, enhance critical mass appeal to our advertisers, and increase our fee rates and revenues. To achieve this goal, we intend to increase the number of locations, flat-panel television displays, poster frames and LED billboards in our network. We intend to aggressively enter into new display and poster frame placement agreements to increase the number of locations in which we install our flat-panel television displays and poster frames in order to enhance our current position in many of the most desirable locations in key urban areas in China.

Identify And Create New Networks and Advertising Channels that Target Specific Consumer Demographics and Expand Network Capacity.

In-store Network. We commenced commercial operations of our in-store network in April 2005, enabling our advertising clients to target consumers at the time and place where consumers are likely to purchase a range of consumer and household products. As of June 30, 2007, we had placed 41,322 flat-panel displays in 3,995 locations on our in-store network. We intend to expand this network and will continue to strengthen efforts to enter into long-term and exclusive relationships with hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores and to market this service to advertisers.

Targeted Advertising Channels. We have placed flat-panel television displays in office buildings, shopping malls, restaurants, beauty parlors, golf country clubs, automobile repair shops, banks, pharmacies, airports, hospitals and other commercial locations. As many of these venues are suitable for targeting specific consumer groups, we have begun to separate some of them into distinct stand-alone networks and to market them to specific advertising clients who wish to advertise their products and services to targeted consumer groups. Currently, our premier A and B office building, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels are marketed as independent channels of our commercial location network, as we believe these channels are attractive to a diverse range of advertisers who wish to target consumers likely to frequent these venues. We believe our ability to identify and create focused advertising networks distinguishes us from our competitors and attracts additional advertising clients who will use our services to reach their target consumers in a more effective manner.

Complementary Advertising Media Platforms. We intend to continue expanding the scope of our advertising activities and type of media platforms we employ by entering into new types of advertising media businesses, such as large-size outdoor LED digital billboards, telecommunications channels such as Focus Media Wireless, and online opportunities such as Allyes. We believe by expanding our business into complementary media businesses that focus on venues and at periods of the day less comprehensively covered by traditional advertising media, we will enhance the value of our advertising services to advertisers and provide us with a competitive advantage over existing and potential competitors. We intend to continue expanding into new and complementary advertising media platforms, which will enable us to provide advertisers with additional advertising platforms to reach targeted consumers.

Table of ContentsPromote Our Brand Name and Augment Our Service Offerings to Attract a Wider Client Base and Increase Revenues.

Enhancing our brand name in the industry will allow us to solidify and broaden our client base by enhancing market awareness of our services and our ability to target discrete consumer groups more effectively than mass media. We believe the low cost of reaching consumers with higher-than-average disposable incomes through our network and our development of additional advertising media platforms and channels within our network we plan to develop in the future can enable advertisers to reach that goal. As we increase our advertising client base and increase sales, demand for and sale of time slots and frame space on our network will grow.

Continue to Explore New Digital Media Opportunities to Target Segmented Consumer Groups.

Consumer acceptance of technology-driven advertising and entertainment media, including the Internet and advanced mobile communications systems, is a feature of the advertising industry in China. We intend to identify and take advantage of new opportunities in the PRC advertising market in order to enhance our ability to target segmented consumer groups through innovative advertising techniques and media. As new opportunities that fit our brand image, business model and strategy present themselves, we expect to expand our operations and continue to pursue innovative advertising techniques and media that provide effective solutions to advertising clients and target consumers with desirable demographic profiles as we have already done with our acquisitions of Focus Media Wireless and Allies.

Our Network

Our network includes:

- our digital out-of-home advertising network, including our commercial location network (LCD display, outdoor LED billboard and movie theater advertising networks), in-store network and poster frame network;
- our mobile handset advertising network; and
- our Internet advertising services network.

Digital Out-of-home Advertising NetworksCommercial Location Network

LCD display network. The majority of displays on our LCD display network are currently placed in high-traffic areas of commercial office buildings. The locations in our LCD display network also include shopping malls, banks and hotels as well as more specialized locations such as hospitals, beauty parlors and golf country clubs. We market our LCD display network to advertisers of consumer products and services, such as automobiles, home electronics, mobile communications devices and services, cosmetics, health products and financial services. As of June 30, 2007, our LCD display network, including the portions of our LCD display network operated by our regional distributors, was comprised of approximately 89,687 flat-panel displays placed in over 90 cities throughout China. We operate our LCD display network directly in approximately 50 cities and indirectly through contractual arrangements with regional distributors in approximately 40 additional cities. We have established joint ventures in several cities outside of mainland China, including Hong Kong, Taipei and Singapore through contracts with local operators which operate local commercial location networks and which license our brand name. None of these arrangements outside of China currently constitutes a material part of our business.

As we expand the number of venues in our LCD display network, we continue to separate certain types of venues into distinct stand-alone channels of this network. As of June 30, 2007, we had established seven such stand-alone channels that are marketed as separate focused channels of our LCD display network: our premier office building A and B, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels. We believe that by increasingly offering new advertising channels on our out-of-home television networks, we will be able to offer advertisers more targeted and effective audience reach, thereby enabling us to increase our advertising rates.

Expanding our network through regional distributors enables us to provide our advertisers with broader nationwide coverage and to test, develop and evaluate these regional advertising markets without our having to

Digital Out-of-home Advertising NetworksCommercial Location Network

LCD display network. The majority of displays on our LCD display network are currently placed in high-traffic areas of commercial office buildings. The locations in our LCD display network also include shopping malls, banks and hotels as well as more specialized locations such as hospitals, beauty parlors and golf country clubs. We market our LCD display network to advertisers of consumer products and services, such as automobiles, home electronics, mobile communications devices and services, cosmetics, health products and financial services. As of June 30, 2007, our LCD display network, including the portions of our LCD display network operated by our regional distributors, was comprised of approximately 89,687 flat-panel displays placed in over 90 cities throughout China. We operate our LCD display network directly in approximately 50 cities and indirectly through contractual arrangements with regional distributors in approximately 40 additional cities. We have established joint ventures in several cities outside of mainland China, including Hong Kong, Taipei and Singapore through contracts with local operators which operate local commercial location networks and which license our brand name. None of these arrangements outside of China currently constitutes a material part of our business.

As we expand the number of venues in our LCD display network, we continue to separate certain types of venues into distinct stand-alone channels of this network. As of June 30, 2007, we had established seven such stand-alone channels that are marketed as separate focused channels of our LCD display network: our premier office building A and B, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels. We believe that by increasingly offering new advertising channels on our out-of-home television networks, we will be able to offer advertisers more targeted and effective audience reach, thereby enabling us to increase our advertising rates.

Expanding our network through regional distributors enables us to provide our advertisers with broader nationwide coverage and to test, develop and evaluate these regional advertising markets without our having to incur start-up and ongoing expenses at the early stages of their development. We also seek to acquire our regional distributors when we believe it is more likely for us to benefit economically from the full integration of their operations into our network. We do not have the contractual right to purchase our regional distributors, and any such acquisition must be negotiated with each regional distributor separately.

Each of our regional distributors operates independently from us and is responsible for independently complying with all relevant PRC laws and regulations including those related to advertising. We periodically monitor our regional distributors to ensure they have obtained all required licenses and are complying with regulations relating to advertising content. See “Risks Relating to Our Business and Industry — One or more of our regional distributors could engage in activities that are harmful to our reputation in the industry and to our business”.

Outdoor LED billboard network. In April 2006, we commenced operations of an outdoor LED billboard network consisting of 5' x 5' LED digital billboards that are installed on the street-sides in major shopping districts and other locations with high pedestrian traffic in Shanghai. Full-color audiovisual commercials are displayed on the digital billboards in a repeating six-minute cycle. The commercials displayed on the LED billboards are highly visible even during bright daylight. As of June 30, 2007, the number of the LED billboards in our street-side outdoor LED billboard network in prime commercial and shopping areas reached approximately 200. We market this part of our network under the name “iStreet Network”.

Movie theater advertising network. We operate our movie theater advertising network by leasing screen time from movie theaters in cities in China. We then sell this leased screen time as time slots to advertisers. We have the right to three minutes of screen time prior to the screening of each movie shown in the theater.

In-store Network

As part of our growth strategy, we commenced operations of our in-store network in April 2005. As of June 30, 2007, we had placed 41,322 flat-panel displays in 1,205 hypermarkets, 734 supermarkets and 2,056 convenience stores throughout China. We believe the rapid expansion of hypermarkets and other chain retail stores in China provides opportunities and incentives for advertisers to take advantage of in-store television advertising networks such as our in-store network. Our in-store network primarily attracts advertisers of food and beverage products, household, kitchen and bathroom products, and household appliances.

Poster Frame Network

We own and operate a network of traditional and digital advertising poster frames deployed primarily in the elevators and public areas of residential complexes under the brand name “Framedia”. We place two or three advertising frames in each elevator in which we lease space and sell frame space to advertising clients on a per frame basis for periods of two weeks or longer. As of June 30, 2007, we had installed 161,435 poster frames including 6,796 digital poster frames in cities throughout China. Our digital frames use high-resolution LCD displays with integrated sound, all-angle viewing and remote control technologies. We believe the new media format provides a more effective advertising media to our advertising customers.

Mobile Handset Advertising Network

Through Focus Media Wireless, we operate an advertising delivery platform on the mobile telecommunications networks of China Mobile and China Unicom. Focus Media Wireless delivers SMS-, MMS- and WAP-based advertisements to mobile handset users accessed through service providers in China. Focus Media Wireless receives a fee from advertisers for delivering advertisements and pays mobile service providers a fee for accessing their networks. It also sells advertising to other mobile handset service providers and to traditional advertisers. As of June 30, 2007, Focus Media Wireless had accumulated a database of over 70 million mobile handset users with SMS, MMS or WAP capability to whom it can deliver advertisements, based on which Focus Media Wireless is able to deliver advertisements tailored to the users' consumer preferences based on information in the database such as a user's historical purchases, handset model and other indicative data.

Table of ContentsInternet Advertising Services Network

In March 2007, we completed the acquisition of 100% of the equity interests in Allyes. Allyes is a leading Internet advertising agency and provider of Internet advertising technology in China. Its proprietary software application suite, 'AdForward', which covers all aspects of online ad publishing, creative production, tracking, targeting, and performance analysis, is used by independent commercial websites and ad agencies in China. Based on the significant number of Internet advertising campaigns it has executed since its inception in 2000, its widely-used Internet application software and its unique tracking technology, Allyes has accumulated a large database of Internet viewers, segmented based on individual behavior. Allyes initiated the performance-based online advertising model in China. Its advertising network, 'SmartTrade', allows advertisers to pay by CPA (cost-per-action), and directly links advertising cost with performance. SmartTrade has integrated advertising resources from over 5,000 popular websites, making it one of the largest performance-based online advertising networks in China, and generating over 300 million daily impressions as of June 30, 2007. We have also expanded our Internet services network through acquisitions such as our purchase in July 2007 of a 70% equity stake in Beijing Wonder Advertising Company Ltd., also known as WonderAd.

Advertising Clients, Sales and Marketing

Our Advertising Clients. The quality and coverage of our network has attracted a broad base of international and domestic advertising clients. As of December 31, 2006, more than 4,000 advertisers purchased advertising time slots on our out-of-home television networks. Our advertising clients include leading international and domestic brand name advertisers such as Dong Feng Auto (including joint venture brands with Toyota and Peugeot), China Mobile, Samsung, NEC and Motorola, which were our five largest customers and together accounted for 10.1% of our total revenues in 2006. Our top ten customers in 2006 accounted for 22.2% of our total revenues in that year.

No single advertising client accounted for more than 4% of our revenues in 2006. We believe the appeal and effectiveness of our advertising network is largely evidenced by the number of advertising clients who place multiple advertising campaigns on our network, which is reflected in the percentage increase of advertising fees we receive from clients over time.

Sales. We employ an experienced advertising sales force in each city in which we operate. We provide in-house education and training to our sales force to ensure they provide our current and prospective clients with comprehensive information about our services, the advantages of using our advertising networks as marketing channels, and relevant information regarding the advertising industry. Our sales team is organized by city, industry and client accounts. We also market our advertising services from time to time by placing advertisements on third-party media, including primarily magazines and Internet websites. We maintain separate sales teams for our poster frame network, our mobile handset advertising network and our Internet advertising services network. We have begun engaging in cross-selling initiatives to enable existing and potential advertising clients to take advantage of our multi-platform advertising network.

Advertising Contracts. We offer advertisers five-, fifteen- or thirty-second time slots on our out-of-home television advertising networks, including our commercial location, in-store, outdoor LED billboard and movie theater advertising networks. For our commercial location network, our standard advertising package includes a time slot on our entire network or a particular channel in each city in which the advertiser wishes to display the advertisement. For our movie theater advertising network, time slots are sold on a regional or entire network basis. Our sales are made pursuant to written contracts with commitments ranging from one week to several months. Our advertising rates vary by city and by the number of cities in which the advertisement is placed, as well as by the length of the time slot purchased and the duration of the advertising campaign. We generally require our clients to submit advertising content at least seven days prior to the campaign start date. We also reserve the right to refuse to disseminate advertisements that are not in compliance with content requirements under PRC laws and regulations.

Advertising contracts for our in-store network, outdoor LED billboard network and movie theater advertising network are substantially similar to those used for our commercial location network. Advertising clients generally purchase time slots on our in-store network on a chain-by-chain basis, while time slots on the outdoor LED billboard network cover the entire network and contracts on our movie theater advertising network are done on regional or entire network basis.

For our poster frame network, advertising clients purchase frame space on a per-frame basis for terms of two weeks or more. For our mobile handset advertising network, our contracts agree to deliver advertising messages to mobile devices based on specific selection criteria set by the advertisers. For our Internet advertising services network, we provide Internet advertising solutions for advertisers tailored to their needs.

Network Monitoring and Evaluation. We provide a number of services in connection with each client's advertising campaign following the sales process. Our network operations team monitors the displays in our network on a daily basis. They are also responsible for compiling reports that are supplied under some of our agreements to clients as evidence of the broadcast of their advertisements on our network. The report generally includes a list of buildings where our client's advertisements were broadcast as well as photographs of representative television displays showing their advertisements being displayed. The advertising campaign reports are provided to our clients for information purposes and do not constitute a customer acceptance provision. The reports we provide to our clients may also contain portions prepared by independent third-party research companies that verify the proper functioning of our flat-panel displays and the proper dissemination of the advertisement, by conducting on-site evaluations and polls to analyze the effectiveness of and public reaction to the advertisement.

Aside from third-party verification services, we and our regional distributors conduct substantially all client services using our own employees or the employees of the relevant regional distributor. In Beijing and Guangzhou, we contract some of these services to third-party agents. These agents provide us with network development, installation, maintenance, monitoring and reporting services.

Market Research. We believe our advertising clients derive substantial value from our ability to provide advertising services targeted at specific segments of consumer markets. Market research is an important part of evaluating the effectiveness and value of our business to advertisers. We conduct market research, consumer surveys, demographic analysis and other advertising industry research for internal use to evaluate new and existing advertising channels. We also purchase or commission studies containing relevant market study data from reputable third-party market research firms, such as Nielsen Media Research, CTR Market Research and Sinomonitor. Our acquisition of iResearch Consulting Co., Ltd. in September 2007 has also provided us with enhanced in-house market research capabilities. iResearch is a market research company focusing on the Internet and new media industries in urban areas of China. We typically consult such studies to assist us in evaluating the effectiveness of our network to our advertisers. A number of these studies contain research on the numbers and socio-economic and demographic profiles of the people who visit the locations of our network.

Programming

Substantially all of the content on our digital out-of-home advertising networks consists of audiovisual television advertising provided to us by our advertising clients. We also provide a limited amount of time for landlords and property managers to display location-specific information, building announcements and related promotional material on our network. We do not produce or create any of the advertising content shown on our network, except our own marketing content. All of the advertising content displayed on the portion of the network we operate directly is reviewed by qualified members of our staff to ensure compliance with PRC laws and regulations, while our agreements with our regional distributors require each of them to review the contents shown on the portion of the network they operate for compliance with PRC laws and regulations. See "Regulation of Our Industry — Regulation of Advertising Services — Advertising Content".

Advertisements on our poster frame network consist of full-color glossy advertising posters designed and provided by our advertising clients.

Pricing

For information regarding factors affecting our pricing, refer to "Factors that Affect Our Advertising Service Revenue" in "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operation".

Table of ContentsRelationships with Location Providers

We install our flat-panel displays in selected spaces we lease in office buildings and other commercial locations, hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores. We install our advertising poster frames in elevators and other public areas in residential complexes. Establishing and maintaining long-term relationships with landlords and property managers is a critical aspect of our business. We employ a team of location relationship personnel in each city in which we operate directly who are responsible for identifying desirable locations, negotiating display and frame placement agreements and engaging in ongoing site placement relations.

In addition to helping us expand our network, our location relationship personnel ensure that the needs and concerns of landlords and property managers are being met and addressed effectively and on a timely basis. These concerns generally include ensuring that the flat-panel displays are properly installed and are in proper working condition. We undertake to landlords and property managers in our network to maintain the proper operation of our flat-panel displays. We generally rely on our own employees to install, maintain, monitor and repair our flat-panel displays and advertising poster frames. Each of our flat-panel displays is inspected at least once daily.

We enter into display placement agreements with individual landlords, property managers, hotels, shopping malls and chain store companies under which we generally pay a fixed annual rent in exchange for the right to display advertising and commercial media in lobby and elevator areas in the case of our commercial location network and in specific product areas in the major aisles and near check-out counters in hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores in the case of our in-store network. In Beijing and Guangzhou, we contract a portion of the location development, monitoring and maintenance work to local agents. We attempt to maintain terms favorable to our network operations in our display placement agreements, such as long-term leases and exclusivity provisions. We are not reliant on any one landlord or property manager for a material portion of our network coverage and as of June 30, 2007, no individual landlord or property manager accounted for more than 1% of the locations in our commercial location network. As hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores have control over multiple locations, a smaller number of display placement agreements and contractual arrangements account for a larger percentage of our in-store network coverage.

We believe that landlords and property managers generally do not view us as a major source of revenue and are instead primarily attracted to our flat-panel displays as an innovative and visually pleasing medium that complements their public areas and that provides an engaging means of conveying building-related information to their tenants. In connection with certain of our display placement agreements, we agree to provide concessions and services, such as displaying building-related notifications, publicity and other information provided by the landlord or property manager or granting time slots to the landlord or property manager for their own promotional purposes.

Our display placement agreements have initial terms ranging anywhere from one to ten years. As of June 30, 2007, we had the right under the majority of our display placement agreements to renew the display placement agreements provided that the terms offered by us are no less favorable than those offered by competing bidders. The rental terms and fees under our display placement agreements vary considerably depending on the city, location of the building, size of the building and number of flat-panel displays that may be installed. Under our display placement agreements, we retain ownership of the flat-panel displays.

We enter into similar frame placement agreements for the deployment of our advertising poster frames in elevators and public areas of residential complexes and commercial buildings. The majority of our frame placement agreements have terms of two to three years, and contain exclusivity and best offer renewal rights.

Technology and Suppliers

Out-of-home television advertising is a relatively new advertising medium that owes its development in large part to the emergence of new technologies, such as low-cost, light-weight, flat-panel television displays and compact storage technology. The primary hardware required for the operation of our business consists of components that comprise the flat-panel displays we use in our advertising network. We also develop and install software in our flat-panel displays to assist us with the configuration, editing and operation of our advertising content cycles. Maintaining a steady supply of our proprietary flat-panel displays is important to our operations and the growth of our advertising network.

We design the distinctive shape of our flat-panel displays, identify suppliers of component parts used in our displays and contract the assembly of our flat-panel displays to third-party contract assemblers. Our contract assemblers are responsible for purchasing the component parts from suppliers we identify each month and assembling the flat-panel displays according to our specifications using components purchased in off-the-shelf form from wholesale distributors. We select component suppliers based on price and quality. As there are many qualified alternative suppliers for our equipment, our obligation to our current contract assemblers is not exclusive. We have never experienced any material delay or interruption in the supply of our flat-panel displays.

Our services provided through Allyes use proprietary ad serving solutions that assist advertisers, advertising agencies and web publishers in creating and delivering Internet ads, monitoring and analyzing website traffic, tracking the performance of advertising campaigns and implementing direct marketing. Most of the Allyes software applications, from Internet marketing technologies to the applications that operate our servers, are proprietary and were developed in-house by Allyes' research and development team.

Research and Development

We intend to continue to develop a more advanced model of flat-panel display that uses mobile communications and wireless technology to receive, store, configure and play back advertising content. Whether or not we deploy this newer technology will depend upon cost and network security. We are also developing related software systems that will enable us to configure and run the content on our advertising network in conjunction with mobile communications systems. We also continue to develop proprietary software and systems in connection with the operation of and provision of services through our online advertising services business through Allyes.

Patents and Trademarks

We believe that the value of our advertising network derives from its effectiveness in reaching a large number of consumers with higher-than-average disposable incomes in urban areas. To a great extent, our business model does not rely on advanced or sophisticated technology or on proprietary trade secrets because our flat-panel displays are assembled with components purchased in off-the-shelf form from wholesale distributors. We endeavor to protect certain of the designs and operating software we use in each generation of our flat-panel displays. We currently hold design patents for our new model of flat-panel display and our software. We have the right to use several trademarks relating to the "Focus Media" brand name in China and in Singapore. We also have the right to use several trademarks relating to the "Framedia" brand name in China. Following our acquisition of Allyes, we also acquired all of its intellectual property including that held by its subsidiaries and affiliates.

We do not know if our trademark applications will lead to registered trademarks with the scope of the goods and services we seek, if at all, or whether any trademark we have registered or may receive registration in the future will be challenged or invalidated. See Risk Factor on "Unauthorized use of our intellectual property by third parties, and the expenses incurred in protecting our intellectual property rights, may adversely affect our business." We have also obtained copyright registration for a number of our software. We will continue to assess appropriate occasions for seeking trademark, copyright and other intellectual property protections for those aspects of our business that we believe provide significant competitive advantages.

The technology developed by Allyes enables us to collect and use data derived from user activity on the Internet. Although we believe that we have the right to use this information and to compile it in our databases, we cannot assure you that any trade secret, copyright or other protection will be available for this information. In addition, our clients and other parties may claim rights to this information.

Competition

We compete with other advertising companies in China including companies that operate out-of-home or telecommunications-based advertising media networks, such as JCDecaux, ClearMedia, WPP and CGEN. We compete for advertising clients primarily on the basis of network size and coverage, location, price, the range of services that we offer and our brand name. We also compete for overall advertising spending with other alternative advertising media companies, such as Internet, wireless telecommunications, street furniture, billboard, frame and public transport advertising companies, and with traditional advertising media, such as newspapers, television, magazines and radio.

Employees

As of June 30, 2007, we had a total of 4,445 full-time employees and no part-time employees. The following table sets out the number of staff by business area as of June 30, 2007:

	Number of Employees(1)	Percentage
Sales and marketing	1,250	28.1%
Operations	2,112	47.5%
Management and administration	1,083	24.4%
Total number of employees	4,445	100%

(1) This excludes employees our regional distributors and agents who are not directly under our employ.

As required by PRC regulations, we participate in various employee benefit plans that are organized by municipal and provincial governments, including pension, work-related injury benefits, maternity insurance, medical and unemployment benefit plans. We are required under PRC law to make contributions to the employee benefit plans at specified percentages of the salaries, bonuses and certain allowances of our employees, up to a maximum amount specified by the local government from time to time. Members of the retirement plan are entitled to a pension equal to a fixed proportion of the salary prevailing at the member's retirement date.

Generally we enter into a three-year standard employment contract with our officers and managers and a one-year standard employment contract with other employees. According to these contracts, all of our employees are prohibited from engaging in any activities that compete with our business during the period of their employment with us. Furthermore, the employment contracts with officers or managers include a covenant that prohibits officers or managers from engaging in any activities that compete with our business for two years after the period of their employment with us.

Facilities

We currently maintain our headquarters at 28-30/F, Zhao Feng World Trade Building, 369 Jiangsu Road, Shanghai 200050, People's Republic of China. We also have offices in more than 50 other cities including those operated by our regional distributors.

Legal Proceedings

On March 16, 2006, Shanghai Xicheng Cultural Dissemination Co., Ltd., also referred to as CGEN, brought a suit against us in Shanghai No. 1 Intermediate People's Court on the grounds of unfair competition. CGEN, which is developing a network of flat-panel displays in hypermarkets and supermarkets, claims to have established an exclusive business relationship with the Hymart chain of supermarkets in Shanghai. Hymart notified us that it had requested in writing to terminate its relationship with CGEN. In CGEN's pleadings, it alleges that Focus Media encouraged and supported Hymart to allegedly violate its agreement with CGEN, resulting in losses to CGEN. In its pleadings, CGEN has requested that the court order Focus Media to cease any alleged unfair competitive behavior, to undo the effects of any alleged unfair competition and to pay RMB 13,570,920 (US$1.7 million) to CGEN. On July 25, 2007, we received the civil judgment of first instance by the Shanghai No. 1 Intermediate People's Court which issued a ruling dismissing the case. CGEN has appealed that ruling. We intend to defend against CGEN's claims to the fullest extent of the law. However, there can be no assurance that we will prevail in any such litigation. We believe the outcome of this suit, even if adversely determined, will not have a material adverse effect on our business or results of operations.

Except as disclosed above, we are not currently a party to any material legal proceeding. From time to time, we may be subject to various claims and legal actions arising in the ordinary course of business.

In March 2007, we completed the acquisition of Allyes Information Technology Company Limited, and its wholly-owned PRC subsidiaries New Allyes Information Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. and Allyes Information Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. and their affiliated PRC operating companies. David Zhu, the founder, former chairman and chief executive officer of Allyes, signed an employment agreement with Focus Media and remains as the chief executive officer of Allyes.

Indemnification. The management shareholders have agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from any breach of any representation or warranty, covenant or other agreement made by the management shareholders in the share purchase agreement, including but not limited to losses arising out of materially inaccurate disclosures made in Allyes's financial statements; losses arising out of failure to report any material changes in Allyes or its affiliates; losses arising out of failure to adequately disclose terms of any material contracts of Allyes or its affiliates; and losses arising out of any tax or legal liabilities.

The non-management shareholders have also agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from any breach of any representation or warranty, covenant or other agreement made by the non-management shareholders in the share purchase agreement.

The Allyes selling shareholders collectively shall not be liable to indemnify losses greater than the aggregate consideration of the share purchase agreement, and each selling shareholder is only liable up to the product of (x) the amount of his percentage equity interest in the company prior to the closing multiplied by (y) the aggregate consideration of the share purchase agreement. The Allyes selling shareholders are not obligated to indemnify our losses until and unless such losses exceed $1 million. If our losses exceed $1 million, the Allyes selling shareholders are liable for all amounts including the first $1 million. Management shareholders will be jointly and severally liable. Non-management shareholders will be severally but not jointly liable.

We have agreed to indemnify the Allyes selling shareholders for damages resulting from any breach of any representation or warranty, covenant or other agreement of ours in the share purchase agreement. Our indemnification obligations are capped at the aggregate consideration of the share purchase agreement.

Amounts of losses are subject to insurance recoveries and other mitigating circumstances. Indemnification payments may be made in-kind with Focus Media ordinary shares received under the share purchase agreement.

Under the terms of the transaction, we also granted certain registration rights to the former shareholders of Allyes. See “Shares Eligible for Future Sale”.

Target Media and several of its principal shareholders, including David Feng Yu, its chairman of the board of directors and SII International Holding Limited, are referred to as the seller parties. Collectively, Target Media's shareholders, including The Carlyle Group, are referred to as the Target Media selling shareholders.

The following is a brief summary of material provisions of the share purchase agreement. This summary is qualified in its entirety by reference to the share purchase agreement filed as an exhibit to our registration statement.

Purchase Price. We have agreed to pay the shareholders of Target Media US$94 million in cash, subject to a working capital adjustment, and 77 million of our ordinary shares. The cash portion of the purchase price will be paid in three installments. The first installment of $45 million was paid at closing on February 28, 2006. The second installment of $25 million was paid on April 28, 2006. The final installment of $24 million was paid on July 31, 2006.

Focus Media Options. We also granted options to purchase up to 3,000,000 of our ordinary shares to an agreed upon list of employees of Target Media who entered into new employment agreements with Focus Media.

Representations and Warranties. In the share purchase agreement, the seller parties made customary representations and warranties to us, which generally survive for a period of six months following the closing date. However, a number of specified representations and warranties survive for longer periods or indefinitely. In the definitive share purchase agreement, the Target Media selling shareholders also made customary representations and warranties to us, which generally survive for a period of six months following the closing date. However, a number of specified representations and warranties survive for longer periods or indefinitely. In the definitive share purchase agreement, we made customary representations and warranties to the Target Media selling shareholders, which generally survive for a period of six months following the closing date. However, a number of specified representations and warranties survive for longer periods or indefinitely.

Covenants. The definitive share purchase agreement includes customary covenants relating to, among other things, notification of certain matters, public announcements, non-competition of certain persons, treatment of related party accounts and preparation of financial accounts. The share purchase agreement also contains covenants requiring us to enter into employment agreements with key employees of Target Media.

We agreed under the definitive share purchase agreement and the employment agreement with Mr. David Feng Yu to appoint him as co-chairman of the board of directors and president of Focus Media upon the completion of the acquisition. We also agreed to increase our board of directors from five to seven members at closing, and to assist in the nomination and appointment of David Feng Yu, the founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Target Media, and a nominee of David Feng Yu to fill the additional seats at the first annual meeting of our shareholders following the closing. The director nominated by David Feng Yu will qualify as an independent director for the purpose of complying with NASDAQ listing standards and Sarbanes-Oxley Act requirements so that a majority of our board of directors continues to be independent. See "Item 6.A Directors, Senior Management and Employees — Directors and Senior Management". We have also agreed to permit The Carlyle Group to appoint an observer to our board of directors for a limited period of time.

Indemnification. The seller parties have agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from inaccuracies of their representations and warranties or failure to perform their obligations under the share purchase agreement; losses arising out of indebtedness of Target Media not reflected in its financial statements; losses arising out of or pursuant to terms of the contracts of Target Media that were not disclosed to us prior to the closing date due to their commercially sensitive nature and those terms are not in the ordinary course of business of Target Media; and certain tax liabilities.

Two Target Media selling shareholders that hold an approximately 49.7% equity interest in Target Media, or collectively, the Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders, have agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from inaccuracies of representations and warranties in relation to Target Media and the Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders, respectively, or failure of Target Media or the Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders to perform their respective obligations under the share purchase agreement. The Target Media selling shareholders other than the Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders and The Carlyle Group, or collectively, the Non-Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders, have agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from inaccuracies of representations and warranties in relation to Target Media and the Non-Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders, respectively, or failure of the Non-Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders to perform their obligations under the share purchase agreement. The Carlyle Group has agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from inaccuracies of representations and warranties in relation to The Carlyle Group, or failure of The Carlyle Group to perform its obligations under the share purchase agreement.

The indemnification obligations of all Target Media selling shareholders (excluding The Carlyle Group) are limited to US$80 million, provided that the Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders shall be responsible for indemnifying us up to $325 million for additional losses arising out of several specified claims, including such contracts not disclosed to us prior to the closing of the acquisition, which contracts contain clauses that are out of ordinary course of Target Media's business. The indemnification obligation of The Carlyle Group is limited to $16.3 million, except for a breach with respect to their ownership of the shares they are selling to us.

For so long as the shares received by Target Media selling shareholders in this acquisition are restricted from sales in the open market by either the lock-up, or securities laws, the Target Media selling shareholders have the right to settle any indemnification obligation by paying us in kind with our ordinary shares, valued at one-tenth of the closing price of our ADSs (each of which represents ten of our ordinary shares) on the business day prior to the payment of such shares.

We have agreed to indemnify the seller parties for damages resulting from inaccuracies of our representations and warranties or failure to perform our obligations under the share purchase agreement. Certain of our indemnification obligations are capped at $39 million, while several specified indemnification obligations of our company are capped at the total consideration to be paid to the selling shareholders.

Table of ContentsREGULATION OF OUR INDUSTRY

We operate our business in China under a legal regime consisting of the State Council, which is the highest authority of the executive branch of the National People's Congress, and several ministries and agencies under its authority including the SAIC.

China's Advertising Law was promulgated in 1994. In addition, the State Council, SAIC and other ministries and agencies have issued regulations that regulate our business, which are discussed below.

Limitations on Foreign Ownership in the Advertising Industry

The principal regulations governing foreign ownership in the advertising industry in China include:

- The Catalogue for Guiding Foreign Investment in Industry (2004); and
- The Administrative Regulations on Foreign-invested Advertising Enterprises (2004).

These regulations require foreign entities that directly invest in the advertising industry to have at least two years of direct operations in the advertising industry outside of China. Since December 10, 2005, foreign investors have been permitted to own directly a 100% interest in advertising companies in China, but such foreign investors are also required to have at least three years of direct operations in the advertising industry outside of China. PRC laws and regulations do not permit the transfer of any approvals, licenses or permits, including business licenses containing a scope of business that permits engaging in the advertising business. In the event we are able to qualify to acquire the equity interest of Focus Media Advertisement under the rules allowing complete foreign ownership, Focus Media Advertisement would continue to exist as the holder of the required advertising license consistent with current regulatory requirements.

Since we have not been involved in advertising outside of China for the required number of years, our domestic PRC operating subsidiaries, which are considered foreign invested, are currently ineligible to apply for the required advertising services licenses in China. Our advertising business is currently mainly provided through our contractual arrangements with our consolidated affiliated entities in China, including Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries, New Focus Media Advertisement, Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia, New Structure Advertisement, Focus Media Wireless and the Allyes operating affiliates. Each of our PRC operating affiliates is currently owned or controlled either by Jason Nanchun Jiang and Jimmy Wei Yu, both of whom are PRC citizens, or by PRC companies owned by them or by us. Our PRC operating affiliates and certain of their respective subsidiaries hold the requisite licenses to provide advertising services in China. We, Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement, Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology and New Allyes Technology have entered into a series of contractual arrangements with our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries and shareholders under which:

- we are able to exert effective control over our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries;
- a substantial portion of the economic benefits of our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries will be transferred to us; and
- we have an exclusive option to purchase all or part of the equity interests in our PRC operating affiliates and all or part of the equity interests in Focus Media Advertisement's subsidiaries that are owned by Focus Media Advertisement or its nominee holders, as well as all or a part of the assets of our PRC operating affiliates, in each case when and to the extent permitted by PRC law.

See "Our Corporate Structure" and "Related Party Transactions".

In the opinion of Global Law Office, our PRC legal counsel,

- the respective ownership structures of Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective PRC affiliates and subsidiaries are in compliance with existing PRC laws and regulations;
- the contractual arrangements (i) among Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective PRC affiliates, subsidiaries and PRC shareholders, in each case governed by PRC law are valid,

binding and enforceable, and will not result in any violation of PRC laws or regulations currently in effect; and

- the PRC business operations of Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective affiliates and subsidiaries as described in this prospectus, are in compliance with existing PRC laws and regulations in all material respects.

We have been advised by our PRC legal counsel, however, that there are substantial uncertainties regarding the interpretation and application of current and future PRC laws and regulations. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the PRC regulatory authorities, in particular the SAIC which regulates advertising companies, will not in the future take a view that is contrary to the opinion of our PRC legal counsel. We have been further advised by our PRC counsel that if the PRC government determines that the agreements establishing the structure for operating our PRC advertising business do not comply with PRC government restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry, we could be subject to severe penalties. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to Regulation of Our Business and to Our Structure — If the PRC government finds that the agreements that establish the structure for operating our China business do not comply with PRC governmental restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry, we could be subject to severe penalties”.

Regulation of Advertising Services

Business License for Advertising Companies

The principal regulations governing advertising businesses in China include:

- The Advertising Law (1994);
- The Advertising Administrative Regulations (1987); and
- The Implementing Rules for the Advertising Administrative Regulations (2004).

These regulations stipulate that companies that engage in advertising activities must obtain from the SAIC or its local branches a business license which specifically includes operating an advertising business within its business scope. Companies conducting advertising activities without such a license may be subject to penalties, including fines, confiscation of advertising income and orders to cease advertising operations. The business license of an advertising company is valid for the duration of its existence, unless the license is suspended or revoked due to a violation of any relevant law or regulation. We do not expect to encounter any difficulties in maintaining our business licenses. Each of Focus Media Advertisement, its subsidiaries and New Focus Media Advertisement has obtained, or in the case of some of our new directly-operated cities, are in the process of obtaining such a business license from the local branches of the SAIC as required by the existing PRC regulations. Some of our regional distributors may not possess all the licenses required to operate an advertising business, or may fail to maintain the licenses they currently hold. We periodically monitor our regional distributors to ensure they have obtained all required licenses and are complying with regulations relating to advertising content, although it is possible that one or more of our regional distributors may not be in compliance with all PRC regulations at all times. To our knowledge, all of our regional distributors have received, or are in the process of obtaining, the licenses required to operate an advertising business. If we learn that any of our regional distributors are not in compliance with applicable terms and regulations we notify such regional distributors of the need to complete any necessary procedures and to report any developments to us. If a regional distributor fails to complete the steps necessary to receive the required licenses, we will take steps to terminate the contract with such regional distributor. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to Our Business and Industry — One or more of our regional distributors could engage in activities that are harmful to our reputation in the industry and to our business”.

Advertising Content

PRC advertising laws and regulations set forth certain content requirements for advertisements in China, which include prohibitions on, among other things, misleading content, superlative wording, socially destabilizing content or content involving obscenities, superstition, violence, discrimination or infringement of the public interest. Advertisements for anesthetic, psychotropic, toxic or radioactive drugs are prohibited. It is prohibited to disseminate tobacco advertisements via broadcast or print media. It is also prohibited to display tobacco advertisements in any waiting lounge, theater, cinema, conference hall, stadium or other public area. There are also specific restrictions and requirements regarding advertisements that relate to matters such as patented products or processes, pharmaceuticals, medical instruments, agrochemicals, foodstuff, alcohol and cosmetics. In addition, all advertisements relating to pharmaceuticals, medical instruments, agrochemicals and veterinary pharmaceuticals advertised through radio, film, television, newspaper, magazine, out-of-home and other forms of media, together with any other advertisements which are subject to censorship by administrative authorities according to relevant laws and administrative regulations, must be submitted to the relevant administrative authorities for content approval prior to dissemination. We do not believe that advertisements containing content subject to restriction or censorship comprise a material portion of the advertisements shown on our network.

Advertisers, advertising operators and advertising distributors are required by PRC advertising laws and regulations to ensure that the content of the advertisements they prepare or distribute are true and in full compliance with applicable law. In providing advertising services, advertising operators and advertising distributors must review the prescribed supporting documents provided by advertisers for advertisements and verify that the content of the advertisements comply with applicable PRC laws and regulations. In addition, prior to distributing advertisements for certain commodities which are subject to government censorship and approval, advertising distributors are obligated to ensure that such censorship has been performed and approval has been obtained. Violation of these regulations may result in penalties, including fines, confiscation of advertising income, orders to cease dissemination of the advertisements and orders to publish an advertisement correcting the misleading information. In circumstances involving serious violations, the SAIC or its local branches may revoke violators' licenses or permits for advertising business operations. Furthermore, advertisers, advertising operators or advertising distributors may be subject to civil liability if they infringe on the legal rights and interests of third parties in the course of their advertising business.

We employ qualified advertising inspectors who are trained to review advertising content for compliance with relevant laws and regulations.

Outdoor Advertising

The Advertising Law stipulates that the exhibition and display of outdoor advertisements must not:

- utilize traffic safety facilities and traffic signs;
- impede the use of public facilities, traffic safety facilities and traffic signs;
- obstruct commercial and public activities or create an eyesore in urban areas;
- be placed in restrictive areas near government offices, cultural landmarks or historical or scenic sites; and
- be placed in areas prohibited by the local governments from having outdoor advertisements.

In addition to the Advertising Law, the SAIC promulgated the Outdoor Advertising Registration Administrative Regulations on December 8, 1995, as amended on December 3, 1998, which governs the outdoor advertising industry in China.

Outdoor advertisements in China must be registered with the local SAIC before dissemination. The advertising distributors are required to submit a registration application form and other supporting documents for registration. After review and examination, if an application complies with the requirements, the local SAIC will issue an Outdoor Advertising Registration Certificate for such advertisement. The content of the outdoor advertisement must be submitted for filing with the local SAIC.

The placement and installation of LED billboards are subject to municipal zoning requirements and governmental approvals, including application for an outdoor advertising registration certificate for each LED billboard subject to a term of use of no more than six years for each LED billboard. If the existing LED billboards placed by our LED location provider or us are required to be removed, the attractiveness of this portion of our advertising network will be diminished. Moreover, failure by an owner of LED billboards to maintain outdoor advertising registration certificates would result in the inability to lease or market such space for the placement of advertisements.

Print Advertising

Following our acquisition of Framedia on January 1, 2006, we also operate a network of advertising poster frames placed primarily in the elevators and public areas of residential complexes. The advertisements shown on our poster frame network are defined as “normal print advertisements” under the Print Advertisements Administrative Regulations promulgated by the SAIC on January 13, 2000, as amended on November 30, 2004, or the Print Advertisements Regulations. Under these regulations, print advertisements must not be placed in areas prohibited by laws or regulations from posting print advertisements.

Regulation of Telecommunications Value-added Service Providers

The Telecommunications Regulations (2000), or the Telecom Regulations, and the Administrative Measures for Telecommunications Business Operating License (2002), or the Telecom License Measures, contain provisions governing providers of telecommunications services, including value-added service providers. The Telecom Regulations categorize all telecommunication services businesses in China as either infrastructure telecommunication services businesses or value-added telecommunication services businesses. The latter category includes SMS, MMS and WAP services. Under the Telecom Regulations, certain services are classified as being of a value-added nature and require the commercial mobile operator of such services to obtain an operating license, including online data processing and transaction processing, call centers and Internet access. The Telecom Regulations also set forth extensive guidelines with respect to different aspects of telecommunications operations in China. Under the Telecom License Measures, an approved value-added telecommunication services provider must conduct its business in accordance with the specifications recorded on its value-added telecommunication services operating license. Under PRC law, it is unclear whether the services offered by Focus Media Wireless should be deemed value-added telecommunication services, which requires an operation permit which has a valid period of five years. Focus Media Wireless has applied for an operation permit for its wireless advertising operations. If Focus Media Wireless is deemed by the PRC regulatory authorities to be providing value-added telecommunication services but an operation permit is not issued or if, once issued, it is revoked or if we are unable to renew its operation permit upon its expiration, we will be required to suspend our services relating to our mobile handset advertising network, and our advertising service revenue derived from this portion of our network would be adversely affected. See “Risk Factors — Our recent entry into mobile handset and Internet advertising services through our acquisition of Focus Media Wireless and Allies may expose us to risks associated with operating in the telecommunications and Internet industries in China which could materially affect our financial condition or results of operation”.

Regulation of Foreign Exchange in Certain Onshore and Offshore Transactions

In January and April 2005, the PRC State Administration of Foreign Exchange, or SAFE, issued two rules that require PRC residents to register with and receive approvals from SAFE in connection with their offshore investment activities. SAFE has announced that the purpose of these regulations is to achieve the proper balance of foreign exchange and the standardization of the cross-border flow of funds.

On October 21, 2005, SAFE issued the Notice on Issues Relating to the Administration of Foreign Exchange in Fund-raising and Reverse Investment Activities of Domestic Residents Conducted via Offshore Special Purpose Companies, or Notice 75, which became effective as of November 1, 2005. Notice 75 replaced the two rules issued by SAFE in January and April 2005 mentioned above.

According to Notice 75:

- prior to establishing or assuming control of an offshore company for the purpose of financing that offshore company with assets or equity interests in an onshore enterprise in the PRC, each PRC resident, whether a natural or legal person, must complete the overseas investment foreign exchange registration procedures with the relevant local SAFE branch;

- an amendment to the registration with the local SAFE branch is required to be filed by any PRC resident that directly or indirectly holds interests in that offshore company upon either (1) the injection of equity interests or assets of an onshore enterprise to the offshore company, or (2) the completion of any overseas fund raising by such offshore company; and
- an amendment to the registration with the local SAFE branch is also required to be filed by such PRC resident when there is any material change involving a change in the capital of the offshore company, such as (1) an increase or decrease in its capital, (2) a transfer or swap of shares, (3) a merger or division, (4) a long term equity or debt investment, or (5) the creation of any security interests over the relevant assets located in China.

Moreover, Notice 75 applies retroactively. As a result, PRC residents who have established or acquired control of offshore companies that have made onshore investments in the PRC in the past are required to complete the relevant overseas investment foreign exchange registration procedures by March 31, 2006. Under the relevant rules, failure to comply with the registration procedures set forth in Notice 75 may result in restrictions being imposed on the foreign exchange activities of the relevant onshore company, including the payment of dividends and other distributions to its offshore parent or affiliate and the capital inflow from the offshore entity, and may also subject relevant PRC residents to penalties under PRC foreign exchange administration regulations.

As a Cayman Islands company, and therefore a foreign entity, if Focus Media Holding purchases the assets or equity interest of a PRC company owned by PRC residents in exchange for our equity interests, such PRC residents will be subject to the registration procedures described in Notice 75. Moreover, PRC residents who are beneficial holders of our shares are required to register with SAFE in connection with their investment in us.

As a result of the lack of implementing rules and other uncertainties relating to the interpretation and implementation of Notice 75, we cannot predict how these regulations will affect our business operations or strategies. For example, our present or future PRC subsidiaries' ability to conduct foreign exchange activities, such as remittance of dividends and foreign-currency-denominated borrowings, may be subject to compliance with such SAFE registration requirements by relevant PRC residents, over whom we have no control. In addition, we cannot assure you that any such PRC residents will be able to complete the necessary approval and registration procedures required by the SAFE regulations. We require all the shareholders in Focus Media Holding who are PRC residents to comply with any SAFE registration requirements, but we have no control over either our shareholders or the outcome of such registration procedures. Such uncertainties may restrict our ability to implement our acquisition strategy and adversely affect our business and prospects.

Options generally do not vest unless the grantee remains under our employment or in service with us on the given vesting date. However, in circumstances where there is a death or disability of the grantee, or, for certain option holders, a change in the control of our company, the vesting of options will be accelerated to permit immediate exercise of all options granted to a grantee.

Our compensation committee, which administers our option plans, has wide discretion to award options. Subject to the provisions of our option plans and the above allocation targets, our committee that administers our option plans determines who will be granted options, the type and timing of options to be granted, vesting schedules and other terms and conditions of options, including the exercise price. Any of our employees may be granted options. The number of options awarded to a person, if any, is based on the person's potential ability to contribute to our success, the person's position with us and other factors chosen by our board of directors.

Generally, to the extent an outstanding option granted under our option plans has not become vested on the date the grantee's employment by or service with us terminates, the option will terminate and become unexercisable.

Our board of directors may amend, alter, suspend, or terminate each of our option plan at any time, provided, however, that in order to increase the limit of 20% of our share capital that may be granted as options, our board of directors must first seek the approval of our shareholders and, if such amendment, alteration, suspension or termination would adversely affect the rights of an optionee under any option granted prior to that date, the approval of such optionee. Without further action by our board of directors, our 2003 Option Plan, 2005 Option Plan and 2006 Option Plan will terminate in June 2013, May 2015 and August 2016, respectively.

Transactions with Everease

Prior to establishing our business, Jason Nanchun Jiang, our founder, chairman and chief executive officer, served as the legal representative and general manager of Everease from 2000 to 2004. From 2004 to March 2005, Ms. Shen Yacheng, the mother of Jason Jiang, served as legal representative of Everease. Everease and our company were considered to be under common control through March 2005 and all transaction we entered into with Everease were treated as related party transactions. Subsequent to Shen Yacheng’s resignation in March 2005, Jason’s father continued to serve as finance manager of Everease (effective from 1994) as a result of which he is able to exert a certain degree of influence over Everease. Therefore, Everease continues to be deemed a related party of Focus Media. In connection with the audit of our financial statements as of and for the period ended December 31, 2006, our auditors noted that, with regard to determination of related party status, we lack a process for timely review of changes in relationships with companies that were excluded from related party status in prior years. The auditors identified this as a significant deficiency under standards established by the PCAOB in our internal accounting controls. See “Risk Factors — There have been historical deficiencies with our internal

Table of ContentsDESCRIPTION OF SHARE CAPITAL

As of the date hereof, our authorized share capital is $990,000 divided into 19,800,000,000 shares, par value $0.00005 per share, and the issued share capital is $30,907.20 divided into 618,144,062 ordinary shares fully paid or credited as fully paid.

We were incorporated as Focus Media Holding Limited in the British Virgin Islands on April 11, 2003 as an international business company. On April 1, 2005, we changed our corporate domicile to the Cayman Islands, becoming an exempted company with limited liability under the Companies Law (2004 Revision) Cap. 22 of the Cayman Islands, or the Companies Law. Our shareholders who are non-residents of the Cayman Islands may freely hold and vote their shares. A Cayman Islands exempted company:

- is a company that conducts its business outside of the Cayman Islands;
- is exempted from certain requirements of the Companies Law, including a filing of an annual return of its shareholders with the Registrar of Companies or the Immigration Board;
- does not have to make its register of shareholders open to inspection; and
- may obtain an undertaking against the imposition of any future taxation.

Our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association authorize the issuance of up to 19,800,000,000 shares, par value $0.00005 per share. The following summarizes the terms and provisions of our share capital upon the completion of this offering, as well as the material applicable laws of the Cayman Islands. This summary is not complete, and you should read the form of our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association, which are filed as exhibits to the registration statement of which this prospectus is a part.

The following discussion primarily concerns ordinary shares and the rights of holders of ordinary shares. The holders of ADSs will not be treated as our shareholders and will be required to surrender their ADSs for cancellation and withdrawal from the depository facility in which the ordinary shares are held in order to exercise shareholders' rights in respect of the ordinary shares. The depository will agree, so far as it is practical, to vote or cause to be voted the amount of ordinary shares represented by ADSs in accordance with the non-discretionary written instructions of the holders of such ADSs.

Meetings

Subject to our regulatory requirements, an annual general meeting and any extraordinary general meeting shall be called by not less than 10 days' notice in writing. Notice of every general meeting will be given to all of our shareholders other than those that, under the provisions of our amended and restated articles of association or the terms of issue of the ordinary shares they hold, are not entitled to receive such notices from us, and also to our principal external auditors. Extraordinary general meetings may be called only by the chairman of our board of directors or a majority of our board of directors, and may not be called by any other person. All business shall be deemed extraordinary that is transacted at an extraordinary general meeting, and also all business that is transacted at an annual general meeting other than with respect to (1) declarations of dividends, (2) the adoption of our financial statements and reports of directors and auditors thereon, (3) the granting of any mandate or authority to our directors, to grant options not in excess of 20% of the nominal value of our existing issued share capital, (4) our ability to repurchase our securities, (5) the election of directors, (6) the appointment of auditors (where special notice of the intention to make such appointment is not required by the Companies Law) and other officers, and (7) the fixing of the remuneration of the auditors and the voting of remuneration or extra remuneration to the directors.

Notwithstanding that a meeting is called by shorter notice than that mentioned above, but, subject to applicable regulatory requirements, it will be deemed to have been duly called, if it is so agreed (1) in the case of a meeting called as an annual general meeting by all of our shareholders entitled to attend and vote at the meeting; or (2) in the case of any other meeting, by a majority in number of our shareholders having a right to attend and vote at the meeting, being a majority together holding not less than 75% in nominal value of the ordinary shares giving that right.

At any general meeting, two shareholders entitled to vote and present in person or by proxy that represent not less than one-third of our issued and outstanding voting shares will constitute a quorum. No business other than the appointment of a chairman may be transacted at any general meeting unless a quorum is present at the commencement of business. However, the absence of a quorum will not preclude the appointment of a chairman. If present, the chairman of our board of directors shall be the chairman presiding at any shareholders meetings.

A corporation being a shareholder shall be deemed for the purpose of our amended and restated articles of association to be present in person if represented by its duly authorized representative being the person appointed by resolution of the directors or other governing body of such corporation to act as its representative at the relevant general meeting or at any relevant general meeting of any class of our shareholders. Such duly authorized representative shall be entitled to exercise the same powers on behalf of the corporation which he represents as that corporation could exercise if it were our individual shareholder.

The quorum for a separate general meeting of the holders of a separate class of shares is described in “— Modification of Rights” below.

Voting Rights Attaching to the Shares

Subject to any special rights or restrictions as to voting for the time being attached to any shares, at any general meeting on a show of hands every shareholder who is present in person or by proxy (or, in the case of a shareholder being a corporation, by its duly authorized representative) shall have one vote, and on a poll every shareholder present in person or by proxy (or, in the case of a shareholder being a corporation, by its duly appointed representative) shall have one vote for each fully paid share which such shareholder is the holder.

No shareholder shall be entitled to vote or be reckoned in a quorum, in respect of any share, unless such shareholder is registered as our shareholder at the applicable record date for that meeting and all calls or installments due by such shareholder to us have been paid.

If a clearing house (or its nominee(s)) is our shareholder, it may authorize such person or persons as it thinks fit to act as its representative(s) at any meeting or at any meeting of any class of shareholders, provided that, if more than one person is so authorized, the authorization shall specify the number and class of shares in respect of which each such person is so authorized. A person authorized pursuant to this provision is entitled to exercise the same powers on behalf of the recognized clearing house (or its nominee(s)) as if such person was the registered holder of our shares held by that clearing house (or its nominee(s)) including the right to vote individually on a show of hands.

While there is nothing under the laws of the Cayman Islands which specifically prohibits or restricts the creation of cumulative voting rights for the election of our directors, unlike the requirement under Delaware law that cumulative voting for the election of directors is permitted only if expressly authorized in the certificate of incorporation, it is not a concept that is accepted as a common practice in the Cayman Islands, and we have made no provisions in our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association to allow cumulative voting for such elections.

Protection of Minority Shareholders

The Grand Court of the Cayman Islands may, on the application of shareholders holding not less than one fifth of our shares in issue, appoint an inspector to examine our affairs and report thereon in a manner as the Grand Court shall direct.

Any shareholder may petition the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands which may make a winding up order, if the court is of the opinion that it is just and equitable that we should be wound up.

Claims against us by our shareholders must, as a general rule, be based on the general laws of contract or tort applicable in the Cayman Islands or their individual rights as shareholders as established by our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association.

The Cayman Islands courts ordinarily would be expected to follow English case law precedents which permit a minority shareholder to commence a representative action against, or derivative actions in our name to challenge (1) an act which is ultra vires or illegal, (2) an act which constitutes a fraud against the minority and the wrongdoers are themselves in control of us, and (3) an irregularity in the passing of a resolution which requires a qualified (or special) majority.

Pre-emption Rights

There are no pre-emption rights applicable to the issue of new shares under either Cayman Islands law or our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association.

Liquidation Rights

Subject to any special rights, privileges or restrictions as to the distribution of available surplus assets on liquidation for the time being attached to any class or classes of shares (1) if we are wound up and the assets available for distribution among our shareholders are more than sufficient to repay the whole of the capital paid up at the commencement of the winding up, the excess shall be distributed pari passu among those shareholders in proportion to the amount paid up at the commencement of the winding up on the shares held by them, respectively, and (2) if we are wound up and the assets available for distribution among the shareholders as such are insufficient to repay the whole of the paid-up capital, those assets shall be distributed so that, as nearly as may be, the losses shall be borne by the shareholders in proportion to the capital paid up at the commencement of the winding up on the shares held by them, respectively.

If we are wound up, the liquidator may with the sanction of our special resolution and any other sanction required by the Companies Law, divide among our shareholders in specie or kind the whole or any part of our assets (whether they shall consist of property of the same kind or not) and may, for such purpose, set such value as the liquidator deems fair upon any property to be divided and may determine how such division shall be carried out as between the shareholders or different classes of shareholders. The liquidator may also vest any part of these assets in trustees upon such trusts for the benefit of the shareholders as the liquidator shall think fit, but so that no shareholder will be compelled to accept any assets, shares or other securities upon which there is a liability.

Modification of Rights

Except with respect to share capital (as described below) alterations to our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association may only be made by special resolution of no less than two-thirds of votes cast at a meeting of the shareholders.

Subject to the Companies Law of the Cayman Islands, all or any of the special rights attached to shares of any class (unless otherwise provided for by the terms of issue of the shares of that class) may be varied, modified or abrogated with the sanction of a special resolution passed at a separate general meeting of the holders of the shares of that class. The provisions of our articles of association relating to general meetings shall apply similarly to every such separate general meeting, but so that the quorum for the purposes of any such separate general meeting or at its adjourned meeting shall be a person or persons together holding (or represented by proxy) not less than one-third in nominal value of the issued shares of that class, every holder of shares of the class shall be entitled on a poll to one vote for every such share held by such holder and that any holder of shares of that class present in person or by proxy may demand a poll.

The special rights conferred upon the holders of any class of shares shall not, unless otherwise expressly provided in the rights attaching to or the terms of issue of such shares, be deemed to be varied by the creation or issue of further shares ranking pari passu therewith.

Alteration of Capital

We may from time to time by ordinary resolution:

- increase our capital by such sum, to be divided into shares of such amounts, as the resolution shall prescribe;
- consolidate and divide all or any of our share capital into shares of larger amount than our existing shares;

- cancel any shares which at the date of the passing of the resolution have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person, and diminish the amount of our share capital by the amount of the shares so cancelled subject to the provisions of the Companies Law;
- sub-divide our shares or any of them into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association, subject nevertheless to the Companies Law, and so that the resolution whereby any share is sub-divided may determine that, as between the holders of the share resulting from such subdivision, one or more of the shares may have any such preference or other special rights, over, or may have such deferred rights or be subject to any such restrictions as compared with the others as we have power to attach to unissued or new shares; and
- divide shares into several classes and without prejudice to any special rights previously conferred on the holders of existing shares, attach to the shares respectively as preferential, deferred, qualified or special rights, privileges, conditions or such restrictions which in the absence of any such determination in general meeting may be determined by our directors.

We may, by special resolution, subject to any confirmation or consent required by the Companies Law, reduce our share capital or any capital redemption reserve in any manner authorized by law.

Transfer of Shares

Subject to any applicable restrictions set forth in our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association, any of our shareholders may transfer all or any of his or her shares by an instrument of transfer in the usual or common form or in a form prescribed by the Nasdaq Global Market or in any other form which our directors may approve.

Our directors may decline to register any transfer of any share which is not paid up or on which we have a lien. Our directors may also decline to register any transfer of any share unless:

- the instrument of transfer is lodged with us accompanied by the certificate for the shares to which it relates and such other evidence as our directors may reasonably require to show the right of the transferor to make the transfer;
- the instrument of transfer is in respect of only one class of share;
- the instrument of transfer is properly stamped (in circumstances where stamping is required);
- in the case of a transfer to joint holders, the number of joint holders to whom the share is to be transferred does not exceed four; and
- a fee of such maximum sum as the Nasdaq Global Market may determine to be payable or such lesser sum as our directors may from time to time require is paid to us in respect thereof.

If our directors refuse to register a transfer, they shall, within two months after the date on which the instrument of transfer was lodged, send to each of the transferor and the transferee notice of such refusal.

The registration of transfers may, on notice being given by advertisement in such one or more newspapers or by any other means in accordance with the requirements of the Nasdaq Global Market, be suspended and the register closed at such times and for such periods as our directors may from time to time determine; provided, however, that the registration of transfers shall not be suspended nor the register closed for more than 30 days in any year as our directors may determine.

Share Repurchase

We are empowered by the Companies Law and our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association to purchase our own shares, subject to certain restrictions. Our directors may only exercise this power on our behalf, subject to the Companies Law, our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association and to any applicable requirements imposed from time to time by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Nasdaq Global Market, or by any recognized stock exchange on which our securities are listed.

Table of ContentsDividends

Subject to the Companies Law, we may declare dividends in any currency to be paid to our shareholders but no dividend shall be declared in excess of the amount recommended by our directors. Dividends may be declared and paid out of our profits, realized or unrealized, or from any reserve set aside from profits which our directors determine is no longer needed. Our board of directors may also declare and pay dividends out of the share premium account or any other fund or account which can be authorized for this purpose in accordance with the Companies Law.

Except in so far as the rights attaching to, or the terms of issue of, any share otherwise provides (1) all dividends shall be declared and paid according to the amounts paid up on the shares in respect of which the dividend is paid, but no amount paid up on a share in advance of calls shall be treated for this purpose as paid up on that share and (2) all dividends shall be apportioned and paid pro rata according to the amounts paid upon the shares during any portion or portions of the period in respect of which the dividend is paid.

Our directors may also pay any dividend that is payable on any shares semi-annually or on any other dates, whenever our financial position, in the opinion of our directors, justifies such payment.

Our directors may deduct from any dividend or other moneys payable to any shareholder all sums of money (if any) presently payable by such shareholder to us on account of calls, installments or otherwise.

No dividend or other money payable by us on or in respect of any share shall bear interest against us.

In respect of any dividend proposed to be paid or declared on our share capital, our directors may resolve and direct that (1) such dividend be satisfied wholly or in part in the form of an allotment of shares credited as fully paid up, provided that our shareholders entitled thereto will be entitled to elect to receive such dividend (or part thereof if our directors so determine) in cash in lieu of such allotment or (2) the shareholders entitled to such dividend will be entitled to elect to receive an allotment of shares credited as fully paid up in lieu of the whole or such part of the dividend as our directors may think fit. We may also, on the recommendation of our directors, resolve in respect of any particular dividend that, notwithstanding the foregoing, it may be satisfied wholly in the form of an allotment of shares credited as fully paid up without offering any right of shareholders to elect to receive such dividend in cash in lieu of such allotment.

Any dividend, interest or other sum payable in cash to the holder of shares may be paid by check or warrant sent by mail addressed to the holder at his registered address, or addressed to such person and at such addresses as the holder may direct. Every check or warrant shall, unless the holder or joint holders otherwise direct, be made payable to the order of the holder or, in the case of joint holders, to the order of the holder whose name stands first on the register in respect of such shares, and shall be sent at his or their risk and payment of the check or warrant by the bank on which it is drawn shall constitute a good discharge to us.

All dividends unclaimed for one year after having been declared may be invested or otherwise made use of by our board of directors for the benefit of our company until claimed. Any dividend unclaimed after a period of six years from the date of declaration of such dividend may be forfeited and, if so forfeited, shall revert to us.

Whenever our directors or our shareholders in general meeting have resolved that a dividend be paid or declared, our directors may further resolve that such dividend be satisfied wholly or in part by the distribution of specific assets of any kind, and in particular of paid up shares, debentures or warrants to subscribe for our securities or securities of any other company. Where any difficulty arises with regard to such distribution, our directors may settle it as they think expedient. In particular, our directors may issue fractional certificates, ignore fractions altogether or round the same up or down, fix the value for distribution purposes of any such specific assets, determine that cash payments shall be made to any of our shareholders upon the footing of the value so fixed in order to adjust the rights of the parties, vest any such specific assets in trustees as may seem expedient to our directors, and appoint any person to sign any requisite instruments of transfer and other documents on behalf of a person entitled to the dividend, which appointment shall be effective and binding on our shareholders.

Table of ContentsUntraceable Shareholders

We are entitled to sell any shares of a shareholder who is untraceable, provided that:

1. all checks or warrants in respect of dividends of such shares, not being less than three in number, for any sums payable in cash to the holder of such shares have remained uncashed for a period of twelve years prior to the publication of the advertisement and during the three months referred to in paragraph (3) below;
2. we have not during that time received any indication of the whereabouts or existence of the shareholder or person entitled to such shares by death, bankruptcy or operation of law; and
3. we have caused an advertisement to be published in newspapers in the manner stipulated by our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association, giving notice of our intention to sell these shares, and a period of three months has elapsed since such advertisement and the Nasdaq Global Market has been notified of such intention.

The net proceeds of any such sale shall belong to us, and when we receive these net proceeds we shall become indebted to the former shareholder for an amount equal to such net proceeds.

Differences in Corporate Law

The Companies Law is modeled after similar laws in the United Kingdom but does not follow recent changes in United Kingdom laws. In addition, the Companies Law differs from laws applicable to United States corporations and their shareholders. Set forth below is a summary of the significant differences between the provisions of the Companies Law applicable to us and the laws applicable to companies incorporated in the United States.

Mergers and Similar Arrangements. Cayman Islands law does not provide for mergers as that expression is understood under United States corporate law. However, there are statutory provisions that facilitate the reconstruction and amalgamation of companies, provided that the arrangement in question is approved by a majority in number of each class of shareholders and creditors with whom the arrangement is to be made, and who must in addition represent three-fourths in value of each such class of shareholders or creditors, as the case may be, that are present and voting either in person or by proxy at a meeting, or meetings convened for that purpose. The convening of the meetings and subsequently the arrangement must be sanctioned by the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands. While a dissenting shareholder would have the right to express to the court the view that the transaction should not be approved, the court can be expected to approve the arrangement if it satisfies itself that:

- the company is not proposing to act illegally or ultra vires and the statutory provisions as to majority vote have been complied with;
- the shareholders have been fairly represented at the meeting in question;
- the arrangement is such as a businessman would reasonably approve; and
- the arrangement is not one that would more properly be sanctioned under some other provision of the Companies Law or that would amount to a “fraud on the minority”.

When a takeover offer is made and accepted by holders of 90.0% of the shares within four months, the offerer may, within a two-month period, require the holders of the remaining shares to transfer such shares on the terms of the offer. An objection may be made to the Grand Court of the Cayman Islands but is unlikely to succeed unless there is evidence of fraud, bad faith or collusion.

If the arrangement and reconstruction are thus approved, any dissenting shareholders would have no rights comparable to appraisal rights, which would otherwise ordinarily be available to dissenting shareholders of United States corporations, providing rights to receive payment in cash for the judicially determined value of the shares.

Shareholders’ Suits. We are not aware of any reported class action or derivative action having been brought in a Cayman Islands court. In principle, we will normally be the proper plaintiff and a derivative action may not be brought by a minority shareholder. However, based on English authorities, which would in all likelihood be of persuasive authority in the Cayman Islands, exceptions to the foregoing principle apply in circumstances in which:

- a company is acting or proposing to act illegally or beyond the scope of its authority;
- the act complained of, although not beyond the scope of its authority, could be effected duly if authorized by more than a simple majority vote which has not been obtained; and
- those who control the company are perpetrating a “fraud on the minority”.

Corporate Governance. Cayman Islands laws do not restrict transactions with directors, requiring only that directors exercise a duty of care and owe a fiduciary duty to the companies for which they serve. Under our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association, subject to any separate requirement for audit committee approval under the applicable rules of The Nasdaq Global Market or unless disqualified by the chairman of the relevant board meeting, so long as a director discloses the nature of his interest in any contract or arrangement which he is interested in, such a director may vote in respect of any contract or proposed contract or arrangement in which such director is interested and may be counted in the quorum at such meeting.

Board of Directors

We are managed by our board of directors. Our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association provide that the number of our directors will be fixed from time to time exclusively pursuant to an ordinary resolution adopted by our members, but must consist of not less than three directors. We have set our board of directors to have not less than three directors and not more than twelve directors. Any director on our board may be removed by way of an ordinary resolution of shareholders. Any vacancies on our board of directors or additions to the existing board of directors can be filled by way of an ordinary resolution of shareholders or by the affirmative vote of a simple majority of the remaining directors, although this may be less than a quorum where the number of remaining directors falls below the minimum number fixed by our board of directors. Any director so appointed by the board of directors shall hold office only until the next following annual general meeting of the Company and shall then be eligible for re-election. Our directors shall serve a 3 year term from their appointment date and shall retire from office (unless he vacates his office sooner) at the expiry of such term provided their successors are elected or appointed. Such directors who retire at the expiry of their term are eligible for re-election. Our directors are not required to hold any of our shares to be qualified to serve on our board of directors.

Meetings of our board of directors may be convened at any time deemed necessary by our secretary on request of a director or by any director.

A meeting of our board of directors shall be competent to make lawful and binding decisions if at least three of the members of our board of directors are present or represented unless the board has fixed any other number. At any meeting of our directors, each director is entitled to one vote.

Questions arising at a meeting of our board of directors are required to be decided by simple majority votes of the members of our board of directors present or represented at the meeting. In the case of a tie vote, the chairman of the meeting shall have a second or deciding vote. Our board of directors may also pass resolutions without a meeting by unanimous written consent.

Certain actions require the approval of a supermajority of at least two-thirds of our board of directors, including:

- the appointment or removal of our chief executive officer, chief financial officer and other executive officers of the Company;
- any anti-takeover action in response to a takeover attempt;
- the establishment of any joint venture requiring a capital contribution from us in excess of $1,000,000;
- our acquisition of any company for aggregate consideration in excess of the equivalent of $10,000,000;
- any material change to our business scope;

Table of Contents

- any merger resulting in our shareholders immediately prior to such merger holding less than a majority of the voting power of the outstanding share capital of the surviving business entity;
- the sale or transfer of all or substantially all of our assets;
- any change in our dividend policy or the declaration or payment of a dividend or other distribution by us other than a distribution or dividend to us, our subsidiaries or our consolidated affiliated entities; or
- the settlement by us of any litigation in excess of $250,000.

Committees of Board Of Directors

Pursuant to our amended and restated articles of association, our board of directors has established an audit committee, a compensation committee and a nominations committee.

Issuance of Additional Ordinary Shares or Preference Shares

Our amended and restated memorandum of association authorizes our board of directors to issue additional ordinary shares from time to time as our board of directors shall determine, to the extent of available authorized but unissued shares.

Our amended and restated memorandum of association authorizes our board of directors to establish from time to time one or more series of preference shares and to determine, with respect to any series of preference shares, the terms and rights of that series, including:

- the designation of the series;
- the number of shares of the series;
- the dividend rights, dividend rates, conversion rights, voting rights; and
- the rights and terms of redemption and liquidation preferences.

Our board of directors may issue series of preference shares without action by our shareholders to the extent authorized but unissued. Accordingly, the issuance of preference shares may adversely affect the rights of the holders of the ordinary shares. In addition, the issuance of preference shares may be used as an anti-takeover device without further action on the part of the shareholders. Issuance of preference shares may dilute the voting power of holders of ordinary shares.

Subject to applicable regulatory requirements, our board of directors may issue additional ordinary shares without action by our shareholders to the extent of available authorized but unissued shares. The issuance of additional ordinary shares may be used as an anti-takeover device without further action on the part of the shareholders. Such issuance may dilute the voting power of existing holders of ordinary shares.

Registration Rights

See “Shares Eligible for Future Sale”.

Inspection of Books and Records

Holders of our ordinary shares will have no general right under Cayman Islands law to inspect or obtain copies of our list of shareholders or our corporate records. However, we will provide our shareholders with annual audited financial statements. See “Where You Can Find Additional Information”.

Table of ContentsDESCRIPTION OF AMERICAN DEPOSITARY SHARES*American Depositary Shares

Citibank, N.A. is the depositary bank for the American Depositary Shares. Citibank's depositary offices are located at 388 Greenwich Street, New York, New York 10013. American Depositary Shares are frequently referred to as "ADSs" and represent ownership interests in securities that are on deposit with the depositary bank. ADSs may be represented by certificates that are commonly known as "American Depositary Receipts" or "ADRs". The depositary bank typically appoints a custodian to safekeep the securities on deposit. In this case, the custodian is Citibank Hong Kong, located at 10/F, Harbour Front (II), 22, Tak Fung Street, Hung Hom, Kowloon, Hong Kong.

We appointed Citibank as depositary bank pursuant to a deposit agreement dated as of July 18, 2005, as amended and restated by the amended and restated deposit agreement, dated as of April 9, 2007. A copy of the form of amended and restated deposit agreement (the "deposit agreement") is on file with the SEC under cover of a Registration Statement on Form F-6 (File No. 333-141820). You may obtain a copy of the deposit agreement from the SEC's Public Reference Room at Headquarters Office, 100 F Street, N.E., Room 1580, Washington, D.C. 20549 and from the SEC's website (<http://www.sec.gov>). Please refer to Registration Number 333-141820 when retrieving such copy.

We are providing you with a summary description of the material terms of the ADSs and of your material rights as an owner of ADSs. Please remember that summaries by their nature lack the precision of the information summarized and that a holder's rights and obligations as an owner of ADSs will be determined by reference to the terms of the deposit agreement and not by this summary. We urge you to review the deposit agreement in its entirety.

Each ADS represents the right to receive five ordinary shares on deposit with the custodian. An ADS will also represent the right to receive any other property received by the depositary bank or the custodian on behalf of the owner of the ADS but that has not been distributed to the owners of ADSs because of legal restrictions or practical considerations.

If you become an owner of ADSs, you will become a party to the deposit agreement and therefore will be bound to its terms and to the terms of the ADR that represents your ADSs. The deposit agreement and the ADR specify our rights and obligations as well as your rights and obligations as owner of ADSs and those of the depositary bank. As an ADS holder you appoint the depositary bank to act on your behalf in certain circumstances. The deposit agreement and the ADRs are governed by New York law. However, our obligations to the holders of ordinary shares will continue to be governed by the laws of the Cayman Islands which may be different from the laws in the United States.

In addition, applicable laws and regulations may require you to satisfy reporting requirements and obtain regulatory approvals in certain circumstances. You are solely responsible for complying with such reporting requirements and obtaining such approvals. Neither the depositary, the custodian, us or any of their or our respective agents or affiliates shall be required to take any actions whatsoever on behalf of you to satisfy such reporting requirements or obtain such regulatory approvals under applicable laws and regulations.

As an owner of ADSs, you may hold your ADSs either by means of an ADR registered in your name, through a brokerage or safekeeping account, or through an account established by the depositary bank in your name reflecting the registration of uncertificated ADSs directly on the books of the depositary bank (commonly referred to as the "direct registration system" or "DRS"). The direct registration system reflects the uncertificated (book-entry) registration of ownership of ADSs by the depositary bank. Under the direct registration system, ownership of ADSs is evidenced by periodic statements issued by the depositary bank to the holders of the ADSs. The direct registration system includes automated transfers between the depositary bank and The Depository Trust Company ("DTC"), the central book-entry clearing and settlement system for equity securities in the United States. If you decide to hold your ADSs through your brokerage or safekeeping account, you must rely on the procedures of your broker or bank to assert your rights as ADS owner. Banks and brokers typically hold securities such as the ADSs through clearing and settlement systems such as DTC. The procedures of such clearing and settlement systems may limit your ability to exercise your rights as an owner of ADSs. Please consult with your broker or bank if you have any questions concerning these limitations and procedures. This summary description assumes you have opted to own the ADSs directly by means of an ADS registered in your name and, as such, we will refer to you as the “holder”. When we refer to “you,” we assume the reader owns ADSs and will own ADSs at the relevant time.

Dividends and Distributions

As a holder, you generally have the right to receive the distributions we make on the securities deposited with the custodian bank. Your receipt of these distributions may be limited, however, by practical considerations and legal limitations. Holders will receive such distributions under the terms of the deposit agreement in proportion to the number of ADSs held as of a specified record date.

Distributions of Cash

Whenever we make a cash distribution for the securities on deposit with the custodian, we will deposit the funds with the custodian. Upon receipt of confirmation of the deposit of the requisite funds, the depositary bank will arrange for the funds to be converted into U.S. dollars and for the distribution of the U.S. dollars to the holders, subject to the laws of the Cayman Islands and regulations.

The conversion into U.S. dollars will take place only if practicable and if the U.S. dollars are transferable to the United States. The amounts distributed to holders will be net of the fees, expenses, taxes and governmental charges payable by holders under the terms of the deposit agreement. The depositary will apply the same method for distributing the proceeds of the sale of any property (such as undistributed rights) held by the custodian in respect of securities on deposit.

The distribution of cash will be made net of the fees, expenses, taxes and governmental charges payable by holders under the terms of the deposit agreement.

Distributions of Shares

Whenever we make a free distribution of ordinary shares for the securities on deposit with the custodian, we will deposit the applicable number of shares with the custodian. Upon receipt of confirmation of such deposit, the depositary bank will either distribute to holders new ADSs representing the ordinary shares deposited or modify the ADS-to-ordinary shares ratio, in which case each ADS you hold will represent rights and interests in the additional shares so deposited. Only whole new ADSs will be distributed. Fractional entitlements will be sold and the proceeds of such sale will be distributed as in the case of a cash distribution.

The distribution of new ADSs or the modification of the ADS-to-shares ratio upon a distribution of shares will be made net of the fees, expenses, taxes and governmental charges payable by holders under the terms of the deposit agreement. In order to pay such taxes or governmental charges, the depositary bank may sell all or a portion of the new shares so distributed.

No such distribution of new ADSs will be made if it would violate a law (i.e., the U.S. securities laws) or if it is not operationally practicable. If the depositary bank does not distribute new ADSs as described above, it may sell the ordinary shares received upon the terms described in the deposit agreement and will distribute the proceeds of the sale as in the case of a distribution of cash.

Distributions of Rights

Whenever we intend to distribute rights to purchase additional ordinary shares, we will give prior notice to the depositary bank and we will assist the depositary bank in determining whether it is lawful and reasonably practicable to distribute rights to purchase additional ADSs to holders.

The depositary bank will establish procedures to distribute rights to purchase additional ADSs to holders and to enable such holders to exercise such rights if it is lawful and reasonably practicable to make the rights available to holders of ADSs, and if we provide all of the documentation contemplated in the deposit agreement (such as opinions to address the lawfulness of the transaction). You may have to pay fees, expenses, taxes and other governmental charges to subscribe for the new ADSs upon the exercise of your rights. The depositary bank is not obligated to establish procedures to facilitate the distribution and exercise by holders of rights to purchase new ordinary shares other than in the form of ADSs.

The depositary bank will not distribute the rights to you if:

- We do not timely request that the rights be distributed to you or we request that the rights not be distributed to you; or
- We fail to deliver satisfactory documents to the depositary bank; or
- It is not reasonably practicable to distribute the rights.

The depositary bank will sell the rights that are not exercised or not distributed if such sale is lawful and reasonably practicable. The proceeds of such sale will be distributed to holders as in the case of a cash distribution. If the depositary bank is unable to sell the rights, it will allow the rights to lapse.

Elective Distributions

Whenever we intend to distribute a dividend payable at the election of shareholders either in cash or in additional shares, we will give prior notice thereof to the depositary bank and will indicate whether we wish the elective distribution to be made available to you. In such case, we will assist the depositary bank in determining whether such distribution is lawful and reasonably practicable.

The depositary bank will make the election available to you only if it is reasonably practical and if we have provided all of the documentation contemplated in the deposit agreement. In such case, the depositary bank will establish procedures to enable you to elect to receive either cash or additional ADSs, in each case as described in the deposit agreement.

If the election is not made available to you, you will receive either cash or additional ADSs, depending on what a shareholder in the Cayman Islands would receive upon failing to make an election, as more fully described in the deposit agreement.

Other Distributions

Whenever we intend to distribute property other than cash, ordinary shares or rights to purchase additional ordinary shares, we will notify the depositary bank in advance and will indicate whether we wish such distribution to be made to you. If so, we will assist the depositary bank in determining whether such distribution to holders is lawful and reasonably practicable.

If it is reasonably practicable to distribute such property to you and if we provide all of the documentation contemplated in the deposit agreement, the depositary bank will distribute the property to the holders in a manner it deems practicable.

The distribution will be made net of fees, expenses, taxes and governmental charges payable by holders under the terms of the deposit agreement. In order to pay such taxes and governmental charges, the depositary bank may sell all or a portion of the property received.

The depositary bank will not distribute the property to you and will sell the property if:

- We do not request that the property be distributed to you or if we ask that the property not be distributed to you; or
- We do not deliver satisfactory documents to the depositary bank; or
- The depositary bank determines that all or a portion of the distribution to you is not reasonably practicable.

The proceeds of such a sale will be distributed to holders as in the case of a cash distribution.

Table of ContentsRedemption

Whenever we decide to redeem any of the securities on deposit with the custodian, we will notify the depositary bank. If it is reasonably practicable and if we provide all of the documentation contemplated in the deposit agreement, the depositary bank will mail notice of the redemption to the holders.

The custodian will be instructed to surrender the shares being redeemed against payment of the applicable redemption price. The depositary bank will convert the redemption funds received into U.S. dollars upon the terms of the deposit agreement and will establish procedures to enable holders to receive the net proceeds from the redemption upon surrender of their ADSs to the depositary bank. You may have to pay fees, expenses, taxes and other governmental charges upon the redemption of your ADSs. If less than all ADSs are being redeemed, the ADSs to be retired will be selected by lot or on a pro rata basis, as the depositary bank may determine.

Changes Affecting Shares

The ordinary shares held on deposit for your ADSs may change from time to time. For example, there may be a change in nominal or par value, a split-up, cancellation, consolidation or reclassification of such shares or a recapitalization, reorganization, merger, consolidation or sale of assets.

If any such change were to occur, your ADSs would, to the extent permitted by law, represent the right to receive the property received or exchanged in respect of the ordinary shares held on deposit. The depositary bank may in such circumstances deliver new ADSs to you or call for the exchange of your existing ADSs for new ADSs. If the depositary bank may not lawfully distribute such property to you, the depositary bank may sell such property and distribute the net proceeds to you as in the case of a cash distribution.

Issuance Of ADSs Upon Deposit of Ordinary Shares

The depositary bank may create ADSs on your behalf if you or your broker deposit ordinary shares with the custodian. The depositary bank will deliver these ADSs to the person you indicate only after you pay any applicable issuance fees and any charges and taxes payable for the transfer of the ordinary shares to the custodian. Your ability to deposit ordinary shares and receive ADSs may be limited by U.S. and legal considerations in the Cayman Islands applicable at the time of deposit.

The issuance of ADSs may be delayed until the depositary bank or the custodian receives confirmation that all required approvals have been given and that the ordinary shares have been duly transferred to the custodian. The depositary bank will only issue ADSs in whole numbers.

When you make a deposit of ordinary shares, you will be responsible for transferring good and valid title to the depositary bank. As such, you will be deemed to represent and warrant that:

- The ordinary shares are duly authorized, validly issued, fully paid, non-assessable and legally obtained.
- All preemptive (and similar) rights, if any, with respect to such ordinary shares have been validly waived or exercised.
- You are duly authorized to deposit the ordinary shares.
- The ordinary shares presented for deposit are free and clear of any lien, encumbrance, security interest, charge, mortgage or adverse claim, and are not, and the ADSs issuable upon such deposit will not be, "restricted securities" (as defined in the deposit agreement).
- The shares presented for deposit have not been stripped of any rights or entitlements.

If any of the representations or warranties are incorrect in any way, we and the depositary bank may, at your cost and expense, take any and all actions necessary to correct the consequences of the misrepresentations.

Table of ContentsTransfer, Combination And Split Up Of ADRs

As an ADR holder, you will be entitled to transfer, combine or split up your ADRs and the ADSs evidenced thereby. For transfers of ADRs, you will have to surrender the ADRs to be transferred to the depositary bank and also must:

- Ensure that the surrendered ADR certificate is properly endorsed or otherwise in proper form for transfer;
- Provide such proof of identity and genuineness of signatures as the depositary bank deems appropriate;
- Provide any transfer stamps required by the State of New York or the United States; and
- Pay all applicable fees, charges, expenses, taxes and other government charges payable by ADR holders pursuant to the terms of the deposit agreement, upon the transfer of ADRs.

To have your ADRs either combined or split up, you must surrender the ADRs in question to the depositary bank with your request to have them combined or split up, and you must pay all applicable fees, charges and expenses payable by ADR holders, pursuant to the terms of the deposit agreement, upon a combination or split up of ADRs.

Withdrawal of Shares upon Cancellation of ADSs

As a holder, you will be entitled to present your ADSs to the depositary bank for cancellation and then receive the corresponding number of underlying ordinary shares at the custodian's offices. Your ability to withdraw the ordinary shares may be limited by U.S. and legal considerations applicable at the time of withdrawal. In order to withdraw the ordinary shares represented by your ADSs, you will be required to pay to the depositary the fees for cancellation of ADSs and any charges and taxes payable upon the transfer of the ordinary shares being withdrawn. You assume the risk for delivery of all funds and securities upon withdrawal. Once canceled, the ADSs will not have any rights under the deposit agreement.

If you hold ADSs registered in your name, the depositary bank may ask you to provide proof of identity and genuineness of any signature and such other documents as the depositary bank may deem appropriate before it will cancel your ADSs. The withdrawal of the shares represented by your ADSs may be delayed until the depositary bank receives satisfactory evidence of compliance with all applicable laws and regulations. Please keep in mind that the depositary bank will only accept ADSs for cancellation that represent a whole number of securities on deposit.

You will have the right to withdraw the securities represented by your ADSs at any time except for:

- Temporary delays that may arise because (i) the transfer books for the ordinary shares or ADSs are closed, or (ii) ordinary shares are immobilized on account of a shareholders' meeting or a payment of dividends.
- Obligations to pay fees, taxes and similar charges.
- Restrictions imposed because of laws or regulations applicable to ADSs or the withdrawal of securities on deposit.

The deposit agreement may not be modified to impair your right to withdraw the securities represented by your ADSs except to comply with mandatory provisions of law.

Voting Rights

As a holder, you generally have the right under the deposit agreement to instruct the depositary bank to exercise the voting rights for the ordinary shares represented by your ADSs. The voting rights of holders of ordinary shares are described in "Description of Share Capital — Voting Rights Attaching to the Shares" above.

At our request, the depositary bank will distribute to you any notice of shareholders' meeting received from us together with information explaining how to instruct the depositary bank to exercise the voting rights of the securities represented by ADSs.

If the depositary bank timely receives voting instructions from a holder of ADSs, it will endeavor to vote the securities represented by the holder's ADSs in accordance with such voting instructions.

In the event of voting by a show of hands, each shareholder has one vote irrespective of the number of shares held by such person and the depositary shall vote or cause the custodian to vote all the shares then on deposit in accordance with instructions received from a majority of holders giving voting instructions. In the event of poll voting, each shareholder has an amount of votes equal to the number of shares held as of record date for the meeting and the depositary shall vote or cause the custodian to vote the shares on deposit in respect of ADSs for which holder of ADSs have timely given voting instructions to the depositary.

If the depositary timely receives voting instructions from a holder of ADSs that fail to specify the manner in which the depositary is to vote the shares represented by that holder's ADSs, the depositary will deem the holder to have voted in favor of the items set forth in the voting instructions. If the depositary does not timely receive voting instructions from a holder of ADSs and we have timely provided the depositary with our notice of meeting and related materials, that holder will be deemed, and the depositary will deem that holder to have instructed the depositary to give a discretionary proxy to a person designated by us to vote the shares represented by the ADSs at our discretion, unless:

- we have failed to timely provide the depositary with our notice of meeting and related voting materials;
- we have instructed the depositary that we do not wish a discretionary proxy to be given;
- we have informed the depositary that there is substantial opposition as to a matter to be voted on at the meeting;
- a matter to be voted on at the meeting would have a material adverse impact on shareholders; or
- voting at the meeting is made on a show of hands.

Please note that the ability of the depositary bank to carry out voting instructions may be limited by practical and legal limitations and the terms of the securities on deposit. We cannot assure you that you will receive voting materials in time to enable you to return voting instructions to the depositary bank in a timely manner. Securities for which no voting instructions have been received will not be voted.

Fees and Charges

As an ADS holder, you will be required to pay the following service fees to the depositary bank:

Service	Fees
Issuance of ADSs	Up to U.S. 5¢ per ADS issued
Cancellation of ADSs	Up to U.S. 5¢ per ADS canceled
Distribution of cash dividends or other cash distributions	Up to U.S. 2¢ per ADS held
Distribution of ADSs pursuant to share dividends, free share distributions or exercise of rights	Up to U.S. 5¢ per ADS issued
Distribution of securities other than ADSs or rights to purchase additional ADSs	Up to U.S. 5¢ per share (or share equivalent) distributed

Transfer of ADRs	U.S. $1.50 per certificate presented for transfer

As an ADS holder you will also be responsible to pay certain fees and expenses incurred by the depositary bank and certain taxes and governmental charges such as:

- Fees for the transfer and registration of ordinary shares charged by the registrar and transfer agent for the ordinary shares in the Cayman Islands (i.e., upon deposit and withdrawal of ordinary shares).
- Expenses incurred for converting foreign currency into U.S. dollars.
- Expenses for cable, telex and fax transmissions and for delivery of securities.

Table of Contents

- Taxes and duties upon the transfer of securities (i.e., when ordinary shares are deposited or withdrawn from deposit).
- Fees and expenses incurred in connection with the delivery or servicing of ordinary shares on deposit.

We have agreed to pay certain other charges and expenses of the depositary bank. Note that the fees and charges you may be required to pay may vary over time and may be changed by us and by the depositary bank. You will receive prior notice of such changes.

Amendments and Termination

We may agree with the depositary bank to modify the deposit agreement at any time without your consent. We undertake to give holders 30 days' prior notice of any modifications that would materially prejudice any of their substantial rights under the deposit agreement. We will not consider to be materially prejudicial to your substantial rights any modifications or supplements that are reasonably necessary for the ADSs to be registered under the Securities Act or to be eligible for book-entry settlement, in each case without imposing or increasing the fees and charges you are required to pay. In addition, we may not be able to provide you with prior notice of any modifications or supplements that are required to accommodate compliance with applicable provisions of law.

You will be bound by the modifications to the deposit agreement if you continue to hold your ADSs after the modifications to the deposit agreement become effective. The deposit agreement cannot be amended to prevent you from withdrawing the ordinary shares represented by your ADSs (except as permitted by law).

We have the right to direct the depositary bank to terminate the deposit agreement. Similarly, the depositary bank may in certain circumstances on its own initiative terminate the deposit agreement. In either case, the depositary bank must give notice to the holders at least 30 days before termination.

Upon termination, the following will occur under the deposit agreement:

- for a period of six months after termination, you will be able to request the cancellation of your ADSs and the withdrawal of the ordinary shares represented by your ADSs and the delivery of all other property held by the depositary bank in respect of those ordinary shares on the same terms as prior to the termination. During such six-month period, the depositary bank will continue to collect all distributions received on the ordinary shares on deposit (i.e., dividends) but will not distribute any such property to you until you request the cancellation of your ADSs.
- After the expiration of such six-month period, the depositary bank may sell the securities held on deposit. The depositary bank will hold the proceeds from such sale and any other funds then held for the holders of ADSs in a non-interest bearing account. At that point, the depositary bank will have no further obligations to holders other than to account for the funds then held for the holders of ADSs still outstanding.

Books of Depositary

The depositary bank will maintain ADS holder records at its depositary office. You may inspect such records at such office during regular business hours but solely for the purpose of communicating with other holders in the interest of business matters relating to the ADSs and the deposit agreement.

The depositary bank will maintain in New York facilities to record and process the issuance, cancellation, combination, split-up and transfer of ADRs. These facilities may be closed from time to time, to the extent not prohibited by law.

Limitations on Obligations and Liabilities

The deposit agreement limits our obligations and the depositary bank's obligations to you. Please note the following:

- We and the depositary bank are obligated only to take the actions specifically stated in the deposit agreement without negligence or bad faith.

- The depositary bank disclaims any liability for any failure to carry out voting instructions, for any manner in which a vote is cast or for the effect of any vote, provided that it acts in good faith and in accordance with the terms of the deposit agreement.
- The depositary bank disclaims any liability for any failure to determine the lawfulness or practicality of any action, for the content of any document forwarded to you on our behalf or for the accuracy of any translation of such a document, for the investment risks associated with investing in ordinary shares, for the validity or worth of the ordinary shares, for any tax consequences that result from the ownership of ADSs, for the credit-worthiness of any third party, for allowing any rights to lapse under the terms of the deposit agreement, for the timeliness of any of our notices or for our failure to give notice.
- We and the depositary bank will not be obligated to perform any act that is inconsistent with the terms of the deposit agreement.
- We and the depositary bank disclaim any liability if we are prevented or forbidden from acting on account of any law or regulation, any provision of our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association, any provision of any securities on deposit or by reason of any act of God or war or other circumstances beyond our control.
- We and the depositary bank disclaim any liability by reason of any exercise of, or failure to exercise, any discretion provided for in the deposit agreement or in our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association or in any provisions of securities on deposit.
- We and the depositary bank further disclaim any liability for any action or inaction in reliance on the advice or information received from legal counsel, accountants, any person presenting shares for deposit, any holder of ADSs or authorized representatives thereof, or any other person believed by either of us in good faith to be competent to give such advice or information.
- We and the depositary bank also disclaim liability for the inability by a holder to benefit from any distribution, offering, right or other benefit which is made available to holders of ordinary shares but is not, under the terms of the deposit agreement, made available to you.
- We and the depositary bank may rely without any liability upon any written notice, request or other document believed to be genuine and to have been signed or presented by the proper parties.
- We and the depositary bank also disclaim liability for any consequential or punitive damages for any breach of the terms of the deposit agreement.

Pre-release Transactions

The depositary bank may, in certain circumstances, issue ADSs before receiving a deposit of ordinary shares or release ordinary shares before receiving ADSs for cancellation. These transactions are commonly referred to as “pre-release transactions”. The deposit agreement limits the aggregate size of pre-release transactions and imposes a number of conditions on such transactions (i.e., the need to fully collateralize, the type of collateral required, the representations required from brokers, etc.). The depositary bank may retain the compensation received from the pre-release transactions.

Taxes

You will be responsible for the taxes and other governmental charges payable on the ADSs and the securities represented by the ADSs. We, the depositary bank and the custodian may deduct from any distribution the taxes and governmental charges payable by holders and may sell any and all property on deposit to pay the taxes and governmental charges payable by holders. You will be liable for any deficiency if the sale proceeds do not cover the taxes that are due.

The depositary bank may refuse to issue ADSs, to deliver, transfer, split and combine ADRs or to release securities on deposit until all taxes and charges are paid by the applicable holder. The depositary bank and the custodian may take reasonable administrative actions to obtain tax refunds and reduced tax withholding for any distributions on your behalf. However, you may be required to provide to the depository bank and to the custodian proof of taxpayer status and residence and such other information as the depository bank and the custodian may require to fulfill legal obligations. You are required to indemnify us, the depository bank and the custodian for any claims with respect to taxes based on any tax benefit obtained for you.

Foreign Currency Conversion

The depository bank will arrange for the conversion of all foreign currency received into U.S. dollars if such conversion is practical, and it will distribute the U.S. dollars in accordance with the terms of the deposit agreement. You may have to pay fees and expenses incurred in converting foreign currency, such as fees and expenses incurred in complying with currency exchange controls and other governmental requirements.

If the conversion of foreign currency is not practical or lawful, or if any required approvals are denied or not obtainable at a reasonable cost or within a reasonable period, the depository bank may take the following actions in its discretion:

- Convert the foreign currency to the extent practical and lawful and distribute the U.S. dollars to the holders for whom the conversion and distribution is lawful and practical.
- Distribute the foreign currency to holders for whom the distribution is lawful and practical.
- Hold the foreign currency (without liability for interest) for the applicable holders.

Table of ContentsSHARES ELIGIBLE FOR FUTURE SALE

Upon completion of this offering, we will have outstanding 111,930,414 ADSs representing approximately 87.02% of our ordinary shares assuming no exercise by the underwriters of their over-allotment option. All of the ADSs sold in this offering and the ordinary shares they represent will be freely transferable by persons other than our "affiliates" without restriction or further registration under the Securities Act. Sales of substantial amounts of our ADSs in the public market could adversely affect prevailing market prices of our ADSs.

Lock-up Agreements

We have agreed with the underwriters that we will not, without the prior consent of Merrill Lynch, for a period of 90 days following the date of this prospectus:

- offer, pledge, announce the intention to sell, sell, contract to sell, sell any option or contract to purchase, purchase any option or contract to sell, grant any option, right or warrant to purchase or otherwise transfer or dispose of, directly or indirectly, or file a registration statement with respect to any of the ADSs or our ordinary shares or any securities that are convertible into or exercisable or exchangeable for the ADSs or our ordinary shares; or
- enter into any swap or other agreement that transfers to any other entity, in whole or in part, any of the economic consequences of ownership of our ADSs or ordinary shares;

whether any transaction described above is to be settled by the delivery of ADSs, our ordinary shares or such other securities, in cash or otherwise. The restrictions above do not apply to (1) the ADSs to be sold in this offering and the ordinary shares underlying such ADSs, (2) or the issuance of our ordinary shares in connection with bona fide strategic acquisitions by us not to exceed 32.0 million ordinary shares of our company in the aggregate, (3) grants of options pursuant to our employee stock option plans or (4) any ordinary shares of our company to be issued by us upon the exercise of any options described in clause (3) above granted as of June 30, 2007.

The underwriters may release other securities held by us that are currently subject to lock-up, subject to applicable FINRA regulations. The underwriters have no pre-established conditions to waiving the terms of the lock-up agreements, and any decision by them to waive those conditions would depend on a number of factors, which may include market conditions, the performance of our ADSs in the market and our financial condition at that time.

In connection with our acquisition of Allyes, the former Allyes shareholders entered into lock-up agreements with us in which they agreed not to sell or otherwise dispose of any of our ordinary shares received as part of the initial share consideration payment to them until 180 days after completion of the acquisition, at which time each will be able to sell up to 50% of the shares received as part of the initial share consideration payment. The remaining 50% of the shares will be locked-up until the anniversary of the completion of the acquisition. Any additional shares they may receive upon payment of the earn-out payment, if any, will not be subject to lock-up. See "Our Recent Significant Acquisitions".

Under Rule 144 as currently in effect, beginning twelve months after the date of our most recently filed annual report a person who owns our restricted ordinary shares and who has beneficially owned those shares for at least one year is entitled to sell within any three-month period a number of shares, including ADSs representing such number of shares, that does not exceed the greater of the following:

- 1% of the number of our ordinary shares then outstanding, in the form of ADSs or otherwise, which will equal approximately 4 million shares immediately after this offering; and
- the average weekly trading volume of our ADSs on the Nasdaq Global Market during the four calendar weeks preceding the date on which notice of the sale is filed with the SEC.

Sales under Rule 144 are also subject to manner of sale provisions, notice requirements and the availability of current public information about us. Persons who are not our affiliates may be exempt from these restrictions under Rule 144(k) discussed below.

Rule 144(k)

Under Rule 144(k), a person who is not one of our affiliates at any time during the three months preceding a sale, and who has beneficially owned the shares, in the form of ADSs or otherwise, proposed to be sold for at least two years, including the holding period of any prior owner other than an affiliate, is entitled to sell those shares without complying with the manner of sale, public information, volume limitation or notice provisions of Rule 144. Therefore, unless otherwise restricted, “144(k) shares” may be sold at any time.

Registration Rights

Upon the closing of our acquisition of Allyes, we granted the former shareholders of Allyes registration rights with regard to the ordinary shares we issued to them. Under the terms of our agreement with the former Allyes shareholders:

- prior to September 18, 2009 or prior to the time when the shares proposed to be sold by the former Allyes shareholders may be sold in a 90-day period under Rule 144, any former Allyes shareholders or shareholders holding 3 million of our ordinary shares in aggregate may request that we effect the registration of the ordinary shares held by them, provided that if the offering is part of an underwritten offering, the expected proceeds from such an offering would not be less than 40 million; we are obligated to effect up to three such registrations; and
- one of the Allyes shareholders, Magic Elite, on a date at least 150 days and no more than 330 days following March 28, 2007, may request that we effect the registration of the ordinary shares held by the shareholder; we are obligated to effect only one such registration.

We are not obligated to take any action to effect any such registration more than once in any six month period or within six months of any other public offering we conduct in which they had the opportunity to participate without the exclusion of any shares eligible for registration under the shareholders agreement.

Registrable securities are ordinary shares issued or issuable to the former Allyes shareholders. We are not, however, obligated to effect any such demand registration:

- if we, within ten days of receipt of a request for such registration, give notice of our bona fide intention to effect the filing of a registration statement with the SEC (or any comparable regulatory agency for a registration in a jurisdiction other than the United States) within 60 days of receipt of such request (other than a registration of securities in a business combination transaction pursuant to Rule 145 under the Securities Act or an offering solely to employees);
- within six months immediately following the effective date of any registration statement pertaining to our securities (other than a registration of securities in a transaction pursuant to Rule 145 under the Securities Act or with respect to an employee benefit plan); or
- if we furnish to the holders of registrable securities a certificate signed by our Chief Executive Officer stating that in the good faith judgment of our Board of Directors, it would be materially detrimental to us or our shareholders for a registration statement to be filed in the near future, in which event we have the right to defer the filing of the registration statement, no more than once during any 12 month period, for a period not to exceed 90 days from the receipt of the request to file such registration statement.

Holders of registrable securities also have “piggyback” registration rights, which may require us to register all or any part of the registrable securities then held by such holders when we register any of our ordinary shares other than a registration:

- relating solely to the sale of securities to participants in our share option plan;
- relating to a corporate reorganization or other transaction pursuant to Rule 145 under the Securities Act;

- on any form that does not include substantially the same information as would be required to be included in a registration statement covering the sale of the registrable securities; and

If any of the offerings involves an underwriting, the managing underwriter of any such offering has certain rights to limit the number of shares included in such registration. However, the number of registrable securities included in an underwritten public offering subsequent to our initial public offering pursuant to “piggyback” registration rights may not be reduced to less than 30% of the aggregate securities included in such offering.

We are not obligated to register any registrable securities if, in the opinion of counsel retained by us concurred in by counsel for the holder of registrable securities, no registration under the Securities Act (or comparable law) is required in connection with the sale of the registrable securities to the public.

Share Option Plan

Since July 2003, when we first granted options to purchase our ordinary shares, we have granted in options to purchase in aggregate 76,110,615 of our ordinary shares. All of these ordinary shares are or will be eligible for sale in the public market from time to time, subject to vesting and exercise provisions of the options, Rule 144 volume limitations applicable to our affiliates and other holders of restricted shares and the lock-up agreements.

We filed a registration statement under the Securities Act covering a total of 44,251,830 ordinary shares reserved for issuance under our 2003 Plan and 2005 Plan on February 28, 2006. The ordinary shares registered under such registration statement, subject to the lockup agreements and Rule 144 volume limitations applicable to affiliates, are available for sale in the open market upon the exercise of vested options.

Table of ContentsTAXATION*Cayman Islands Taxation

The Cayman Islands currently levies no taxes on individuals or corporations based upon profits, income, gains or appreciation and there is no taxation in the nature of inheritance tax or estate duty or withholding tax applicable to us or to any holder of ADS, or ordinary shares. There are no other taxes likely to be material to us levied by the Government of the Cayman Islands except for stamp duties which may be applicable on instruments executed in, or after execution brought within the jurisdiction of the Cayman Islands. No stamp duty is payable in the Cayman Islands on transfers of shares of Cayman Islands companies except those which hold interests in land in the Cayman Islands. The Cayman Islands is not party to any double taxation treaties. There are no exchange control regulations or currency restrictions in the Cayman Islands.

Pursuant to Section 6 of the Tax Concessions Law (1999 Revision) of the Cayman Islands, we have obtained an undertaking from the Governor-in-Council:

- (1) that no law which is enacted in the Cayman Islands imposing any tax to be levied on profits or income or gains or appreciation shall apply to us or our operations; and
- (2) that the aforesaid tax or any tax in the nature of estate duty or inheritance tax shall not be payable on the shares, debentures or other obligations of the Company.

The undertaking for us is for a period of twenty years from May 3, 2005.

People's Republic of China Taxation

Under the Income Tax Law for Enterprises with Foreign Investment and Foreign Enterprises currently in effect, any dividends payable by foreign-invested enterprises to non-PRC investors are exempt from any PRC withholding tax. In addition, under currently effective PRC laws, any dividends payable, or distributions made, by us to holders or beneficial owners of our ADSs will not be subject to any PRC tax, provided that such holders or beneficial owners are not deemed as PRC residents, including individuals and enterprises, under the PRC tax law and have not become subject to PRC tax.

On March 16, 2007, the National People's Congress approved and promulgated a new tax law named "Enterprise Income Tax Law of the PRC", or the EIT Law, which will take effect beginning January 1, 2008. Under the EIT Law, enterprises established under the laws of non-PRC jurisdictions but whose "de facto management body" is located in the PRC are considered "resident enterprises" for PRC tax purposes. The EIT Law does not define the term "de facto management" and it is currently unclear under which situation a non-PRC enterprise's "de facto management body" is considered to be located in the PRC. However, substantially all of our management is currently based in the PRC, and may remain in the PRC after the effectiveness of the EIT Law. If we are treated as a "resident enterprise" for PRC tax purposes, we will be subject to PRC income tax on our worldwide income at a uniform tax rate of 25%, which will include the dividend income we receive from our subsidiaries. In addition, although the EIT Law provides that dividend income between qualified "resident enterprises" is exempted income, it is unclear what is considered to be a qualified "resident enterprise" under the EIT Law.

Moreover, the EIT Law provides that an income tax rate of 20% will normally be applicable to dividends payable to non-PRC investors who are individuals or considered as "non-resident enterprise", to the extent such dividends are derived from sources within the PRC, although such income tax may be subsequently exempted or reduced by the State Council. We are a Cayman Islands holding company and substantially all of our income may be derived from dividends we receive from our operating subsidiaries located in the PRC. If we declare dividends from such income, it is unclear whether such dividends will be deemed to be derived from sources within the PRC under the EIT law and be subject to the 20% income tax.

In addition, under the EIT Law, foreign shareholders enterprise and enterprise ADSs holders may be subject to a 20% income tax upon any gains they realize from the transfer of their shares or ADSs, if such income is regarded as income from sources within the PRC. However, what will constitute as income from sources within the PRC and whether or not there will be any exemption or reduction in taxation for our foreign shareholders or ADS holders are still currently unclear.

United States Federal Income Taxation

The following summary describes the material United States federal income tax consequences to U.S. Holders (defined below) under present law of an investment in the ADSs or ordinary shares. This summary applies only to investors that acquire their ADSs or ordinary shares in the offering, that hold the ADSs or ordinary shares as capital assets and that have the U.S. dollar as their functional currency. This discussion is based on the tax laws of the United States as in effect on the date of this Prospectus and on U.S. Treasury regulations in effect or, in some cases, proposed, as of the date of this prospectus, as well as judicial and administrative interpretations thereof available on or before such date. All of the foregoing authorities are subject to change, which change could apply retroactively and could affect the tax consequences described below.

The following discussion does not deal with the tax consequences to any particular investor or to persons in special tax situations such as:

- banks;
- certain financial institutions;
- insurance companies;
- a regulated investment company;
- a real estate investment trust;
- broker dealers;
- U.S. expatriates;
- traders that elect to mark to market;
- tax-exempt entities;
- persons liable for alternative minimum tax;
- persons holding an ADS or ordinary share as part of a straddle, hedging, conversion or integrated transaction;
- persons that actually or constructively own 10.0% or more of our voting stock; or
- persons holding ADSs or ordinary shares through partnerships or other pass-through entities.

The discussion below of the U.S. federal income tax consequences to “U.S. Holders” will apply if you are a beneficial owner of ADSs or ordinary shares and you are, for U.S. federal income tax purposes,

- an individual citizen or resident of the United States;
- a corporation (or other entity taxable as a corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes) organized under the laws of the United States, any State thereof or the District of Columbia;
- an estate whose income is subject to U.S. federal income taxation regardless of its source; or
- a trust that (1) is subject to the primary supervision of a court within the United States and one or more U.S. persons control all substantial decisions of the trust or (2) has a valid election in effect under applicable U.S. Treasury regulations to be treated as a U.S. person.

If you are a partner in partnership or other entity taxable as a partnership that holds ADSs or ordinary shares, your tax treatment generally will depend on your status and the activities of the partnership.

PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS ARE URGED TO CONSULT THEIR TAX ADVISORS ABOUT THE APPLICATION OF THE U.S. FEDERAL TAX RULES TO THEIR PARTICULAR

Table of ContentsCIRCUMSTANCES AS WELL AS THE STATE AND LOCAL AND FOREIGN TAX CONSEQUENCES TO THEM OF THE PURCHASE, OWNERSHIP AND DISPOSITION OF ADSs OR ORDINARY SHARES.

The discussion below assumes that the representations contained in the deposit agreement are true and that the obligations in the deposit agreement and any related agreement will be complied with in accordance with their terms. If you hold ADSs, you should be treated as the holder of the underlying ordinary shares represented by those ADSs for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Exchanges of ordinary shares for ADSs and ADSs for ordinary shares generally will not be subject to U.S. federal income tax.

The U.S. Treasury has expressed concerns that intermediaries in the chain of ownership between the holder of an ADS and the issuer of the security underlying the ADS may be taking actions that are inconsistent with the claiming, by U.S. Holders of ADSs, of foreign tax credits for U.S. federal income tax purposes. Such actions would also be inconsistent with the claiming of the reduced rate of tax applicable to dividends received by certain non-corporate U.S. Holders, as described below. Accordingly, the analysis of the creditability of PRC taxes, if any, and the availability of the reduced tax rate for dividends received by certain non-corporate holders below could be affected by actions taken by intermediaries in the chain of ownership between the holder of an ADS and our company.

Taxation of Dividends and Other Distributions on the ADSs or Ordinary Shares

The gross amount of all our distributions to you with respect to the ADSs or ordinary shares generally will be included in your gross income as foreign source dividend income on the date of actual or constructive receipt by the depository, in the case of ADSs, or by you, in the case of ordinary shares, but only to the extent that the distribution is paid out of our current or accumulated earnings and profits (as determined under U.S. federal income tax principles). The dividends will not be eligible for the dividends-received deduction allowed to corporations in respect of dividends received from other U.S. corporations.

With respect to non-corporate U.S. Holders including individual U.S. Holders, for taxable years beginning before January 1, 2011, certain dividends received from a qualified foreign corporation may be subject to reduced rates of taxation. A foreign corporation is treated as a qualified foreign corporation with respect to dividends paid by that corporation on shares (or ADSs backed by such shares) that are readily tradable on an established securities market in the United States. U.S. Treasury Department guidance indicates that our ADSs, but not our ordinary shares, are readily tradable on an established securities market in the United States. Thus, we believe that dividends we pay on our ordinary shares that are represented by ADSs, but not on our Shares that are not so represented, currently meet such conditions required for the reduced tax rates. There can be no assurance that our ADSs will be considered readily tradable on an established securities market in later years. A qualified foreign corporation also includes a foreign corporation that is eligible for the benefits of certain income tax treaties with the United States. In the event that we are deemed to be a Chinese "resident enterprise" under the PRC tax law, we may be eligible for the benefits of the income tax treaty between the United States and the PRC, and if we are eligible for such benefits, dividends we pay on our ordinary shares, regardless of whether such shares are represented by ADSs, would be subject to the reduced rates of taxation. See "— People's Republic of China Taxation." Non-corporate U.S. Holders that do not meet a minimum holding period requirement during which they are not protected from the risk of loss or that elect to treat the dividend income as "investment income" pursuant to Section 163(d)(4) of the Code will not be eligible for the reduced rates of taxation regardless of our status as a qualified foreign corporation. The rate reduction will also not apply to dividends if the recipient of a dividend is obligated to make related payments with respect to positions in substantially similar or related property. This disallowance applies even if the minimum holding period has been met. You are urged to consult your tax advisors regarding the availability of the lower rate for dividends paid with respect to our ADSs or ordinary shares.

To the extent that the amount of the distribution exceeds our current and accumulated earnings and profits, it will be treated first as a tax-free return of your tax basis in your ADSs or ordinary shares, and to the extent the amount of the distribution exceeds your tax basis, the excess will be taxed as capital gain. We do not intend to calculate our earnings and profits under U.S. federal income tax principles. Therefore, a U.S. Holder should expect that a distribution will generally be treated as a dividend.

In the event that we are deemed to be a Chinese “resident enterprise” under the PRC tax law, you may be subject to PRC withholding taxes on dividends paid to you with respect to the ADSs or ordinary shares. See discussion under “Taxation — People’s Republic of China Taxation”. In that case, however, you may be able to obtain a reduced rate of PRC withholding taxes under the treaty between the United States and the PRC if certain requirements are met. In addition, subject to certain conditions and limitations, PRC withholding taxes on dividends, if any, may be treated as foreign taxes eligible for credit against your U.S. federal income tax liability. The rules governing the foreign tax credit are complex. You are urged to consult your tax advisors regarding the availability of the foreign tax credit under your particular circumstances.

Taxation of Disposition of ADSs or Ordinary Shares

You will recognize taxable gain or loss on any sale, exchange or other taxable disposition of an ADS or ordinary share equal to the difference between the amount realized for the ADS or ordinary share and your tax basis in the ADS or ordinary share. The gain or loss generally will be capital gain or loss. If you are a non-corporate U.S. Holder, including an individual U.S. Holder, who has held the ADS or ordinary share for more than one year, you will be eligible for reduced tax rates. The deductibility of capital losses is subject to limitations. Any such gain or loss that you recognize will generally be treated as U.S. source income or loss for foreign tax credit limitation purposes. However, in the event that gain from the disposition of the ADSs or ordinary shares may be taxed in the PRC (see discussion under “Taxation — People’s Republic of China Taxation”), the gain would be treated as PRC-source income under the income tax treaty between the United States and the PRC. You are urged to consult your tax advisors regarding the tax consequences if a foreign tax is imposed on gain on a disposition of our ADSs or ordinary shares, including the availability of the foreign tax credit under your particular circumstances.

Passive Foreign Investment Company

We do not believe that we are, for U.S. federal income tax purposes, a passive foreign investment company (a “PFIC”), and we expect to operate in such a manner so as not to become a PFIC. If, however, we are or become a PFIC, you could be subject to additional U.S. federal income taxes on gain recognized with respect to the ADSs or ordinary shares and on certain distributions, plus an interest charge on certain taxes treated as having been deferred under the PFIC rules. Non-corporate U.S. Holders will not be eligible for reduced rates of taxation on any dividends received from us for taxable years beginning before January 1, 2011, if we are a PFIC in the taxable year in which such dividends are paid or in the preceding taxable year.

Information Reporting and Backup Withholding

Dividend payments with respect to ADSs or ordinary shares and proceeds from the sale, exchange or redemption of ADSs or ordinary shares may be subject to information reporting to the Internal Revenue Service, unless you are an exempt recipient such as a corporation. A backup withholding tax may apply, however, backup withholding will not apply to a U.S. Holder who furnishes a correct taxpayer identification number and makes any other required certification or who is otherwise exempt from backup withholding. U.S. Holders who are required to establish their exempt status generally must provide such certification on Internal Revenue Service Form W-9. You are urged to consult their tax advisors regarding the application of the U.S. information reporting and backup withholding rules.

Backup withholding is not an additional tax. Amounts withheld as backup withholding may be credited against your U.S. federal income tax liability, and you may obtain a refund of any excess amounts withheld under the backup withholding rules by filing the appropriate claim for refund with the Internal Revenue Service and furnishing any required information.

They may exercise that option for 30 days. Total expenses for this offering are estimated to be approximately $2.4 million, including SEC registration fees of $28,946, FINRA filing fees of $75,500, printing fees of approximately $400,000, legal fees of approximately $500,000, accounting fees of approximately $800,000, roadshow costs and expenses of approximately $120,000, travel and other out-of-pocket expenses of approximately $20,000 and ADS issuance fees of approximately $440,000. All amounts are estimated except for the fees relating to the SEC registration and the FINRA filing. The underwriters have agreed to pay for the roadshow, printing, out-of-pocket expenses and filing fees for this offering.

Some of the underwriters are expected to make offers and sales both inside and outside the United States through their respective selling agents. Any offers or sales in the United States will be conducted by broker-dealers registered with the SEC.

The underwriters have entered into an agreement in which they agree to restrictions on where and to whom they and any dealer purchasing from them may offer ADSs, as a part of the distribution of the ADSs. The underwriters also have agreed that they may sell ADSs among themselves.

Focus Media has agreed with the underwriters that it will not, without the prior consent of Merrill Lynch, for a period of 90 days following the date of this prospectus:

- offer, pledge, announce the intention to sell, sell, contract to sell, sell any option or contract to purchase, purchase any option or contract to sell, grant any option, right or warrant to purchase or otherwise transfer or dispose of, directly or indirectly, or file a registration statement with respect to any of the ADSs or its ordinary shares or any securities that are convertible into or exercisable or exchangeable for the ADSs or our ordinary shares; or whether any transaction described above is to be settled by the delivery of ADSs, its ordinary shares or such other securities, in cash or otherwise.
- enter into any swap or other agreement that transfers to any other entity, in whole or in part, any of the economic consequences of ownership of its ADSs or ordinary shares;

The 90-day restricted period described in the preceding paragraph will be automatically extended if (1) during the last 17 days of the 90-day restricted period the company issues an earnings release or announces material news or a material event; or (2) prior to the expiration of the 90-day restricted period, the company announces, or if the representatives of the underwriters determine, that the company will release earnings results during the 15-day period following the last day of the 90-day period, in which case the restrictions described in the preceding paragraph will continue to apply until the expiration of the 18-day period beginning on the issuance of the earnings release or the announcement of the material news or material event. The restrictions applicable to Focus Media do not apply to (1) the ADSs to be sold in this offering, and the ordinary shares underlying such ADSs, (2) the issuance of our ordinary shares in connection with bona fide strategic acquisitions by us not to exceed 32.0 million ordinary shares of our company in the aggregate, (3) grants of options pursuant to our employee stock option plans or (4) any ordinary shares of our company to be issued by us upon the exercise of any options described in clause (3) above granted as of June 30, 2007.

The lock-up period will be extended if, (i) during the final 17 days of the lock-up period, any earnings release or announcement of a material event or news or, (ii) prior to the expiry of a lock-up period, the Company announces that it will release earnings results during the 15-day period following the last day of the lock-up period. In each case the applicable lock-up period will be automatically extended until the expiration of the 18-day period beginning on the date of release of the earnings results or the announcement of the material news or material event, as applicable unless the representatives waive, in writing, such extension.

In connection with our acquisition of Allyes, the former Allyes shareholders entered into lock-up agreements with us in which they agreed not to sell or otherwise dispose of any of our ordinary shares received as part of the initial share consideration payment to them until 180 days after completion of the acquisition, at which time each will be able to sell up to 50% of the shares received as part of the initial share consideration payment. The remaining 50% of the shares will be locked-up until the anniversary of the completion of the acquisition. Any additional shares they may receive upon payment of the earn-out payment, if any, will not be subject to lock-up.

The representatives of the underwriters may release the securities subject to the above restrictions at any time, subject to applicable FINRA regulations. The representatives of the underwriters have no pre-established conditions to waiving the terms of the lock-up agreements, and any decision by them to waive those conditions would depend on a number of factors, which may include market conditions, the performance of Focus Media's ADSs in the market and Focus Media's financial condition at that time.

Our ADSs are listed for quotation on the Nasdaq Global Market under the symbol "FMCN".

In connection with the offering, the underwriters may purchase and sell ADSs in the open market. These transactions may include short sales, stabilizing transactions and purchases to cover positions created by short sales. Short sales involve the sale by the underwriters of a greater number of ADSs than they are required to purchase in the offering. "Covered" short sales are sales made in an amount not greater than the underwriters' option to purchase additional ADSs from Focus Media and the selling shareholders. The underwriters may close out any covered short position by either exercising their option to purchase additional ADSs or purchasing ADSs in the open market. In determining the source of ADSs to close out the covered short position, the underwriters will consider, among other things, the price of ADSs available for purchase in the open market as compared to the price at which they may purchase additional ADSs pursuant to the option granted to them. "Naked" short sales are any sales in excess of such option. The underwriters must close out any naked short position by purchasing ADSs in the open market. A naked short position is more likely to be created if the underwriters are concerned that there may be downward pressure on the price of the ADSs in the open market after pricing that could adversely affect investors who purchase in the offering. Stabilizing transactions consist of various bids for, or purchases of, ADSs made by the underwriters in the open market prior to the completion of the offering.

The underwriters may also impose a penalty bid. This occurs when a particular underwriter repays to the underwriters a portion of the underwriting discount received by it because the representatives have repurchased ADSs sold by, or for the account of, such underwriter in stabilizing or short covering transactions.

Purchases to cover a short position and stabilizing transactions may have the effect of preventing or retarding a decline in the market price of the ADSs, and together with the imposition of the penalty bid, may stabilize, maintain or otherwise affect the market price of the ADSs. As a result, the price of the ADSs may be higher than the price that otherwise might exist in the open market. If these activities are commenced, they are required to be conducted in accordance with applicable laws and regulations, and may be discontinued at any time. These transactions may be effected on the Nasdaq Global Market, in the over-the-counter market or otherwise.

No action may be taken in any jurisdiction other than the United States that would permit a public offering of the ADSs or the possession, circulation or distribution of this prospectus in any jurisdiction where action for that purpose is required. Accordingly, the ADSs may not be offered or sold, directly or indirectly, and neither the prospectus nor any other offering material or advertisements in connection with the ADSs may be distributed or published in or from any country or jurisdiction except under circumstances that will result in compliance with any applicable rules and regulations of any such country or jurisdiction.

A prospectus in electronic format will be made available on the websites maintained by the global coordinator or one or more securities dealers. The global coordinator may agree to allocate a number of ADSs for sale to their online brokerage account holders. ADSs to be sold pursuant to an Internet distribution will be allocated on the same basis as other allocations. In addition, ADSs may be sold by the underwriters to securities dealers who resell ADSs to online brokerage account holders.

Focus Media and the selling shareholders have agreed to indemnify the several underwriters against certain liabilities, including liabilities under the Securities Act.

However, the Cayman Islands has a less developed body of securities laws as compared to the United States and provides protections for investors to a significantly lesser extent. In addition, Cayman Islands companies do not have standing to sue before the federal courts of the United States.

Substantially all of our assets are located outside the United States. In addition, a majority of our directors and officers and our special PRC counsel, Global Law Office are nationals or residents of jurisdictions other than the United States and all or a substantial portion of their assets are located outside the United States. As a result, it may be difficult for investors to effect service of process within the United States upon us or these persons, or to enforce against us or them judgments obtained in United States courts, including judgments predicated upon the civil liability provisions of the securities laws of the United States or any state in the United States. It may also be difficult for you to enforce in U.S. courts judgments obtained in U.S. courts based on the civil liability provisions of the U.S. federal securities laws against us, our officers and directors and Global Law Office.

We have appointed CT Corporation System as our agent to receive service of process with respect to any action brought against us in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York under the federal securities laws of the United States or of any state in the United States or any action brought against us in the Supreme Court of the State of New York in the County of New York under the securities laws of the State of New York.

Conyers Dill & Pearman, our counsel as to Cayman Islands law, and Global Law Office, our counsel as to PRC law, have advised us that there is uncertainty as to whether the courts of the Cayman Islands or the PRC would, respectively, (1) recognize or enforce judgments of United States courts obtained against us or our directors or officers or Global Law Office predicated upon the civil liability provisions of the securities laws of the United States or any state in the United States, or (2) entertain original actions brought in the Cayman Islands or the PRC against us or our directors or officers or Global Law Office predicated upon the securities laws of the United States or any state in the United States.

Conyers Dill & Pearman have informed us that the uncertainty with regard to Cayman Islands law relates to whether a judgment obtained from the U.S. courts under civil liability provisions of the securities law will be determined by the courts of the Cayman Islands as penal or punitive in nature. The courts of the Cayman Islands will not recognize or enforce such judgments against a Cayman company, and because such a determination has not yet been made by a court of the Cayman Islands, it is uncertain whether such civil liability judgments from U.S. courts would be enforceable in the Cayman Islands. Conyers Dill & Pearman, has further advised us that a final and conclusive judgment in the federal or state courts of the United States under which a sum of money is payable, other than a sum payable in respect of taxes, fines, penalties or similar charges, may be subject to enforcement proceedings as a debt in the courts of the Cayman Islands under the common law doctrine of obligation.

Global Law Office has advised us that the recognition and enforcement of foreign judgments are provided for under the PRC Civil Procedure Law. PRC courts may recognize and enforce foreign judgments in accordance with the requirements of the PRC Civil Procedure Law based either on treaties between China and the country where the judgment is made or on reciprocity between jurisdictions. Global Law Office has advised us further that under PRC law, a foreign judgment, which does not otherwise violate basic legal principles, state sovereignty, safety or social public interest, may be recognized and enforced by a PRC court, based either on treaties between China and the country where the judgment is made or on reciprocity between jurisdictions. As there currently exists no treaty or other form of reciprocity between China and the United States governing the recognition of judgments, including those predicated upon the liability provisions of the U.S. federal securities laws, there is uncertainty whether and on what basis a PRC court would enforce judgments rendered by U.S. courts.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT REGISTERED PUBLIC ACCOUNTING FIRM TO THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS AND SHAREHOLDERS OF FOCUS MEDIA HOLDING LIMITED

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheets of Focus Media Holding Limited and subsidiaries (the "Group") as of December 31, 2004, 2005 and 2006 and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' equity (deficiency) and comprehensive income, and cash flows for each of the three years in the period ended December 31, 2004, 2005 and 2006, and the related financial statement schedule included in Schedule 1. We also have audited management's assessment, included in the accompanying Report by Management on Internal Control over Financial Reporting, that the Group maintained effective internal control over financial reporting as of December 31, 2006, based on criteria established in Internal Control — Integrated Framework issued by the Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission. As described in the Report by Management on Internal Control over Financial Reporting, management excluded from its assessment the internal control over financial reporting at Infoachieve Limited, Dotad Holdings Limited, DongGuan Advertisement & Communications Co., Ltd., Appreciate Capital Ltd., Bestwin Partners Limited and Glomedia Holdings Limited, which were acquired on January 1, March 20, April 8, September 1, October 1 and December 1, 2006, respectively, and whose aggregated financial statements constitute 4.6 percent and 4.0 percent of net and total assets, respectively, 25.2 percent of revenues, and 31.4 percent of net income of the consolidated financial statement amounts as of and for the year ended December 31, 2006. Accordingly, our audit did not include the internal control over financial reporting at Infoachieve Limited, Dotad Holdings Limited, DongGuan Advertisement & Communications Co., Ltd., Appreciate Capital Ltd., Bestwin Partners Limited or Glomedia Holdings Limited. The Group's management is responsible for these financial statements and financial statement schedule, for maintaining effective internal control over financial reporting, and for its assessment of the effectiveness of internal control over financial reporting. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements and financial statement schedule, an opinion on management's assessment, and an opinion on the effectiveness of the Group's internal control over financial reporting based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with the standards of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States). Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement and whether effective internal control over financial reporting was maintained in all material respects. Our audit of financial statements included examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements, assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, and evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. Our audit of internal control over financial reporting included obtaining an understanding of internal control over financial reporting, evaluating management's assessment, testing and evaluating the design and operating effectiveness of internal control, and performing such other procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinions.

A company's internal control over financial reporting is a process designed by, or under the supervision of, the company's principal executive and principal financial officers, or persons performing similar functions, and effected by the company's board of directors, management, and other personnel to provide reasonable assurance regarding the reliability of financial reporting and the preparation of financial statements for external purposes in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. A company's internal control over financial reporting includes those policies and procedures that (1) pertain to the maintenance of records that, in reasonable detail, accurately and fairly reflect the transactions and dispositions of the assets of the company; (2) provide reasonable assurance that transactions are recorded as necessary to permit preparation of financial statements in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles and that receipts and expenditures of the company are being made only in accordance with the authorization of management and directors of the company; and (3) provide reasonable assurance regarding prevention or timely detection of unauthorized acquisition, use, or disposition of the company's assets that could have a material effect on the financial statements. Because of the inherent limitations of internal control over financial reporting, including the possibility of collusion or improper management override of controls, material misstatements due to error or fraud may not be prevented or detected on a timely basis. Also, projections of any evaluation of the effectiveness of the internal control over financial reporting to future periods are subject to the risk that the controls may become inadequate because of changes in conditions, or that the degree of compliance with the policies or procedures may deteriorate.

In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Group as of December 31, 2004, 2005 and 2006, and the results of their operations and their cash flows for each of the three years in the period ended December 31, 2004, 2005 and 2006, in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. Also, in our opinion, such financial statement schedule, when considered in relation to the basic consolidated financial statements taken as a whole, present fairly, in all material respects, the information set forth therein. Also in our opinion, management's assessment that the Group maintained effective internal control over financial reporting as of December 31, 2006, is fairly stated, in all material respects, based on the criteria established in Internal Control — Integrated Framework issued by the Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission.

As discussed in Note 2(s) to the consolidated financial statements, effective January 1, 2006, the Group changed its method of accounting for share-based payments to conform to Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 123R "Share-based Payment".

Furthermore, in our opinion, the Group maintained, in all material respects, effective internal control over financial reporting as of December 31, 2006, based on the criteria established in Internal Control — Integrated Framework issued by the Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission.

NOTES TO THE CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
FOR THE YEARS ENDED DECEMBER 31, 2004, 2005 AND 2006 AND FOR THE SIX MONTHS ENDED JUNE 30, 2006 (UNAUDITED) AND 2007 (UNAUDITED)
(In U.S. dollars except share data and unless otherwise stated)

1. Organization and Principal Activities

Focus Media Holding Limited and all of its subsidiaries (collectively referred to as the “Group”) are mainly engaged in selling out-of-home television advertising time slots on its network of flat-panel television advertising displays located in high traffic areas such as commercial locations and in-store network. Starting from 2006, the Group also engaged in providing advertising services on in-elevator poster frames network and mobile handset advertising network.

PRC regulations currently limit foreign ownership of companies that provide advertising services, including out-of-home television advertising services. To comply with these regulations, the Group conducts substantially all of its activities through Focus Media Advertisement Co., Ltd. (“Focus Media Advertisement”) and its subsidiaries, a variable interest entity which was renamed from Aiqi, and was established in Shanghai China on September 2, 1997. On April 11, 2004, the majority shareholder of Focus Media Advertisement, Jason Nanchun Jiang, incorporated Focus Media Holding Limited (“Focus Media Holding” or the “Company”) with the same shareholders of Focus Media Advertisement. Focus Media Advertisement entered into various agreements with 100% owned subsidiaries of Focus Media Holding, i.e. Focus Media Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. (“Focus Media Technology”) and Focus Media Digital Information Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. (“Focus Media Digital”), including a transfer of trademarks and exclusive services agreement. Under these agreements, Focus Media Advertisement has the right to use the trade name of Focus Media Technology, and Focus Media Digital, provides technical and consulting services to Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries. In return, Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries are required to pay Focus Media Technology services fees for the use of trade name and Focus Media Digital for the technical and consulting services it receives. The technical and consulting service fees are adjusted at the Focus Media Digital’s sole discretion. Focus Media Digital is entitled to receive service fees in an amount up to all of the net income of Focus Media Advertising.

In addition, Focus Media Holding, through Focus Media Technology, has been assigned all voting rights by the direct and indirect owners of Focus Media Advertisement through an agreement valid indefinitely that cannot be amended or terminated except by written consent of all parties. Finally Focus Media Holding, through Focus Media Technology has the option to acquire the equity interests of Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries for a purchase price equal to the respective registered capital of Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries or a proportionate amount thereof, or such higher price as required under PRC laws at the time of such purchase. Each of the shareholders of Focus Media Advertisement has agreed to pay Focus Media Holding, any excess of the purchase price paid for such equity interests in, or assets of, Focus Media Advertisement or its subsidiaries over the registered capital of Focus Media Advertisement or its subsidiaries in the event that such option is exercised.

Through contractual arrangements described above, Focus Media Holding is deemed the primary beneficiary of Focus Media Advertisement resulting in Focus Media Advertisement being deemed a subsidiary of Focus Media Holding under the requirements of FIN 46 (Revised), “Consolidation of Variable Interest Entities” (“FIN 46(R)”). In substance, an existing company, Focus Media Advertisement, has been reorganized as a subsidiary of the new company Focus Media Holding. Focus Media Holding has the same controlling shareholder and the same non-controlling shareholders. Accordingly, the Group’s financial statements reflect the financial statements of Focus Media Advertisement through May 2003 and, thereafter, the consolidated financial statements of Focus Media Holding and its subsidiaries, which include Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries.

As of June 30, 2007, the major subsidiaries of Focus Media Holding and Focus Media Advertisement are included in the Appendix 1 attached.

Significant accounting estimates reflected in the Group's financial statements include allowance for doubtful accounts, useful lives and impairment for long-lived assets and goodwill, the recognition and measurement of current and deferred income tax assets, and the valuation and recognition of share-based compensation. The actual results experienced by the Company may differ from management's estimates.

(e) Significant Risks and Uncertainties

The Group participates in a young and dynamic industry and believes that changes in any of the following areas could have a material adverse effect on the Group's future financial position, results of operations or cash flows: the Group's limited operating history, rapid growth associated with newly acquired business; advances and trends in new technologies and industry standards; share market performance and public interest in companies operating in China that are listed on share market in the U.S.; competition from other competitors; regulatory or other PRC related factors; risks associated with the Group's ability to attract and retain employees necessary to support its growth; risks associated with the Group's growth strategies; and general risks associated with the advertising industry.

(f) Investment in Equity and Debt Securities

The Group classifies all of its short-term investments as available-for-sale securities. Such short-term investments consist primarily of equity and debt instrument which are stated at fair market value, with unrealized gains and losses recorded as accumulated other comprehensive income (loss).

(g) Inventory

Inventory is comprised of media display equipments and compact flash cards, which are held for sale. Inventory is stated at the lower of cost or market value. Adjustments are recorded to write down the cost of obsolete and excess inventory to the estimated market value based on historical and forecast demand.

Equipment, net is carried at cost less accumulated depreciation and amortization. Depreciation and amortization is calculated on a straight-line basis over the following estimated useful lives:

Media display equipment	5 years
Computers and office equipment	5 years
Vehicles	5 years
Leasehold Improvements	lesser of the term of the lease or the estimated useful lives of the assets

The Group assembles certain of the media display equipment. In addition to costs under assembly contracts, external costs directly related to the assembly of such equipment, including duty and tariff, equipment installation and shipping costs, are capitalized.

(i) Acquired intangible assets, net

Acquired intangible assets, which consist of operation and broadcasting rights, lease agreements, customer bases, customer backlogs, trademarks, non-compete agreements, and acquired technology are valued at cost less accumulated amortization. Amortization is calculated using the straight-line method over their expected useful lives of 1 to 10 years.

(j) Impairment of Long-Lived Assets

The Group evaluates its long-lived assets and finite-lived intangibles for impairment whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of the assets may not be recoverable. When these events occur, the Group measures impairment by comparing the carrying amount of the assets to the future undiscounted future cash flows expected to result from the use of the assets and their eventual disposition. If the sum of the future undiscounted cash flow is less than the carrying amount of the assets, the Group would recognize an impairment loss equal to the excess of the carrying amount over the fair value of the assets.

(k) Goodwill

SFAS No. 142 "Goodwill and Other intangible Assets" requires the Group to complete a two-step goodwill impairment test. The first step compares the fair value of each reporting unit to its carrying amount, including goodwill. If the fair value of each reporting unit exceeds its carrying amount, goodwill is not considered to be impaired and the second step will not be required. If the carrying amount of a reporting unit exceeds its fair value, the second step compares the implied fair value of goodwill to the carrying value of a reporting unit's goodwill. The implied fair value of goodwill is determined in a manner similar to accounting for a business combination with the allocation of the assessed fair value determined in the first step to the assets and liabilities of the reporting unit. The excess of the fair value of the reporting unit over the amounts assigned to the assets and liabilities is the implied fair value of goodwill. This allocation process is only performed for purposes of evaluating goodwill impairment and does not result in an entry to adjust the value of any assets or liabilities. An impairment loss is recognized for any excess in the carrying value of goodwill over the implied fair value of goodwill.

Management performed the annual goodwill impairment test as of December 31, 2004 and an impairment loss of $58,397 was recorded for the Perfect Media Holding Ltd. ("Perfect Media") reporting unit. The fair value of the Perfect Media reporting unit was estimated using a combination of expected present value of future cash flow and income approach valuation methodologies. The Group recorded an impairment charge because the amount the Group paid for the acquisition of Perfect Media exceeded its fair market value. Commencing in 2005, the financial

The Group's revenues are primarily derived from advertising services and to a lesser extent, sales from advertising equipment, and sales from Internet subscriptions and perpetual licenses to its Adforward software.

Revenues from advertising services and advertising equipment are recognized when (i) persuasive evidence of an arrangement exists; (ii) delivery of the products and/or services has occurred and risks and rewards of ownership have passed to the customer; (iii) the selling price is both fixed and determinable; and (iv) collection of the resulting receivable is reasonably assured.

The Group generates advertising service revenues from the sale of advertising time slots in the out-of-home television advertising networks, the sales of frame space on the poster frame network, and the sales of advertising service through the mobile handset advertising and internet network. In the majority of advertising arrangements, the Group acts as a principal in the transaction and records advertising revenues on a gross basis. The associated expenses are recorded as cost of revenues. In some instances the Group is considered as an agent, it recognizes revenue on a net basis. Revenues from advertising services are recognized, net of agency rebates, ratably over the period in which the advertisement is displayed, assuming all other revenue recognition criteria have been met.

Revenues from the sale of advertising equipment are recognized upon delivery, assuming all other revenue recognition criteria have been met.

Adforward software sales typically include multiple elements, including sale of software licenses and services. Service includes installation, training and post contract customer support ("PCS"), which consists of when-and-if available software license updates and technical support. The Group recognizes revenues based on the provisions of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants Statement of Position ("SOP") No. 97-2, "Software Revenue Recognition", as amended by SOP No. 98-9, "Modification of SOP No. 97-2, Software Revenue Recognition, With Respect to Certain Transactions." Revenues under multiple-element arrangements are allocated to each element in the arrangement primarily using the residual method based upon the fair value of the undelivered elements, which is specific to the Group (vendor-specific objective evidence of fair value or VSOE). This means that the Group defers revenue from the arrangement fee equivalent to the fair value of the undelivered elements. Discounts, if any, are applied to the delivered elements, usually software licenses, under the residual method. VSOE for PCS is determined based on either the renewal rate specified in each contract or the price charged when each element is sold separately. If the Group does not have VSOE for the undelivered elements, revenue recognition is deferred until VSOE for such elements are obtained or until all elements have been delivered.

The Group sells Adforward subscriptions and perpetual licenses. Revenues are recognized for subscription arrangements ratably over the subscription period for those with fixed fees and as earned (based on actual usage) under our variable fee arrangements. Under perpetual license agreements, revenue recognition is generally commenced when delivery has occurred, software has been installed and training has been provided as the Group does not currently have VSOE for either installation or training services.

The Group entered into franchise arrangements with a number of third party franchisors. In accordance with Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ("SFAS") No. 45 "Accounting For Franchise Fee Revenue", revenue from initial franchise fees was recognized when the franchise sale transaction was completed, that is, when all material services or conditions relating to the sale had been substantially performed or satisfied by the franchisor.

Prepayments for the advertising services are deferred and recognized as revenue when the advertising services are rendered.

The Group presents advertising service revenue, net of sales taxes incurred, as follows:

(m) Operating Leases

Leases where substantially all the rewards and risks of ownership of assets remain with the leasing company are accounted for as operating leases. Payments made under operating leases are charged to the consolidated statements of operations on a straight-line basis over the lease periods.

(n) Advertising Costs

The Group expenses advertising costs as incurred. Total advertising expenses were $17,919, $45,712, $1,157,672, $569,296 and $568,908 for the years ended December 31, 2004, 2005, 2006 and six months ended June 30, 2006 (unaudited) and 2007 (unaudited), respectively, and have been included as part of selling and marketing expenses.

(o) Foreign Currency Translation

The functional and reporting currency of Focus Media Holding is the United States dollar ("US dollar"). Monetary assets and liabilities denominated in currencies other than the US dollar are translated into the US dollar at the rates of exchange ruling at the balance sheet date. Transactions in currencies other than the US dollar during the year are converted into US dollar at the applicable rates of exchange prevailing at the first day of the month transactions occurred. Transaction gains and losses are recognized in other income or other expenses.

The financial records of the Group's subsidiaries and its variable interest entity are maintained in its local currency, the Renminbi ("RMB"), which is the functional currency. Assets and liabilities are translated at the exchange rates at the balance sheet date, equity accounts are translated at historical exchange rates and revenues, expenses, gains and losses are translated using the average rate for the year. Translation adjustments are reported as cumulative translation adjustments and are shown as a separate component of other comprehensive income (loss) in the statement of shareholders' equity (deficiency).

(p) Income Taxes

Deferred income taxes are recognized for temporary differences between the tax basis of assets and liabilities and their reported amounts in the financial statements, net operating loss carry forwards and credits, by applying enacted statutory tax rates applicable to future years. Deferred tax assets are reduced by a valuation allowance when, in the opinion of management, it is more likely than not that some portion or all of the deferred tax assets will not be realized. Current income taxes are provided for in accordance with the laws of the relevant taxing authorities.

(q) Comprehensive Income

Comprehensive income includes foreign currency translation adjustments and unrealized gains (losses) on marketable securities classified as available-for-sale debt securities. Comprehensive income is reported in the statements of shareholders' equity (deficiency).

(r) Fair Value of Financial Instruments

Financial instruments include cash and cash equivalents, investment in available-for-sale debt securities, and short-term loans. The carrying values of cash and cash equivalents, investment in available-for-sale debt securities and short-term borrowing approximate their fair values due to their short-term maturities.

(s) Share-based Compensation

Effective January 1, 2006 the Group adopted SFAS No. 123 (revised 2005), "Share-Based Payment" ("SFAS 123-R"), using the modified prospective application transition method, which establishes accounting for share-based awards exchanged for employee services. Accordingly, share-based compensation cost is measured at grant date, based on the fair value of the award, and recognized in expense over the requisite service period. The Group previously applied Accounting Principles Board Opinion No. 25, "Accounting for Stock Issued to Employees" ("APB 25"), and related Interpretations and provided the pro forma disclosures required by SFAS No. 123, "Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation" ("SFAS 123"). APB 25 required the Group to record a compensation charge for the excess of the market value of the share at the grant date or any other measurement date over the amount an employee must pay to acquire the share. The compensation expense is recognized over the service period which is the vesting period.

Periods prior to the adoption of SFAS 123-R

Prior to the adoption of SFAS 123-R, the Group provided the disclosures required under SFAS 123, as amended by SFAS No. 148, "Accounting for Stock-Based Compensation — Transition and Disclosures".

The following table illustrates the effect on net income and income per share as if the Group had applied the fair value recognition provisions of SFAS 123 to options granted under the Group's share-based compensation plans prior to the adoption. For purposes of this pro forma disclosure the value of the options was estimated using the Black-Scholes option-pricing model and amortized using an accelerated method over the respective vesting periods of the awards.

As required by SFAS 123-R, management has made an estimate of expected forfeitures and is recognizing compensation costs only for those equity awards expected to vest. The cumulative effect of initially adopting SFAS 123-R was not significant. The Group's total share-based compensation expense for the year ended December 31, 2006 was $8,367,406. As a result of adopting SFAS 123-R, income before income tax and net income were both lower by $8,119,732 than if the Group had continued to account for share-based compensation under APB 25. The impact on basic and diluted earnings per shares in 2006 was a decrease of $0.02 and $0.02 per share respectively.

The following table summarizes the share-based compensation recognized in the consolidated statement of operations:

(t) Income (loss) per Share

Basic income (loss) per share is computed by dividing income (loss) attributable to holders of ordinary shares by the weighted average number of ordinary shares outstanding during the year. Diluted income per ordinary share reflects the potential dilution that could occur if securities or other contracts to issue ordinary shares were exercised or converted into ordinary shares. Ordinary share equivalents are excluded from the computation in loss years as their effects would be anti-dilutive.

(u) Recently Issued Accounting Standards

In September 2006, the FASB issued SFAS No. 157, "Fair Value Measurements" ("SFAS 157"), which defines fair value, establishes a framework for measuring fair value in generally accepted accounting principles, and expands disclosures about fair value measurements. SFAS 157 applies under most other accounting pronouncements that require or permit fair value measurements and does not require any new fair value measurements. This statement is effective for financial statements issued for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007, and interim periods within those fiscal years, with earlier application encouraged. The provisions of SFAS 157 should be applied prospectively as of the beginning of the fiscal year in which the statement is initially applied, except for a limited form of retrospective application for certain financial instruments. The Group is currently evaluating the impact, if any, of this statement on the consolidated financial statements and related disclosures.

In February 2007, the FASB issued SFAS No. 159, "The Fair Value Option for Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities", ("SFAS 159"). SFAS No. 159 permits entities to choose to measure many financial instruments and certain other items at fair value. SFAS No. 159 is effective for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007. The Group is currently evaluating the impact, if any, of this statement on its consolidated financial statements and related disclosures.

In June 2006, the FASB issued Interpretation No. 48, "Accounting for Uncertainty in Income Taxes" ("FIN 48"). FIN 48 clarifies the accounting for uncertainty in income taxes recognized in an enterprise's financial statements in accordance with FASB Statement No. 109, "Accounting for Income Taxes". FIN 48 prescribes a recognition threshold and measurement attribute for the financial statement recognition and measurement of a tax position taken or expected to be taken in a tax return. FIN 48 also provides guidance on derecognition, classification, interest and penalties, accounting in interim periods, disclosure and transition. FIN 48 is effective for fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2006. The Group adopted FIN 48 on January 1, 2007 and estimated the cumulative effect on adoption of FIN 48 to be a reduction of consolidated retained earnings as of January 1, 2007 of approximately $1.5 million.

In June 2006, the Emerging Issues Task Force ("EITF") reached a consensus on Issue No. 06-3, "How Taxes Collected from Customers and Remitted to Governmental Authorities Should be Presented in the Income Statement (That Is, Gross Versus Net Presentation)" ("EITF 06-3"). The scope of EITF 06-3 includes sales, use, value added and some excise taxes that are assessed by a governmental authority on specific revenue-producing transactions between a seller and customer. EITF 06-3 states that a company should disclose its accounting policy (i.e. gross or net presentation) regarding the presentation of taxes within its scope, and if significant, these disclosures should be applied retrospectively to the financial statements for all periods presented. EITF 06-3 is effective for interim and annual reporting periods beginning after December 15, 2006. The Group is currently evaluating the impact, if any, of this statement on its consolidated combined financial statements and related disclosures.

(v) Reclassification

Certain prior year amounts have been reclassified to conform to the current period's presentation.

3. Acquisitions*2004 Acquisitions:

In 2004, the Group acquired 10 entities in order to expand their out-of-home television advertising networks for total cash consideration of $4,921,069. As a result of these acquisitions, the Group recorded goodwill and intangible assets of $4,657,492 and $603,520, respectively. All of the goodwill was assigned to the out-of-home television advertising services segment.

In addition, on September 22, 2004, the Group acquired 100% of the outstanding ordinary shares of Perfect Media which includes its then variable interest entity Shanghai Perfect Media, an advertising services provider, in exchange for cash of $500,000 and 14,594,200 ordinary shares having a fair value $4,484,798, or approximately $0.31 per ordinary share. The fair value of the Group's ordinary shares was determined by management considering multiple factors, including a retrospective valuation performed by a third party valuation firm.

The valuation was based on the guideline companies approach which incorporates the market performance of comparable listed companies as well as the financial results and growth trends of the Group to derive the total equity value of the Group. The valuation model then allocated the equity value between the ordinary shares and the preference shares and determined the fair value of ordinary shares based on two scenarios: preference shares that have a value in excess of their conversion price were treated as if they had converted into ordinary shares; and preference shares that have a value below their conversion price were assigned a value that took into consideration their liquidation preference. Ordinary shares were assigned a value equal to their pro rata share of the residual amount (if any) that remained after consideration of the liquidation preference of preferred stock with a value below their conversion price.

The acquisition was recorded using the purchase method of accounting and, accordingly, the acquired assets and liabilities were recorded at their fair market value at the date of acquisition. The Group's primary reason for the acquisition of Perfect Media was its complementary business model and its strong relationships with landlords and property managers of commercial building locations in which the Group desired to locate its flat-panel displays. The acquisition of Perfect Media resulted in a significant amount of goodwill because the amount the Group paid for Perfect Media exceeded its fair market value. The Group was willing to pay in excess of Perfect Media's fair market value in order to maintain its competitive advantage within the commercial buildings the Group already occupied.

The goodwill was assigned to the out-of-home television advertising services segment.

The purchase price allocation and intangible asset valuations for each of the two acquisitions described above were determined by management based on a number of factors including a valuation report provided by a third party valuation firm. The valuation report utilized and considered generally accepted valuation methodologies such as the income, market, cost and actual transaction of Group shares approach. The Group has incorporated certain assumptions which include projected cash flows and replacement costs.

In the valuation of lease agreements, customer base and contract backlog, an indication of value was developed through the application of a form of income approach, known as excess earnings method. The first step to apply the excess earning method was to estimate the future debt-free net income attributable to the intangible asset. The resulting debt-free net income was then reduced by an estimated fair rate of return on contributory assets necessary to realize the projected earnings attributable to the intangible assets. These assets include fixed assets, working capital and other intangible assets.

The valuation of the trademark was based on the relief from royalty method whereby an asset is valued based upon the after-tax cash flow savings accruing to the owner by virtue of the fact that the owner does not have to pay a "fair royalty" to a third party for the use of that asset. Accordingly, a portion of the owner's earnings, equal to the after-tax royalty that would have been paid for use of the asset can be attributed to that asset. The value of the asset depends on the present worth of future after-tax royalties attributable to the asset to their present worth at market-derived rates of return appropriate for the risks of that particular asset.

Also in 2006, the Group completed a number of individually insignificant acquisitions which are described below:

On March 21, 2006, the Group acquired Dotad Media Holdings Limited ("Dotad") in exchange for cash consideration of $15,000,000, all of which was paid as of December 31, 2006. On June 15, 2007, additional 1,500,000 ordinary shares were issued as Dotad has met its earning targets in the first year it was acquired. An additional 1,500,000 ordinary shares is issuable contingent upon Dotad's meeting certain earning targets in 2007. The Group acquired intangible assets of $6,587,095 and recognized goodwill of $8,444,464. The goodwill was assigned to the mobile handset advertising services segment.

The Group acquired three entities in the poster-frame advertising business for cash consideration of $10,670,222. The Group recognized acquired intangible assets of $1,682,771 and recognized goodwill of $9,057,700, which was assigned to the in-elevator poster frame advertising services segment.

The Group acquired three entities which provide out-of-home television advertising services and the remaining minority interest in six subsidiaries, for cash consideration of $5,314,923 and 97,190 ordinary shares. Certain of these acquisitions have contingent consideration based on future earnings targets. The group recognized acquired intangible assets of $12,507 and recognized goodwill of $3,453,332, which was assigned to the out-of-home television advertising services segment.

The Group acquired 70% of the outstanding ordinary shares of Appreciated Capital Ltd. and its then variable interest entity Beijing YangShiSanWei Advertisement Co., Ltd. (collectively, "ACL"). ACL sells advertising in movie theatres to its customers. The purchase consideration is fully contingent and is based on earnings targets for the years ending August 31, 2007, 2008 and 2009, subject further to the attainment of certain operational targets. The Group advanced $2.8 million to ACL. The purchase price allocation can not be completed until the contingent consideration is resolved. As such, the Group has recorded a liability of $358,574, which is equal to the excess of the fair value of the assets acquired over cost on the date of acquisition.

10. Share-based Compensation

In June 2003, the Group adopted the 2003 Employee Share Option Scheme (“2003 Plan”) under which not more than 30% of issued share capital was reserved for grants of options. In May 2005, the Group adopted the 2005 Share Option Plan (“2005 Plan”), under which the amount of options that may issue has been reduced to an aggregate of 20% of issued share capital, including the 10.87% already granted under the 2003 Plan. In addition, during the three years after the adoption of our 2005 Plan, the Group may issue no more than 5% of issued share capital for grants of options. In October 2006, the Group further adopted the 2006 Employee Share Option Plan (“2006 Plan”), under which the Group may issue no more than 3.6% of issued ordinary shares for grant of options. The option plans are intended to promote the success and to increase shareholder value by providing an additional means to attract, motivate, retain and reward selected directors, officers, employees and third-party consultants and advisors.

In 2004, 2005, 2006 and six months ended June 30, 2007 (unaudited), options to purchase 25,208,200, 23,843,630, 14,800,000 and 1,300,000 ordinary shares were authorized under the option plans, respectively. Under the terms of each option plan, options are generally granted at prices equal to the fair market value as determined by the Board of Directors, expire 10 years from the date of grant and generally vest over three years while certain options granted vest over one year. Subsequent to the initial public offering, options were generally granted at the fair market value of the ordinary shares at the date of grant. As of December 31, 2004, 2005, 2006 and June 30, 2007 (unaudited), options to purchase 25,208,200, 49,051,830, 37,515,150 and 34,768,895 ordinary shares were granted to employees and non-employees. Share options granted to external consultants and advisors in exchange for services were expensed based on the estimated fair value utilizing the Black-Scholes option pricing model.

The fair value of options granted is estimated on the date of grant using the Black–Scholes option–pricing model with the following weighted–average assumptions:

	For the Years Ended December 31,			For the Six Months Ended June 30,
	2004	2005	2006	2007 (unaudited)
Option granted to employees:
Average risk–free rate of return	2.97%	3.10–4.43%	4.74%–4.80%	4.61%–4.68%
Weighted average expected option life	1–3 years	2–3 years	2 years	2 years
Volatility rate	36.2%	30.49%–36.2%	40.0–53.7%	50.61%

Prior to the initial public offering in July 2005, the derived fair value of the ordinary shares underlying the options was determined by management by factoring into their consideration a retrospective valuation conducted by a third party valuation firm using a generally accepted valuation methodology, the guideline companies approach, which incorporates certain assumptions including the market performance of comparable listed companies as well as the financial results and growth trends of the Group, to derive the total equity value of the Group. The valuation model allocated the equity value between the ordinary shares and the preference shares and determined the fair value of ordinary shares based on two assumptions: where conversion into ordinary shares would result in a higher economic value, preference shares were treated as if they had converted into ordinary shares; and preference shares that have a value higher than their conversion price were assigned a value that took into consideration their liquidation preference.

The ordinary shares were assigned a value equal to their pro rata share of the residual amount, if any, that remained after consideration of the liquidation preference of preferred shares with a value below their conversion price. Also prior to July 2005, the expected volatilities are estimated based on the average volatility of comparable companies with the time period commensurate with the expected time period. Following the initial public offering, the expected volatilities were estimated based on the historical volatility. The expected term of options granted represents the period of time that options granted are expected to be outstanding. The risk–free interest rate assumption is determined using the Federal Reserve nominal rates for U.S. Treasury zero–coupon bonds with maturities similar to those of the expected term of the award.

The weighted average fair value of options granted as of December 31, 2004, 2005, 2006 and six months ended June 30, 2007 (unaudited) was $0.09, $0.39, $1.77 and $2.76, respectively.

Focus Media (China) Holding Ltd. is subject to Hong Kong profit tax at a rate of 17.5% on its assessable profit. No Hong Kong profit tax has been provided as the Group does not have assessable profit that is earned in or derived from Hong Kong during the years presented.

PRC

Pursuant to the PRC Income Tax Laws, the Company's subsidiaries and VIEs are generally subject to Enterprise Income Taxes ("EIT") at a statutory rate of 33%, which comprises 30% national income tax and 3% local income tax. Some of the Company's subsidiaries and VIEs are newly incorporated enterprises engaged in the advertising industry which are entitled to a two-year tax exemption holiday, commencing from the first operating year. One of the subsidiaries of the Company, Beijing Focus Media Wireless Co., Ltd., is a qualified new technology enterprise and under PRC Income Tax Laws and is subject to a preferential tax rate of 15%, plus a three-year tax exemption followed by three years with a 50% reduction in the tax rate, commencing from the first profitable year.

On March 16, 2007, the PRC National People's Congress passed the China Corporate Income Tax Law which will change the income tax rates for most enterprises from 33% at the present to 25%. This new law will become effective on January 1, 2008. There will be a transition period for enterprises, whether foreign-invested or domestic, which currently receive preferential tax treatments granted by relevant tax authorities. Enterprises that are subject to an enterprise income tax rate lower than 25% may continue to enjoy the lower rate and gradually transition to the new tax rate within five years after the effective date of the new law. Enterprises that are currently entitled to exemptions or reductions from the standard income tax rate for a fixed term may continue to enjoy such treatment until the fixed term expires. Preferential tax treatments will continue to be granted to industries and projects that are strongly supported and encouraged by the state, and enterprises that qualify as "new and high technology enterprises strongly supported by the state" will be entitled to a 15% enterprise income tax rate.

Most of the Company's subsidiaries and VIEs are expected to transition from 33% to 25% starting from January 1, 2008. Those that currently enjoy a lower tax rate of 15% will gradually transition to the uniform tax rate of 25% from 2008 to 2012 unless the company obtains the "new and high technology enterprise" status under the new tax law.

The Group had tax losses of $7,689,311 as of December 31, 2006 to be carried forward against future taxable income, which will expire if unused in the years ending December 31, 2008 through 2011. The Group operates through multiple subsidiaries and the valuation allowance is considered on each individual subsidiary basis. Where a valuation allowance was not recorded, the Group believes that there was sufficient positive evidence to support its conclusion not to record a valuation allowance as it expects to generate sufficient taxable income in the future.

The valuation allowance in 2005 and 2006 has been increased in connection with an increase in net operating loss carry forwards for which the Group believes it cannot generate future taxable income sufficient to recognize the income tax benefit.

In July 2006, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) issued FASB Interpretation No. 48, Accounting for Uncertainty in Income Taxes — an interpretation of FASB Statement No. 109 (FIN 48), which clarifies the accounting and disclosure for uncertainty in tax positions, as defined in that statement. FIN 48 prescribes a more-likely-than-not threshold for financial statement recognition and measurement of a tax position taken or expected to be taken in a tax return. This interpretation also provides guidance on de-recognition of income tax assets and liabilities, classification of current and deferred income tax assets and liabilities, accounting for interest and penalties associated with tax positions, accounting for income taxes in interim periods and income tax disclosures.

The Group adopted the provisions of FIN 48 effective January 1, 2007. Based on its FIN 48 analysis documentation, the Group has made its assessment of the level of tax authority for each Tax Position (including the potential application of interest and penalties) based on the technical merits, and has measured the unrecognized tax benefits associated with the Tax Positions. The adoption of FIN 48 has reduced the retained earnings as of January 1, 2007 by $1.5 million with a corresponding increase in the liability for uncertain tax positions, which is transfer pricing related matters. Based on the current China tax practice, it appears there is a prevailing administrative practice not to assess interest or penalty on transfer pricing related adjustments. Therefore, it is more likely than not that interest or penalty is not required to be accrued for the assessment of the transfer pricing related tax position. As a result, no corresponding interests and/or penalties are assessed in association with the transfer pricing related matters for the purpose of FIN 48 adoption. The aforementioned liability is recorded in other current liabilities in the consolidated balance sheet. The Group has no material unrecognized tax benefit which would favorably affect the effective income tax rate in future periods. The Group classifies interest and/or penalties related to income tax matters in income tax expenses. The additional increase in the FIN 48 liability for uncertain tax positions during the period ended June 30, 2007 was immaterial.

According to the PRC Tax Administration and Collection Law, the statute of limitations is three years if the underpayment of taxes is due to computational errors made by the taxpayer or the withholding agent. The statute of limitations will be extended to five years under special circumstances, which are not clearly defined (but an underpayment of tax liability exceeding RMB 100,000 is specifically listed as a special circumstance). In the case of a related party transaction, the statute of limitations is 10 years. There is no statute of limitation in the case of tax evasion.

13. Convertible Redeemable Preference Shares

Each Series A, Series B, Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares was automatically converted into ordinary shares at the then effective conversion price upon the closing of a qualified underwritten public offering of the ordinary shares of the Group. Upon the completion of the Group's initial public offering on July 13, 2005, all of the issued and outstanding Series A, Series B, Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares were converted into ordinary shares.

a) In April 2004, the Group issued 52,083,400 Series B convertible redeemable preference shares to a group of third party investors for cash proceeds of $12,062,696, net of issuance costs of $437,304. The holders of Series B redeemable convertible preference shares could have redeemed the Series B convertible redeemable preference shares at any time (i) before December 31, 2006 if the Group received a notice from the holders of a majority of Series B convertible redeemable preference shares indicating a material breach by the Group and its affiliates of their representation, warranties or covenants under Series B convertible redeemable preference shares, the shareholders agreement or the Restructuring Documents (as defined in the amended Series B Purchase Agreement), or (ii) after April 28, 2004 ("Redemption Start Date"), at the option of a majority of the holders of the Series B convertible redeemable preference shares then outstanding. In the event of a redemption pursuant to this right, the Group could have redeemed up to all of the Series B convertible redeemable preference shares at a redemption price per redeemable convertible preference share equal to  $$0.24 \times (1 + (0.15 \times N))$  plus all declared but unpaid dividends. N refers to a fraction, the numerator of which is the number of calendar days between April 28, 2004 and the Redemption Start Date and the denominator of which is 365. The Group recorded a deemed dividend of $2,191,442 in 2004, which resulted from the amortization of the 15% redemption premium associated with Series B convertible redeemable preference shares. According to the articles of association amended on November 29, 2004, the redemption price of Series B preferred stock was $0.24.

b) In April 2004, 62,400,000 outstanding ordinary shares were reclassified and re-designated into 62,400,000 Series A convertible redeemable preference shares. The re-designation has resulted in a deemed dividend of $8,308,411 which represents the difference between the fair value of the Series A convertible redeemable preference shares at the date of re-designation of $0.15 and the initial issuance price of the ordinary shares of $0.05 for 10,000,000 shares and approximately $0.01 for 52,400,000 shares.

The holders of Series A convertible redeemable preference shares had the right to cause the Group to redeem such preference shares, at any time commencing on a Redemption Start Date, at the option of a majority of holders of Series A redeemable convertible preference shares at a redemption price per Series A convertible redeemable preference share equal to $0.06 plus all declared but unpaid dividends. Series A convertible redeemable preference shares could not have been redeemed until the Group had redeemed all of the Series B convertible redeemable preference shares and paid the aggregate Series B convertible redeemable preference shares redemption price in full.

c) On November 29, 2004, the Group issued 34,053,400 Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares to group of third party investors for cash proceeds of $17,415,000, net of issuance costs of $85,000. The holder of a Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference share could have redeemed Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares at any time after the earlier of (i) such time as the holders of a majority of the Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference share delivered notice in writing to the Group that the Group and/or its affiliates was in material breach of any of its representations, warranties and covenants under the Series C Purchase Agreement, the Shareholders Agreement or the Ancillary Documents (as defined in the Series C Purchase Agreement) so long as such notice was to have been delivered before December 31, 2006 and (ii) anytime following the fourth anniversary of the issuance of the Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference share under the Series C Purchase Agreement. In connection with the redemption of any Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference share, the Group was to pay a redemption price equal to the Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference share Issue Price of $0.51 plus all declared but unpaid dividends on the Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference share through to the date of redemption thereof.

d) On November 29, 2004, certain investors of Series A and/or Series B convertible redeemable preference shares sold 20,432,600 outstanding Series A convertible redeemable preference shares and 3,891,800 outstanding Series B convertible redeemable preference shares to Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares investors at a price of US$0.51. These Series A convertible redeemable preference shares and Series B convertible redeemable preference shares were re-designated as Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares. The re-designation resulted in a deemed dividend of $8,458,464 which represented the difference between the fair value of the Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares of $0.51 and the issuance price of Series A and Series B convertible redeemable preference shares of $0.15 and $0.24, respectively.

e) In December 2004, an investor of ordinary shares sold 9,729,600 outstanding ordinary shares to third party investors at a price of $0.51. These ordinary shares were re-designated as Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares. The re-designation resulted in a deemed dividend of $4,897,623 which represented the difference between the fair value of the Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares of $0.51 and the issuance price of ordinary shares of $0.01.

Prior to the redemption or conversion of all Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares issued by the Group, any holder of Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares thereof could have, at any time, required the Group to redeem such shares out of funds legally available therefore in connection with the redemption of any Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares under this Clause, the Group would have paid a redemption price equal to the Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares Issue Price of $0.51 plus all declared but unpaid dividends on the Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares through to the date of redemption thereof.

The significant terms of the Series A, Series B, Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares are as follows:

Conversion

Each Series A and Series B convertible redeemable preference share was automatically convertible into one ordinary share at any time after the date of issuance of such shares, subject to anti-dilution or performance adjustment based on an initial conversion price of $0.15 and $0.24, respectively, upon the consummation of a Series A/B Qualified Public Offering or obtaining the necessary written consent from the holders of Series A and Series B convertible redeemable preference shares. A Series A/B Qualified Public Offering referred to the closing of an underwritten public offering of the ordinary shares of the Group in the United States that was registered under the Securities Act of 1933 representing at least 25% of the fully-diluted share capital of the Group immediately following the offering, at a price per share that values the Group at no less than $200,000,000 immediately prior to the offering.

Each Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference share was automatically convertible into one ordinary share at any time after the date of issuance of such shares, subject to anti-dilution or performance adjustment based on an initial conversion price of $0.51 and $0.51, respectively, upon the consummation of a Series C Qualified Public Offering or obtaining the necessary written consent from the holders of Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares. A Series C Qualified Public Offering referred to the closing of an underwritten public offering of the ordinary shares of the Group in the United States that has been registered under the Securities Act of 1933 which represents at least 25% of the fully-diluted share capital of the Group immediately following the offering, at a price per share that values the Group at no less than $335,000,000 immediately prior to the offering.

The conversion price of Series A, Series B, Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares was subject to adjustment for dilution, including but not limited to share splits, share dividends and recapitalization.

Additionally, the conversion price was to be adjusted for dilution in the following circumstances:

1) In the event that the Group issued additional ordinary shares at a price per share less than the then prevailing Series A, Series B and Series C convertible redeemable preference shares' respective conversion price, the Series A, Series B and Series C convertible redeemable preference shares' respective conversion price was to be reduced, concurrently with such issuance, to a price (calculated to the nearest cent) equal to the price per share at which such additional shares were to be issued.

2) If the Group's financial results of 2004 and 2005 did not meet specified targets. Under the terms of the amended and restated memorandum and articles of association in April 2005, the performance-based adjustment was not triggered in 2004.

Voting Rights

Each Series A, Series B, Series C-1 and Series C-2 redeemable convertible preference share had voting rights equivalent to the number of shares of ordinary shares into which it was convertible.

Dividends

The holders of Series A, Series B, Series C-1 and Series C-2 redeemable convertible preference shares were to be entitled to receive out of any funds legally available therefore, when and if declared by the Board of Directors of the Group, dividends at the rate or in the amount as the Board of Directors considers appropriate.

Liquidation Preference

In the event of any liquidation, dissolution or winding up of the Group, as defined, the holders of Series A, Series B, Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares were to receive $0.06 per share, $0.24 per share, $0.51 per share and $0.51 per share, respectively, plus all declared but unpaid dividends. Such amounts were to be adjusted for any share splits, share dividends and recapitalization.

In the event of any liquidation, dissolution or winding up of the Group caused by a "Trade Sale", which is defined as any sales of shares, merger, consolidation or other similar transaction involving the Group in which its shareholders do not retain a majority of the voting power in the surviving entity, or a sale of all or substantially all the Group's assets, the holder of Series B redeemable convertible preference shares were to receive the higher of (i) 200% of the original purchase price of the Series B preference shares, for each Series B redeemable convertible preference share outstanding or (ii) the amount the holder would have received if all of the Series B redeemable convertible preference shares held by such holder were to be converted to ordinary shares immediately prior to such liquidation, dissolution or winding up of the Group. According to the articles of association amended on November 29, 2004 (the "Modification Date"), the net settlement feature of the Series B convertible redeemable preference shares under trade sale was removed.

The embedded conversion option of Series B convertible redeemable preference shares has been recorded at its fair value of $1,179,689 and accounted for separately as an embedded conversion option. The Group has accounted for the derivative liability relating to the conversion option by adjusting the liability to its estimated fair value at each subsequent balance sheet date up to the Modification Date, with adjustments recorded as other income or expenses. In 2004, the Group adjusted the derivative liability to fair market value and recorded a change in fair value of the derivative liability of $11,692,287 in the consolidated statements of operations. The Group recorded a deemed dividend of $1,179,689 in 2004, which resulted from the accretion of the discount of Series B convertible redeemable preference shares. On the Modification Date, the Group has re-combined the fair value of the derivative liability of $12,871,976 with Series B convertible redeemable preference shares and subsequently recorded an accretion of premium of $12,906,774, which represented the difference of the carrying balance of Series B convertible redeemable preference shares at the Modification Date and its initial issuance date.

15. Mainland China Contribution Plan and Profit Appropriation

Full time employees of the Group in the PRC participate in a government-mandated multiemployer defined contribution plan pursuant to which certain pension benefits, medical care, unemployment insurance, employee housing fund and other welfare benefits are provided to employees. PRC labor regulations require the Group to accrue for these benefits based on certain percentages of the employees' salaries. The total contribution for such employee benefits were $338,923, $619,831, $2,326,895 and $1,475,967 for the years ended December 31, 2004, 2005, 2006 and six months ended June 30, 2007(unaudited), respectively.

Pursuant to laws applicable to entities incorporated in the PRC, the Group subsidiaries in the PRC must make appropriations from after-tax profit to non-distributable reserve funds. These reserve funds include one or more of the following: (i) a general reserve, (ii) an enterprise expansion fund and (iii) a staff bonus and welfare fund. Subject to certain cumulative limits, the general reserve fund requires annual appropriations of 10% of after tax profit (as determined under accounting principles generally accepted in the PRC at each year-end) until such cumulative appropriation reaches 50% of the registered capital; the other fund appropriations are at the company's discretion. These reserve funds can only be used for specific purposes of enterprise expansion and staff bonus and welfare and are not distributable as cash dividends. For the years ended December 31, 2004, 2005 and 2006, the Group made total appropriations of $1,488,000, $98,729, and $650,851 respectively.

17. Segment Information

The Group is mainly engaged in operating an out-of-home advertising network in the PRC using flat-panel television advertising displays located in high traffic commercial locations and in-store areas. The Group also provides in-elevator poster frame advertising services, mobile handset advertising services and internet advertising services.

The Group's chief operating decision maker has been identified as the Chief Executive Officer ("CEO"), who reviews consolidated results when making decisions about allocating resources and assessing performance of the Group. The Group uses the management approach to determine the operating segments. The management approach considers the internal organization and reporting used by the Group's chief operating decision maker for making decisions, allocating resources and assessing the performance. The Group has four operating segments and determined that it has four reporting segments, which are out-of-home television advertising services (consists commercial location advertising network and in-store advertising network), in-elevator poster frames, mobile handset advertising and internet advertising. The fifth operating segment did not meet the significance threshold for separate disclosure and has been classified in "other". These segments all derive their revenues from the sale of advertising services. In March 2007, the Group further acquired Allyes Information Technology Co., Ltd., which is referred to as Internet advertising services. The Group did not have any Internet advertising service business prior to the acquisition and therefore, the segmental information is only provided from March 2007 onwards.

The Group's chief operating decision maker does not assign assets to these segments. Consequently, it is not practical to show assets by reportable segments. Prior to 2006, the Group only had a single operating segment, out-of-home television advertising services. The in-elevator poster frame advertising services, mobile handset advertising services and others segments were the result of acquisitions made in 2006.

The loan was unsecured and non-interest bearing. 19. Restricted Net Assets

Relevant PRC statutory laws and regulations permit payments of dividends by the Group's PRC subsidiaries only out of their retained earnings, if any, as determined in accordance with PRC accounting standards and regulations. In addition, PRC laws and regulations require that annual appropriations of 10% of after-tax income should be set aside prior to payment of dividends as a general reserve fund. As a result of these PRC laws and regulations, the Group's PRC subsidiaries and PRC affiliates are restricted in their ability to transfer a portion of their net assets to Focus Media Holding in the form of dividends, loans or advances, which restricted portion amounted to approximately $223,386,461 as of December 31, 2006.

INDEPENDENT AUDITORS' REPORT

TO THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF FOCUS MEDIA HOLDING LIMITED ("FOCUS MEDIA")

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheet of Allyes Information Technology Company Limited and subsidiaries (the "Company") as of December 31, 2006 and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' equity and comprehensive income, and cash flows for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on the financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes consideration of internal control over financial reporting as a basis for designing audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Company's internal control over financial reporting. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements, assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, such consolidated financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Company as of December 31, 2006 and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the year then ended in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

ALLYES INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY COMPANY LIMITED

NOTES TO THE CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
FOR THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 2006

1. Organization and Principal Activities

Allyes Information Technology Company Limited (the “Company”), a Cayman Island Company, was established under the Cayman law on March 10, 2000. Allyes (China) Holding Company Limited (“Allyes China”), a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Company, was registered in Hong Kong on March 29, 2000. In June 2000, New Allyes Information Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. (“New Allyes Shanghai”), a wholly-own subsidiary of Allyes China, was established in Shanghai, China. New Allyes Shanghai’s primary business is the development and sale of Adforward software, which enables advertisers to receive real-time analysis of the effectiveness of online advertisements.

Through various contractual arrangements as described below and under the requirements of FIN 46 (Revised), “Consolidation of Variable Interest Entities” (“FIN 46(R)”), New Allyes Shanghai is deemed the primary beneficiary of a group of subsidiaries that are deemed variable interest entities (“VIEs”) under the requirements of FIN 46(R). These subsidiaries primarily engage in commercial advertisement agency businesses and specialize in the design, development and placement of online advertisements primarily on large Chinese gateway websites or mid-sized specialized websites, and include the following:

Names of variable interest entities:

Entities	Date of Acquisition	Date of Incorporation	Place of Incorporation
Beijing QuanShi Advertising Co., Ltd. (“Beijing QS”)	N/A	December 4, 2000	The People’s Republic of China (the “PRC”)
Shanghai Allyes Advertising Co., Ltd. (“Shanghai Allyes”)	N/A	January 20, 2003
Shanghai Interactive Information Advertising Co., Ltd. (“Shanghai Interactive”)	N/A	October 11, 2004	PRC
Shenzhen BaiFen Innovation Advertising Co., Ltd. (“Shenzhen BF”)	November 1, 2004	June 4, 2001	PRC
Shanghai Meisien Advertising Co., Ltd. (“Shanghai Meisien”)	N/A	November 3, 2004	PRC
Tianjin FeiNiao Interactive Advertising Co., Ltd. (“Tianjin FN”)	July 1, 2005	October 11, 2004	PRC
Shanghai QuanShi Advertising Co., Ltd. (“Shanghai QS”)	N/A	April 30, 2005	PRC
Beijing LangTian Interactive Advertising Co., Ltd. (“Beijing LT”)	February 15, 2006	December 30, 2005	PRC
Shanghai KuanTong Advertising Co., Ltd. (“Shanghai KT”)	N/A	June 28, 2006	PRC

PRC law restricts foreign ownership of entities engaged in advertising businesses in China. For the Company and its subsidiaries, namely Allyes China and New Allyes Shanghai, to comply with these restrictions, the Company conducts its commercial trading and advertising activities through the VIEs that hold the acquired advertising licenses. All of the VIEs are 100% owned by four PRC nationals: Zhu Hailong, Chief Executive Officer of the Company, Wang Jiangang, Chief Technology Officer of the Company, Zhang Suyang, Board Director, and Xiong Xiangdong, one of the founding shareholders of the Company. The contributions made by these four individuals in forming the VIEs were financed by New Allyes Shanghai.

New Allyes Shanghai has entered into various agreements with the VIEs, including the use of trademarks and intellectual property of the Company and exclusive service agreements, entitling New Allyes Shanghai to receive service fees up to but not exceeding the net income of the VIEs. New Allyes Shanghai has also been assigned all voting rights by the owners of the VIEs through agreements that are valid indefinitely and which cannot be amended or terminated except through the written consent of all parties. In addition, New Allyes Shanghai has the option to acquire all of the equity interests of the VIEs once permitted under PRC law.

FIN 46(R) requires VIEs to be consolidated by the primary beneficiary of the VIE if the ownership interest held by the equity investors in the entity does not have characteristics of a controlling financial interest or does not have sufficient equity at risk for the VIE to finance its activities without additional subordinated financial support from other parties. New Allyes Shanghai holds all of the variable interests in and is the primary beneficiary of these VIEs and has consolidated all such VIEs in accordance with FIN 46(R) since their respective dates of inception or date on which the variable interest was obtained ("date of acquisition").

2. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies*(a) Basis of Presentation

The accompanying financial statements are prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America ("US GAAP").

(b) Basis of Consolidation

The consolidated financial statements include the financial statements of the Company, its subsidiaries and variable interest entities for which it is the primary beneficiary. All inter-company transactions and balances have been eliminated upon consolidation.

(c) Cash and Cash Equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents consist of cash on hand and highly liquid investments which are unrestricted as to withdrawal or use, and which have maturities of three months or less when purchased.

(d) Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with US GAAP requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and revenue and expenses in the financial statements and accompanying notes. Significant accounting estimates reflected in the Company's financial statements including computation of fair value for share-based awards, allowance for doubtful accounts, estimates to recognize rebate receivable estimates to compute the fair value of the Company's common stock, useful lives and impairment of equipment and intangible assets and valuation allowance for deferred tax assets. Changes in estimates are recorded in the period in which they become known. The Company bases its estimates on historical experience and various other assumptions that it believes to be reasonable under the circumstances.

The Company participates in a young and dynamic industry and believes that changes in any of the following areas could have a material adverse effect on the Company's future financial position, results of operations or cash flows: the Company's limited operating history; advances and trends in new technologies and industry standards; competition from other competitors; regulatory or other PRC related factors; and risks associated with the Company's ability to attract and retain employees necessary to support its growth; risks associated with the Company's growth strategies; and general risks associated with the advertising industry.

(In U.S. dollars, except share data)*(f) Rebates Receivable

The Company receives incentives from suppliers that operate gateway websites providing advertising space, in the form of product and volume rebates. These incentives are generally paid to the Company on a monthly, quarterly, or annual basis depending on the agreements with the suppliers and are determined based on the actual cash payments made to the suppliers based on a pre-determined sliding scale.

The Company estimates the rebate receivable at the end of each month based on the aggregate purchases of advertising space using the applicable actual rebate rate. Rebates are recorded as a reduction of cost of revenues.

(g) Equipment, Net

Equipment, net is carried at cost less accumulated depreciation. Depreciation is calculated on a straight-line basis over the following estimated useful lives:

Computers and office equipment	5 years
Vehicles	5 years

(h) Acquired Intangible Assets

Acquired intangible assets represent customer bases, which are valued at cost less accumulated amortization. Amortization is calculated using the straight-line method over their expected useful life of 7 years.

(i) Impairment of Long-Lived Assets

The Company reviews its long-lived assets for impairment whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of an asset may no longer be recoverable. When these events occur, the Company measures impairment by comparing the carrying value of the long-lived assets to the estimated undiscounted future cash flows expected to result from the use of the assets and their eventual disposition. If the sum of the expected undiscounted cash flows is less than the carrying amount of the assets, the Company would recognize an impairment loss equal to the excess of the carrying value of the asset over its fair value.

(j) Customer Receipts in Advance

The Company receives prepayments for services in advance from certain customers. The amount received in advance is deferred and recognized in the period the service is performed.

(k) Revenue Recognition

Revenues primary consist of revenues from advertising and advertising-related services and revenues from sales of Adforward software.

Advertising revenues, net of agency rebates are recognized ratably over the period in which the advertisement is displayed. Advertising revenues are recognized in accordance with Staff Accounting Bulletin ("SAB") No. 104, "Revenue Recognition in Financial Statements" ("SAB 104"). In accordance with SAB 104, revenues are recognized when all four of the following criteria are met: (i) persuasive evidence of agreement exists; (ii) delivery of service has occurred; (iii) the price is both fixed and determinable; and (iv) collection of the resulting receivable is reasonably assured.

In the majority of advertising arrangements, the Company acts as a principal in the transaction and records advertising revenues on a gross basis, in accordance with the provisions of Emerging Issues Task Force ("EITF") Issue No. 99-19, "Reporting Revenue Gross as a Principal versus Net as an Agent." The associated expenses are recorded as cost of revenues. In some instances, the Company acts as a preferred representative for certain customer's online advertising business and earns a commission equal to a fixed percentage of the respective transaction. In such instances, the Company is considered as an agent and recognizes commission revenue on a net basis.

Adforward software sales typically include multiple elements, including sale of software licenses and services. Service includes installation, training and post contract customer support ("PCS"), which consists of when-and-if available software license updates and technical support. The Company recognizes revenues based on the provisions of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants Statement of Position ("SOP") No. 97-2, "Software Revenue Recognition", as amended by SOP No. 98-9, "Modification of SOP No. 97-2, Software Revenue Recognition, With Respect to Certain Transactions." Revenues under multiple-element arrangements are allocated to each element in the arrangement primarily using the residual method based upon the fair value of the undelivered elements, which is specific to the Company (vendor-specific objective evidence of fair value or VSOE). This means that the Company defers revenue from the arrangement fee equivalent to the fair value of the undelivered elements. Discounts, if any, are applied to the delivered elements, usually software licenses, under the residual method. VSOE for PCS is determined based on either the renewal rate specified in each contract or the price charged when each element is sold separately. If the Company does not have VSOE for the undelivered elements, revenue recognition is deferred until VSOE for such elements are obtained or until all elements have been delivered.

The Company sells Adforward subscriptions and perpetual licenses. Revenues are recognized for subscription arrangements ratably over the subscription period for those with fixed fees and as earned (based on actual usage) under our variable fee arrangements. Under perpetual license agreements, revenue recognition is generally commenced when delivery has occurred, software has been installed and training has been provided as the Company does not currently have VSOE for either installation or training services.

Leases where substantially all the risks and rewards of ownership of assets remain with the leasing company are accounted for as operating leases. Payments made under operating leases are charged to the consolidated statement of operations on a straight-line basis over the lease periods.

(m) Foreign Currency Translation

The functional and reporting currency of the Company is the United States dollar ("US dollar"). Monetary assets and liabilities denominated in currencies other than the US dollar are translated into the US dollar at the rates of exchange ruling at the balance sheet date. Transactions in currencies other than the US dollar during the year are converted into the US dollar at the applicable rates of exchange prevailing at the first day of the month transactions occurred. Transaction gains and losses are recognized in the statements of operations.

The financial records of the Company's subsidiaries and its VIEs are maintained in their local currency, the Renminbi ("RMB"), which is the functional currency. Assets and liabilities are translated at the exchange rates at the balance sheet date, equity accounts are translated at historical exchange rates and revenues, expenses, gains and losses are translated using the average rate for the year. Translation adjustments are reported as cumulative translation adjustments and are shown as a separate component of other comprehensive income in the statement of shareholders' equity.

(In U.S. dollars, except share data)*(n) Income Taxes

Deferred income taxes are recognized for temporary differences between the tax basis of assets and liabilities and their reported amounts in the financial statements, net operating loss carry forwards and credits, by applying enacted statutory tax rates applicable to future years. Deferred tax assets are reduced by a valuation allowance when, in the opinion of management, it is more likely than not that some portion or all of the deferred tax assets will not be realized. Current income taxes are provided for in accordance with the laws of the relevant taxing authorities.

(o) Comprehensive Income

Comprehensive income includes net loss and foreign currency translation adjustments. Comprehensive income is reported in the statement of shareholders' equity.

(p) Concentration of Credit Risk

Financial instruments that potentially expose the Company to concentration of credit risk consist primarily of cash, cash equivalents and accounts receivable. All of the Company's cash and cash equivalents are held at financial institutions that management believes to be of high credit quality. The Company conducts credit evaluations of customers and generally does not require collateral or other security from its customers. The Company establishes an allowance for doubtful accounts primarily based upon the age of the receivables and factors surrounding the credit risk of specific customers.

(q) Fair Value of Financial Instruments

The carrying amounts of the Company's financial instruments, including cash and cash equivalents, accounts receivable, accounts payable and accrued liabilities, approximate fair value due to their short-term nature.

(r) Share-Based Compensation

The Company may grant share options to its employees, directors, consultants and advisors. Under the provisions of Statement of Financial Accounting Standard ("SFAS") 123(R), "Share-based Payment" ("SFAS 123(R)"), share-based compensation cost is measured at the grant date, based on the fair value of the award, and is recognized as an expense over the requisite service period (generally the vesting period of the equity grant).

The Company elected to early adopt the provisions of SFAS 123(R) prior to January 1, 2006.

(s) Recently Issued Accounting Standards

In September 2006, the Financial Accounting Standard Board ("FASB") issued Statement No. 157, "Fair Value Measurements" (SFAS 157). The Statement defines fair value, establishes a framework for measuring fair value in Generally Accepted Accounting Principles ("GAAP"), and expands disclosures about fair value measurements. SFAS 157 does not require any new fair value measurements but applies under other financial pronouncements that permit or require fair value measurements. SFAS 157 is effective for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007 and early application is encouraged. The Company does not expect the adoption of this Statement to have a material impact on its results of operations or financial position.

In February 2007, the FASB issued SFAS No. 159, The Fair Value Option for Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities (SFAS 159). SFAS 159 expands opportunities to use fair value measurements in financial reporting and permits entities to choose to measure many financial instruments and certain other items at fair value. SFAS 159 is effective for us on January 1, 2008, although it may be early adopted on January 1, 2007 if the Company also adopts SFAS 157 at that time. The Company has not decided if it will early adopt SFAS 159 or if it will choose to measure any eligible financial assets and liabilities at fair value.

In June 2006, the FASB issued Interpretation No. 48, “Accounting for Uncertainty in Income Taxes” (“FIN 48”). FIN 48 clarifies accounting for uncertainty in income taxes recognized in an enterprise’s financial statements in accordance with FASB Statement No. 109, “Accounting for Income Taxes.” FIN 48 prescribes a recognition threshold and measurement attribute for the financial statement recognition and measurement of a tax position taken or expected to be taken in a tax return. FIN 48 also provides guidance on derecognition, classification, interest and penalties, accounting in interim periods, disclosure and transition. FIN 48 will be effective for us beginning in fiscal year 2007. The Company is currently evaluating the interpretation to determine the effect on its financial statements and related disclosures.

In June 2006, the Emerging Issues Task Force (“EITF”) reached a consensus on Issue No. 06–3, “How Taxes Collected from Customers and Remitted to Governmental Authorities Should be Presented in the Income Statement (That Is, Gross Versus Net Presentation)” (“EITF 06–3”). The scope of EITF 06–3 includes sales, use, value added and some excise taxes that are assessed by a governmental authority on specific revenue-producing transactions between a seller and customer. EITF 06–3 states that a company should disclose its accounting policy (i.e. gross or net presentation) regarding the presentation of taxes within its scope, and if significant, these disclosures should be applied retrospectively to the financial statements for all periods presented. EITF 06–3 is effective for interim and annual reporting periods beginning after December 15, 2006. The Company is currently evaluating the impact, if any, of this statement on its consolidated combined financial statements and related disclosures.

3. Acquisitions

During 2006, the Company made the following acquisitions in order to continue to expand its customer base in desirable locations:

(1) Beijing LT

On February 15, 2006, Shanghai Allyes and Shanghai QS acquired 100% of equity interest in Beijing LT for cash consideration of $124,057. The only asset acquired from this acquisition was cash equal to the purchase price. As a result, the purchase price, net of cash acquired was zero.

On February 21, 2006, Beijing LT entered into an Asset Transfer Agreement (the “Agreement”) with the selling corporate shareholder of Beijing LT (the “Selling Corporate Shareholder”) to acquire fixed assets and a customer list for cash consideration of $640,311, payable in three installments. The first installment of $256,125 was paid at the date of execution of the Agreement. The second installment of $192,093 was to be paid before March 31, 2007 if the net income of Beijing LT from February 1, 2006 to January 31, 2007 was greater than $256,125. The third installment of $192,093 was to be paid before March 31, 2008, if the General Manager maintained employment with Beijing LT for at least two years subsequent to February 1, 2006.

As discussed in Note 13, the Agreement was terminated in 2007. The second installment was not earned or paid. The terms of the third installment, which the Company considered to be additional compensation, were modified.

(2) Shenzhen BF

In March 2006, the Company paid an additional $67,873 contingent consideration associated with the acquisition of Shenzhen BF in November 2004, which has been allocated to intangible assets.

Customer bases, net	$ 126,035

The Company recorded amortization expense of $51,160 for the year ended December 31, 2006. The Company expects to record amortization expense of $25,311 for each of the next four years and $24,791 for the remaining years.

Beijing LT's primary business is to act as an agent for a third party website under a Cooperation Agreement ("Cooperation Agreement"). Near the end of 2006, the third party significantly increased the contract price making the acquired operations of Beijing LT unprofitable. Consequently, the Company decided not to renew the Cooperation Agreement and to terminate the Agreement (See Note 3) as discussed in Note 13. As a result, the Company recorded a full impairment of $287,765 related to the Beijing LT customer base given a lack of future projected earnings.

7. Share-Based Compensation and Warrant

On August 18, 2000, the Company adopted the 2000 employee share option plan (the "Option Plan"), which allows the Company to offer a variety of incentive awards to employees, directors, consultants and advisors or any members of the Company. The purpose of the Option Plan is to promote the success of the Company and to increase shareholder value by providing an additional means through the grant of awards to attract, motivate, retain and reward selected employees and other eligible persons of the Company. The Company granted 67,222,733 share options during the period from 2001 to 2005, and a further 340,000 share options to its employees under the Option Plan in 2006. Under the terms of the Option Plan, the share options are generally granted at exercise prices not less than 100% of the fair market value as determined by the Board of Directors and expire 10 years from the date of grant and vest over 3 years.

The fair value of the common shares underlying the options were determined by the Company for all grants and considered several factors, including retrospective valuations. These valuations utilized the guideline companies approach, which incorporates certain assumptions including the market performance of comparable listed companies as well as the financial results and growth trends of the Company, to derive the total equity value of the Company. The valuation model allocated the equity value between the common shares and the preference shares and determined the fair value of common shares based on two assumptions: conversion into common shares would result in a higher economic value, preference shares were treated as if they had converted into common shares; and preference shares that have a value higher than their conversion price were assigned a value that takes into consideration their liquidation preference. The common shares were assigned a value equal to their pro rata share of the residual amount, if any, that remained after consideration of the liquidation preference of preference shares with a value below their conversion price.

The fair value of options granted during the year ended December 31, 2006 was estimated on the date of grant using the Black-Scholes option pricing model, assuming no dividends and the following weighted average assumptions:

Risk-free rate of return	5.78%
Expected term	6.0 years
Expected volatility	68%
Expected dividend yield	0%

Expected volatility is based on the standard deviation of similar companies' daily stock prices. The expected term of options represents the period of time that options granted are expected to be outstanding. The risk-free rate

The Company recorded share-based compensation expenses with respect to Option Plan of $515,478 for the year ended December 31, 2006.

The repurchase right on 908,352 of these shares will expire on June 1, 2007 if the officer remains employed with the Company. The repurchase right on the remaining 1,816,703 shares will expire rateably on a monthly basis from June 1, 2007 to May 31, 2009 for as long as the officer is employed with the Company. The loan will be due and payable if the officer breaches any term of the Loan Agreement or fails to perform any obligation specified in the Loan Agreement; voluntarily ceases to be an employee; or immediately prior to the US public offering of the Company's common shares. If at any time before the repurchase right has expired or the Company merges with or into another corporation, the repurchase right on all shares shall immediately expire.

The arrangement is treated as a share option until the loan is repaid. Further, as the shares sold were on a non-recourse basis and are accounted for as options, issuance of the restricted shares was not recorded. Rather, compensation cost will be recognized over the service period with an offsetting increase in additional paid-in

New Allyes Shanghai enjoys EIT preferential treatment and is entitled to a two-year EIT exemption followed by a three-year, 50% reduction in rate, effective from the first profit making year after absorbing all prior year tax losses which can be carried forward for five years. New Allyes Shanghai entered the first profit making year in 2004 and was therefore subject to 50% EIT rate reduction for the year ended December 31, 2006.

Shanghai QS, Beijing LT and Shanghai KT also enjoy EIT preferential treatment and are entitled to a two-year EIT exemption, effective from the first year of establishment. The exemption period ended December 31, 2006 for Shanghai QS and Beijing LT, and is to be ended December 31, 2007 for Shanghai KT. All three companies were exempted from EIT for the year ended December 31, 2006.

The Company's remaining entities registered in the PRC are subject to a statutory EIT rate of 33% in accordance with the relevant PRC Enterprise Income Tax Laws.

On March 16, 2007, the PRC National People's Congress passed the China Corporate Income Tax Law which will change the income tax rates for most enterprises from 33% at the present to 25%. This new law will become effective on January 1, 2008. There will be a transition period for enterprises, whether foreign-invested or domestic, which currently receive preferential tax treatments granted by relevant tax authorities. Enterprises that are subject to an enterprise income tax rate lower than 25% may continue to enjoy the lower rate and gradually transfer to the new tax rate within five years after the effective date of the new law. Enterprises that are currently entitled to exemptions or reductions from the standard income tax rate for a fixed term may continue to enjoy such treatment until the fixed term expires. Preferential tax treatments will continue to be granted to industries and projects that are strongly supported and encouraged by the state, and enterprises otherwise classified as "new and high technology enterprises strongly supported by the state" will be entitled to a 15% enterprise income tax rate. The income tax rates for most of the Company's PRC entities are expected to transit from 33% to 25% starting from January 1, 2008.

Income tax expense (benefit) consists of the following:

	Year Ended December 31, 2006
Current income tax expense	$ 1,149,557
Deferred income tax benefit	(146,613)
Total income taxes	$ 1,002,944

The effective income tax rate for the year ended December 31, 2006 differs from the statutory rate primarily due to excess of payroll over EIT deduction limit, write-off of bad debt without tax authority approval, impairment loss recognized and tax holiday effect of certain PRC entities.

THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS AND SHAREHOLDERS OF TARGET MEDIA HOLDINGS LIMITED:

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheets of Target Media Holdings Limited and its subsidiaries as of December 31, 2004 and 2005, and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' equity, and cash flows for each of the years in the two-year period ended December 31, 2005, all expressed in Renminbi. These consolidated financial statements are the responsibility of the Company's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these consolidated financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the consolidated financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes consideration of internal control over financial reporting as a basis for designing audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Company's internal control over financial reporting. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Target Media Holdings Limited and its subsidiaries as of December 31, 2004 and 2005, and the results of their operations and their cash flows for each of the years in the two-year period ended December 31, 2005, in conformity with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles.

The accompanying consolidated financial statements as of and for the year ended December 31, 2005, have been translated into United States dollars solely for the convenience of the reader. We have audited the translation and, in our opinion, such consolidated financial statements expressed in Renminbi have been translated into United States dollars on the basis set forth in note 2(c) to the consolidated financial statements.

DECEMBER 31, 2004 AND 2005

(1) Principal Activities, Organization and Basis of PresentationPrincipal activities*

The accompanying consolidated financial statements consist of the financial statements of Target Media Holdings Limited (the "Company"), its wholly-owned subsidiary, Target Media Multi-Media Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. ("TMM"), and a consolidated variable interest entity ("VIE"), Shanghai Target Media Co., Ltd. ("STM"). The Company and its subsidiary and consolidated VIE are collectively referred to as the "Group". The Group is principally engaged in operating a nationwide flat panel display advertising network in the People's Republic of China ("PRC"), which is made up of liquid crystal displays, or LCD, and plasma screens placed in the elevator lobbies or other waiting areas of commercial buildings, high-end residential buildings, hotels, banks and supermarkets. Using the advertisement content provided by its customers, the Group displays commercial advertisements for its customers on this network to capture targeted consumers who work, live or shop at these locations.

On January 7, 2006, the Company signed a definitive agreement ("the Agreement") with Focus Media Holding Limited ("Focus Media") whereby Focus Media will purchase 100% of the Company's equity interests from selling shareholders in exchange for a total consideration of US$325,000, of which US$94,000 will be paid in cash and US$231,000 will be paid in the form of Focus Media's ordinary shares (priced at US$30.00 per ADS, each of which represents 10 Focus Media ordinary shares), equal to 77 million Focus Media ordinary shares. The cash portion of the purchase price will be paid in three installments. The first installment of US$45,000 is to be paid upon closing. The second installment of US$25,000 is to be paid on April 28, 2006. The final installment of US$24,000 is to be paid on July 31, 2006, and may be increased or decreased based on a calculation of Target Media's net working capital as of the closing date. All of the Focus Media ordinary shares to be delivered at closing under the Agreement will be in the form of newly issued shares. This proposed business combination is expected to close following the satisfaction or waiver of customary closing conditions provided in the Agreement.

Organization

In July 2004, the shareholders of STM incorporated the Company in the Cayman Islands as part of the reorganization of STM (the "Reorganization"). The purpose of the Reorganization was to enable a group of foreign investors to invest in STM where current PRC laws restrict direct foreign investment or ownership in advertising companies in the PRC. In connection with the Reorganization, the Company entered into the following series of transactions:

- (1) The formation and incorporation and issuance of the Company's common shares to the STM shareholders in the same direct proportion to their relative equity interests of STM in August 2004. See note 13.
- (2) The formation and incorporation of TMM as a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Company in August 2004.
- (3) The entering into certain contractual agreements and arrangements between TMM and STM in August 2004 since the Company and TMM currently are ineligible to apply and hold the required licenses for provision of advertising services in the PRC.
- (4) The issuance of the Company's Series A redeemable convertible preferred shares to a group of foreign investors for cash consideration of US$15,000 as discussed in note 12(a).

The contractual agreements and arrangements between TMM and STM have resulted in the Company receiving substantially all the economic benefits and residual returns, absorbing substantially all the risks of expected losses of STM, and controlling the operating and financial decision making of STM. In addition, under the terms of these contractual agreements and arrangements, the Company, through TMM and its de facto agents, is considered to be the primary beneficiary of STM since it holds substantially all the variable interests of STM and is determined to be most closely associated with STM.

Under Financial Accounting Standard Board (“FASB”) Interpretation No. 46(R), “Consolidation of Variable Interest Entities, an Interpretation of ARB No. 51” (“FIN 46R”), a variable interest entity is required to be consolidated by the primary beneficiary of the entity if the equity investors in the entity do not have the characteristics of a controlling financial interest or do not have sufficient equity at risk for the entity to finance its activities without additional subordinated financial support from other parties. Accordingly, the financial statements of STM have been consolidated in the Company’s financial statements from August 2004, which is the date when the Company first became the primary beneficiary of STM through the above contractual agreements and arrangements.

The fees, payments or other sources of income and expenses arising from the transactions between TMM and STM under the terms of these agreements are eliminated against the related expenses or income on consolidation and do not have any impact on the consolidated financial position and operations and cash flow of the Group other than to reflect such amounts on a separate legal entity basis. The key terms and salient features of these contractual agreements and arrangements, which became effective from August 2004, are as follows:

Assets Purchase Agreement Under the Assets Purchase Agreement, TMM purchased all of the tangible and intangible assets of STM other than (i) advertisement contracts with customers, (ii) flat panel display placement contracts, and (iii) other assets prohibited from transfer under applicable PRC laws and regulations. The purchase price was equal to the net book value of these assets as of July 31, 2004 and is payable by TMM through deducting the fees and expenses payable to TMM by STM under the Lease and Service Agreement and the Software License and Exclusive Technical Service Agreement described below.

Lease and Service Agreement Under the Lease and Service Agreement, STM exclusively leases flat panel display and related equipment from TMM. STM also undertakes to exclusively procure certain services from TMM from time to time, including (i) repair and maintenance of flat panel display equipment, (ii) secondment of TMM’s employees to STM and (iii) business promotion services. Equipment rental is charged based on the amount of depreciation charge of the equipment plus a reasonable profit as determined and approved by TMM and the Board of Directors of the Company. Service fees are charged based on the relevant costs plus a reasonable profit as determined and approved by TMM and the Board of Directors of the Company. The initial term of the Lease and Service Agreement is 10 years and is automatically renewable for another 10 years unless, TMM gives written notice of its intention not to renew at least three months prior to expiration. The terms of this agreement also prohibit STM from purchasing or leasing flat panel display equipment, hiring new employees and procuring the services described above from any other third parties without TMM’s written consent.

Software License and Exclusive Technical Service Agreement Under the Software License and Exclusive Technical Service Agreement, TMM provides a non-exclusive, non-transferable and non-assignable license to STM to install and run its licensed software solely in the PRC. TMM is the exclusive technical service provider to STM and STM is not permitted to procure any similar or identical technical services from other third parties. STM further agrees that TMM is the sole owner of any and all intellectual property rights or any other rights arising by way of research and development under this agreement. The software license fees payable by STM to TMM shall be based on a certain percentage of the business income generated from the use of TMM’s software in STM’s business operations as determined and approved by TMM and the Board of Directors of the Company. The technical service fees payable by STM to TMM shall be based on the relevant costs plus a reasonable profit as determined and approved by TMM and the Board of Directors of the Company. The initial term of the agreement is 10 years and is automatically renewable for another 10 years unless, TMM gives written notice of its intention not to renew at least three months prior to expiration.

Guarantee Agreement Under the Guarantee Agreement and as security for STM's obligations under the Lease and Service Agreement and the Software License and Exclusive Technical Service Agreement, each of the shareholders of STM has guaranteed STM's performance under, and settlement of obligations arising from the Lease and Service Agreement and the Software License and Exclusive Technical Service Agreement by pledging all their equity interests in STM. Furthermore, the shareholders of STM have agreed to appoint the general manager, chief financial officer and other senior management of STM according to the Company's or TMM's instruction.

Future Equity Transfer Agreement Under the Future Equity Transfer Agreement, the shareholders of STM shall transfer to the Company or its nominee, and the Company or its nominee shall acquire, when the PRC laws permit, their entire equity interests in the registered capital of STM at a nominal amount of RMB 10, provided that the prevailing PRC laws at the time of transfer do not require a valuation of the transferred equity interests or post other restrictions. Furthermore, the terms of the Future Equity Transfer Agreement place significant restrictions on the shareholders of STM as summarized below:

(a) Without the written consent of the Company, each of the shareholders of STM shall not use their equity interests in STM as a guarantee or security against a loan, or shall not cause STM to enter into any loan transaction.

(b) Without the written consent of the Company, each of the shareholders of STM shall not dispose of their equity interests in the registered capital of STM in any form, including but not limited to transfer, security, or other forms of entitlements.

(c) Without the written consent of the Company, each of the shareholders of STM shall not adopt any measure which may cause the current approved business scope of STM to be altered, or may cause STM to be liquidated or wound up.

(d) Each of the shareholders of STM shall cause their respective nominees on STM's Board not to pay any dividend or declare any dividend payable to the legal shareholders unless the Company's prior approval is obtained.

(e) Each of the shareholders of STM shall invite the Company to attend STM's shareholders and Board of Directors' meetings, cast their votes at the shareholders' meeting in accordance with the Company's instructions and direct their respective nominees on STM's Board to vote in accordance with the Company's instructions.

(f) Each of the shareholders of STM shall ensure that STM's capital structure remains unchanged unless otherwise instructed by the Company, and that STM's registered capital will not be increased, nor will it be assigned, in whole or in part, to any third party without prior written consent of the Company.

With respect to the Company's direct variable interest in STM, no minority interests (or noncontrolling interests) have been presented since the Company, through TMM and its de facto agents (who are also all the shareholders of STM), has a 100% controlling financial interest in STM through the terms of the aforementioned contractual agreements and arrangements. In addition, the common shareholders of the Company and the shareholders of STM are the same and their shareholders' equity interests in the Company are in the same proportion as to their equity interests in STM.

STM is a domestic company incorporated in Shanghai, the PRC, in December 2003 and was formed in connection with the restructuring of Shanghai Dian Yang Digital Media Technology Co., Ltd. ("Dian Yang"), whose sole beneficial equity owner is also the controlling and majority shareholder of STM and the Company. Dian Yang was established in 2000 and initially operated as an advertising agency company by placing advertisements with media companies on behalf of advertising clients. In March 2003, Dian Yang commenced the flat panel display advertising business as an extension to its advertising agency business. As part of the restructuring of Dian Yang

(the “Restructuring”), all tangible and intangible assets, assignable business contracts and employees relevant to the flat panel display advertising business were transferred from Dian Yang to STM in December 2003 at the time of STM’s incorporation. In connection with the transfer, RMB 20,000 was distributed to Dian Yang, of which RMB 10,000 was paid by STM at the end of December 2003 and the remaining RMB 10,000 was paid by STM in January 2004. Following the Restructuring, STM began to operate the flat panel display advertising business.

Basis of presentation

The accompanying consolidated financial statements have been prepared in accordance with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles (“US GAAP”).

Since the controlling and majority shareholder of STM prior to the Reorganization remained the controlling and majority shareholder of the Company after consummation of the Reorganization, the assets and liabilities of STM have been stated and recognized by the Company at the historical carrying amounts of STM. As discussed above, the financial position and results of operations of STM have been consolidated and included in the Company’s consolidated financial statements from August 2004 onwards. For the periods prior to August 2004, since the Company was formed for the sole purpose of the Reorganization to allow a group of foreign investors to invest in STM’s flat panel display advertising business, the accompanying consolidated financial statements include the financial position and the related results of operations of STM from the earliest date presented through August 2004 at historical cost basis with no lapse in financial information. Accordingly, the results of operations for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005 are comparable.

As of December 31, 2005, the Group had working capital (current assets less current liabilities) of approximately RMB 155,637 (US$19,285) and off-balance sheet operating lease commitments of RMB 117,994 (US$14,621) payable over the next 12-months (see note 11). The Company has historically relied on capital infusions and credit enhancements from its shareholders to provide working capital to fund its flat panel display network build-out and acquisitions. Management believes that its current cash on hand and expected cash flow from operations will be sufficient to meet its operating requirements, including existing operating lease commitments over the foreseeable future. However, should the acquisition of the Company by Focus Media (see note 1) not occur or the consummation date be delayed beyond a short period of time, it may be necessary for the Company to seek additional capital infusions from current and new shareholders and/or provide shareholder credit enhancements to third party lenders to satisfy its anticipated liquidity requirements for further network expansion. Should the Company be unable to obtain liquidity at levels necessary to meet its anticipated requirements or at commercially acceptable rates, future network expansion plans may need to be curtailed or postponed.

(2) Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

(a) Principles of consolidation

The consolidated financial statements include the financial statements of the Company, its subsidiary and its VIE, since the Company is the primary beneficiary. All significant inter company balances and transactions have been eliminated on consolidation.

(b) Use of estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with US GAAP requires management of the Company to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and the disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates. On an ongoing basis, management reviews its estimates, including those related to the allowance for doubtful accounts, estimates to

(c) Foreign currencies

The Group's functional currency is the Renminbi ("RMB"). Monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are translated into RMB using the applicable exchange rates quoted by the People's Bank of China at the balance sheet dates. All such exchange gains and losses are included in the consolidated statements of operations.

The accompanying consolidated financial statements have been expressed in RMB. The translations of amounts from RMB into United States dollars ("US$") as of and for the year ended December 31, 2005, are solely for the convenience of the reader and were calculated at the rate of US$1.00 = RMB 8.0702, on December 31, 2005, representing the noon buying rate in the City of New York for cable transfers of RMB, as certified for customs purposes by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. No representation is intended to imply that the RMB amounts could have been, or could be, converted, realized or settled into US$ at that rate on December 31, 2005, or at any other rate. See also note 14.

(d) Commitments and contingencies

Liabilities for loss contingencies arising from claims, assessments, litigation, fines and penalties and other sources are recorded when it is probable that a liability has been incurred and the amount of the assessment can be reasonably estimated.

(e) Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents consist of cash at bank and on hand and certificates of deposit with an initial term of less than three months when purchased. None of the Group's cash and cash equivalents is restricted for withdrawal.

(f) Accounts receivable

Accounts receivable billed are recorded at the invoiced amount and are non interest bearing. The allowance for doubtful accounts is the Group's best estimate of the amount of probable credit losses in the Group's existing accounts receivable. The Group determines the allowance based on historical write-off experience by customer types and reviews specific larger amounts individually for collectibility. Account balances are charged off against the allowance after all means of collection have been exhausted and the potential for recovery is considered remote. The Group does not have any off-balance-sheet credit exposure related to its customers.

(g) Property, equipment and software, net

Property, equipment and software are stated at cost, net of accumulated depreciation, amortization and impairment.

DECEMBER 31, 2004 AND 2005
(Amounts in thousands, except share data)

Depreciation and amortization are calculated using the straight-line method over the following estimated useful lives, taking into account the assets' estimated residual value:

Flat panel display equipment, primarily LCD and plasma television screens	5 years
Computers and office equipment and software	3–5 years
Motor vehicles	5 years
Leasehold improvements	Shorter of 5 years or term of the lease

In accordance with SFAS 143, “Accounting for Asset Retirement Obligations,” legal obligations associated with the retirement of long-lived assets that result from the acquisition, construction, development or normal use of the asset are recognized at fair value in the period in which the liability is incurred if a reasonable estimate of fair value can be made. For the periods presented there were no legal retirement obligations associated with the placement and use of the Group's flat panel display equipment.

(h) Impairment of long-lived assets

In accordance with Statements of Financial Accounting Standards (“SFAS”) No. 144, “Accounting for the Impairment or Disposal of Long-Lived Assets,” long-lived assets, such as property, equipment and software, and acquired intangibles subject to amortization, are reviewed for impairment whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of an asset may not be recoverable. Recoverability of assets to be held and used is measured by a comparison of the carrying amount of an asset to the estimated undiscounted future cash flows expected to be generated by the asset. If the carrying amount of an asset exceeds its estimated future cash flows, an impairment charge is recognized by the amount by which the carrying amount of the asset exceeds the fair value of the asset. No impairment of long-lived assets was recognized for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005.

(i) Goodwill and other intangible assets

Goodwill and intangible assets which are determined to have indefinite useful lives are not amortized, but instead tested for impairment at least annually in accordance with the provisions of SFAS No. 142, “Goodwill and Other Intangible Assets.” Intangible assets with determinable useful lives are amortized over their respective useful lives and reviewed for impairment in accordance with SFAS No. 144.

(j) Fair value of financial instruments

Financial instruments of the Group include cash and cash equivalents, time deposits, accounts receivable, amounts due from related parties, other receivables, accounts and bills payable, and amounts due to related parties, for which the carrying values approximate their fair values due to their short-term maturities.

(k) Statutory Reserve

TMM and STM are required under PRC laws to provide for certain statutory reserves, such as a general reserve, an enterprise expansion fund and a staff welfare and bonus fund. TMM and STM are required to allocate at least 10% of their after tax profits as reported in their PRC statutory financial statements to the general reserve and have the right to discontinue allocations to the general reserve if the balance of such reserve has reached 50% of their registered capital. These statutory reserves are not available for distribution to the shareholders (except in liquidation) and may not be transferred in the form of loans, advances or cash dividends. As of December 31, 2004 and 2005, RMB 5,011 and RMB 7,166 were appropriated from retained earnings and set aside for these statutory

The Group's revenue is derived from the rendering of advertising services. Revenues from advertising services are recognized ratably on a straight-line basis over the period in which the advertisement is contractually required to be displayed, starting from the date the customer provides the advertisement content and the Group displays such content on its flat panel display equipment, and only when all four of the following criteria are met: (i) pervasive evidence of an arrangement exists; (ii) the advertising services have been rendered; (iii) the service fee is fixed or determinable; and (iv) collectibility is reasonably assured.

Billing terms of the Group's advertising service contracts are in the form of the following: (i) full billing after the end of the advertisement displayed period (the "Service Period"); (ii) progress billings over the Service Period; and (iii) partial cash down payment at the beginning of the Service Period with the remainder being billed in the form of progress payments during or after the end of the Service Period. Payments are due between 30 to 90 days from the date of billing. The Group's accounts receivable comprise amounts billed under the contract terms and revenues recognized under contractual terms but not yet billed (unbilled receivables). The Group expects that substantially all unbilled receivables will be billed and collected within twelve months of the balance sheet date. Historically the Group has been able to collect substantially all amounts due under the contract terms without making any concessions on payments.

(m) Cost of revenues

Cost of revenues consists primarily of operating lease costs associated with the placement of flat panel display equipment, business tax and surcharges, depreciation of flat panel display equipment and personnel and other related expenses that are directly attributable to the rendering of advertising services.

The Group's advertising revenues are subject to a 5% business tax on revenues generated from services in the PRC. In addition, advertising revenues are subject to a cultural and education development fee at 4% of revenue earned and various other surcharges at 5% of the business tax levied.

(n) Operating leases

Leases where substantially all the rewards and risks of ownership of assets remain with the lessor are accounted for as operating leases. Payments made under operating leases are charged to the consolidated statements of operations on a straight-line basis over the respective lease terms.

(o) Advertising costs

The Group expenses its advertising and promotion costs as incurred. Total advertising and promotion costs were RMB 333 and RMB 497 for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005, respectively, and were included in sales and marketing expenses.

(p) Income taxes

Deferred income taxes are provided using the asset and liability method. Under this method, deferred tax assets and liabilities are recognized for the future tax consequences attributable to differences between the financial statement carrying amounts of existing assets and liabilities and their respective tax bases and operating loss carryforward. Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured using enacted tax rates expected to apply to taxable income in the years in which those temporary differences are expected to be recovered or settled. deferred tax assets and liabilities of a change in tax rates is recognized in income in the period that includes the enactment date. A valuation allowance is provided to reduce the carrying amount of deferred tax assets if it is considered more likely than not that some portion, or all, of the deferred tax assets will not be realized.

(q) Share-based compensation

The Company has adopted SFAS No. 123R, “Share-based Payment”, which requires that share-based payment transactions with employees, such as share options, be measured based on the grant-date fair value of the equity instrument issued and recognized as compensation expense over the requisite service period, with a corresponding addition to paid-in capital. Under this method, compensation cost related to employee share options or similar equity instruments is measured at the grant date based on the fair value of the award and is recognized over the period during which an employee is required to provide service in exchange for the award, which generally is the vesting period.

The Company accounts for equity instruments issued to non-employee vendors in accordance with the provisions of Emerging Issues Task Force (“EITF”) Issue No. 96-18, “Accounting for Equity Instruments That are Issued to Other Than Employees for Acquiring, or in Conjunction with Selling, Goods or Services.” All transactions in which goods or services are received in exchange for equity instruments are accounted for based on the fair value of the consideration received or the fair value of the equity instrument issued, whichever is more reliably measurable. The measurement date of the fair value of the equity instrument issued is the date on which the counterparty’s performance is completed. For the periods presented, the Company did not issue any equity instruments to non-employee vendors.

(r) Employee benefit plans

As stipulated by the regulations of the PRC, the Company’s subsidiary and consolidated VIE and its acquired companies participate in various defined contribution plans organized by municipal and provincial governments for their employees. These companies are required to make contributions to these plans at rates ranging from 9% to 24% of the salaries, bonuses and certain allowances of employees. The Group has no other material obligation for the payment of employee benefits associated with these plans beyond the annual contributions described above. Members of the retirement plan are entitled to a pension equal to a fixed proportion of the salary prevailing at the member’s retirement date. Employee benefits associated with these plans are expensed when incurred. During the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005, the Group made contributions of RMB 903 and RMB 3,221, respectively.

(s) Segment reporting

The Company uses the management approach in determining operating segments. The management approach considers the internal organization and reporting used by the Company’s chief operating decision maker for making operating decisions, allocating resources and assessing performance. Based on this assessment, the Company has determined that it has only one operating segment which is the rendering of flat panel display advertising services in the PRC.

Comprehensive income is defined as the change in equity during a period from transactions and other events and circumstances except for transactions resulting from investments by shareholders and distributions to shareholders. The Company has no comprehensive income other than net income for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005.

The fair value of each option award is estimated on the date of grant using a lattice-based option valuation model that uses the assumptions and exercise price of the options noted in the following table. Because the Company does not maintain an internal market for its shares, the expected volatility was based on the historical volatilities of comparable publicly traded advertising companies operating in the PRC and in the United States. The Company uses historical data to estimate employee termination within the valuation model. The expected life of options granted is derived from the output of the option valuation model and represents the period of time that options granted are expected to be outstanding. The employees that were granted the share options are expected to exhibit the same behavior. Since the share options once exercised will primarily trade in the U.S. capital market and there was no comparable PRC zero coupon rate, the risk-free rate for periods within the contractual life of the option is based on the U.S. Treasury yield curve in effect at the time of grant.

Expected dividends	0%	0%
Expected life	5 years	5 years

Estimated fair value of underlying common shares	US$0.66	US$0.66	US$0.68	US$1.65	US$1.65

The estimated fair value of the underlying common shares on the date of grant was determined based on management valuation of the Company's common shares which considered the cash issuance prices for the Series A and Series B redeemable convertible preferred shares paid by groups of unrelated investors (see note 12), the purchase price of the company's equity interests to be paid by an unrelated party (see note 1), the proximity of such transactions to the date of the share option grant and the forecasted profitability and cash flows of the Company. The weighted-average grant-date fair value of options granted during 2004 and 2005 was US$0.13 and US$0.58 per share, respectively. The Company recorded non-cash share-based compensation expense of RMB 1,861 and RMB 6,781 for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005, respectively in respect of share options granted in 2004 and 2005, of which RMB 193 and RMB 839 was allocated to costs of revenues, RMB 1,668 and RMB 4,615 was allocated to general and administrative expenses, and nil and RMB 1,327 was allocated to sales and marketing expenses, respectively.

STM is entitled to a preferential tax treatment of exemption from enterprise income tax for the first and second years of operations starting from the calendar year of 2004. Upon the expiration of the tax holiday, STM will be subject to the PRC enterprise income tax rate of 33%.

Shenyang TM is entitled to a preferential tax treatment of exemption from enterprise income tax for the first and second years of operations starting from the calendar year of 2005. Upon the expiration of the tax holiday, Shenyang TM will be subject to the PRC enterprise income tax rate of 33%. Heng Ding is subject to the PRC enterprise income tax rate of 33%.

In assessing the realizability of deferred tax assets, management considers whether it is more likely than not that some portion or all of the deferred tax assets will not be realized. The ultimate realization of deferred tax assets is dependent upon the generation of future taxable income during the periods in which those temporary differences become deductible or utilized. Management considers the scheduled reversal of deferred tax liabilities, projected future taxable income, and tax planning strategies in making this assessment. Based upon an assessment of the level of historical taxable income and projections for future taxable income over the periods in which the deferred tax assets are deductible or can be utilized, no valuation allowance has been provided as of December 31, 2004 and 2005. The deferred tax assets of RMB 112 as of December 31, 2004 and 2005, represent the tax benefits of deductible temporary differences which are more likely than not to be realized in a non tax holiday year. The amount of the deferred tax assets considered realizable, however, could be reduced in the near term if estimates of future taxable income are reduced.

The PRC tax system is subject to substantial uncertainties and has been subject to recently enacted changes, the interpretation and enforcement of which are also uncertain. There can be no assurance that changes in PRC tax laws or their interpretation or their application will not subject the Group's PRC entities to substantial PRC taxes in the future.

(12) Redeemable Convertible Preferred Shares

(a) Issuance of Series A redeemable convertible preferred shares

In August 2004, the Company issued 41,641,679 Series A redeemable convertible preferred shares ("Series A Shares") to a group of investors at US$0.360216 per share (the "Series A issue price") for total cash consideration of US$15,000 (RMB 124,148 ). The holders of Series A Shares have the right to require the Company to redeem the shares at any time after the fifth anniversary of the date of issuance at the option of a majority of the holders of Series A Shares then outstanding. In the event of a redemption under this right, the Company shall redeem all of the outstanding Series A Shares at a redemption price equal to 100% of the Series A issue price, plus an additional amount equal to 20% of the Series A issue price compounded annually from the date of issuance to the date of redemption plus all declared but unpaid dividends (the "Series A Preference Amount"). The accretion to the redemption value is reflected as a reduction to net income to arrive at net income available to common shareholders in the accompanying consolidated statements of operations and amounted to RMB 8,663 and RMB 26,534 for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005, respectively. Total direct external incremental costs of issuing the security of RMB 1,833 was charged against the proceeds of the Series A Shares.

The significant terms of the Series A Shares are as follows:

Conversion

The holders of Series A Shares have the right to convert all or any portion of their holdings into common shares of the Company at any time after the date of issuance of such preferred shares. In addition, each Series A Share is automatically convertible into one common share at any time after the date of issuance of such preferred shares, subject to the conversion ratio adjustment as described below upon the consummation of a Qualified Public Offering. A Qualified Public Offering refers to the closing of an underwritten public offering of the common shares of the Company on a reputable international stock exchange approved by the Company's Board of Directors at a public offering price of at least four times the Series A issue price and with aggregate gross proceeds to the Company (before payment of underwriters' discounts, commissions and offering expenses) in excess of US$50,000.

(Amounts in thousands, except share data)

Each Series A Share is convertible into one common share, subject to a conversion ratio adjustment equal to US$6,900 divided by the Group's audited US GAAP consolidated net income for the period from July 1, 2004 to June 30, 2005 (the "Series A Performance Multiplier"). The Series A Performance Multiplier shall be limited to a maximum of 1.6 common shares (that is, one Series A Share converted into 1.6 common shares or 66,626,686 common shares, on a fully converted basis) and a minimum of 0.727273 common shares (that is, one Series A Share converted into 0.727273 common shares or 30,284,869 common shares, on a fully converted basis) and shall be automatically set at 1.6 in the event that the audited US GAAP consolidated net income of the Group for the period from July 1, 2004 to June 30, 2005, is not made available to the holders of Series A Shares before November 15, 2005, for the purpose of determining the Series A Performance Multiplier.

The conversion price of Series A Shares is subject to adjustment for dilution, including but not limited to share splits, share dividends and recapitalization. In addition, in the event that the Company issues additional common shares other than those specifically excluded under the Series A Share Subscription Agreement at a price per share less than the then prevailing Series A Shares' respective conversion price ("Additional Common Shares"), the Series A Shares' respective conversion price shall be reduced, concurrently with such common share issuance, to a price (calculated to the nearest cent) equal to the price per share at which such Additional Common Shares are issued (the "Series A Dilution Adjustment"). Common shares specifically excluded from this provision include common shares issued or issuable upon conversion of Series A Shares, up to 15,274,168 common shares which are issuable or issued under the Company's equity incentive plan, common shares issued in an underwritten public offering, common shares issued in a bona fide acquisition or merger transaction, and common shares issued to third party providers in exchange for services rendered to the Company. The impact of such potential adjustment to the conversion price is contingent upon the issuance of Additional Common Shares at an issuance price less than the conversion price of Series A Shares. No issuance of Additional Common Shares was made during the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005 which caused the conversion price of Series A Shares to be reduced under this adjustment provision.

The Company has determined that at the date of issuance of the Series A Shares there was no embedded beneficial conversion feature attributable to the Series A Shares, since the initial conversion price of the Series A Shares is equal to the Series A issue price, which was negotiated and agreed between the Company and a group of third party investors on an arm's length basis and, which was determined by management to approximate the fair value of the Company's common shares at the commitment date since there was no existence of a public or active market of the Company's common shares, nor were there any cash transactions involving the Company's common shares that occurred prior to this date. In addition, under the provisions of EITF Issue No. 00-27 "Application of Issue No. 98-5 to Certain Convertible Instrument", the Company has determined that the contingent beneficial conversion feature relating to the conversion ratio adjustment in respect of the Series A Performance Multiplier will be recognized only when the Performance Multiplier is determined and the contingency is resolved and with respect of the Series A Dilution Adjustment, upon the issuance of Additional Common Shares.

Based on the Group's audited US GAAP consolidated net income for the period from July 1, 2004 to June 30, 2005, the Company has calculated the Series A Performance Multiplier to be 1.196365 which resulted in a conversion ratio of 1.000000 to 1.196365 for Series A Shares. Accordingly, on a fully-converted basis, the Series A Shares will be converted to 49,818,647 common shares under the conversion terms of the Series A Shares. The intrinsic value of the contingent beneficial conversion feature of the Series A Shares of RMB 24,378 was recognized as an addition to paid-in capital with a corresponding charge to net income available to common shareholders on June 30, 2005, the date the contingency period ended and the contingency was resolved. The intrinsic value was measured as the difference between the respective commitment-date fair value of the underlying common shares of the Company issuable upon conversion and the gross proceeds received for or allocated to the Series A Shares.

In January 2006, the Company entered into an agreement with the Series A shareholders whereby each of the Series A shareholders agreed to waive any and all rights with respect to the liquidation preference in the event of the Deemed Liquidation Event (as such term is described below). In addition, in January 2006, the Company reached an agreement with the Series A shareholders, to exclude certain expense items, for the purpose of the calculation of the Series A conversion ratio, from the audited US GAAP consolidated net income for the period from July 1, 2004, to June 20, 2005. The effect of excluding such expense items reduced the conversion ratio of the Series A shares to 1.00000 to 1.05767 of the Company's common shares, and accordingly, resulted in a lower intrinsic value of the beneficial conversion feature of the Series A Shares. The impact of the adjustment on the Series A conversion ratio will be recorded as an adjustment to net income (loss) available to common shareholders in the accounting period when such agreement is executed (that is, in the calendar year ending December 31, 2006). All Series A shareholders will convert the preferred shares into common shares prior to the consummation of the Focus Media business combination and become selling shareholders.

Voting rights

Each Series A Share has voting rights equivalent to the number of common shares into which it is convertible.

Registration rights

Holders of Series A Shares have registration rights similar to the common shareholders. These registration rights include demand registration, Form F-3 registration and piggyback registration. Such rights allow the holders of at least 50% of shares having registration rights then outstanding to demand the Company at any time after six months following the closing of a Qualified Public Offering to file a registration statement covering the offer and sales of their securities, subject to certain restrictions and conditions. The Company will pay all expenses relating to any demand, Form F-3 or piggyback registrations, except broker's commission, underwriting discounts, selling commissions and stock transfer taxes.

Dividends

Holders of Series A Shares shall be entitled to receive dividends out of any funds legally available for this purpose, when and if declared by the Board of Directors of the Company, at the rate or in the amount as the Board of Directors considers appropriate prior to any dividend payments to common shares.

Liquidation preference

In the event of any liquidation, dissolution or winding up of the Company, either voluntary or involuntary, or any Deemed Liquidation Event, the holders of Series A Shares shall receive an amount per share equal to the Series A Preference Amount, as adjusted for any share splits, share dividends and recapitalization. A Deemed Liquidation Event is defined in the Company's Articles of Association as (a) the acquisition of the Company by another entity by means of any transaction or series of related transactions (including, without limitation, any reorganization, merger or consolidation) that results in the transfer of more than fifty percent of the outstanding voting power of the Company such that its existing shareholders do not retain a majority of the voting power in the surviving entity; or (b) a sale of all or substantially all of the assets of the Company; provided, however, that a Deemed Liquidation Event shall not include any reorganization for tax purposes or for purposes of reincorporating in a different jurisdiction.

(b) Issuance of Series B redeemable convertible preferred shares

On July 29, 2005, the Company issued 21,820,243 Series B redeemable convertible preferred shares ("Series B Shares") to a group of investors at US$0.687435 per share (the "Series B issue price") for total cash consideration of US$15,000 (RMB 121,620). The holders of Series B Shares have the right to require the Company to redeem the shares at any time after the fifth anniversary of the date of issuance at the option of a majority of the holders of the Series B Shares then outstanding. In the event of a redemption under this right, the Company shall redeem all of the outstanding Series B Shares at a redemption price equal to 100% of the Series B issue price, plus an additional amount equal to 15% of the Series B issue price, compounded annually from the date of issuance to the date of redemption, plus all declared but unpaid dividends (the "Series B Preference Amount"). The accretion to the redemption value is reflected as a reduction to net income to arrive at net income available to common shareholders in the accompanying consolidated statements of operations and amounted to RMB 7,747 for the year ended December 31, 2005. Total direct external incremental costs of issuing the security of RMB 839 were charged against the proceeds of the Series B Shares.

The significant terms of the Series B Shares are as follows:

Conversion

The holders of Series B Shares have the right to convert all or any portion of their holdings into common shares of the Company at any time after the date of issuance of such preferred shares. In addition, each Series B Share is automatically convertible into one common share at any time after the date of issuance of such preferred shares, subject to the conversion ratio adjustment as described below, upon the consummation of a Qualified Public Offering. A Qualified Public Offering refers to the closing of an underwritten public offering of the common shares of the Company on a reputable international stock exchange approved by the Company's Board of Directors at a public offering price of at least two times the Series B issue price and with aggregate gross proceeds to the Company (before payment of underwriters' discounts, commissions and offering expenses) in excess of US$50,000.

Each Series B Share is convertible into one common share, where the conversion price is equal to the Series B issue price, except in the event that the initial conversion ratio for the Series A Shares is adjusted for the Series A Performance Multiplier as described in note 12(a), the conversion price for Series B Shares shall immediately be adjusted by multiplying the Series B conversion price then in effect by a fraction, the numerator of which shall be 152,741,679, and the denominator of which shall be the sum of (i) the number of outstanding common shares, and (ii) the number of outstanding Series A Shares multiplied by the Series A Performance Multiplier (the "Series B Performance Multiplier").

The conversion price of Series B Shares is subject to adjustment for dilution, including but not limited to share splits, share dividends and recapitalization. In addition, in the event that the Company issues additional common shares other than those specifically excluded under the Series B Share Subscription Agreement at a price per share less than the then prevailing Series B Shares' respective conversion price ("Additional Series B Common Shares"), the Series B Shares' respective conversion price shall be reduced, concurrently with such common share issuance, to a price (calculated to the nearest cent) equal to the price per share at which such Additional Series B Common Shares are issued ("Series B Dilution Adjustment"). The impact of the Series B Dilution Adjustment to the conversion price is contingent upon the issuance of Additional Series B Common Shares at an issuance price less than the conversion price of Series B Shares. No issuance of Additional Series B Common Shares was made during the year ended December 31, 2005 which caused the conversion price of Series B Shares to be reduced under this adjustment provision.

As a result of the initial conversion ratio for the Series A Shares being adjusted for the Series A Performance Multiplier described in note 12(a), the Company has calculated the Series B Performance Multiplier to be 0.949186 which resulted in a conversion ratio of 1.000000 to 1.053535 for Series B Shares. Accordingly, on a fully-converted basis, the Series B Shares will be converted into 22,988,390 common shares under the conversion terms of the Series B Shares. The intrinsic value of the contingent beneficial conversion feature of the Series B Shares of RMB 6,508 was recognized as an addition to paid-in capital with a corresponding charge to net income available to

(13) Common Shares

The Company's Memorandum and Articles of Association, as amended, authorizes the Company to issue 210,000,000 shares with a par value of US$0.0001 per share. In August 2004, the Company issued 111,100,000 common shares at par value in connection with the Reorganization as discussed in note 1. During the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005, no additional common shares were issued by the Company.

(14) Concentration of Risks

Credit and concentration risks The carrying amounts of cash and cash equivalents, time deposits, accounts receivable, amounts due from related parties and other receivables represent the Group's maximum exposure to credit risk in relation to financial assets. As of December 31, 2004 and 2005, substantially all of the Group's cash and cash equivalents were held in major financial institutions located in the PRC and the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region, which management believes have high credit ratings. Accounts receivable are typically unsecured and denominated in RMB, and are derived from revenues generated in the PRC. The Group performs ongoing credit evaluations of its customers' financial condition and, generally, requires no collateral from its customers.

All of the Group's customers are located in the PRC. The following are the customers that directly or indirectly contributed, on an individual basis, 10% or more of revenue for the year ended December 31, 2004 or for the year ended December 31, 2005:

	2004		2005
	RMB	%	RMB	%
SAIC-Volkswagen Sales Co., Ltd.	19,978	25%	30,006	11%
Shanghai Xintong Media & Cultural Development Co., Ltd.	9,567	12%	19,767	7%
Red Bull Vitamin Drink Co., Ltd.	9,946	12%	14,187	5%

As of December 31, 2004 and 2005, approximately 56% and 15% of the Group's gross accounts receivable were due from the above customers.

The accounts receivable due from major customers, as of December 31, 2004 and 2005, were as follows:

	2004	2005
	RMB	RMB
Red Bull Vitamin Drink Co., Ltd.	9,946	15,926
Shanghai Xintong Media & Cultural Development Co., Ltd.	8,567	2,946
SAIC-Volkswagen Sales Co., Ltd.	7,276	—
	25,789	18,872

As of January 31, 2006, the Group received subsequent collections of approximately RMB 4,000 from the above customers with respect to outstanding accounts receivable as of December 31, 2005. The Group expects to collect all the remaining outstanding balances from these customers in accordance with the contract terms.

The Group does not have concentrations of available sources of labor, services, franchises, or other rights that could, if suddenly eliminated, severely impact its operations.

Business and economic risks The Group operates in a dynamic industry with limited operating history and believes that changes in any of the following areas could have a material adverse effect on the Group's future financial position, results of operations or cash flows: advances and new trends in new technologies and industry standards; competition from other competitors; changes in certain strategic relationships or customer relationships; regulatory or other factors; the ability to obtain necessary financial and other resources at commercially viable terms; dependence on revenues generated from operations in the cities of Shanghai, Beijing, Guangzhou and Shenzhen; the ability to attract and retain employees necessary to support the Group's growth and general risks associated with the advertising industry.

The Group conducts its principal operations in the PRC and, accordingly, is subject to special considerations and significant risks not typically associated with companies operating in the United States and Western Europe. These include risks associated with, among others, the political, economic, legal environment and social uncertainties in the PRC, government agencies' influence over certain aspects of the Group's operations and competition in the advertising industry.

The Group is currently targeting the PRC market. The Chinese government regulates the provision of advertising services through strict business licensing requirements and other governmental regulations. These regulations include limiting foreign ownership in Chinese companies providing advertising services. Management, after consultation and advice from PRC legal counsel, is of the opinion that the Company's business structure and contractual agreements with STM comply with existing PRC laws and regulations. However, there are uncertainties regarding the interpretation and application of current PRC laws and regulations and any change in such laws and regulations that renders these business structure and contractual agreements to be non-compliant could have an adverse effect on the Group's business, financial position and result of operations.

In addition, the ability to negotiate and implement specific business development projects in a timely and favorable manner may be impacted by political considerations unrelated to or beyond the control of the Group. Although the PRC government has been pursuing economic reform policies for the past two decades, no assurance can be given that the PRC government will continue to pursue such policies or that such policies may not be significantly altered. There is also no guarantee that the PRC government's pursuit of economic reforms will be consistent or effective and as a result, changes in the rate or method of taxation, and changes in State policies and regulations affecting the advertising industry may have a negative impact on the Group's operating results and financial position.

Currency risk Substantially all of the revenue generating operations of the Group are transacted in RMB, which is not fully convertible into foreign currencies. On January 1, 1994, the PRC government abolished the dual rate system and introduced a single rate of exchange as quoted by the People's Bank of China. However, the unification of the exchange rate does not imply convertibility of RMB into United States dollars or other foreign currencies. All foreign exchange transactions must take place either through the People's Bank of China or other institutions authorized to buy and sell foreign exchange or at a swap center. Approval of foreign currency payments by the People's Bank of China or other institutions requires submitting a payment application form together with suppliers' invoices, shipping documents and signed contracts.

On July 21, 2005, the People's Bank of China announced that the PRC government reformed the exchange rate regime by adopting a managed floating exchange rate regime based on market supply and demand with reference to a basket of currencies. The exchange rate of United States dollars against RMB was adjusted to RMB 8.11 per United States dollar with effect from July 21, 2005. This reform did not have a material impact on the Group's financial position or results of operations.

REPORT OF INDEPENDENT REGISTERED PUBLIC ACCOUNTING FIRM

TO THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS AND SHAREHOLDERS OF INFOACHIEVE LIMITED

We have audited the accompanying consolidated balance sheets of Infoachieve Limited and its subsidiaries (the "Group") as of December 31, 2004 and 2005 and the related consolidated statements of operations, shareholders' equity and comprehensive loss, and cash flows for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Group's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these consolidated financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with the standards of the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States). Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. The Group is not required to have, nor were we engaged to perform, an audit of its internal control over financial reporting. Our audit includes consideration of internal control over financial reporting as a basis for designing audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the Group's internal control over financial reporting. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements, assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, such consolidated financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Group as of December 31, 2004 and 2005 and the results of its operations and its cash flows for the above stated periods in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

Table of ContentsINFOACHIEVE LIMITED*NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS
FOR THE YEARS ENDED DECEMBER 31, 2004 AND 2005*1. Organization and Principal Activities

Prior to April 28, 2004, the Group operated through the following entities (collectively “the Combined Entities”):

Entities under common control	Place of	Date of incorporation	incorporation
Shanghai Framedia Advertisement Co., Ltd. (“Shanghai Framedia”)	People’s Republic of China (“PRC”)	November 4, 2002
Beijing Framedia Advertisement Co., Ltd. (“Beijing Framedia”)	PRC	May 9, 2000
Guangdong Framedia Advertisement Co., Ltd. (“Guangdong Framedia”)	PRC	December 16, 2003
Shenzhen Framedia Advertisement Co., Ltd. (“Shenzhen Framedia”)	PRC	May 8, 2003
Wuhan Framedia Advertisement Co., Ltd. (“Wuhan Framedia”)	PRC	November 28, 2003

Subsequent to April 28, 2004, Framedia Advertisement Development (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. (“Framedia Development”), a PRC entity, was incorporated by the same shareholders of the Combined Entities and all of the operations of the Combined Entities were transferred to Framedia Development.

On July 28, 2004, the same shareholders of the Combined Entities and Framedia Development incorporated Infoachieve Limited (“Infoachieve”), a British Virgin Islands entity.

In substance, the combined entities which are existing companies have been reorganized into the new company Framedia Development. Accordingly, the Group’s financial statements are prepared by including the financial statements of the combined entities through April 2004 and subsequently the Group’s consolidated financial statements which include Framedia Development, Infoachieve and its variable interest entities.

The Group is principally engaged in the sale of frame space advertising in high-end residential complex in the PRC.

The PRC rules and regulations currently limit direct foreign ownership in companies that provide advertising services, including frame space advertising services. To comply with these rules and regulations, when the shareholders established Infoachieve in July 2004, Framedia Development entered into various agreements with Infoachieve, including transfer of operation agreements and exclusive consulting and service agreements. Under these agreements, Infoachieve is the exclusive provider of management consulting services to Framedia Development. In return, Framedia Development is required to pay Infoachieve services fees for the management consulting services received. The management consulting service fees are the net profits of Framedia Development. In addition, Infoachieve has been assigned all voting rights by the direct owners of Framedia Development through agreements valid for ten years. Finally, Infoachieve has the option to acquire the equity interest of Framedia Development. Infoachieve holds all the variable interests of Framedia Development and has been determined to be most closely associated with Framedia Development and is considered the primary beneficiary of Framedia Development.

On June 1, 2005, Infoachieve provided loans to two of its shareholders to acquire 100% of the outstanding shares of Guangdong Century Sparkle Advertisement Co., Ltd. (“Sparkle”), a frame advertisement service provider. Principal terms of the loan agreements provide that (i) Infoachieve entitles to receive service fees by providing management consulting services to Sparkle; (ii) Infoachieve has been assigned all voting rights valid indefinitely that cannot be amended or terminated except by written consent of all parties; and (iii) Infoachieve has the options to acquire the equity interest of Sparkle. Infoachieve holds all the variable interests of Sparkle and has been determined to be most closely associated with Sparkle and is considered the primary beneficiary of Sparkle.

Through the above arrangements, under the requirements of FIN 46 (Revised) "Consolidation of Variable Interest Entities" ("FIN 46(R)"), Framedia Development and Sparkle have become the variable interest entities of Infoachieve, as a result, the financial statements of Framedia Development and Sparkle have been consolidated with Infoachieve as its subsidiaries since they were established or acquired.

On June 16, 2005, Infoachieve applied to establish Shanghai Framedia Investment Consultation Co., Ltd. ("Framedia Consultation") in Shanghai with an operating period of 30 years, and related capital contribution was completed on December 21, 2005. Framedia Consultation is wholly owned by Infoachieve and is engaged in provision of consultation and management services to other entities within the group and to third party customers.

As of December 31, 2005, Infoachieve's variable interest entities and subsidiary include the following entities:

Entity	Date of incorporation	Place of incorporation
Framedia Development*	April 28, 2004	PRC
Sparkle*	March 25, 2005	PRC
Framedia Consultation	June 16, 2005	PRC

These Companies have been entities under common control which has established the basis to consolidate them from their inception. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statements include the financial statements of Shanghai Framedia, Beijing Framedia, Guangdong Framedia, Shenzhen Framedia, Wuhan Framedia, Framedia Development and Infoachieve and its variable interest entities, collectively the "Group."

From June 2005 to December 2005, Shanghai Framedia, Beijing Framedia, Guangdong Framedia, Shenzhen Framedia, Wuhan Framedia were liquidated, their balances sheets as of December 31, 2005 have not been included in the consolidated balance sheet as of December 31, 2005.

Between June 1, 2005 and December 31, 2005, the Group through Infoachieve acquired the frame advertising net assets from eight companies that operated in the same industry in the PRC. These acquisitions were accounted for as acquisition of a business and for details, see Note 3, Acquisitions.

On October 14, 2005, all the same shareholders of Infoachieve incorporated Total Team Investments Limited ("Total Team") in the British Virgin Islands. According to the Share Purchase Agreement, the shareholders of Infoachieve transferred all the issued shares in Infoachieve Limited to Total Team. Total Team became the only shareholder of Infoachieve.

2. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

(a) Basis of presentation

The consolidated financial statements of the Group have been prepared in accordance with the accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America ("US GAAP"). The consolidated financial statements reflect the operations of Shanghai Framedia, Beijing Framedia, Guangdong Framedia, Shenzhen Framedia and Wuhan Framedia through April 2004 and the Group's consolidated financial statements thereafter.

(b) Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents consist of cash on hand and highly liquid investments which are unrestricted as to withdrawal or use, and which have maturities of three months or less when purchased.

FOR THE YEARS ENDED DECEMBER 31, 2004 AND 2005*(c) Use of estimates

The preparation of the consolidated financial statements in conformity with US GAAP requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and revenue and expenses in the financial statements and accompanying notes. Significant accounting estimates reflected in the Group's consolidated financial statements include allowance for doubtful accounts, the useful lives and impairment of equipment, intangible assets and goodwill and valuation allowance for deferred tax assets.

(d) Significant risks and uncertainties

The Group participates in a dynamic industry and believes that changes in any of the following areas could have a material adverse effect on the Group's future financial position, results of operations, or cash flows: the Group's limited operating history; advances and trends in new technologies and industry standards; competition from other competitors; regulatory or other PRC related factors; and risks associated with the Group's ability to attract and retain employees necessary to support its growth; risks associated with the Group's growth strategies; and general risks associated with the advertising industry.

(e) Equipment, net

Equipment, net is carried at cost less accumulated depreciation and amortization. Depreciation and amortization is calculated on a straight-line basis over the following estimated useful lives:

Frame	5 years
Computer and office equipment	5 years
Liquid crystal display	5 years

(f) Impairment of long-lived assets

The Group reviews its long-lived assets for impairment whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount of an asset may no longer be recoverable. When these events occur, the Group measures impairment by comparing the carrying value of the longlived assets to the estimated undiscounted future cash flows expected to result from the use of the assets and their eventual disposition. If the sum of the expected undiscounted cash flow is less than the carrying amount of the assets, the Group would recognize an impairment loss based on the fair value of the assets. The Group recognized impairment loss of Nil and $115,789 for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005. In 2005, the Group decided to replace the remaining tangible assets acquired through the acquisitions and assessed the recoverable amounts of the net tangible assets to be nil, therefore, the Group recognized an impairment loss of $115,789 which is equal to the remaining amount of the tangible assets acquired from the acquisitions.

(g) Goodwill

SFAS No. 142 requires the Group to complete a two-step goodwill impairment test. The first step compares the fair values of each reporting unit to its carrying amount, including goodwill. If the fair value of each reporting unit exceeds its carrying amount, goodwill is not considered to be impaired and the second step will not be required. SFAS No. 142 requires completion of this first step within the first six months of initial adoption and annually thereafter. If the carrying amount of a reporting unit exceeds its fair value, the second step compares the implied fair value of goodwill to the carrying value of a reporting unit's goodwill. The implied fair value of goodwill is determined in a manner similar to accounting for a business combination with the allocation of the assessed fair value determined in the first step to the assets and liabilities of the reporting unit. The excess of the fair value of the reporting unit over the amounts assigned to the assets and liabilities is the implied fair value of goodwill. This allocation process is only performed for purposes of evaluating goodwill impairment and does not result in an entry to adjust the value of any assets or liabilities. An impairment loss is recognized for any excess in the carrying value of goodwill over the implied fair value of goodwill.

FOR THE YEARS ENDED DECEMBER 31, 2004 AND 2005

Management has performed the annual goodwill impairment test, no events had occurred and no indications had been identified as of December 31, 2005 that reduced the fair value of the Group's reporting units below the carrying value of the goodwill and intangible assets.

The changes in the carrying amount of goodwill for the year ended December 31, 2005 are as follows:

Balance as of January 1, 2005	$	—
Goodwill acquired during the year		13,936,500
Goodwill impaired since acquired		—
Balance as of December 31, 2005	$	13,936,500

(h) Revenue recognition

The Group's revenues are primarily derived from advertising services. Revenues from advertising services are recognized ratably over the period in which the advertisement is displayed. Accordingly, revenue is recognized when all four of the following criteria are met: (i) pervasive evidence that an arrangement exists; (ii) delivery of the products and/or services has occurred and risks and rewards of ownership have passed to the customer; (iii) the selling price is both fixed and determinable; and (iv) collection of the resulting receivable is reasonably assured.

Prepayments for the advertising services are deferred and recognized as revenue when the advertising services are rendered.

The Group presents advertising service revenue, net of business tax incurred, which amounts to $442,593 and $1,066,409 for the years ended December 31, 2004 and 2005, respectively.

(i) Operating leases

Leases where substantially all the rewards and risks of ownership of assets remain with the leasing company are accounted for as operating lease. Payments made under operating leases are charged to the consolidated statements of operations on a straight-line basis over the lease periods.

(j) Foreign currency translation

The reporting currency of the Group is the United States dollar ("US dollar"). The functional currency of the Group is the Renminbi ("RMB"). Monetary assets and liabilities denominated in currencies other than US dollar are translated into the US dollar at the rates of exchange ruling at the balance sheet date. Transactions in currencies other than US dollar during the periods are converted into US dollar at the applicable rates of exchange prevailing at the first day of the month transactions occurred. Transaction gains and losses are recognized in the consolidated statements of operations.

(k) Income taxes

Deferred income taxes are recognized for temporary differences between the tax basis of assets and liabilities and their reported amounts in the financial statements, net operating loss carry forwards and credits, by applying enacted statutory tax rates applicable to future years. Deferred tax assets are reduced by a valuation allowance when, in the opinion of management, it is more likely than not that some portion or all of the deferred tax assets will not be realized. Current income taxes are provided for in accordance with the laws and regulations applicable to the Group as enacted by the relevant tax authorities.

FOR THE YEARS ENDED DECEMBER 31, 2004 AND 2005(l) Comprehensive income/loss

Comprehensive income/loss includes foreign currency translation adjustments. Comprehensive income/loss is reported in the statements of shareholders' equity.

(m) Concentration of credit risk

Financial instruments that potentially expose the Group to concentrations of credit risk consist primarily of cash and cash equivalents and accounts receivable. The Group places their cash and cash equivalents with financial institutions with high-credit ratings and quality.

The Group conducts credit evaluations of customers and generally do not require collateral or other security from their customers. The Group establishes an allowance for doubtful accounts primarily based upon the age of the receivables and factors surrounding the credit risk of specific customers.

(n) Fair value of financial instruments

Financial instruments include cash and cash equivalents and short-term loans from shareholders. The carrying values of cash and cash equivalents and short-term loans from shareholders approximate their fair values due to their short-term maturities.

(o) Loss per share

Basic loss per share is computed by dividing loss attributable to holders of ordinary shares by the weighted average number of ordinary shares outstanding during the years. Diluted loss per ordinary share reflects the potential dilution that could occur if securities or other contracts to issue ordinary shares were exercised or converted into ordinary shares. Ordinary share equivalents are excluded from the computation of diluted loss per ordinary share in loss years as their effects would be antidilutive. Basic loss per share is equal to diluted loss per share as there are no potential convertible securities for the end of years presented.

In December 2004, the FASB issued SFAS No. 123 (revised 2004), "Share-Based Payment" ("SFAS No. 123R"). This statement is a revision to SFAS No. 123 and supercedes APB Opinion No. 25. This statement establishes standards for the accounting for transactions in which an entity exchanges its equity instruments for goods or services, primarily focusing on the accounting for transactions in which an entity obtains employee services in share-based payment transactions. Entities are required to measure the cost of employee services received in exchange for an award of equity instruments based on the grant-date fair value of the award (with limited exceptions). That cost will be recognized over the period during which an employee is required to provide service, the requisite service period (usually the vesting period), in exchange for the award. The grant-date fair value of employee share options and similar instruments are to be estimated using option-pricing models. If an equity award is modified after the grant date, incremental compensation cost will be recognized in an amount equal to the excess of the fair value of the modified award over the fair value of the original award immediately before the modification. This statement is effective as of the beginning of the first interim or annual reporting period that begins after June 15, 2005. In accordance with the standard, the Company is required to adopt SFAS No. 123R effective January 1, 2006.

Upon adoption, the Company has two application methods to choose from: the modified-prospective transition approach or the modified-retrospective transition approach. Under the modified-prospective transition method the Company would be required to recognize compensation cost for share-based awards to employees based on their grant-date fair value from the beginning of the fiscal period in which the recognition provisions are first applied as well as compensation cost for awards that were granted prior to, but not vested as of the date of adoption. Prior periods remain unchanged and pro forma disclosures previously required by SFAS No. 123 continue to be required. Under the modified-retrospective transition method, the Company would restate prior periods by recognizing compensation cost in the amounts previously reported in the pro forma footnote disclosure under SFAS No. 123. Under this method, the Company is permitted to apply this presentation to all periods presented or to the start of the fiscal year in which SFAS No. 123R is adopted. The Company would follow the same guidelines as in the modified-prospective transition method for awards granted subsequent to adoption and those that were granted and not yet vested. The Company believes that the impact that the adoption of SFAS No. 123R will have on its financial position or results of operations will not be significant.

In March 2006, the FASB issued FSP FAS 123(R)-2, "Practical Accommodation to the Application of Grant Date as Defined in FASB Statement No. 123(R)", which provides clarification of the concept of mutual understanding between employer and employee with respect to the grant date of a share-based payment award. This FSP provides that a mutual understanding of the key terms and conditions of an award shall be presumed to exist on the date the award is approved by management if the recipient does not have the ability to negotiate the key terms and conditions of the award and those key terms and conditions will be communicated to the individual recipient within a relatively short time period after the date of approval. This guidance shall be applied upon initial adoption of SFAS 123(R). The Company is currently evaluating the effect that the adoption of the FSP will have on its consolidated results of operations and financial condition but does not expect it to have a material impact.

In May 2005, the FASB issued SFAS No. 154, Accounting Changes and Error Corrections, a replacement of APB Opinion No. 20 and FASB Statement No. 3. SFAS No. 154 provides guidance on the accounting for and reporting of accounting changes and error corrections. It establishes retrospective application, or the latest practicable date, as the required method for reporting a change in accounting principle and the reporting of the correction of an error. SFAS No. 154 is effective for accounting changes and corrections of errors made in fiscal years beginning after December 15, 2005. The Company does not expect the adoption of SFAS No. 154 on January 1, 2006 to have a material impact on its results of operations and financial condition.

In February 2006, the Financial Accounting Standards Board ("FASB") issued SFAS No. 155, "Accounting for Certain Hybrid Financial Instruments—an amendment of FASB Statements No. 133 and 140." SFAS No. 155 amends SFAS No. 133, "Accounting for Derivative Instruments and Hedging Activities", to permit fair value remeasurement for any hybrid financial instrument with an embedded derivative that otherwise would require bifurcation, provided that the whole instrument is accounted for on a fair value basis. SFAS No. 155 amends SFAS No. 140, "Accounting for the Impairment or Disposal of Long-Lived Assets", to allow a qualifying special-purpose entity (SPE) to hold a derivative financial instrument that pertains to a beneficial interest other than another derivative financial instrument. SFAS No. 155 applies to all financial instruments acquired or issued after the beginning of an entity's first fiscal year that begins after September 15, 2006, with earlier application allowed. The Company does not expect the adoption of SFAS No. 155 to have a material impact on its consolidated results of operations and financial condition.

In March 2005, the FASB issued FIN 47, "Accounting for Conditional Asset Retirement Obligations, an interpretation of FASB Statement No. 143" ("FIN 47"), which requires an entity to recognize a liability for the fair value of a conditional asset retirement obligation when incurred if the liability's fair value can be reasonably estimated. FIN 47 is effective for fiscal years ending after December 15, 2005. The Company does not expect the adoption of FIN 47 will have a material impact on its results of operations and financial condition.

(a) In May 2005, 270,000 outstanding ordinary shares were reclassified and re-designated into 270,000 Series A-1 convertible redeemable preference shares. The re-designation has resulted in a deemed dividend of $1,136,700 which represents the difference between the fair value of the Series A-1 convertible redeemable preference shares at the date of the re-designation of $4.22 and the initial issuance price of the ordinary shares of $0.01 for 270,000 shares.

At any time on or after the sixtieth month after the date on which the Series A convertible redeemable preference shares were first allotted and issued, and from time to time thereafter, the Group shall, at the election of any holder of Series A convertible redeemable preference shares, redeem all or part of the Series A convertible redeemable preference shares held by such redeeming holder. The redemption price shall be 150% of the $4.22 per share for Series A-1 convertible redeemable preference shares in effect on the redemption date plus all declared but unpaid dividends thereon up to the date of redemption, proportionally adjusted for share subdivisions, share dividends, reorganizations, reclassifications, consolidations, or mergers. FOR THE YEARS ENDED DECEMBER 31, 2004 AND 2005

(b) In May 2005, 110,000 outstanding ordinary shares were reclassified and re-designated into 110,000 Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares. The re-designation has resulted in a deemed dividend of $623,700 which represents the difference between the fair value of the Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares at the date of the re-designation of $5.68 and the initial issuance price of the ordinary shares of $0.01 for 110,000 shares.

At any time on or after the sixtieth month after the date on which the Series A convertible redeemable preference shares were first allotted and issued, and from time to time thereafter, the Group shall, at the election of any holder of Series A convertible redeemable preference shares, redeem all or part of the Series A convertible redeemable preference shares held by such redeeming holder. The redemption price shall be 150% of the $5.68 per share for Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares in effect on the redemption date plus all declared but unpaid dividends thereon up to the date of redemption, proportionally adjusted for share subdivisions, share dividends, reorganizations, reclassifications, consolidations, or mergers. The Group recorded a deemed dividend of $207,820 as of December 31, 2005, which resulted from amortization of the 50% redemption premium associated with Series A-1 convertible redeemable preference shares.

The significant terms of the Series A-1 and Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares are as follows:

Conversion

Each of the Series A-1 and Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares is convertible into one ordinary share at a conversion price of $4.22 per share for Series A-1 convertible redeemable preference shares and $5.68 per share for Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares, at the option of the holder at any time after the date of issuance of such shares, or is automatically converted into ordinary shares at the then effective Series A conversion price upon a Qualified IPO. The conversion price should be subject to the following adjustment:

Adjustment of the Series A-1 and Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares conversion price upon issuance of additional ordinary shares at below Series A convertible redeemable preference shares conversion price — in the event that Infoachieve shall issue any additional ordinary shares at a subscription price per share less than the Series A-1 and Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares conversion price, in effect on the date of and immediately prior to such issuance, the Series A convertible redeemable preference shares conversion price shall be reduced to a price equal to the consideration per share for which such additional ordinary shares are issued.

Voting rights

All ordinary shares shall have one vote each. Each convertible redeemable preference share shall be entitled to the number of votes equal to the number of ordinary shares into which such Series A convertible redeemable preference could be converted at the record date for determination of the members entitled to vote on such matters. The holders of the Series A-1 and Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares and the ordinary shares shall vote together and not as a separate class, except as otherwise specifically required by the merger and acquisition agreements.

Dividends

The holders of the Series A-1 and Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares shall be entitled to receive out of any funds legally available therefore, when and if declared by the Directors, equivalent dividends or other distributions made or declared, whether in cash, in property or in any shares of Infoachieve, in respect of any other class or series of shares of Infoachieve.

After setting aside or paying in full the preferential amount due to the holders of Series A-2 convertible redeemable preference shares, the holders of the Series A-1 convertible redeemable preference shares shall be entitled to receive, the amount equal to 100% of the Series A Original Reference Price.

(in U.S. dollars)

Introduction to Unaudited Pro Forma Condensed Consolidated Financial Information

The following unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information is derived from the historical financial statements of Focus Media Holding Limited, appearing elsewhere in this prospectus, after giving effects to the pro forma adjustments described in the notes thereto. Financial information with respect to the acquisitions is derived from the historical financial statements and management accounts of Target Media Holdings Limited, or Target Media and Allyes Information Technology Company Limited, or Allyes, appearing elsewhere in this prospectus.

The preparation of the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations appearing below is based on financial statements prepared in accordance with US GAAP. These principles require the use of estimates that affect the reported amounts of revenues and expenses. Actual results could differ from those estimates. The objective of the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations is to provide information on the impact of the acquisitions of Target Media and Allyes. The acquired businesses have permitted us to expand our network of out-of-home consumers and to expand into the Internet advertising business.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations for the year ended December 31, 2006 presents adjustments as if the acquisitions of Target Media and Allyes had been consummated on January 1, 2006. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations for the six months ended June 30, 2007 presents adjustments as if the acquisition of Allyes had been consummated on January 1, 2007.

The following unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations should be read in conjunction with the historical consolidated financial statements, unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations and the "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" included elsewhere in this prospectus.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information presented in this prospectus includes all the adjustments, consisting of normal recurring adjustments, necessary for a fair presentation of the operating results in the historical periods. However, because such adjustments are based on estimates such as the estimated amortization period for the acquired intangible assets for Allyes, it is not intended to show how the consolidated companies would have actually performed if the events described above had in fact occurred on the dates assumed or to project the results of operations or financial position for any future date or period. In addition, the financial information of Target Media for the period between January 1, 2006 and February 28, 2006, and the financial information of Allyes for the period between January 1, 2007 and March 28, 2007, the respective dates of the acquisitions, have not been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm but is derived from management accounts. Accordingly, the financial information for the two-month period ended February 28, 2006 and the period from January 1, 2007 through March 28, 2007 of Target Media and Allyes, respectively, that has been used to calculate the pro forma financial information for the six-month and twelve-month periods ended June 30, 2007 and December 31, 2006, may differ significantly from any actual consolidated statements of operations had it been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm. See "Risk Factors — The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information included in this prospectus contains financial information that has not been audited or reviewed by an independent certified public accounting firm, and that is derived in part by estimates, and accordingly the pro forma financial information may differ significantly from the actual consolidated financial information".

None of Focus Media Digital, Focus Media Advertising Agency, New Perfect Media or New Focus Media Advertisement has received notice of any deficiency in their respective applications for their Tax Exemptions, and neither the Company nor the Controlling Person is aware, to its or his best knowledge, is not aware of any reason why any of Focus Media Digital, Focus Media Advertising Agency, New Perfect Media or New Focus Media Advertisement might not qualify for, or be in compliance with the requirements for, their Tax Exemptions;

(lviii) The Company has provided you true, correct, and complete copies of all documentation pertaining to any extension of credit in the form of a personal loan made, directly or indirectly, by the Company or any of the Group Entities to any director or executive officer of the Company; and since December 31, 2006, except as disclosed in the Pricing Prospectus and the Prospectus under the caption "Related Party Transactions - Other Related Party Transactions - Loans to Shareholders of Our PRC Operating Affiliates", the Company has not, directly or indirectly, including through any of the Group Entities: (A) extended credit, arranged to extend credit, or renewed any extension of credit, in the form of a personal loan, to or for any director or executive officer of the Company, or to or for any family member or affiliate of any director or executive officer of the Company; or (B) made any material modification, including any renewal thereof, to any term of any personal loan to any director or executive officer of the Company, or any family member or affiliate of any director or executive officer, which loan was outstanding on December 31, 2006;

(lix) Any statistical or market-related data, or any other operating data or statistics provided by third parties in the Pricing Prospectus and the Prospectus are based on or derived from sources that the Company reasonably believes to be reliable and accurate, and the Company has obtained the written consent for the use of such data from such sources to the extent required; and all the operating data and statistics contained in the Pricing Prospectus and the Prospectus that are generated or supplied by the Company or members of its management are derived from the books and records of account of the Company, and the Company reasonably believes such operating data and statistics are true and accurate and such operating data and statistics fairly reflect the information presented;

(lx) There are no contracts, agreements or understandings between the Company and any person that would give rise to a claim against the Company or any Underwriter for a brokerage commission, finder's fee or other like payment in connection with the issuance and sale of the ADSs;

(lxi) The description and information in the Pricing Prospectus and the Prospectus under the captions "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations - Acquisitions" and "Our Recent Significant Acquisitions" regarding the acquisitions described therein (the "Acquisitions") is true and accurate in all material respects and nothing has been omitted from such description which would make the same misleading in any material respect. Each of the parties to any agreements entered into in connection with the Acquisitions (collectively, the "Acquisition Agreements") has full power, authority and legal right to enter into, execute, adopt, assume, issue, deliver and perform its respective obligations under each of the Acquisition Agreements to which they are a party, and has authorized, executed and delivered each of the Acquisition Agreements to which they are a party, and such obligations constitute valid, legal and binding obligations enforceable against each of them in accordance with the terms of each of the Acquisition Agreements. Each of the Acquisition Agreements is in proper legal form under relevant laws and regulations for the enforcement thereof against each of the parties thereto without further action by any of them. The execution, delivery and performance of each of the Acquisition Agreements by the parties thereto, and the consummation of the transactions contemplated thereunder (taken individually or together as a whole), did not and will not (A) result in any violation of the business license, articles of association, other constitutional documents (if any) or permits of any of the parties thereto; (B) result in any violation of or penalty under any laws, regulations, rules, orders, decrees, guidelines, judicial interpretations, notices or other legislation of the PRC; or (C) conflict with or result in a breach or violation of any of the terms or provisions of, or constitute a default under, any other contract, license, indenture, mortgage, deed of trust, loan agreement, note, lease or other agreement or instrument to which any of them is a party or by which any of them is bound or to which any of their property or assets is subject, except, in the case of clauses (B) and (C), where any such breach, violation or default would not, individually or in the aggregate, reasonably be expected to have a Material Adverse Effect. Except as described in the Pricing Prospectus, all of the parties to the Acquisition Agreements have fully performed all of their obligations under each of the Acquisition Agreements to which they are a party and all the transactions contemplated under each of the Acquisition Agreements have been consummated in accordance with the terms thereof, including without limitation registration with the relevant PRC governmental authorities necessary to make the Acquisitions effective under PRC laws and regulations. In each Acquisition involving the acquisition of entities located both in and outside of China, prior to the time each such Acquisition was contemplated, each of the related entities had in place legally binding and effective agreements (the "Control Agreements") sufficient for the entity located in China to be considered a "variable interest entity" of the entity located outside China as defined in FIN 46 issued by the Financial Accounting Standards Board in 2003, and the execution, delivery and performance of each of the Control Agreements by the parties thereto did not and will not (A) result in any violation of the business license, articles of association, other constitutional documents (if any) or permits of any of the parties thereto; (B) result in any violation of or penalty under any laws, regulations, rules, orders, decrees, guidelines, judicial interpretations, notices or other legislation of the PRC; or (C) conflict with or result in a breach or violation of any of the terms or provisions of, or constitute a default under, any other contract, license, indenture, mortgage, deed of trust, loan agreement, note, lease or other agreement or instrument to which any of them is a party or by which any of them is bound or to which any of their property or assets is subject, except, in the case of clauses (B) and (C), where any such breach, violation or default would not, individually or in the aggregate, reasonably be expected to have a Material Adverse Effect. To the best knowledge of the Company and the Controlling Person, there is no reason that either the structure of the Acquisitions as contemplated under the Acquisition Agreements or the structures contemplated under the Control Agreements, might be subject to challenge by the relevant PRC governmental authorities under any laws, regulations, rules, orders, decrees, guidelines, judicial interpretations, notices or other legislation of the PRC;

(k) (A) None of the Company or any of the Group Entities shall have sustained since the date of the latest audited financial statements in the Pricing Prospectus any loss or interference with its business from fire, explosion, flood or other calamity, whether or not covered by insurance, or from any labor dispute or court or governmental action, order or decree, otherwise than as set forth or contemplated in the Pricing Prospectus and (B) since the respective dates as of which information is given in the Pricing Prospectus there shall not have been any change in the capital stock, short-term debt or long term debt of the Company

(l) On or after the Applicable Time (A) no downgrading shall have occurred in the rating accorded to any of the Company's debt securities, if any, by any "nationally recognized statistical rating organization", as that term is defined by the Commission for purposes of Rule 436(g)(2) under the Act, and (B) no such organization shall have publicly announced that it has under surveillance or review, with possible negative implications, its rating of any of the Company's debt securities;

(u) No action shall have been taken and no statute, rule, regulation or order shall have been enacted, adopted or issued by any federal, state or foreign governmental or regulatory authority that would, as of such Time of Delivery, prevent the issuance of the Shares, the deposit of such Shares with the Depositary against issuance of the ADSs or the sale of such ADSs; and no injunction or order of any federal, state or foreign court shall have been issued that would, as of such Time of Delivery, prevent the issuance of the Shares, the deposit of such Shares with the Depositary against issuance of the ADSs or the sale of such ADSs;

(v) The Company shall have caused to be furnished to you at or prior to the First Time of Delivery, a certificate of the Chief Executive Officer and the Chief Financial Officer of the Company relating to certain financial and disclosure matters in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to counsel for the Underwriters; and

(w) All opinions, letters, certificates and evidence mentioned above or elsewhere in this Agreement shall be deemed to be in compliance with the provisions hereof only if they are in form and substance reasonably satisfactory to counsel for the Underwriters.

9. (a) The Company will indemnify and hold harmless each Underwriter against any losses, claims, damages or liabilities, joint or several, to which such Underwriter may become subject, under the Act or otherwise, insofar as such losses, claims, damages or liabilities (or actions in respect thereof) arise out of or are based upon an untrue statement or alleged untrue statement of a material fact contained in the Registration Statement, the ADS Registration Statement, any Preliminary Prospectus, the Pricing Prospectus or the Prospectus, or any amendment or supplement thereto, or any Issuer Free Writing Prospectus or any "issuer information" filed or required to be filed pursuant to Rule 433(d) under the Act, or arise out of or are based upon the omission or alleged omission to state therein a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, and will reimburse each Underwriter for any legal or other expenses reasonably incurred by such Underwriter in connection with investigating or defending any such action or claim as such expenses are incurred; provided, however, that the Company shall not be liable in any such case to the extent that any such loss, claim, damage or liability arises out of or is based upon an untrue statement or alleged untrue statement or omission or alleged omission made in the

Registration Statement, the ADS Registration Statement, any Preliminary Prospectus, the Pricing Prospectus or the Prospectus, or any amendment or supplement thereto, or any Issuer Free Writing Prospectus, in reliance upon and in conformity with written information furnished to the Company by any Underwriter through the Representatives expressly for use therein;

(b) Each of the Selling Shareholders, severally and not jointly, will indemnify and hold harmless each Underwriter against any losses, claims, damages or liabilities, joint or several, to which such Underwriter may become subject, under the Act or otherwise, insofar as such losses, claims, damages or liabilities (or actions in respect thereof) arise out of or are based upon an untrue statement or alleged untrue statement of a material fact contained in the Registration Statement, the ADS Registration Statement, any Preliminary Prospectus, the Pricing Prospectus or the Prospectus, or any amendment or supplement thereto, or any Issuer Free Writing Prospectus, or arise out of or are based upon the omission or alleged omission to state therein a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein, not misleading, and will reimburse each Underwriter for any legal or other expenses reasonably incurred by such Underwriter in connection with investigating or defending any such action or claim as such expenses are incurred in each case to the extent, but only to the extent, that such untrue statement or alleged untrue statement or omission or alleged omission was made in the Registration Statement, the ADS Registration Statement, any Preliminary Prospectus, the Pricing Prospectus or the Prospectus, or any amendment or supplement thereto, or any Issuer Free Writing Prospectus, in reliance upon and in conformity with written information furnished to the Company or such Underwriter by such Selling Shareholder expressly for use therein; provided, however, that the liability of each Selling Shareholder pursuant to this subsection (b) shall not exceed the product of (i) the number of ADSs sold by such Selling Shareholder and (ii) the public offering price per ADSs as set forth on the cover page of the Pricing Prospectus, less underwriting discount per ADS as set forth on the cover page of the Pricing Prospectus;

(c) Each Underwriter will indemnify and hold harmless the Company and each Selling Shareholder against any losses, claims, damages or liabilities to which the Company or such Selling Shareholder may become subject, under the Act or otherwise, insofar as such losses, claims, damages or liabilities (or actions in respect thereof) arise out of or are based upon an untrue statement or alleged untrue statement of a material fact contained in the Registration Statement, any Preliminary Prospectus, the Pricing Prospectus or the Prospectus, or any amendment or supplement thereto, or any Issuer Free Writing Prospectus, or arise out of or are based upon the omission or alleged omission to state therein a material fact required to be stated therein or necessary to make the statements therein not misleading, in each case to the extent, but only to the extent, that such untrue statement or alleged untrue statement or omission or alleged omission was made in the Registration Statement, any Preliminary Prospectus, the Pricing Prospectus or the Prospectus, or any amendment or supplement thereto, or any Issuer Free Writing Prospectus, in reliance upon and in conformity with written information furnished to the Company by such Underwriter through the Representatives expressly for use therein; and will reimburse the Company and each Selling Shareholder for any legal or other expenses reasonably incurred by the Company or such Selling Shareholder in connection with investigating or defending any such action or claim as such expenses are incurred;

(d) Promptly after receipt by an indemnified party under subsection (a), (b) or (c) above of notice of the commencement of any action, such indemnified party shall, if a claim in respect thereof is to be made against an indemnifying party under such subsection, notify the indemnifying party in writing of the commencement thereof; but the omission so to notify the indemnifying party shall not relieve it from any liability which it may have to any indemnified party otherwise than under such subsection. In case any such action shall be brought against any indemnified party and it shall notify the indemnifying party of the commencement thereof, the indemnifying party shall be entitled to participate therein and, to the extent that it shall wish, jointly with any other indemnifying party similarly notified, to assume the defense thereof, with counsel satisfactory to such indemnified party (which shall not, except with the consent of the indemnified party, be counsel to the indemnifying party), and, after notice from the indemnifying party to such indemnified party of its election so to assume the defense thereof, the indemnifying party shall not be liable to such indemnified party under such subsection for any legal expenses of other counsel or any other expenses, in each case subsequently incurred by such indemnified party, in connection with the defense thereof other than reasonable costs of investigation. No indemnifying party shall, without the written consent of the relevant indemnified party, effect the settlement or compromise of, or consent to the entry of any judgment with respect to, any pending or threatened action or claim against such indemnified party in respect of which indemnification or contribution may be sought hereunder (whether or not the indemnified party is an actual or potential party to such action or claim) unless such settlement, compromise or judgment (A) includes an unconditional release of such indemnified party from all liability arising out of such action or claim and (B) does not include a statement as to or an admission of fault, culpability or a failure to act, by or on behalf of any indemnified party from whom such consent is required hereunder but has not been obtained;

(e) If the indemnification provided for in this Section 9 is unavailable to or insufficient to hold harmless an indemnified party under subsection (a), (b) or (c) above in respect of any losses, claims, damages or liabilities (or actions in respect thereof) referred to therein, then each indemnifying party shall contribute to the amount paid or payable by such indemnified party as a result of such losses, claims, damages or liabilities (or actions in respect thereof) in such proportion as is appropriate to reflect the relative benefits received by the Company and the Selling Shareholders on the one hand and the Underwriters on the other from the offering of the ADSs. If, however, the allocation provided by the immediately preceding sentence is not permitted by applicable law or if the indemnified party failed to give the notice required under subsection (d) above, then each indemnifying party shall contribute to such amount paid or payable by such indemnified party in such proportion as is appropriate to reflect not only such relative benefits but also the relative fault of the Company and the Selling Shareholders on the one hand and the Underwriters on the other in connection with the statements or omissions which resulted in such losses, claims, damages or liabilities (or actions in respect thereof), as well as any other relevant equitable considerations. The relative benefits received by the Company and the Selling Shareholders on the one hand and the Underwriters on the other shall be deemed to be in the same proportion as the total net proceeds from the offering of the ADSs purchased under this Agreement (before deducting expenses) received by the Company and the Selling Shareholders bear to the total underwriting discounts and commissions received by the Underwriters with respect to the ADSs purchased under this Agreement, in each case as set forth in the table on the cover page of the Pricing Prospectus. The relative fault shall be determined by reference to, among other things, whether the untrue or alleged untrue statement of a material fact or the omission or alleged omission to state a material fact relates to information supplied by the Company or the Selling Shareholders on the one hand or the Underwriters on the other and the parties' relative intent, knowledge, access to information and opportunity to correct or prevent such statement or omission. The Company, each of the Selling Shareholders and the Underwriters agree that it would not be just and equitable if contributions pursuant to this subsection (e) were determined by pro rata allocation (even if the Underwriters were treated as one entity for such purpose) or by any other method of allocation which does not take account of the equitable considerations referred to above in this subsection (e). The amount paid or payable by an indemnified party as a result of the losses, claims, damages or liabilities (or actions in respect thereof) referred to above in this subsection (e) shall be deemed to include any legal or other expenses reasonably incurred by such indemnified party in connection with investigating or defending any such action or claim. Notwithstanding the provisions of this subsection (e), no Underwriter shall be required to contribute any amount in excess of the amount by which the total price at which the ADSs underwritten by it and distributed to the public were offered to the public exceeds the amount of any damages which such Underwriter has otherwise been required to pay by reason of such untrue or alleged untrue statement or omission or alleged omission. No person guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation (within the meaning of Section 11(f) of the Act) shall be entitled to contribution from any person who was not guilty of such fraudulent misrepresentation. The Underwriters' obligations in this subsection (e) to contribute are several in proportion to their respective underwriting obligations and not joint. Further notwithstanding the provisions of this subsection (e), no Selling Shareholder shall be required to contribute any amount in excess of the product of (i) the number of ADSs sold by such Selling Shareholder and (ii) the public offering price per ADS as set forth on the cover page of the Pricing Prospectus, less the underwriting discount per ADS as set forth on the cover page of the Pricing Prospectus; and

(f) The obligations of the Company and the Selling Shareholders under this Section 9 shall be in addition to any liability which the Company and the Selling Shareholders may otherwise have and shall extend, upon the same terms and conditions, to the respective affiliates of each Underwriter and to each person, if any, who controls any Underwriter within the meaning of the Act and each broker-dealer affiliate of any Underwriter; and the obligations of the Underwriters under this Section 9 shall be in addition to any liability which the respective Underwriters may otherwise have and shall extend, upon the same terms and conditions, to each officer and director of the Company (including any person who, with his or her consent, is named in the Registration Statement as about to become a director of the Company) and any Selling Shareholder and to each person, if any, who controls the Company or any Selling Shareholder within the meaning of the Act;

10. (a) If any Underwriter shall default in its obligation to purchase the ADSs which it has agreed to purchase hereunder at a Time of Delivery, you may in your discretion arrange for you or another party or other parties to purchase such ADSs on the terms contained herein. If within thirty-six hours after such default by any Underwriter you do not arrange for the purchase of such ADSs, then the Company and the applicable Selling Shareholders shall be entitled to a further period of thirty-six hours within which to procure another party or other parties satisfactory to you to purchase such ADSs on such terms. In the event that, within the respective prescribed periods, you notify the Company and the Selling Shareholders that you have so arranged for the purchase of such ADSs, or the Company and the Selling Shareholders notify you that they have so arranged for the purchase of such ADSs, you or the Company and the applicable Selling Shareholders shall have the right to postpone such Time of Delivery for a period of not more than seven days, in order to effect whatever changes may thereby be made necessary in the Registration Statement or the Prospectus, or in any other documents or arrangements, and the Company agrees to file promptly any amendments or supplements to the Registration Statement or the Prospectus which in your opinion may thereby be made necessary. The term "Underwriter" as used in this Agreement shall include any person substituted under this Section with like effect as if such person had originally been a party to this Agreement with respect to such ADSs;

(b) If, after giving effect to any arrangements for the purchase of the ADSs of a defaulting Underwriter or Underwriters by you and the Company and the applicable Selling Shareholders as provided in subsection (a) above, the aggregate number of such ADSs which remains unpurchased does not exceed one eleventh of the aggregate number of all of the ADSs to be purchased at such Time of Delivery, then the Company and the applicable Selling Shareholders shall have the right to require each non-defaulting Underwriter to purchase the number of ADSs which such Underwriter agreed to purchase hereunder at such Time of Delivery and, in addition, to require each non-defaulting Underwriter to purchase its pro rata share (based on the number of ADSs which such Underwriter agreed to purchase hereunder) of the ADSs of such defaulting Underwriter or Underwriters for which such arrangements have not been made; but nothing herein shall relieve a defaulting Underwriter from liability for its default; and

(c) If, after giving effect to any arrangements for the purchase of the ADSs of a defaulting Underwriter or Underwriters by you or the Company and the applicable Selling Shareholders as provided in subsection (a) above, the aggregate number of such ADSs which remains unpurchased exceeds one eleventh of the aggregate number of all of the ADSs to be purchased at such Time of Delivery, or if the Company and the applicable Selling Shareholders shall not exercise the right described in subsection (b) above to require non-defaulting Underwriters to purchase ADSs of a defaulting Underwriter or Underwriters, then this Agreement (or, with respect to the Second Time of Delivery, the obligations of the Underwriters to purchase, and of the Company to sell, the Optional ADSs) shall thereupon terminate, without liability on the part of any non-defaulting Underwriter, the Company or the Selling Shareholders, except for the expenses to be borne by the Company and the Selling Shareholders and the Underwriters as provided in Section 6 hereof and the indemnity and contribution agreements in Section 9 hereof; but nothing herein shall relieve a defaulting Underwriter from liability for its default.

11. The respective indemnities, agreements, representations, warranties and other statements of the Company, the Controlling Person, the Selling Shareholders and the Underwriters, as set forth in this Agreement or made by or on behalf of them, respectively, pursuant to this Agreement, shall remain in full force and effect, regardless of any investigation (or any statement as to the results thereof) made by or on behalf of any Underwriter or any controlling person of any Underwriter, the Company, or any of the Selling Shareholders, or any officer or director or controlling person of the Company, or any controlling person of any Selling Shareholder, and shall survive delivery of and payment for the ADSs.

12. If this Agreement shall be terminated pursuant to Section 10 hereof, none of the Company, the Controlling Person and the Selling Shareholders shall then be under any liability to any Underwriter except as provided in Sections 6 and 9 hereof; but, if for any other reason any ADSs are not delivered by or on behalf of the Company and the Selling Shareholders as provided herein, the Company will reimburse the Underwriters through you for all out of pocket expenses approved in writing by you, including fees and disbursements of counsel, reasonably incurred by the Underwriters in making preparations for the purchase, sale and delivery of the ADSs not so delivered, but the Company and the Selling Shareholders shall then be under no further liability to any Underwriter in respect of the ADSs not so delivered except as provided in Sections 6 and 9 hereof.

13. In all dealings hereunder, you shall act on behalf of each of the Underwriters, and the parties hereto shall be entitled to act and rely upon any statement, request, notice or agreement on behalf of any Underwriter made or given by you jointly or by the Representatives as the representatives of the several Underwriters.

All statements, requests, notices and agreements hereunder shall be in writing, and if to the Underwriters shall be delivered or sent by mail, telex or facsimile transmission to you as the representatives of the Underwriters, (A) Credit Suisse Securities (USA) LLC, Eleven Madison Avenue, New York, New York 10010-3629, facsimile number: (212) 325-8278, attention: Transactions Advisory Group, (B) Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Incorporated, 4 World Financial Center, 250 Vesey Street, New York, New York 10080, facsimile number: (212) 449-2785, attention: Equity Capital Markets Desk and (C) Citigroup Global Markets Inc., 388 Greenwich Street, New York, New York 10013, facsimile number: (212) 816-7912, attention: General Counsel and; if to the Controlling Person or any Selling Shareholder shall be delivered or sent by mail, telex or facsimile transmission to counsel for the Controlling Person or Selling Shareholders at its address set forth in Schedule II hereto; and if to the Company shall be delivered or sent by mail, telex or facsimile transmission to the address of the Company set forth in the Registration Statement, Attention: Chief Executive Officer; provided, however, that any notice to an Underwriter pursuant to Section 9(d) hereof shall be delivered or sent by mail, telex or facsimile transmission to such Underwriter at its address set forth in its Underwriters' Questionnaire or telex constituting such Questionnaire, which address will be supplied to the Company or the Selling Shareholders by you upon request. Any such statements, requests, notices or agreements shall take effect upon receipt thereof.

14. This Agreement shall be binding upon, and inure solely to the benefit of, the Underwriters, the Company, the Controlling Person and the Selling Shareholders and, to the extent provided in Sections 9 and 11 hereof, the officers and directors of the Company and each person who controls the Company, any Selling Shareholder or any Underwriter, and their respective heirs, executors, administrators, successors and assigns, and no other person shall acquire or have any right under or by virtue of this Agreement. No purchaser of any of the ADSs from any Underwriter shall be deemed a successor or assign by reason merely of such purchase.

15. Each of the parties hereto irrevocably (A) agrees that any legal suit, action or proceeding against the Company, the Controlling Person or the Selling Shareholders brought by any Underwriter or by any person who controls any Underwriter arising out of or based upon this Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby may be instituted in any New York Court, (B) waives, to the fullest extent it may effectively do so, any objection which it may now or hereafter have to the laying of venue of any such proceeding and (C) submits to the exclusive jurisdiction of such courts in any such suit, action or proceeding. Each of the Company, the Controlling Person and the Selling Shareholders has appointed CT Corporation System, 111 Eighth Avenue, New York, New York, as its authorized agent (the "Authorized Agent") upon whom process may be served in any such action arising out of or based on this Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby which may be instituted in any New York Court by any Underwriter or by any person who controls any Underwriter, expressly consents to the jurisdiction of any such court in respect of any such action, and waives any other requirements of or objections to personal jurisdiction with respect thereto. Such appointment shall be irrevocable. Each of the Company, the Controlling Person and the Selling Shareholders represents and warrants that the Authorized Agent has agreed to act as such agent for service of process and agrees to take any and all action, including the filing of any and all documents and instruments, that may be necessary to continue such appointment in full force and effect as aforesaid. Service of process upon the Authorized Agent and written notice of such service to the Company, the Controlling Person or the Selling Shareholders shall be deemed, in every respect, effective service of process upon the Company, the Controlling Person or the Selling Shareholders, as the case may be.

16. In respect of any judgment or order given or made for any amount due hereunder that is expressed and paid in a currency (the "judgment currency") other than United States dollars, the Company, the Controlling Person and the Selling Shareholders, as the case may be, will indemnify each Underwriter against any loss incurred by such Underwriter as a result of any variation as between (A) the rate of exchange at which the United States dollar amount is converted into the judgment currency for the purpose of such judgment or order and (B) the rate of exchange at which an Underwriter is able to purchase United States dollars with the amount of the judgment currency actually received by such Underwriter. The foregoing indemnity shall constitute a separate and independent obligation of the Company, the Controlling Person and the Selling Shareholders and shall continue in full force and effect notwithstanding any such judgment or order as aforesaid. The term "rate of exchange" shall include any premiums and costs of exchange payable in connection with the purchase of or conversion into United States dollars.

17. Time shall be of the essence in this Agreement.

18. This Agreement shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the laws of the State of New York.

19. This Agreement may be executed by any one or more of the parties hereto in any number of counterparts, each of which shall be deemed to be an original, but all such counterparts shall together constitute one and the same instrument.

20. Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, the Company is authorized to disclose to any persons the U.S. federal and state income tax treatment and tax structure of the potential transaction and all materials of any kind (including tax opinions and other tax analyses) provided to the Company relating to that treatment and structure, without the Underwriters imposing any limitation of any kind. However, any information relating to the tax treatment and tax structure shall remain confidential (and the foregoing sentence shall not apply) to the extent necessary to enable any person to comply with securities laws. For this purpose, "tax structure" is limited to any facts that may be relevant to that treatment.

21. This Agreement constitutes the entire agreement among the parties and supersedes all prior agreements and understandings, oral or written, with respect to the matters set forth herein.

22. Each of the Company, the Controlling Person and the Selling Shareholders acknowledges and agrees that (i) the purchase and sale of the ADSs pursuant to this Agreement is an arm's-length commercial transaction between the Company and Selling Shareholders, on the one hand, and the several Underwriters, on the other, (ii) in connection therewith each Underwriter is acting solely as a principal and not the agent or fiduciary of the Company, the Controlling Person or such Selling Shareholder, and (iii) no Underwriter has assumed an advisory or fiduciary responsibility in favor of the Company with respect to the offering contemplated hereby or the process leading thereto (irrespective of whether such Underwriter has advised or is currently advising the Company or such Selling Shareholder on other matters) or any other obligation to the Company except the obligations expressly set forth in this Agreement and (iv) each of the Company, the Controlling Person and the Selling Shareholders has consulted its own legal and financial advisors to the extent it deemed appropriate. Each of the Company, the Controlling Person and the Selling Shareholders agrees that it will not claim that the Underwriters, or any of them, has rendered advisory services of any nature or respect, or owes a fiduciary duty to the Company, the Controlling Person, or such Selling Shareholder, in connection with such transaction or the process leading thereto.

23. Each of the Company, the Controlling Person, the Selling Shareholders and the Underwriters hereby irrevocably waives, to the fullest extent permitted by applicable law, any and all right to trial by jury in any legal proceeding arising out of or relating to this Agreement or the transactions contemplated hereby.

FORM OF COMPANY LOCK-UP AGREEMENT

[_____], 2007

Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith
Incorporated

As representative of the Underwriters named in Schedule I to the Underwriting Agreement

Re: Focus Media Holding Limited--Lock-up Agreement

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The undersigned understands that you, as representative (the "REPRESENTATIVE") propose to enter into an underwriting agreement on behalf of the Underwriters named in Schedule I to such agreement (collectively, the "UNDERWRITERS"), to be dated as of [_____], 2007 (the "UNDERWRITING AGREEMENT") with Focus Media Holding Limited, a Cayman Islands company (the "COMPANY"), and those selling shareholders named in the Underwriting Agreement (collectively, the "SELLING SHAREHOLDERS"), providing for a public offering of American Depositary Shares ("ADSS") representing Ordinary Shares of the Company, par value US$0.00005 per share (the "ORDINARY SHARES"), pursuant to a Registration Statement on Form F-1 (File No. 333-146913) and a Registration Statement on Form F-6 (File No. 333-141820) filed with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (the "SEC").

In consideration of the agreement by the Underwriters to offer and sell the ADSs, and of other good and valuable consideration the receipt and sufficiency of which is hereby acknowledged, the undersigned agrees that, without your prior permission, during the period beginning from the date hereof and continuing to and including the date 90 days after the date of the final Prospectus (the "LOCK-UP PERIOD"), not to offer, sell, announce the intention to sell, contract to sell, pledge, grant any option to purchase, make any short sale or otherwise dispose of, directly or indirectly, or cause the Company to file with the SEC a registration statement under the Securities Act of 1933, as amended (the "ACT") with respect to, (A) any ADSs or Ordinary Shares or any securities of the Company represented by the ADSs, or any securities of the Company substantially similar to the ADSs or Ordinary Shares, including but not limited to any options or warrants to purchase or any securities that are convertible into or exchangeable for, or that represent the right to receive, ADSs or Ordinary Shares or any such substantially similar securities; and (B) any shares or equity interests in the Company's subsidiaries or controlled affiliates or depositary shares or depositary receipts representing such shares or equity interests, including by not limited to securities that are convertible into or exchangeable for or that represent the right to receive such shares or equity interests or such depositary shares or receipts, or any such substantially similar securities, whether now owned or hereinafter acquired (of record, beneficially or otherwise, including as a custodian) (the securities covered by the foregoing clauses (A) and (B), collectively, are referred to as the "LOCK-UP SECURITIES"; except that the foregoing restrictions shall not apply to (1) the ADSSs and the Ordinary Shares underlying such ADSSs, (2) the issuance of Ordinary Shares in connection with bona fide strategic acquisitions by the Company not to exceed 32.0 million Ordinary Shares in the aggregate, (3) grants of options pursuant to the Company's employee stock option plans, and (4) any Ordinary Shares to be issued by the Company upon the exercise of any options described in clause (3) above; provided however, that if (x) during the last 17 days of the Lock-up Period, the Company releases earnings results or announces material news or a material event or (y) prior to the expiration of the Lock-up Period, the Company announces that it will release earnings results during the 15-day period following the last day of the Lock-up Period, then in each case the Lock-up Period will be automatically extended until the expiration of the 18-day period beginning on the date of release of the earnings results or the announcement of the material news or material event, as applicable unless you waive, in writing, such extension; and provided further that, if the Company issues ADSSs pursuant to (2) above, the Lock-Up Period will be automatically extended until the expiration of the remainder of 90-day lock-up period. The Company will provide you and each holder of ADSSs subject to the Lock-up Period with prior notice of any such announcement that gives rise to an extension of the Lock-up Period.

The foregoing restriction is expressly agreed to preclude the undersigned from engaging in any hedging, swap or other transaction or arrangement which is designed to or which reasonably could be expected to lead to or result in a sale or disposition of the Undersigned's Securities even if such securities would be disposed of by someone other than the undersigned, or transfers, in whole or in part, any of the economic consequences of ownership of the Undersigned's Securities, whether any of these transactions are to be settled by delivery of the Undersigned's Securities or other securities, in cash or otherwise. Such prohibited hedging or other transactions would include without limitation any short sale or any purchase, sale or grant of any right (including without limitation any put or call option) with respect to any of the Undersigned's Securities or with respect to any security that includes, relates to, or derives any significant part of its value from such securities. In addition, the undersigned agrees not to publicly disclose the intention to make any offer, sale, pledge, disposition or filing, without the prior written consent of the Representative.

The undersigned understands that the Company, the Selling Shareholders and the Underwriters are relying upon this Lock-up Agreement in proceeding toward consummation of the offering. The undersigned further understands that this Lock-up Agreement is irrevocable and shall be binding upon the undersigned's heirs, legal representatives, successors, and assigns. The undersigned also agrees and consents to the entry of stop transfer instructions with the Company's transfer agent and registrar against the transfer of the Undersigned's Securities except in compliance with the foregoing restrictions.

This Lock-up Agreement shall terminate upon the expiration of the Lock-up Period or in the event that there is no delivery of, and payment for, the ADSSs pursuant to the Underwriting Agreement, upon three days' prior written notice of such non-delivery and non-payment given by the undersigned to you.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, any prior lock-up agreement entered into by the undersigned remains in full effect except as superseded by the terms of this lock-up agreement. During the Lock-Up Period, the terms of this agreement prevail in any conflict with any prior lock-up agreement. Upon termination, cancellation or waiver of this lock-up agreement, the terms of any prior lock-up agreement remain in full effect.

Very truly yours,

Focus Media Reports Second Quarter 2007 Results

Second Quarter Revenue Increased by 126.3% and Net Income Increased by 126.2%

Year-over-year

SHANGHAI, China, Sept. 27 /Xinhua-PRNewswire/ -- Focus Media Holding Limited (Nasdaq: FMCN), China's largest digital media group, today announced its unaudited financial results for the second quarter ended June 30, 2007.

Highlights for Second Quarter 2007:

- Total revenues grew 126.3% year-over-year and 97.5% quarter-over-quarter to $113.3 million.
- Net income for the second quarter was $37.7 million, up 126.2% year-over-year and 131.5% quarter-over-quarter. Fully diluted net income per ADS for the second quarter of 2007 was $0.32. Focus Media also provides operating margin, net income and earnings per ADS on a non-GAAP basis that exclude non-cash share-based compensation expense and acquired intangible assets amortization expense to enable investors to better assess the Company's operating performance. The non-GAAP measures are described below and reconciled to the corresponding GAAP measure in the section below titled "'Use of non-GAAP Financial Measures'". Net income, excluding non-cash share-based compensation expenses and amortization of acquired intangible assets resulting from acquisitions (non-GAAP) for the second quarter was $45.3 million or $0.38 per fully diluted ADS.
- As our digital media offerings to our advertising clients continue to expand, we will be reporting our advertising service revenues under three separate lines going forward: Digital out-of-home which includes our commercial location network (which includes our Premier Office Building Channel A and other commercial location network channels, our outdoor LED network and our movie theater network), our in-store network and our in-elevator poster frame network; Mobile handset advertising; and Internet advertising. In the second quarter of 2007, digital out-of-home advertising revenue was $76.9 million.
- Advertising service revenue from our commercial location network, including revenue from our outdoor LED network (also referred to as our iStreet Network) and movie theater advertising network, grew 67.8% year-over-year and 61.4% quarter-over-quarter to $51.1 million.

- Advertising service revenue from our in-elevator poster frame network grew 89.7% year-over-year and 46.4% quarter-over-quarter to $18.5 million in the second quarter 2007.
- Mobile handset advertising revenue grew 253.8% year-over-year and 81.1% quarter-over-quarter, to $10.9 million in the second quarter 2007.

 -- Internet advertising revenue, primarily from revenues following the acquisition of Allyes in the first quarter 2007, was $25.2 million in the second quarter of 2007.

"We saw strong demand growth in the second quarter of 2007. In addition, upon the successful integration of Allyes, we have further expanded our ability to offer highly-effective cross-media solutions catering to the needs of our advertising clients. We believe Internet advertising will become another key growth driver for Focus Media in the future," said Jason Jiang, CEO of Focus Media. "Among our media networks, the in-store business is characterized by relatively low margin and intense competition. Going forward, we will focus on market share expansion by investing aggressively to secure additional store locations throughout China. Recently, we have signed up RT- Mart, one of the leading hypermarket chains with more than 60 stores in major cities in China and a partner of Auchan Group in France. We believe, by developing the largest in-store digital advertising network in China, we will be able to offer the most attractive media solutions for our fast-moving- consumer- goods (FMCG) advertising clients."

Second Quarter Financial Results

For the second quarter of 2007, Focus Media reported total revenues of $113.3 million, an increase of 126.3% compared to $50.1 million for the second quarter of 2006, and an increase of 97.5% compared to $57.3 million for the first quarter of 2007.

Our total digital out-of-home advertising revenue was $76.9 million in the second quarter of 2007, an increase of 64.4% from $46.8 million in the second quarter of 2006 and a sequential increase of 50.8% from $51.0 million in the first quarter of 2007. In the second quarter of 2007, commercial location advertising revenue was $51.1 million, contributing 66.4% of total digital out-of-home advertising revenue. Advertising service revenue from our in- store network was $7.2 million, or 9.4% of total digital out-of-home advertising revenue. Advertising service revenue from our poster frame network placed primarily in the elevators of residential complexes was $18.5 million in the second quarter of 2007, or 24.1% of total digital out-of-home advertising revenue.

Due to continuing expansion of our media offerings and strong demand from our customers, we have started to offer customized media solutions tailored to the needs of our large advertising clients. We have also extended the cycle time of our commercial location network in certain cities to more than 12 minutes. As a result, the number of 30-second equivalent time slots sold ("Slot Sold") and average revenue per 30-second equivalent time slot ("ASP") for our networks are no longer as representative. Therefore, going forward, we will no longer provide such data in our earning reports.

As of June 30, 2007, the total installed base of displays in our commercial location network was 89,687 nationwide, including 85,010 displays through our directly owned networks, and 4,677 displays through our regional distributors. In the second quarter of 2007, we continued to expand the installed base of our hypermarkets to 1,205 stores from 1,196 hypermarkets as of March 31, 2007. The installed base of supermarkets and convenience stores was 734 and 2,056, respectively, as of June 30, 2007. The number of displays installed in our in-store network increased to 41,322 as of June 30, 2007 compared to 40,736 as of March 31, 2007. The total number of frames available for sale was 161,435 as of June 30, 2007, as compared to 124,542 as of March 31, 2007. As of August 30, 2007, we had installed 6,796 digital 2.0 frames, mainly in Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou and Shenzhen.

Mobile Advertising Business

Advertising service revenue from Focus Media Wireless in the second quarter of 2007 was $10.9 million, up 253.8% from $3.1 million in the second quarter of 2006 and 81.1% from $6.0 million in the first quarter of 2007.

Internet Advertising Business

Advertising service revenue from Allyes was $25.2 million in the second quarter of 2007. Digital marketing service, digital marketing technology and digital performance media contributed 90.0%, 3.4%, 6.6% respectively to the total Internet advertising revenue.

Gross profit for the second quarter of 2007 was $61.8 million, representing an increase of 117.2% compared to $28.5 million for the corresponding period a year ago and a 94.8% increase compared to $31.8 million in the first quarter 2007. In the second quarter 2007, gross margin for our digital out-of-home business was 63.1%. Within the digital out-of-home business, commercial location network gross margin was 65.0%, in-store network gross margin was 28.4%, and the poster frame network gross margin was 71.6%. The gross margin for our mobile advertising business was 58.0%. The gross margin for our Internet advertising business was 27.1% in the second quarter 2007. Blended gross margin for the company for the second quarter was 54.6%, as compared to 56.9% in the second quarter of 2006, primarily due to the addition of the lower-margin Internet advertising business to our revenue mix.

In the second quarter of 2007, operating expenses totaled $23.7 million, including $0.8 million in acquired intangible asset amortization resulting from acquisitions and non-cash share-based compensation expense of $4.6 million. Operating expenses as a percentage of total revenues in the second quarter 2007 was 20.9%, as compared to 30.2% in the previous quarter. Selling and marketing expenses in the second quarter totaled $13.2 million including $2.0 million in share compensation expense, or 11.6% of total revenues. General and administrative expense in the second quarter was $11.6 million including $2.6 million in share-based compensation expense, or 10.3% of total revenues. Our operating margin in the second quarter of 2007 was 33.7%, up significantly from 25.2% in the first quarter 2007. Excluding non-cash share-based compensation expense and acquired intangible asset amortization expense, operating margin (non-GAAP) was 40.4% in the second quarter 2007.

Net income for the second quarter of 2007 was $37.7 million, an increase of 126.2% compared to $16.7 million for the same period in 2006. Net income excluding non-cash share-based compensation expense and acquired intangible assets amortization expense resulting from acquisitions (non-GAAP) in the second quarter of 2007 was $45.3 million, or $0.38 per fully diluted ADS.

Other Recent Developments

On March 16, 2006, Shanghai Xicheng Cultural Dissemination Co.,Ltd, also referred to as CGEN, brought a suit against us in the Shanghai No. 1 Intermediate People's Court on the grounds of unfair competition. On July 25, 2007, we received the civil judgment of first instance by the Shanghai No.1 Intermediate People's Court which dismissed the lawsuit.

In September 2007, the Audit Committee completed its investigation into allegations made by U.S. counsel to an investor described as holding a short position in Focus Media shares. Based upon its review of the evidence, the audit committee concluded that nothing has come to its attention -- apart from the initial allegations that gave rise to the investigation -- that would cause the audit committee to believe that Focus Media made undisclosed rebate payments to a third party advertising agency through another advertising agency, namely, Everease. We concluded that Everease is a related party based upon information developed during the investigation. Based upon its review of the evidence, the audit committee concurred with our conclusion that Everease should be deemed a related party. Subsequently, the Company filed its delayed 2006 20-F annual report on September 25, 2007. Our 2006 annual report on form 20-F is available at the investor relations portion of our website ( <http://ir.focusmedia.cn> ).

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

The Company estimates its total revenues for the third quarter of 2007 will range from $132 million to $135 million. Third quarter 2007 net income excluding share-based compensation expense and intangible assets amortization expense resulting from acquisitions (non-GAAP) is expected to be between $52 million and $54 million or $0.41 to $0.43 per fully diluted ADS based on 126 million total ADS equivalent average shares outstanding. Due to higher-than- expected growth in our Internet advertising business, the company also raises its total revenues estimates for full year 2007 to a range of $440 million to $450 million, as compared to the previously announced range of $390 million to $400 million.

USE OF NON-GAAP FINANCIAL MEASURES

In addition to Focus Media's consolidated financial results under GAAP, the Company also provides non-GAAP financial measures, including non-GAAP operating margin, non-GAAP net income and non-GAAP earnings per fully diluted ADS, all excluding non-cash share-based compensation and acquired intangible asset amortization expense resulting from acquisitions. The Company believes that these non-GAAP financial measures provide investors with another method for assessing Focus Media's operating results in a manner that is focused on the performance of its ongoing operations. Readers are cautioned not to view non-GAAP results on a stand-alone basis or as a substitute for results under GAAP, or as being comparable to results reported or forecasted by other companies, and should refer to the reconciliation of GAAP results with non- GAAP results for the three-month periods ended March 31 2007, and the three- and six-month periods ended June 30, 2006 and 2007, in the attached financial information.

The Company believes that both management and investors benefit from referring to these non-GAAP financial measures in assessing the performance of Focus Media and when planning and forecasting future periods. The Company computes its non-GAAP financial measures using the same consistent method from quarter to quarter. The accompanying tables have more details on the GAAP financial measures that are most directly comparable to non-GAAP financial measures and the related reconciliation between these financial measures.

Total network time slots sold on our Premier Channel A in the first quarter 2007 was 6,414, down from 8,533 time slots in the previous quarter due to the first quarter seasonality relating to the Chinese New Year holidays, but higher than the [3,904] time slots sold in the first quarter of 2006.

In tier-I cities, namely Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou, Shenzhen slots sold in the first quarter were 1,117, representing a network sell out rate of 89.5%. Thank you very much. Now we we'll open the call for your questions. Operator.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Operator

Thank you sir. [OPERATOR INSTRUCTIONS]. Ladies and gentlemen please stand by for your first question. And your first question will come from the line of Jason Brueschke with Citigroup. Please proceed.

Jason Brueschke - Citigroup - Analyst

Thank you. First of all, good morning gentlemen and congratulations really on a fantastic quarter as well as your outlook for the rest of the year. Let me just start with two questions and then I'll get back in the queue. The first one involves the Frame 2.0 announcement that you made this morning. Could you tell us if you've already tested a smaller batch than I think it's 10,000 that you plan to roll out, and maybe what the results of that testing was?

And then give us some idea of what the revenue effect of this improvement is likely to be as well as the associated costs. And I'll have another question on the Framedia business.

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Okay. Dr. Tan will answer the question.

Zhi Tan - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - Director of the Board and President

This is Zhi Tan. We have tested on a small scale and right now we have deployed around 4,000 [sets] around the country. So far we received very positive feedback from customer and from our agents. We believe this will be very highly recognized product both from the quality and from the service provided to the customers. Internal revenue we cannot predict at this time about how much but what I may remind you is that this product will be able to provide a more efficient advertisement to our customer.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Jason this is Daniel Wu here. I think you have seen from the press release this product has been in the making for the last 15 months. Dr. Tan and his team have worked very hard during last year and a half to make this product available today for our media network. So overall we have very high expectation of this business.

Given we have just initially launched this product, I think we're not providing specific revenue guidance for this product, but we think it's going to contribute very positively for Focus Media this year as well as next year.

I'd like to add a couple of more points in terms of the technology. This is Zhi Tan here. In terms of technology it is a highly integrated, state of the art, new technology, including wireless, infra red, high resolution, TV, [those things], and remote control, [sensor control]. Those things will be able to provide extremely good services to the customers. So we believe this will be very good positive, very positive product to the customer.

Secondly we also provided some different kind of, in broadcasting facilities to the customer. We have not only provided a single picture but also provide multi facet program design so the customer can give a predefined scheduling basis. For example, the customer can define from Monday to Friday from, 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. develop this [frame one] picture, and from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. afternoon display another picture. So a customer can provide at lost up to 1,000 pictures and preload it into the system. So by preset a definition given to the system will display according to customer this definition, this schedule. So it will have the ability to provide such a flexibility to the customers.

Jason Brueschke - Citigroup - Analyst

Great. I guess the follow up question would be this, it seems like this is an ability to segment your deal. In the Commercial network you segment in some ways according to you location, what will be your lead channel etc. This investment you're going to be able to segment by time. And it would seem like you should be able to effectively achieve some kind of peak times and non peak times. And my expectation would be that overall revenues are probably going to be higher because there will be certainly either times of the days, or days of the week, or certain advertisers say a movie that's being launched wants to advertise a lot, say on a Thursday and Friday ahead of the premiere, and you can do some peak pricing. Is that the way we should be thinking about really the advantages of this technology?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Jason, what Dr. Tan was trying to explain before is basically we have the technology of doing this. The technology today is available to do multiple frames for single clients during the same day or selectively at different times during the day or different times during the week. The sales process is gradually refined today. So not saying today we want to do this today, but we are capable of doing that. Potentially that will provide us more capacity to sell and provide better customer service to advertising customers. Today we are actually allowing each frame to carry three different customers at the same time. So basically it's -- the clients -- so this revolving picture and three different clients can be carried on a single frame.

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Jason Brueschke - Citigroup - Analyst

Great. A quick, my second question is just some general information about Framedia in general. Could you tell us how many cities you currently are in, what your geographic expansion plans are for the rest of 2007? And maybe give us an idea of what we think the pricing as you move into more second tier cities is likely to be? Thanks.

Zhi Tan - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - Director of the Board and President

We have currently deployed about 15 cities, major cities in China, covering most of the major cities. But right now the problem is, tier-II and tier-III cities, there are not many buildings, high-rise buildings in residential area. Therefore we are limited to, not to our competitor, but there is no market in that area. So we have pretty good coverages of those available residential buildings throughout the country.

Jason Brueschke - Citigroup - Analyst

Okay. Great. Thank you guys.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Okay, sure.

Operator

Your next question will come from the line of Kit Low with Goldman Sachs. Please proceed.

Kit Low - Goldman Sachs - Analyst

Yes. Good Morning. Thanks for taking my question. A couple of quick questions. First one relates to the guidance on second quarter. On the second quarter if there is any way you could flag some guidance over what's the breakdown between the core business and Allyes contribution both in the top line and implicitly in non GAAP in this bottom line, that would be helpful. I will start with that and see if we go to the next one.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Hi Kit. Historically we have not provided a breakdown of segment within the business when we're providing guidance. And we're not going to do that on this call as well. I think traditionally the Company always provides guidance on a quarterly basis and at the beginning of the year on an annual basis, but we're providing a total revenue guidance and EPS guidance.

Our Allyes business is trading very well and we see this growth, as we discussed on the closing call of the Allyes acquisition, it's growth momentum is very strong. And we expect that to continue significantly in our second quarter revenues and earnings. So that has been already incorporated in the guidance we've provided.

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Kit Low - Goldman Sachs - Analyst

Okay, thanks. The second quick question relates to the CapEx for the digital frames, for Framedia. What sort of CapEx, is there any revision in CapEx expectations for this year on the back of that? And for the depreciation policy on the back of these frames, would that be consistent with what your current depreciation policy is.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Sure. I think, first of all, at the beginning of the year when we provide you the CapEx guidance, $20 to $25m, we were not exactly sure what the launch date of Framedia 2.0. So if we're going to launch in the middle of the year, of this year, and we expect installation continuing for the later part of the year, probably is going to have a few million dollars impact on CapEx. Because if you think about those frames they would typically cost roughly about CNY5,000 per unit. And we are going to upgrade at the high end of the market first and gradually push towards the lower end of the market, the mid and lower end of the market. So the impact on CapEx, will be, will increase CapEx by [$5] to a few million dollars depending on the deployment results. That is from the take up by the advertisers.

The depreciation is very straightforward. We are going to keep this five years' depreciation policy. It is same like the LCD network we have on the Commercial Location business.

Kit Low - Goldman Sachs - Analyst

Right. Thank you.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Sure. Thank you.

Operator

You next question comes from the line of Aaron Kessler of Piper Jaffray. Please proceed.

Aaron Kessler - Piper Jaffray - Analyst

A couple of questions. On the Framedia, can you give us any sense of the timing of when you'd expect rollout to take, in terms of '07 and '08?

And then can you provide some color around the expense level in Q2? With the higher revenue than we expected, it appears that you're modeling at some higher operating expenses as well or maybe some lower gross margins, so a little guidance on that.

And finally the In-store seemed a little weaker than the rest of them. We thought it'd be a little stronger given you still see some resiliency in the Chinese New Year in the In-store network. Was there any things specifically going on, on that In-store Network?

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

FrameMedia, Frame 2.0 rollout as I said earlier is going to be a gradual process. So we're initially going to launch about 10,000 frames and then gradually increase the number. It depends on the customer uptake as well as it depends on how the business we believe is going to evolve in 2007, 2008. So that will contribute to our 2007 and 2008 business.

Do think it's not an additional market, but it's a case of gradual replace of the high end of the existing market. But it will increase the capacity as well as the advertisers' effectiveness, from the advertiser point of view, to make this media more attractive to high end, high paying advertisers and increase their ROI.

On the margin actually, if you think about Focus Media business, in our business most of the media segments are fixed cost base business. So when, as we said, when the first quarter there's the Chinese New Year holiday during which most people taking time off, so no people in the office building, we do experience a little bit soft in seasonality. So the margin we believe is normal. It doesn't reflect a longer trend. But it has to do -- more to do with the seasonality of the business.

I think In-store business is trading well. It's also affected by seasonality because people do take some time off during Q1. And we continue to expect In-store business this year to grow healthy. And this is -- as you've seen we continue to expand our coverage of hypermarkets. We continue to expand the number of screens we installed in the network. So there's really no difference today for the In-store network, anything particular we needed to highlight.

Aaron Kessler - Piper Jaffray - Analyst

And finally just on the Wireless business, that appeared up about 50% sequentially and also the margins were very strong. I think you indicated last quarter that the margins might tick down given that there's a one time benefit last quarter. Could you just give us some commentary on the strength of the Wireless business?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Sure. For the Wireless business, we do see very strong momentum in 2007. If you think about the growth margin this quarter, actually it's lower than Q4 because Q4 we had a one time rebate for mobile operators. Typically those rebate fees are paid at the end of the year. So we believe today that the gross margin of the Mobile business is sustainable going forward.

And also if you look at the growth of the Wireless business, it's both due to organic growth as well as some smaller acquisitions we made in Q1. That allow us to consolidate the platform we have for advertisers to deliver SMS and MMS based messaging to targeted consumer groups based on different business models. And we believe this business will grow very healthy.

And after the 3G network in place in China in a few years, we believe there's many more different business model will be available for the Wireless business to increase its advertising dollars.

Your next question comes from the line of Jason Helfstein with CIBC World Markets. Please proceed.

Jason Helfstein - CIBC World Markets - Analyst

Thank you. Three questions.

The first with respect to this quarter, very healthy utilization or occupancy growth this quarter particularly in tier-I markets. Does that set you up for strong pricing in the second quarter? That's question one.

Question two, we did notice however that the average direct cost or the margin per display for the Commercial business did tick up more than we thought. We expected that to be flat to down. Just any talk with respect to the margins in the Commercial Location network.

And then my last question, Daniel, can you remind us the $1.4m below the line, the other, what did that relate to? And did that continue into the second quarter? Thank you.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

First of all regarding pricing going forward, I think Jason --

Jason Jiang - Focus Media Holding Ltd - Chairman & CEO

[Interpreted]. First of all, Jason to answer your first question. We expect a very healthy pricing trend going forward, especially today in the high utilization cities versus the smaller cities we have in our network, we have already, have the price ready and start talking to our clients. We will make an announcement and put it on our website very shortly for the price increase for the later part of the year. So overall we believe the pricing trend is very healthy.

On the margins for the Commercial Location network, if you think about the margin compared actually quarter-over-quarter, it's quite similar to first quarter of 2006. So we still expect long term gross margin for the Commercial Location business, without taking into consideration seasonality, will be about 75%. So basically we think that the Commercial Location network this quarter is affected by seasonality.

But otherwise we continue to believe for the big cities, which we have very high utilization rate today, the gross margin will be higher. But for the smaller cities where the utilization is relatively lower, which means the cities we just started our network, the gross margin will be lower given the fixed cost nature of the business. But we believe the long-term gross margin of the overall Commercial Location network will be over 75%.

We are -- on the other expenses, we don't believe that will be recurring. So it's just certain one time related charges we have in various different business. And certain some of them to do with the write down of the inventory costs and that in nature. So we don't expect that to be a recurring cost.

Jason Helfstein - CIBC World Markets - Analyst

No, I'm talking about, there was other income, the $1.4m. It's like below interest.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

So you say the other -- I'm sorry, I thought you said other costs. Other income. Yes, that also -- it has to do with certain subsidiaries and that's not going to be a recurring income. So it has to do with the consolidation of the business.

Jason Helfstein - CIBC World Markets - Analyst

Okay. If I could follow up on your margin answer, was there any spending with respect to the outdoor LEDs or the movie business that would have hurt the Commercial Location margin?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Not in the -- not anything we are expecting in the near term. And we are expanding our LED network into additional locations, pending -- we continue to look to expand those business at new locations, new opportunities. Nothing we have announced yet. But we don't expect those things will have a significant impact on our gross margins for the Commercial Location network given the business, those new business are relatively small compared to the existing revenue and margins.

Jason Helfstein - CIBC World Markets - Analyst

Okay. Last one and then I'll let someone else go. Are you reiterating your full guidance? Even though there was no commentary in the press release.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

We don't -- I think the Company really don't reiterate guidance every call. So I think for this call we were -- for the press release, we said, we're providing Q2 guidance. And I think right now, it's just so close to the last time we talked about full year guidance. So we really don't want to make additional comments on the full year guidance.

Your next question will come from the line of James Lee with WR Hambrecht. Please proceed.

James Lee - W R Hambrecht & Co - Analyst

Hi Daniel. Can you just elaborate about the Mobile advertising business a little bit more? Can you talk about how many new customers you signed on during the quarter? And how many customers you have in total?

And also can you comment about your -- the core business, the Commercial business a little bit. The dynamic is very different in this quarter, first quarter '07 versus first quarter '06, where your utilization rate at 1Q '06 was 75%. Obviously you did very well, 89%. But we see a decline in pricing in this quarter versus 11% pricing increase in 1Q '06. Maybe you can explain that dynamic a little bit. Thanks.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Sure. Your first question was relating to the Mobile business? You broke up a little bit, I didn't get that.

James Lee - W R Hambrecht & Co - Analyst

Yes, it was Mobile business, Daniel.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Yes, sure. Regarding the Mobile business, there's really no account of the number of clients because there's a lot of smaller clients and also a lot of the direct clients. So we don't have -- it's an extremely fragmented market. So there are clients who pay us a few hundred dollars. There's people paying us $100,000. So it's a very diversified client universe. So we really don't have a sort of specific number we could provide to you in terms of the number of clients. But we do think the business is improving.

And also it's very different from the other mobile content business because we really don't do any content. What we're providing is an advertising platform for both service providers as well as direct advertising customers to provide advertising messages or services to their choosing client universe, either based on demographics or based on clubs, communities, or based on the certain type of groups they involve or directly their customers. So it's a very diversified customer base as well as diversified revenue model. So that's -- I think that's going to be the trend going forward as well for the Mobile advertising business.

For the Commercial Location business, if you -- thanks for noticing that the utilization rate has picked up in Q1 versus last year Q1. I think of course if you -- do keep in mind during the two weeks Chinese New Year holidays, the office buildings closed. So really there's not much traffic in office buildings. So sometimes in order to sell in the softer Q1 season you have to provide a little bit more discount to advertisers.

So I think it's more of a balance how we run our business, how we balance the utilization rate versus the discounts. And I think this quarter we actually, given the discussion with different advertisers, we believe the balance we achieved this quarter allowed us to achieve very good financial results. So that's how it appears to be. So it's not really -- from our point of view, we don't target a specific utilization rate. Or we don't target a specific, of course, the discount level should be lower or better. But I think more importantly is we want to look at how many advertising dollars we can sell in any given quarter, given the fixed cost nature of the business.

James Lee - W R Hambrecht & Co - Analyst

Thanks. Daniel, is it fair to say in this quarter one '07, you've changed your sales approach versus the first quarter of last year, where you've become a little more flexible in pricing, given the --

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

This isn't really --

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

James Lee - W R Hambrecht & Co - Analyst

In exchange for your customer taking more slots, given it is riding up.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Yes. I think it's really not a trend. It's not a sales approach James. Really our sales approach has not differed from the day we started Focus Media from today. It's just like different contracts we're negotiating, each of the contracts how you're shifting your balance a little bit. So it really has no shift or no change in sales approach.

James Lee - W R Hambrecht & Co - Analyst

Okay. Let me have a quick follow up on the Mobile side. You say in the Mobile there are also smaller customers versus your core base in your platforms. I was just wondering how much crossover do you have with your Mobile platform versus your advertising on your advertising on your Commercial platform.

Jason Jiang - Focus Media Holding Ltd - Chairman & CEO

[Interpreted]. Today if you look at the Mobile Wireless business versus our main Commercial Location business, the Mobile Wireless business is more targeted advertising media. So the customers typically are local level and typically are much smaller in per contract size, in terms of revenue. The Commercial Location network if you think about that, that covers 130m urban consumers on a daily basis. So it's a very attractive platform for many large, multinational, large companies to do advertising to those highly attractive, urban consumer eyeballs.

Today we have started in this quarter to gradually educate our large clients to understand the effectiveness of mobile advertising. So today we do have some service plans to help those clients testing, to test and also to try and use the mobile advertising to reach the target consumers they want to reach. And we believe in the long term, especially with the improvement with the network with the 3G large clients will view mobile advertising become much more important, more and more important going forward as a part of their advertising solutions.

So going forward we do believe there's going to be certain benefits coming from providing this type of service, mobile advertising service, to the large client universe we have. But today the clients are very fragmented and more on the local level. Today that revenue is at the local level. Small client revenue still accounts the majority of the mobile advertising revenues.

James Lee - W R Hambrecht & Co - Analyst

Thank you, Daniel. Thank you, Jason.

Your next question will come from the line of Richard Ji with Morgan Stanley. Please proceed.

Richard Ji - Morgan Stanley Research Asia Pacific - Analyst

Hi Jason, Dr. Tan and Daniel and a good quarter.

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Thank you.

Richard Ji - Morgan Stanley Research Asia Pacific - Analyst

I have two questions. First starting with the [Poster Frame] advertising, that obviously experienced robust growth and literally built sales up year-over-year, above all other business line. Can you help us understand a little better how sustainable especially in India in terms of your total number of frame available and also total number of frame sold? They both experienced a quite strong growth year-over-year and quarter-over-quarter. Can you help us to understand a little better how sustainable that kind of growth would be going forward?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Sure. Okay, Dr. Tan will answer the question for you.

Zhi Tan - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - Director of the Board and President

The number of frames available for sales this year increased some of the number due to some secondary cities, tier-II cities [occupation]. So we just put it, added in such cities into our Group. So that's why we have increased the number of frames.

In terms of revenue we did see some good numbers, revenue coming in. But I don't believe this is the same [reason] for the quarter after that. But it is a good revenue stream for sure.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Richard, sorry, you were breaking up a little bit. So I had to translate for Dr. Tan because we can't hear you very well. But if you can hear us, I think we continue to expect the frames, the number of frames to grow. And also the revenue trajectory going forward, as Dr. Tan said, would be less strong than Q1 because last year Q1 was the first quarter we integrated Framedia. So there's a slight soft business in the first quarter where we integrated the business. So relatively the comparison was a little bit easy for us.

Richard Ji - Morgan Stanley Research Asia Pacific - Analyst

Okay, yes. My second question is regarding your ASP trend, especially in tier-I cities and also for your In-store network. And obviously they both experienced some weakness during the quarter other than the normal seasonality, weak seasonality. How much of that price weakness is due to competition in your In-store network?

And I'm also particularly interested about the discount you're currently giving away on average through your agencies?

Hello?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Just one second, let me translate for Jason.

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Jason Jiang - Focus Media Holding Ltd - Chairman & CEO

[Interpreted]. Richard, I think to talk about, first of all talk about Commercial Location pricing, in Q1 if you do keep in mind we increased price on January 1 of 2007. There are a lot of accounts given that they know we have a price increase have locked in the last year's price by signing contracts with -- advertising contracts in Q1. They signed the contracts in November and December of last year. So they will be able to enjoy the benefit of the lower price we have in last year. Those contracts, actually we don't sign those contracts any more after the price increase. So all the contracts signed after January 1, 2007 are based on the newer price.

So that's why relatively to the listed price we have the discounts in Q1 are slightly higher. Relative discount based on the listed price we have on the website.

And also we do have -- thanks for noticing, we do have a new sort of listing or sales strategy, given we have multiple channels today in Q1 of 2007. So in this year in Q1, during the Chinese New Year holidays, we actually promoted, have a special promotion package basically combining our multiple channels including the Fashion Channel, the Elite Channel, the Office Building Channel together to sell to the client as a package. It actually contributed positively to the overall revenue. But it's sold at a deeper discount because basically office buildings, there's not many people in the office building.

So that's why -- earlier we talked about you see the utilization rate in the Commercial Location business in Q1 was higher but the ASP was a little bit softer relatively to last year. We don't expect those special packages to be offered during the year except in the holiday period such as Chinese New Year holiday or May 1 or October 1.

So if you look at overall business for the Commercial Location business we believe based on our experience the discount level we offer to agencies as well as clients are actually improving. So the discount levels are decreasing gradually. So we don't see that has any -- if you think about it we continue to push price increase, that's because we do have very good pricing comparison in this media versus other comparable media.

For the In-store network, we do have a competitor which caps certain of level of pricing power we have in the In-store network. But you do see the In-store network are growing. So we believe In-Store network will continue to grow. Today it contributes 11.5% of Focus Media's overall revenue. We believe with addition of Allyes in Q2, the percentage of contribution for In-store network will be less than 10%. So In-store network is a media which we face a competitor, which caps certain pricing power. So it's not -- the pricing power is not as strong as the Commercial and the Poster Frame business.

But we are testing a few business models for the In-store network. We believe those new business models will dramatically the media attractiveness to advertisers and increase our revenue potential. Given the competitive nature of our business, we right now is not able to discuss that with you. But once we have those new business models launched we will report to you at the time we launch those business.

Richard Ji - Morgan Stanley Research Asia Pacific - Analyst

Okay, good. Well understood, thank you.

Your next question comes from the line of Eddie Leung with Deutsche Bank. Please proceed.

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Eddie Leung - Deutsche Bank Asia China - Analyst

Good morning, Jason, Dr. Tan and Daniel. Three quick questions. The first one is will there be any short-term impact on revenues when you install those digital frames? How long does it take to get them up and running?

The second question is what would be the impact of Allyes on your DSO?

And finally on the regulation side, do you see anything -- basically devolving that may have an impact on your business?

Zhi Tan - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - Director of the Board and President

Let me answer your first question. I don't believe [frames] will impact on the revenue in the coming days, coming months. As you can see we have installed about 2,000, 3,000 pieces already. And our revenue it has been increased due to -- as result each Frame 2.0, they are at this time the equivalent of three traditional 1.01. So we will have three-fold revenue for that single installed, those frames. So we will be seeing more revenue coming in for that, for this division.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

I'll take the next question on Allyes. Allyes has a longer DSO versus the overall business of Focus Media. Do keep in mind in Q1 the DSO for Focus Media was relatively higher. And that's because the revenue was lower affected by seasonality, but the cash received has not changed. It's pretty much steady over the years. So that's why relatively in a softer season you see a longer DSO for Focus Media. But we expect long term DSO to be within the expectations of 75 to 90 days, 60 to 90 days over the year. So there's really not much difference for Focus Media.

But with the incorporation of Allyes financial statements in the second quarter we expect that the blended DSO may be slightly extended by a few days because Allyes given their large client base with agencies. And those agency clients typically have longer DSO outstanding. But we don't think given the size of the business of Focus Media relatively to the size of the business volume, we don't think that's going to be a significant impact. And do keep in -- also Allyes has a very little [bad debt] experience given their business. So we don't see that's going to have any material impact on the overall business of Focus Media.

The third question is relating to regulatory environment. Today we really don't see anything regulatory, which would potentially affect our business.

Eddie Leung - Deutsche Bank Asia China - Analyst

Great, thank you very much.

Operator

Your next question comes from the line of Lin Shi with Lehman Brothers. Please proceed.

Lin Shi - Lehman Brothers - Analyst

Hi, good morning. Thank you for taking my questions.

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

My first question is on the gross profit margin of Commercial Location network. On a year-on-year basis I notice there's a slight drop, about 1.5%. But on the other hand we've seen the occupancy rate and ASP both go up quite a bit on a year-to-year basis. Given the nature of the fixed cost business, so I just wonder what's the reason behind the gross margin decline?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

That's [as I said before] because last year we had many less cities versus this year. And this year it's a much bigger network. So I think that helps to hopefully answer your question. Because there are many more of cities, which are tier-III, tier-IV, tier-V cities which have low occupancy rate. And this therefore has a lower gross margin. So on a blended basis it's decreased slightly. So there's really, on a city by city basis, this overall gross margin are improving.

Lin Shi - Lehman Brothers - Analyst

Shall I assume for this, that tier-III, tier-IV cities, the rental expense would be very low?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Yes, it's a fixed cost business. In a city -- if you do think about Focus Media, we started with tier-I cities. tier-III, if you go to [inaudible] and if you go to [inaudible], our tier-IV cities, the occupancy rate today is very, very low. So that we have explained many times, the occupancy rate for Focus Media network is not the same across all different cities.

In the big cities like Beijing, Shanghai or [Shenzhen], in [seasonally adjusted] is 100% sold out in 2005. But in the cities which we newly entered or cities in more remote areas, the occupancy rate is much lower. But it's a fixed cost business. The utilization rate is lower, so the margin is lower.

Lin Shi - Lehman Brothers - Analyst

Well, okay. Thanks. My second question is Jason seems to be a little bit conservative for the In-store network. I just wonder is that because of the pressure from competition.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

I think year-over-year you saw In-store network is still growing very healthy and over 20%. So as we discussed earlier, there is competitive pricing in the In-store business, but we continue to expect the In-store business to grow very healthy.

Jason Jiang - Focus Media Holding Ltd - Chairman & CEO

[Interpreted]. If you look at the hypermarket business, in Q1 even in the softer season, we still achieve the 24.7% in terms of gross margin. And relatively to the overall media sector in China, it's a very healthy gross margin. Of course you say it's lower than the Commercial Location business of Focus Media, lower than the Poster Frame of Focus Media. But those are the strengths of Focus Media's overall earnings and margins.

In-store business do have competition. And if the margin is weaker than the Commercial and Poster Frame as we said earlier in the previous conference calls, but still very healthy relatively to other media platforms you see in China. So we think it's a good business and we continue to want to grow that business. And [inaudible] if the market environment changes or if there's new business models, we will be able to initiate and launch, we believe that that business will grow very healthy.

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Lin Shi - Lehman Brothers - Analyst

Okay, thanks. Also for Allyes, have you seen any good synergies leveraging on the [technical difficulty] website?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

What, I'm sorry, you broke up a little bit.

Lin Shi - Lehman Brothers - Analyst

I mean after you integrated Allyes into your business, have you seen any good synergy in terms of sharing the client base and get a bigger share from the advertisers leveraging on the online Allyes platform?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Let me translate for Jason just for the benefit of people who don't speak Chinese on the call.

Jason Jiang - Focus Media Holding Ltd - Chairman & CEO

[Interpreted]. Allyes if you remember when we acquired Allyes, Allyes has about 300 to 400 advertising clients. Whereas Focus Media has, last year we had over 2,000 advertising clients. Allyes office also covers only five to six cities in China whereas the Focus Media covers more than 40 cities. So after the acquisition of Allyes, we have started 'cross selling' so-called effort in the two business. So that has been reflected in two areas.

First of all, Allyes already provided training to Focus Media's sales team. And when Focus Media's sales team goes visiting clients, we make a specific effort to introduce the new additional Internet advertising platform we provide as part of the solution to our advertising client. Once the advertiser shows interest, we'll bring the expertise, the experts of the Allyes sales team and after sales service support team to the clients. And they will initiate and continue with the advertising dialog. So that's number one.

Second is, in the cities that Focus Media covers but Allyes does not cover, we have a certain -- Allyes has already started assigning people to those cities. Do keep in mind when Internet advertising just started in China most of the large advertisers on Internet are the multinationals such as autos and banks. But today if you look at how the Internet business is growing, many tier-II, tier-III cities, there are a lot of clients who are not that sophisticated in terms of advertising, who want to do advertising on the Internet. So that allows Allyes to expand their business based on the platform Focus Media already built nationwide.

So from both of view, we do expect Focus Media and Allyes will bring positive revenue and earnings synergies to the Allyes business. And that's why we think as we said earlier Allyes will contribute significantly to the future growth of Focus Media Company.

Thank you, Lin Shi.

Lin Shi - Lehman Brothers - Analyst

Okay, thank you.

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Last question please.

Operator

Your final question will come from the line of Louis Corrigan with Kingsford Capital. Please proceed.

Louis Corrigan - Kingsford Capital - Analyst

Hi. I wanted to return to the question of DSOs. The press release indicates that the core DSOs were 100 days. And looking at the year ago period, you had one month of Target Media revenue and all of their accounts receivable. So even though it shows off that the DSOs a year ago were 100 days as well it seems like that the actual -- you know if you adjust the acquisitions, the DSOs would have been much lower.

So on an apples-to-apples basis it looks like the DSOs were up quite a bit in the first quarter. And at the same time, your pricing in the Commercial Building market was up just 2.3% year-over-year. And at the same time the number of slots that were sold in the Commercial tier-I market was down 25% this year sequentially versus being down just 17% sequentially last year.

So what I'm trying to get at is that it looks like you had a back end loaded quarter. You reduced your prices. And the number of slots sold still declined more in this first quarter than it did in the year ago period, which I guess to me raises the question of, is the demand in the marketplace as strong as we have all been led to expect it will be? Or are you really having to discount in order to -- you've increased your supply a great deal. Are you now having to discount in order to sell slots?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

I think you're making a lot of assumptions in your analysis. I really don't know where you're going. But I think these are two different questions, regarding DSO and pricing. Let me -- I think I answered both questions earlier, but let me repeat that answer a little bit.

I think if you think about DSOs first of all we don't see any difference in terms of cash collection from our advertisers in this quarter versus any previous quarter. So the advertising sales outstanding is normal. Today the business is very different versus last year given we have more business. We have Framedia, we have Target Media integrated. We have the movie theatre business, we have the LED business, we have the mobile advertising business. So I don't think they are directly comparable. You can't strip out exactly what's the impact of Target Media is relevant.

But we don't see any change of trends in cash receipts from advertisers. We believe that the result of increase of DSOs in this particular quarter is just due to lower revenue of seasonal, in the seasonally weak Q1 of every year. So we can also, going forward, we expect Q1 2008 and 2009 will still have this effect just given the seasonality of the business we are in.

Regarding the pricing and the utilization revenue analysis as we said earlier, as well as said by Jason, we negotiate contracts with clients contract by contract. There's really no change of sales approach. What you have seen today in terms of the revenue for the Commercial Location network, year-over-year the Commercial Location network grow by 50.8%. And although it's lower than Q4, it's due to seasonality.

We do have some -- earlier we talked about the special promotion package we offered to clients for bundled channel sales during the two weeks period of Chinese New Year. But these things, really there's no indication as we said, going forward we're not going to be offering those except during holiday period. So I don't follow your analysis.

FINAL TRANSCRIPT

May. 17. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q1 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

But what's most important to me as the CFO of the Company is the revenue this year versus first quarter of last quarter has grown significantly and Commercial Location revenues have exceeded our internal expectations. So that's why if you look at the guidance for Q1, was $54m to $56m, when we talked about it in the Q4 conference call. And actual revenue this quarter is higher than that number.

Thank you very much. Is that clear to answer your question?

Louis Corrigan - Kingsford Capital - Analyst

I guess my follow up to that would be was there something that would have made this first quarter more seasonal than last year's first quarter?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

No.

Louis Corrigan - Kingsford Capital - Analyst

It was the same.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Yes. And last year do keep in mind there was integration of Framedia, the integration of Target Media. We don't have the Wireless business. We don't have the LED business. We don't have the movie theatre advertising business.

Louis Corrigan - Kingsford Capital - Analyst

This is focusing on the commercial tier-I --

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Yes. This quarter there's no difference, this quarter versus last quarter. There are some certain special packages as we talked about, bundled sales, which we don't have multiple channels last quarter -- quarter of last year, in Q1 of 2006. Remember all those channels was launched in March of 2006.

Louis Corrigan - Kingsford Capital - Analyst

Okay, thank you.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holdings Ltd - CFO

Okay, sure. Thank you.

Thanks everyone. I think we'll conclude the call today.

We do not undertake any obligation to update those forward-looking information except as required under applicable law.

Now, I will turn the call over to our CFO, Daniel Wu, for a summary of the second quarter 2007 financial results.

---

Thank you, Jie. Good morning and good evening. I'm pleased to report to you a record result in the second quarter of 2007 for Focus Media. Our total revenue, excluding [sales] tax, reached $113.3m, increasing 126.3% from the same period last year and 97.5% from previous quarter. Our second quarter revenues include $76.9m from digital out-of-home advertising business, $10.9m from our Focus Media Wireless business and $25.2m from our Internet advertising business.

As our digital media offerings to our advertising clients continue to expand, we will be reporting our advertising service revenues under three separate lines going forward. The first one is digital out-of-home, which includes our commercial location network. Commercial location network includes our Premier Office Building Channel A and other commercial locations, and -- other commercial location LCD channels, our outdoor LED network and our movie theater network, etc.

And also, digital out-of-home includes our in-store network and our in-elevator poster frame network. These two are out-of-home LCD and LED networks. Thirdly -- second -- the second line would be mobile advertising revenue. The third one will be Internet advertising.

First, let me review in detail the results of our digital out-of-home advertising business. Total advertising revenue from our digital out-of-home advertising reached $76.9m in the second quarter of 2007, up 64.4% as compared to $46.8m in the same period in 2006.

Within our digital out-of-home advertising business, the revenue from our commercial location network in the second quarter was $51.1m, up 67.8% year over year. The revenue from our in-store network was $7.2m, up 10.8% year over year. The revenue from our poster frame network in the second quarter was $18.5m, up 89.7% year over year. The commercial location network, in-store network and poster frame network contributed 66.4%, 9.6% [sic - see press release] and 24.1% of total digital out-of-home advertising revenue in the second quarter respectively.

Due to continuing expansion of our media offerings and strong demand from our customers, we have started to offer customized media solutions tailored to the needs of our large advertising clients. We have also extended cycle time of our commercial location network in certain cities to more than 12 minutes cycle time we had before.

As a result, the number of 30-second equivalent time slots sold, which we historically call slots sold, and average revenue per 30-second equivalent time slot, which is -- historically, we call that ASP - for our networks are no longer as representative as before. Therefore, going forward, we will no longer provide such data in our earning reports.

FINAL TRANSCRIPT

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

During the second quarter of 2007, Focus Media Wireless generated revenue of $10.9m, up 253.8% from $3.1m in the second quarter of 2006. Advertising service revenue for Allyes, principally for Allyes, were -- was $25.2m in the second quarter of 2007, of which digital marketing service accounts for 90%, digital marketing technology accounts for 3.6 -- 3.4% and digital performance media accounts for 6.6%.

Gross profit for the second quarter of 2007 was $61.8m, representing an increase of 117.2% compared to $28.5m for the same period a year ago. In the second quarter of 2007, gross margin for our digital out-of-door business -- out-of-home business was 63.1%. Within the digital out-of-home business, commercial location business -- commercial location network gross margin was 65%, in-store network gross margin was 28.4% and poster frame network gross margin was 71.6%. The gross margin for our mobile advertising business was 58% and gross margin for our Internet advertising business was 27.1% in the second quarter of 2007.

For the Company as a whole, the blended gross margin for the Company for the second quarter was 54.6% as compared to 56.9% in the second quarter of 2006, lower primarily due to the addition of the lower-margin Internet advertising business to our revenue mix.

Second quarter operating expense totaled $23.7m, including $0.8m in acquired intangible assets resulting from historical acquisitions and net -- non-cash share-based compensation expense of $4.6m. As a result, operating margin in the second quarter of 2007 was 33.7%, up significantly from 25.2% in the first quarter of 2007, as, due to the first quarter seasonality, the gross -- the margin in the first quarter was lower. Excluding non-cash share-based compensation expense and acquired intangible asset amortization expense, operating margin on a non-GAAP basis was 40.4% in the second quarter of 2007.

GAAP net income for the second quarter of 2007 was $37.7m, or $0.32 per fully diluted ADS, up 126.2% from $16.7m for the same period a year ago. Non-GAAP net income, excluding non-cash share-based compensation expense and amortization of historical acquired intangible assets in the second quarter of 2007, was $45.3m, or $0.38 per fully diluted ADS.

Now, I'd like to provide Focus Media business outlook for the third quarter of 2007. Please note that the following outlook statements are based on our current expectations. These statements are forward-looking and actual results may differ materially.

We expect that the total revenue for the third quarter of 2007 to be between $132m and $135m, non-GAAP fully diluted earnings per ADS to be between $0.41 and $0.43. Due to higher than expected growth in our Internet advertising business, we also raised the full-year 2007 revenue estimates to a range of $440m to $450m, as compared to previously announced range of $390m to $400m.

Thanks very much. Now, we'll open the call for your questions. Operator, please.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Operator

(OPERATOR INSTRUCTIONS). And your first question comes from the line of Jason Brueschke from Citi Investment. Please proceed, sir. Mr. Brueschke, your line is open. You may ask your question. Mr. Brueschke, you may proceed with your question.

Jason Brueschke - Citi Investment - Analyst

Hello.

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes, we've got you, Jason.

Jason Brueschke - Citi Investment - Analyst

Okay, finally. Sorry about that. First of all, good morning. And let me just say congratulations on the completion of the audit committee investigation and that entire process. I'm sure you guys are glad that it's over.

Let me just do a couple of questions. First of all, the audit committee expenses that you incurred for the accounting and the legal in the third quarter. Daniel, could you give us some indication of the magnitude of those expenses and what impact they have or are likely to have on the Q3 EPS guidance that you gave?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Sure. Because the audit committee inquiry or investigation has been concluded in the third quarter of 2007, so all the expense will be paid and partially has been paid and will be booked to the Focus Media third quarter 2007 financial statement.

So the guidance we have provided already includes those expenses, taking into consideration of those expenses. Those expenses is a reasonable amount, so we already take that into consideration. But sorry, we cannot discuss specifically what the dollar amount is, due to our agreement with the advisors.

Jason Brueschke - Citi Investment - Analyst

Okay. But the guidance that you gave is not -- the pro-forma guidance is not excluding those expenses. Those are included.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes, they already booked into our Q3, so those -- the guidance we are providing to you has taken into consideration of those expenses.

Jason Brueschke - Citi Investment - Analyst

Right. I think my next question, Daniel -- thank you for that. My next question is, regarding the customized advertising solutions for large advertisers, could you give us a sense of what exactly those are?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Sure.

Jason Brueschke - Citi Investment - Analyst

And I presume that the expansion of the 12-minute cycle is probably happening in tier-one cities where you're probably having more demand from these large advertisers. Is that the case and is that why we're not getting the -- we'll call it the ASP metrics now, going forward?

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes, good point. I think, Jason, you hit it right on the spot. First of all, there are cycle times in certain cities. In addition to tier-one cities, we are also expanding due to the strong demand also from some of the tier-two cities. And second, let me give you an example.

If you think, let's say, about Mercedes-Benz, if they want to advertise with Focus Media commercial location network, and they did, they probably don't want to advertise in all the 5,000 or 6,000 buildings we have in Shanghai. So they may come back to us. They say, "Look, you know, because our brand image and because our highly selective target demographics for our viewers -- potential buyers, we'd like to advertise in only the top 100 buildings or top 50 buildings in Shanghai or in Beijing or in other cities".

So for us, we actually have to do that, because we cannot just say, "Hey, we cannot allow you to advertise in top 50 cities. You have to advertise in all buildings." First of all, it's not only a price issue, but also a brand image issue. They may actually walk away from Focus Media.

So when we're offering those services, let's say, for certain customers, we offer a more targeted selection of locations. The previously provided slot capacity -- 30-second equivalent time slot capacity was based on the scenario that everybody will use the full city, because when we defined a 30-second slot, it was a 30-second slot in a particular city network. So Shanghai, you look at the entire city.

So when we, let's say, have customers who are allowed or who have contracted with us to advertise in select buildings, the slot definition doesn't make sense anymore. So going forward, we -- given the network getting bigger and bigger, given -- our customer becomes more sophisticated and becomes larger.

So there are always going to be such types of situations where the spender rate card, [indicative] rate card format we provided to you our website no longer applicable. So that's why we stopped providing those slot information and utilization information and also ASP information to you, because when those numbers are calculated, historically, if applied to those new situations will actually skew the number, make it incomparable for the new number to the historical period.

Jason, am I explaining this to you clearly?

Jason Brueschke - Citi Investment - Analyst

Yes. That makes total sense to me. I understand what you're doing and why it creates an apples to oranges type situation.

---

Okay, thank you.

Jason Brueschke - Citi Investment - Analyst

Can you maybe -- maybe just one last question. The Internet business is doing extremely well, much better than you had originally guided when you acquired Allyes. And it seems to me this is a consistent pattern with a number of your acquisitions, that once you acquire a company, the rate of growth seems to accelerate dramatically.

Can you comment on what is underlying the growth in this business? Is it just the booming Internet advertising market in general, ahead of the Olympics, or is it more a function of putting them as part of the larger Focus Media network gives you various sales and marketing synergies across the board? If you could give a little color on that, that would be helpful.

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes, Jason. I think I'm going to ask our CEO, Jason Jiang, to respond to your question. So let me translate for Jason first. Sorry, give me a moment. (Spoken in foreign language).

Jason Jiang - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - Chairman and CEO

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Jason, let me translate for Jason Jiang. Of course, as you mentioned earlier, the overall Internet advertising industry in China is actually growing very rapidly. So that actually benefits us from the English point of view. But most importantly, for our angle, looking at this particular business, Focus Media today is the largest digital media group in China. And if you look at -- there are two areas we want to focus -- we want to talk about, is when -- is if you look at customer base.

Historically, Focus Media has more than 3,000 large and long-term customers. And Allyes, historically, when we acquired them, they only had about -- roughly about 300 customers. So by -- after we acquired Allyes, the key focus is how to provide an integrated digital media solution to our customers through Allyes products and service offerings. So of course, by expanding the potential customer of Allyes they can address to, we actually be able to increase their growth rate faster than they would be able to do by -- as a standalone business.

The second point we'd like to make is one thing we did is, Jason, and also Focus Media, we actually been looking at those Internet advertising business for a long time. So we do have some knowledge and some insight in terms of how to fine-tuning those business. So after we acquired Allyes, we refined Allyes' business model, focusing on more targeted advertising delivery and also focusing on rich media and also focus on performance media, which is cost per action based advertising business model.

So by focusing on those three areas, we actually be able to increase the margin of Internet advertising business of Allyes. So going forward, for the Internet advertising business, the focus will be two areas. One is to achieve higher growth, higher -- hopefully higher than industry growth for the Internet advertising industry and also focus on improving the margin of the Internet advertising business of Focus Media.

Jason Brueschke - Citi Investment - Analyst

Great. Thank you, guys, and congratulations, again, on your results, given what had to have been very trying circumstances.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Thank you, Jason.

Operator

And your next question comes from the line of James Mitchell from Goldman Sachs. Please proceed, sir.

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

James Mitchell - Goldman Sachs - Analyst

Hi. Thank you very much for taking the question, and I apologize, because the first one's kind of mechanical. I guess, in the second quarter, you had $2.7m in amortization of acquired intangible assets. And I think, in the past, that's appeared under your other expenses line, between the gross profit and the operating profit, so next to G&A and sales and marketing. Is that number still appearing there, or have you moved it up the P&L into the gross profit, because it looks like there has been some shifting in gross margin versus operating margin?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes, that's a very, very good point. If you go to note six of our financial statement, which we included in our press release, you will see that amortization of our acquired intangible assets, actually, this quarter, was $2.7m, which -- in the table where we reconcile -- we did reconciliation for -- of non-GAAP and GAAP.

The reason why is due to a different accounting treatment under the advisory of our public auditor, the auditing firm. Historically -- in the U.S., actually, a lot of companies have this practice as well. Historically, we've been grouping all our acquired -- historically acquired intangible amortization expense under the operating expense, which is a lump sum. But of course, you know those intangibles -- when we evaluate those intangibles, they include various items, including customer base, technology, trademarks and also existing contract areas and so on, so forth.

So in the U.S., there are both practices. There are companies who break it down, there are companies who lump it together in -- as one item in the operating expense. Under the advisory of our public auditor, we actually feel it is more accurate, going forward, to break it into different intangibles and categorizing it under cost of sales and also in the operating expense.

So that's why you see the number today is -- in the operating expense is much lower than historical periods. But if you go to look at '06, as I pointed earlier, that particular number is more comparable to historical periods.

James Mitchell - Goldman Sachs - Analyst

So the $2.7m is now fragmented between G&A, sales and marketing, cost of service.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes, it's between cost of sales and sales and marketing.

James Mitchell - Goldman Sachs - Analyst

Between cost of sales and sales and marketing. And then the other operating income is tax rebates, with the $1.1m.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes, those are tax rebates. Historically, we actually put that into other income and, given it's become a recurring item and, under the advisory of our public auditor, they believe it's much more [appropriate] under the newest guidelines of U.S. GAAP, we should include that into our operating expense.

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

James Mitchell - Goldman Sachs - Analyst

Okay, it's much more appropriate, but it makes my life harder. Just one other question from me, then. On Allyes, you commented that you see margins expanding over time. I guess, for the second quarter, it looked like it was a 27% or so gross margin for the business. Do you see that margin expanding relatively quickly as you [enjoy] merger synergies, or do you see that margin expanding more gradually over time as you change the business model?

I think, if you look at what we said -- mentioned in the press release, 90% of our Internet advertising business still is digital media service, which is interactive agency business, itself is a lower margin. I think we discussed a little bit on the call when we acquired Allyes. Those margins can continue to improve as the revenue base becomes larger, revenue growth becomes larger, and also due to the larger media buying power of our Internet advertising business.

So coming back to your question, here, it's going to be a gradual improvement. Still today, the digital media service is still the majority of our Internet advertising business. Going forward, we see from two areas for the margin improvement. One is continued improvement of margin in the digital media service business, as we talked about earlier, due to revenue base growth as well as media buying power and also increasing operating efficiency.

But also, we see a change of the revenue mix in our Internet advertising business, because, if you look at digital performance media, itself is a higher margin business. So as that particular business contributing more and change the mix of those different contributions, we do see the margin of the Internet advertising business will improve. But those will be gradual processes.

James Mitchell - Goldman Sachs - Analyst

Okay, great. Thank you very much.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Thank you, James.

Operator

And your next question comes from the line of Jason Helfstein from CIBC World Markets. Please proceed, sir.

Jason Helfstein - CIBC World Markets - Analyst

Hi. Thank you. Can you hear me?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes, we can hear you well.

Jason Helfstein - CIBC World Markets - Analyst

Okay. A few questions. The first, you guys exceeded your guidance by about 7%, or the midpoint. Can you talk about which areas of the business were better than expected? And I'm looking for some more color. So I understand you don't want to give us the metrics anymore from the commercial network business, but did the commercial network business, I guess, exceed your prior expectations? And if so, how much of that came from price and how much of that came from volume? And is there just a way to talk overall about the pricing that you're seeing going forward? And then I've got a follow-up.

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Sure, sure. If you look at this quarter, it is a very good quarter for Focus Media for the second quarter of the fiscal year. Of course, if you look at within our digital out-of-home business - we talked about a little bit earlier the Internet business doing well, the mobile business doing well - the majority of the revenue is still coming from the digital out-of-home sector.

For the digital out-of-home business, the commercial location actually was doing extremely well, because, as you see, we have a dominant position in those particular -- in that particular media. We have seen more and more advertisers realize the effectiveness of this media, understanding the highly targeted demographic we cover for [urban] consumers in China. So we do see more and more advertisers want to use this media and we continue to see fully sold-out capacity in major cities, in addition to tier-one cities.

So based on that, we do see, of course, volume increase as well as more pricing power, because, as more and more customers want to use this media and as our city network gets sold out, we will have more leverage when we negotiate a contract with advertisers.

So that's really what make us do better this quarter than what we expected. And you see the in-store network, as Jason said in the press release, still a challenging environment. So we'll be focused on more our expanding of the network and expanding the reach at this particular point in time. So there's not much upside which we can talk about from the in-store network.

Frame media, we talk about digital media, the digital frame media, which is doing extremely well. And we continue to see that media will grow as we planned. And also we do see a lot of potential growth in that particular media.

Jason Helfstein - CIBC World Markets - Analyst

Okay. My follow-up, then, actually, with respect to frame media, can you tell us how much revenue in the quarter came from the frame 2.0 initiative? And perhaps, is there a conversion ratio? So once a display converts, is it now three times the revenue, five times the revenue? And then, do you have a goal for how many digital frames you would like to have, either by the end of third quarter or by the end of the year?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

First of all, if you think -- second quarter, the cut-off date is June 30 of 2007. So if you think about -- we are -- as we announced, we are upgrading the -- to digital 2.0 in the middle of the second quarter. The digital frame 2.0 still contributing a very small percentage of the total revenue, because we're still launching this particular network. But end of q -- end of August, we have launched almost 7,000 digital frame 2.0 units and especially focusing on the high end of the market.

We do see very positive customer feedback by upgrading those networks to digital, because it becomes a much better media without reducing the reach and providing a very cost-effective solution for a lot of advertisers. And also, it allow us to address a lot of the different advertising needs, such as advertisers historically doing two-dimensional advertising business. So we do see -- for the network portion we have upgraded, we see very strong result and very strong feedback from the customers.

We want to upgrade those as -- very aggressive going forward, but it's also limited by our resources and also by the manufacture of those machines. So we don't have a target for you for Q3, but we will -- as we talked about earlier, we have phase one, which is 10,000 units. We expect to complete those phase one within this year and we will launch phase two as soon as we complete our phase one installation.

Jason Helfstein - CIBC World Markets - Analyst

Any kind of conversion ratio on the 7,000 you've already done?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

You mean -- conversion ratio, you mean customers?

Jason Helfstein - CIBC World Markets - Analyst

No. In other words, how much higher revenue are you getting per display for digital than for non-digital?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

We don't have this particular breakdown. But if you think about -- we are selling those digital frames same as non-digital, except the advertising itself will rotate on a 30-second basis up to three separate advertising per frame per week. So basically, if it's all sold out, the potential revenue from a digital frame will be up to three times. But as I said, right now, the second quarter's cut-off date was June 30, so we don't have enough data to provide you -- to answer your question.

Jason Helfstein - CIBC World Markets - Analyst

Okay. Thank you very much.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Sure.

Operator

And your next question comes from the line of Richard Ji from Morgan Stanley. Please proceed, sir.

Richard Ji - Morgan Stanley - Analyst

And congratulations on your very good quarter.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Thank you, Richard.

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Richard Ji - Morgan Stanley - Analyst

Thank you. And I have two questions. And the first question is again we -- from our channel check, we know the Olympics-related advertising demand is very robust. And so, from your end, have you been able to -- and typically you raise advertising rate in the middle of the year. And so, can you help us understand a little better how much of advertising rate you have been able to increase so far? And also, on the other hand, given your scale and also the dominance, and have you been able to scale back your discount level to the advertising agencies?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Okay. Let me ask Jason to answer this question for you. I'll translate for Jason.

Jason Jiang - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - Chairman and CEO

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Richard, I don't need to translate for you, but let me translate for the rest of the group, very briefly. Historically, we've been increasing price twice a year, on January 1 and July 1. We have done so in this year as well. And next year, we continue to expect, because customer already getting used to that, we continue to expect to have two price increases at beginning of the year and mid of the year, on January 1 and July 1.

So for us, in terms of discount, if you look at our -- there's very strong demand for our commercial location network in the major cities. So we are -- given the high demand, high use rate of our network, we are actually getting more and more customers start using our other channels, such as Channel B and other, like golf channels, shopping mall channels and fashion channels, so on and so forth. So by doing that, we're also increasing the overall network revenue potential for Focus Media.

And on your question regarding discounts, reducing discount is always a thing Focus Media want to do, but that needs to be a gradual process. If you look at our comparable media, which are local TV in China, typically, their discount rates are very, very high. We want to increase price, at the same time gradually reduce discount. But if you move too aggressively, although there are very strong demand, it may have a negative -- let's say may affect our relationship with advertisers negatively.

So we will use measured steps in terms of reducing discounts, but we will continue to push up our listing price going forward.

Richard Ji - Morgan Stanley - Analyst

Thank you. And my second question is regarding your in-store network, and obviously we see some seasonal [rebound] this quarter versus last quarter. Can you give us some highlight about the sell-through rate in this segment, as well as the pricing trend, etc., especially given the competitive dynamics?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes. Let me translate for Jason.

Jason Jiang - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - Chairman and CEO

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

This is Daniel Wu. Let me translate for Jason. If you look at all the media offerings of Focus Media, the in-store network is actually one of the areas which performs relatively weak. This is due to we do have a significant competitor in the market, who are very aggressive in building their business. And also, of course, if you see, there are mergers acquisitions among stores which -- including the acquisition by Carrefour and also Trust-Mart, so all those things will result in larger market share for those store chains.

So that would give them more bargaining power for the store cost, location cost, which is different from our commercial location network. We don't expect any of those scenarios. But in the in-store network, due to concentration of stores, of course, they have more bargaining power. We talked about this many times on our previous calls with you. If you look at our in-store business, we still see strong customer pick-up, and also demonstrated by revenue growth. So it's still a growing business.

Going forward, we want to increase our [intent] in our competitive strategy to competing with our competitors in this area. Of course, even today, we do have the largest in-store network, but at certain major store locations we want to be more competitive going forward, when we are facing any competitive situation. And also, we want to increase the number of LCD screens we cover in some of the major stores to increase the customer -- increase the result of our advertising effectiveness for our advertising customers.

So, as Jason said, so going forward, we're still very, very -- we're a strong believer of the in-store [portion] of our advertising business. Going forward, our strategy will become a little bit more aggressive than historical levels.

Richard Ji - Morgan Stanley - Analyst

Okay. Thank you.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Thank you, Richard.

Operator

And your next question comes from the line of Ming Zhao from SIG. Please proceed.

Ming Zhao - SIG - Analyst

Thank you. Good morning. I have a question on the gross margin of the commercial locations. So if we look at the year-over-year or quarter-over-quarter, apparently it's growing. However, if I compare that with the low seventies in the third quarter and the fourth quarter, there's actually a big drop. Could you comment on that? What should we be looking for in the following quarters?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

(Spoken in foreign language). I think if you look at our business and if you're going back to 2006 and 2005 and even 2004, this business is a fixed-cost business. So in a quarter when we do see higher demand and higher revenue, given relatively a fixed-cost nature, the margin characteristics are different. So you cannot compare different quarter with different quarter for Focus Media's commercial location business, just like you cannot compare Q1 and Q2. So I think the more appropriate comparison for you to make, to make any understanding of how the margin trend of the business, is to compare quarter to quarter.

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Ming Zhao - SIG - Analyst

Okay, but your q -- Okay. So you're talking about that --

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

So you should compare same quarter over last year, that's what I'm saying, not sequentially or sequentially backwards. So when you want to make any conclusion of the margin [characteristics] of the business, you should compare Q2 of 2007 versus Q2 of 2006, because there are seasonality in our business.

Ming Zhao - SIG - Analyst

Okay. I understand that. All right. The second question I have is, looking at the balance sheet, the goodwill goes up a lot. Is this because some of the [earn-out] payment? Also, why share base you used for the second -- for the third quarter EPS calculation has gone up? So can you --

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Sure. Good questions. I think first of all, the goodwill increase is due to some of the earn-outs, but also due to the Allyes acquisition. So there are -- when we make the acquisitions, we need to do, basically, purchase price allocation. And some of the purchase price allocation, actually majority of those purchase price allocation, will go to goodwill. So that's why -- those are result. As you know, Focus Media has been quite aggressive historically, so that will result in a higher goodwill.

In terms of share count, if you remember, we had, when we acquired Framedia, we had an earn-out agreement. The earn-out agreement basically said, within one year if we reach a number -- I remember it was 8m to 16m, so if they reached the high end of their net income contribution, we'll be issuing additional shares to Framedia shareholders. And those shares were issued late in Q2.

So if you look at Q2, the impact was not that significant, is because those shares were issued late in Q2. But in Q3, those share counts will have a full quarter effect. So that's why we provide you guidance the average share, fully diluted share outstanding, when we're calculating those guidance, we use a higher fully -- total number of shares outstanding, based on our knowledge of shares issued.

Ming Zhao - SIG - Analyst

Okay. But back to the goodwill, I thought that the Allyes acquisition was closed in the first quarter, so it's already shown up in the first quarter's goodwill increase. Why it's still here in the second quarter?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

But you're comparing the two columns. One is December 31, 2006 and June 30, 2007, right?

Ming Zhao - SIG - Analyst

I'm comparing the Q1 versus Q2 end.

Sep. 27, 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Jie Chen - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - IR Manager

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes. If you think about -- we just talked about the earn-out of Framedia, right? So the earn-out will result in a different valuation. So that will also increase the goodwill, because the shares were issued after end of Q1 of 2007. Does that make sense to you? Because when we pay them additional consideration based on the earn-out, those will increase the total acquisition value of Framedia, and that particular adjustment will hit in Q2 of 2007.

Ming Zhao - SIG - Analyst

Okay. So it's mainly these earn-outs rather than the Allyes, right?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Compared to March 31, 2007, you're correct. But I thought you were referring to the table we provided in the press release, which is comparing June 30, 2007 versus December 31, 2006.

Ming Zhao - SIG - Analyst

Okay. I'm comparing Q1 versus Q2. Thank you very much.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Okay. Okay, sure.

Operator

And your next question comes from the line of Aaron Kessler from Piper Jaffray. Please proceed.

Aaron Kessler - Piper Jaffray - Analyst

Yes, hi, guys. A couple of questions. One, can you comment on whether you made any acquisitions in the quarter? And then, Wireless was really strong. Is there any acquisitions in that and what's -- if not, what's explaining the really strong growth in there? And then I have a couple of follow-up questions.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes. I think we do make acquisitions. I think if it's a material acquisition, we will provide you a public release, but for smaller acquisitions we don't. But we will report that in our annual report end of the year.

So the Wireless growth is due to both organic growth and also acquisitions. As you know, we are right now in the process of building or developing our Wireless advertising business. Those business are non-content-based, advertising-driven, location-driven or demographic-driven SMS, MMS-based advertising business model. And that particular business, we do see continued growth, as more and more advertisers become more educated to this business model and see the effectiveness of this advertising.

So it's -- as we also discussed in the last quarter conference call, it's difficult for us to give you the breakdown of organic versus acquisition, because once we acquire a small player in the particular sector, those players' network as well as their distribution platform will be integrated into our existing larger network and platform. So it becomes one company. So it's very difficult to separate out what's the contribution going forward from those small acquisitions. So hopefully that addresses your question.

Aaron Kessler - Piper Jaffray - Analyst

And then, just a couple of follow-ups. On the acquisition front, did you acquire -- we heard rumors you acquired iResearch. Maybe if you can confirm that. And then, also, in the guidance, is all the upside really from the Allyes segment, or is there also some upside from the commercial and the Wireless business, as well, in the guidance for Q3 and Q4 revenues?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

I will actually -- first of all, if you look at -- I'll talk about guidance first. Then, coming back to your first question, Jason's going to answer that question. For the guidance, as we said, the increase of the guidance is principally due to the faster growth of the Internet advertising business. So that, I suppose, answers your second question. So regarding iResearch, I'll ask Jason to answer your question.

Aaron Kessler - Piper Jaffray - Analyst

Okay.

Jason Jiang - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - Chairman and CEO

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

This is Daniel Wu. Let me translate for the benefit of people on the call. This Internet advertising business is a long-term strategy of Focus Media. iResearch, we did acquire the business, but it's still run as an independent entity under Focus Media. That particular acquisition will allow Focus Media to have a better understanding of the Internet trend in China, understanding of the websites.

And also, as going forward, well, the important strategy of Focus Media's Internet advertising is behavioral-based advertising, which is performance media. So by having iResearch, we will be able to have better insight into the development and also, let's say, changing of the Internet industry in China, to allow us to then have a better decision-making power in our strategy going forward.

So going forward, iResearch will continue to provide, as it did before, a lot of the information to public for fees, but iResearch will also do some specific proprietary studies just for Focus Media, to help us to improve the growth of our advertising business.

Aaron Kessler - Piper Jaffray - Analyst

Great. Thank you.

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

So yes. Sure, thanks. Just one last point, because you understand Allyes has a huge base of its software deployment and its user database, because the widely-used office software. So one of the things we can do is iResearch will be able to better to focus on analyzing those user traffic and allow us to improve the advertising business model and advertising effectiveness of Internet advertising of Focus Media's business. Thanks.

Aaron Kessler - Piper Jaffray - Analyst

Great. Thank you.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes.

Operator

Due to time constraints, our final question will come from the line of James Lee from WR Hambrecht. Please proceed, sir.

James Lee - WR Hambrecht - Analyst

Hi, Daniel. Is there any way you can elaborate on the growth driver of the mobile business a little bit? Obviously, you made some acquisitions, you talked about that a little bit. Maybe you can talk about is it more the expansion of your sales people actually selling the mobile advertising product? Is it more the geographic expansion, maybe entering into new cities, or more the product expansion, like you talked about, maybe adding location-based services into the product mix that's helping driving the mobile advertising revenues?

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Sure. Hi, James. First of all, apologize we weren't able to see you last time you were here. We were very busy on lots of things. And on the mobile advertising business, we do think it's an early-stage growth industry. The growth is mainly coming from -- because we do have the single largest mobile advertising delivery platform, the growth is coming from new customer acquisitions and by expanding into new industries, or new customer base, through either organic growth as well as acquisitions.

So for example, by a small acquisition, a particular target who have strength in enterprise messaging system, we'll be able to integrate that into our platform, so reducing the cost area and help them to better monetizing their customer base by understanding share -- or share the same vision of how the mobile advertising business is going to grow.

So it's hard to -- not trying to avoid your question. It's coming from both customer acquisitions as well as from the expansion into other industries. Is that helpful, James? Hello? Operator?

Operator

Hello.

FINAL TRANSCRIPT

Sep. 27. 2007 / 9:00PM, FMCN - Q2 2007 Focus Media Holding Ltd. Earnings Conference Call

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes. Did we lose James Lee? Hello?

Operator

His line is open.

Daniel Wu - Focus Media Holding Ltd. - CFO

Yes, he is not -- okay. So let me summarize for the call. First of all, I do want to emphasize today, with the acquisition of Allyes, with the continued expansion of digital frame 2.0, Focus Media is the largest digital media group in China today. Our major three business lines including digital out-of-home, Internet advertising and Wireless. We have tried our best to look at -- to understand the customers' needs and provide integrated digital media solutions to our customers.

So today, if you look at Focus Media versus even two years ago when we went public, where the majority of revenue from -- 90% coming from commercial location network, or if you look at a year ago, where majority of the revenue still coming from commercial location network, in-store and the frame 2.0, today our business is very different. What we try to build is the largest digital media platform in China for our advertising clients for any place, any screen, any time.

So anyway, that concludes our conference call. Thanks very much for your time. Operator?

Operator

Ladies and gentlemen, this concludes the presentation. Thank you for your participation in today's conference. Have a great day. You may now disconnect.

Our Business

We are China’s leading multi–platform digital media company, operate the largest out–of–home advertising network in China using audiovisual digital displays, based on the number of locations and number of flat–panel television displays in our network, and also are a leading provider of Internet marketing solutions in China. It is our goal to create the largest multi–platform digital advertising network in China, reaching urban consumers at strategic locations and point–of–interests over a number of media formats, including audiovisual television displays in buildings and stores, advertising poster frames and other new and innovative media, such as outdoor light–emitting diode or LED digital billboard, mobile handset advertising networks and Internet advertising platforms. As of June 30, 2007, our out–of–home advertising network consists of our digital out–of–home advertising network, our mobile handset advertising network and our Internet advertising services network:

Our Digital Out–of–home Advertising Network which focuses on providing out–of–home advertising through liquid crystal display or LCD flat–panel televisions displays, LED billboards, movie screens, and poster and digital frames, includes our commercial location network, in–store network and poster frame network:

- our commercial location network, which consists of:
  - our LCD display network, which refers to our network of flat–panel television displays placed in high–traffic areas of commercial and public buildings marketed to advertisers as a network or as seven separate channels targeting different types of consumers — our premier A and B office building channels, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels;
  - our outdoor LED billboard network, which refers to our network of leased 5’ x 5’ LED digital billboards installed on the street–sides in major shopping districts and other locations with high pedestrian traffic in Shanghai; and
  - our movie theater advertising network, which refers to our right to sell advertising time on movie screens for the three minutes prior to movie screenings at movie theaters in China.
- our in–store network, which refers to our network of flat–panel television displays placed in specific product areas inside stores with high–traffic concentrations such as selected consumer product sections, the main aisles and check–out lines in large–scale chain retail stores, or hypermarkets, as well as inside selected supermarkets and convenience stores; and
- our poster frame network, which refers to our network of traditional and digital advertising poster frames placed mainly in the elevators and public areas of residential complexes which we market under the brand name Framedia;

Our Mobile Handset Advertising Network, which refers to our mobile handset advertising services using wireless access protocol or WAP, short messaging service, or SMS, and mixed messaging services, or MMS, offered on the mobile telecommunications networks of China Mobile Communications Corporation, or China Mobile, and China United Telecommunications Corporation, or China Unicom; and

Our Internet Advertising Services Network, which refers to our Internet advertising agency and advertising services technology, including performance-based software suites.

We derive revenue principally by:

- selling advertising time slots on our out-of-home television networks, which include our commercial location network and our in-store network;
- by selling frame space on our poster and digital frame network;
- selling advertisements on our mobile handset advertising network; and
- providing advertising agency and technology services and software for online advertising.

A majority of the content displayed on our commercial location and in-store networks consists of advertisements which are broadcast repeatedly approximately 60 times throughout a day. Advertisements on our outdoor LED billboard network are broadcast repeatedly approximately 120 times throughout a day.

Our poster frame network consists of advertising poster frames placed in elevators and public areas in residential complexes and commercial locations. Our advertising posters include both traditional printed posters as well as digital LCD poster frames with integrated sound, all-angle and remote control technologies. Generally two or three advertising poster frames can be placed in each elevator.

Advertisements on our mobile phone advertising network are advertisements that are sent to mobile phone users over China Mobile and China Unicom's networks.

Our Internet advertising services network, which we acquired through our acquisition of Allyes in March 2007, uses proprietary software applications provide online ad publishing, creative production, tracking, targeting, and performance analysis. We also provide performance-based online advertising services providing advertisers with pay by CPA (cost-per-action), which directly links advertising cost with performance. Our Internet advertising services network has integrated advertising resources from over 5,000 popular websites, making it the largest performance-based online advertising network in China.

As of December 31, 2006, over 4,000 advertisers purchased advertising time on our advertising networks. Our five largest advertising clients in terms of revenue, which include leading international and domestic brand name advertisers, were Dong Feng Auto (including joint venture brands with Toyota and Peugeot), China Mobile, Samsung, NEC and Motorola, which together accounted for approximately 10.1% of our revenue in 2006.

Since we commenced our current business operations in May 2003, we have experienced significant growth in our network and in our financial results. As of June 30, 2007, we operated our commercial location network directly in over fifty major cities throughout China, including Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou and Shenzhen. As of June 30, 2007, we covered approximately 40 additional cities through contractual arrangements with regional distributors. Between January 1, 2005 and June 30, 2007, the number of displays in our commercial location network increased from 15,415 to 89,687. As of June 30, 2007, our outdoor LED billboard network consisted of approximately 200 leased 5' x 5' digital billboards placed along curbsides in high-pedestrian traffic areas in Shanghai. We had installed over 161,435 advertising poster frames and our in-store network consisted of 41,322 flat-panel displays placed in 3,995 store locations in our directly operated cities, including 1,205 hypermarkets, 734 supermarkets and 2,056 convenience stores.

For the six months ended June 30, 2007, we recorded total revenues of $170.6 million and net income of $54.0 million as compared to total revenues of $83.3 million and net income of $26.1 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006. In 2006, we recorded total revenues of $211.9 million and net income of $83.2 million as compared to total revenues of $68.2 million and net income of $23.5 million in 2005.

Table of ContentsOur Strategies, Risks and Uncertainties

Our objective is to become the leading multi-platform digital media brand in China's advertising industry. We intend to achieve this objective by implementing the following strategies:

- Enhance our market position and revenues by expanding our networks;
- Identify and create new networks and advertising channels that target specific consumer demographics and expand network capacity;
- Promote our brand name and augment our service offerings to attract a wider client base and increase revenues; and
- Continue to explore new digital media opportunities to target segmented consumer groups.

See "Business — Strategies" for additional details on our strategies.

Our ability to realize our business objectives and execute our strategies is subject to risks and uncertainties, including the following:

- our ability to successfully integrate and manage our recently acquired entities, businesses and networks into our existing business;
- our limited operating history for our current operations and the short history of the out-of-home television advertising sector that make it difficult for you to evaluate the viability and prospects of our business;
- competition from present and future competitors in China's growing advertising market, particularly large multi-national advertisers that may now more readily compete in China;
- our limited ability to control and oversee the everyday business activities or regulatory compliance of our regional distributors; and
- the possibility that the PRC government could determine that our operating structure does not comply with PRC government restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry, which could potentially subject us to severe penalties.

See "Risk Factors" and other information included in this prospectus for a discussion of these and other risks.

Our Corporate History and Structure

We were incorporated on April 11, 2003 as an international business company formed under the laws of the British Virgin Islands, and changed our corporate domicile to the Cayman Islands on April 1, 2005. Our ADSs representing our ordinary shares have been quoted on the Nasdaq Global Market Inc. since our initial public offering on July 13, 2005. Due to PRC government restrictions that apply to foreign investment in China's advertising industry, our advertising business is currently conducted through contractual arrangements among us, our subsidiaries and our consolidated affiliated entities in China. Focus Media Advertisement, several of its subsidiaries and Shanghai New Focus Media Advertisement Co., Ltd., or New Focus Media Advertisement, Shanghai New Structure Advertisement Co., Ltd., or New Structure Advertisement, Shanghai Framedia Advertisement Development Co., Ltd., or Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Shiji Shenghuo Advertisement Co., Ltd., or Guangdong Framedia, Beijing Focus Media Wireless Co., Ltd., or Focus Media Wireless, and seven PRC entities affiliated with Allyes hold the requisite licenses to provide advertising services in China. Except for New Focus Media Advertisement, which is our indirect subsidiary, we refer to these companies collectively as our PRC operating affiliates. These contractual arrangements enable us to:

- exercise effective control over our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries;
- receive a substantial portion of the economic benefits from our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries; and

- have an exclusive option to purchase all or part of the equity interests in our PRC operating affiliates and all or part of the equity interests in Focus Media Advertisement's subsidiaries, as well as all or part of the assets of Focus Media Advertisement, in each case when and to the extent permitted by PRC law.

See "Our Corporate Structure" and "Related Party Transactions" for further information on our contractual arrangements with these parties.

Recent Developments

Audit Committee Investigation. As a result of an audit committee investigation prompted by allegations raised by the U.S. counsel representing an anonymous investor, we failed to timely file our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F. The unnamed investor, described as holding a short position in our ADSs at the time of the allegations in June 2007, alleged that: (a) Everease, a company previously run by our founder and CEO, Jason Jiang, is a related party as a result of ongoing ties between Everease and Mr. Jiang and members of Mr. Jiang's family; and (b) we made undisclosed rebate payments to a third-party advertising agency through Everease in order to inflate our reported financial performance. Our audit committee commenced an investigation of the allegations on June 28, 2007. It hired independent U.S. legal counsel and independent forensic accountants, who reviewed documents and interviewed witnesses. On September 25, 2007, the audit committee completed its investigation and discussed the results with our independent registered public accounting firm. Based upon its review of the evidence, the audit committee concluded that nothing had come to its attention — apart from the initial allegations that gave rise to the investigation — that would cause the audit committee to believe that we made undisclosed rebate payments to a third party advertising agency through Everease. We informed the investigators that we concluded that Everease is a related party based upon information developed during the investigation. See "Related Party Transactions" for further information on our contractual arrangements with Everease. On September 25, 2007, we filed our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F.

Appointment of Director. On September 28, 2007, we appointed David Ying Zhang as our independent director, bringing our total number of directors to nine and giving us a majority of independent directors on our board. See "Management".

Compliance with Nasdaq Listing Requirements. On October 4, 2007, we received a letter from Nasdaq Listing Qualifications notifying us that we had regained compliance with all Nasdaq listing qualifications by filing our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F.

Table of ContentsSUMMARY CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL AND OPERATING DATA

The following summary consolidated financial information has been derived from our consolidated financial statements. Our consolidated financial statements are prepared by including the financial statements of Focus Media Advertisement, formerly Aiqi Advertising, through May 2003 and our consolidated financial statements, which include the consolidation of Focus Media Advertisement, two entities operating Framedia, Focus Media Wireless and the entities that operate our Internet advertising services network as variable interest entities, thereafter, and are presented in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States, or U.S. GAAP. Our statements of operations for 2004, 2005 and 2006 and our balance sheets as of December 31, 2005 and 2006 are derived from those financial statements that have been included elsewhere in this prospectus. Our statement of operations for each of the six months ended June 30, 2006 and 2007 and balance sheet data as of June 30, 2006 and 2007 has been derived from our unaudited consolidated financial data which has been included elsewhere in this prospectus.

Our historical results for any prior or interim period are not necessarily indicative of results to be expected for a full fiscal year or for any future period. The summary consolidated financial information for the periods and as of the dates indicated should be read in conjunction with those statements and the accompanying notes and "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations".

Prior to May 2003, we were an advertising agency, the operations and services of which differ markedly from our current business. As an advertising agency, we assisted media companies in selling their advertising time or space to companies seeking to advertise in exchange for a commission. In May 2003, we ceased acting as an advertising agency and commenced our current business as an operator of an out-of-home advertising network, consisting first of our commercial location network. In April 2005, we commenced commercial operations of our in-store network and through our acquisition of Framedia, we commenced operation of our poster frame network on January 1, 2006. In February 2006, we acquired Target Media and in March 2006, we acquired Focus Media Wireless. In March 2007, we acquired Allies.

TARGET MEDIA AND ALLYES

The following unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information is derived from the historical financial statements of Focus Media Holding Limited, appearing elsewhere in this prospectus, after giving effects to the pro forma adjustments described in the notes thereto. Financial information with respect to the acquisitions is derived from the historical financial statements and management accounts of Target Media Holdings Limited, or Target Media and Allyes Information Technology Company Limited, or Allyes, appearing elsewhere in this prospectus.

The preparation of the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations appearing below is based on financial statements prepared in accordance with US GAAP. These principles require the use of estimates that affect the reported amounts of revenues and expenses. Actual results could differ from those estimates. The objective of the unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations is to provide information on the impact of the acquisitions of Target Media and Allyes. The acquired businesses have permitted us to expand our network of out-of-home consumers and to expand into the Internet advertising services business.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations for the year ended December 31, 2006 presents adjustments as if the acquisitions of Target Media and Allyes had been consummated on January 1, 2006. The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statement of operations for the six months ended June 30, 2007 presents adjustments as if the acquisition of Allyes had been consummated on January 1, 2007.

The following unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations should be read in conjunction with the historical consolidated financial statements, unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated statements of operations and the "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations" included elsewhere in this prospectus.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information presented in this prospectus includes all the adjustments, consisting of normal recurring adjustments, necessary for a fair presentation of the operating results in the historical periods. However, because such adjustments are based on estimates such as the estimated amortization period for the acquired intangible assets for Allyes, it is not intended to show how the consolidated companies would have actually performed if the events described above had in fact occurred on the dates assumed or to project the results of operations or financial position for any future date or period. In addition, the financial information of Target Media for the period between January 1, 2006 and February 28, 2006, and the financial information of Allyes for the period between January 1, 2007 and March 28, 2007, the respective dates of the acquisitions, have not been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm but is derived from management accounts. Accordingly, the financial information for the two-month period ended February 28, 2006 and the period from January 1, 2007 through March 28, 2007 of Target Media and Allyes, respectively, that has been used to calculate the pro forma financial information for the six-month and twelve-month periods ended June 30, 2007 and December 31, 2006, may differ significantly from any actual consolidated statements of operations had it been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm. See "Risk Factors — The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information included in this prospectus contains financial information that has not been audited or reviewed by an independent certified public accounting firm, and that is derived in part by estimates, and accordingly the pro forma financial information may differ significantly from the actual consolidated financial information".

The aggregate purchase price of $224.7 million of Allyes is comprised of the following:

	(In thousands of U.S. dollars)
Cash consideration	$ 70,000
Fair Value of ordinary shares issued	154,698
	$ 224,698

The fair value of the ordinary shares issued for purchase price allocation purposes was estimated using the closing market price for a reasonable period before and after the date of the announcement of the acquisition.

Preliminary purchase price allocation:

The valuation report utilizes and considers generally accepted valuation methodologies such as the income, market, cost and actual transaction of shares approach. We have incorporated certain assumptions which include projected cash flows and replacement costs.

Additional payment of up to 9,662,458 ordinary shares may be made contingent upon Allyes attaining certain earning target in 12–months period ended March 28, 2008.

The amortization expense for Allyes of $4,879,893 and $1,219,973 for the year ended December 31, 2006 and three months ended March 28, 2007, respectively have been estimated based on a valuation report provided by a third–party valuation firm.

Table of ContentsRISK FACTORS

You should consider carefully all of the information in this prospectus, including the risks and uncertainties described below, before making an investment in our ADSs. Any of the following risks could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operations. In any such case, the market price of our ADSs could decline, and you may lose all or part of your investment.

Risks Relating to Our Business and Industry

Our failure to timely file our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F as a result of allegations raised by an anonymous investor holding a short position in our ADSs may subject us to shareholder litigation, which may materially and adversely affect our business.

As a result of the audit committee investigation of allegations raised by attorneys representing an anonymous investor, we failed to timely file our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F. The unnamed investor, described as currently holding a short position in our ADSs, alleged that: (a) Everease, a company previously run by our founder and CEO, Jason Jiang, is a related party as a result of ongoing ties between Everease and Mr. Jiang and members of Mr. Jiang's family; and (b) we were making undisclosed rebate payments to a third-party advertising agency through Everease in order to inflate our reported financial performance.

Our audit committee commenced its investigation of the allegations on June 28, 2007. It hired independent U.S. legal counsel and independent forensic accountants, who reviewed documents and interviewed witnesses.

On September 25, 2007, our audit committee completed its previously disclosed investigation into allegations made by U.S. counsel to an investor described as holding a short position in our stock. The results of the investigation have been discussed with our independent registered public accounting firm. Based upon its review of the evidence, the audit committee concluded that nothing had come to its attention — apart from the initial allegations that gave rise to the investigation — that would cause the audit committee to believe that we made undisclosed rebate payments to a third party advertising agency through another advertising agency, namely, Everease. We have informed the investigators that we have concluded that Everease is a related party based upon information developed during the investigation. Based upon its review of the evidence, the audit committee concurs with our conclusion that Everease should be deemed a related party. For detailed descriptions of our related party transactions with Everease, see "Related Party Transactions — Transactions with Everease; — Other Related Party Transactions — Loan from Relative of Jason Nanchun Jiang." On September 25, 2007, we filed our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F.

Our failure to timely file our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F as a result of the allegations subjected us to delisting review by the Nasdaq Listing Qualifications Panel. We received a Nasdaq Staff Determination letter on July 10, 2007 that we were not in compliance with the filing requirement for continued listing as set forth in Nasdaq Marketplace Rule 4320(e)(12). On October 4, 2007, we received a letter from Nasdaq Listing Qualifications notifying us that we had regained compliance with all Nasdaq listing qualifications by filing our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F.

In addition, as a result of these allegations, we may be subject to shareholder litigation, which may divert the attention of our management and force us to expend resources to defend against such claims. Any litigation may have a material and adverse effect on our business and future results of operations.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information included in this prospectus contains financial information that has not been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm and that is derived in part by estimates, and accordingly the pro forma financial information may differ significantly from the actual consolidated financial information.

The unaudited pro forma condensed consolidated financial information presented in this prospectus includes all the adjustments, consisting of normal recurring adjustments, necessary for a fair presentation of the operating results in the historical periods. However, because such adjustments are based on estimates such as the estimated amortization period for the acquired intangible assets for Target Media and Allies, it is not intended to show how the consolidated companies would have actually performed if the events described above had in fact occurred on the dates assumed or to project the results of operations or financial position for any future date or period.

In addition, the financial information of Target Media for the period between January 1, 2006 and February 28, 2006 (date of acquisition) and Allyes for the period between January 1, 2007 and March 28, 2007 (date of acquisition) has not been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm but is derived from management accounts. Accordingly, the financial information of Target Media and Allyes for that period, including the statements of operations relating to Target Media and Allyes, that has been used to calculate the pro forma financial information as of and for the year ended December 31, 2006 and six-month period ended June 30, 2007 may differ significantly from any actual consolidated financial information had it been audited or reviewed by an independent registered public accounting firm. See "Consolidated Pro Forma Financial Data of Focus Media, Target Media and Allyes".

We have a limited operating history, which may make it difficult for you to evaluate our business and prospects.

We began operations of our commercial location network in May 2003. In addition, we have operated our in-store network since April 2005 and acquired and began to operate our poster frame network from January 2006 under the brand name "Framedia". In March 2006, September 2006 and March 2007, respectively, we added a mobile handset advertising network, an outdoor LED billboard advertising network, a movie theater advertising network and an Internet advertising services network to our business. Accordingly, we have a very limited operating history for our current operations upon which you can evaluate the viability and sustainability of our business and its acceptance by advertisers and consumers. It is also difficult to evaluate the viability of our use of audiovisual advertising displays in commercial buildings, hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores and other out-of-home commercial locations and our use of advertising poster frames in residential complexes, SMS-, MMS- and WAP-based mobile handset advertising and Internet advertising services as a business model because we do not have sufficient experience to address the risks frequently encountered by early stage companies using new forms of advertising media and entering new and rapidly evolving markets. These circumstances may make it difficult for you to evaluate our business and prospects.

We derive a substantial majority of our revenues from the provision of advertising services, and advertising is particularly sensitive to changes in economic conditions and advertising trends.

Demand for advertising time slots and advertising frame space on our networks, and the resulting advertising spending by our clients, is particularly sensitive to changes in general economic conditions and advertising spending typically decreases during periods of economic downturn. Advertisers may reduce the money they spend to advertise on our networks for a number of reasons, including:

- a general decline in economic conditions;
- a decline in economic conditions in the particular cities where we conduct business;
- a decision to shift advertising expenditures to other available advertising media; or
- a decline in advertising spending in general.

A decrease in demand for advertising media in general and for our advertising services in particular would materially and adversely affect our ability to generate revenue from our advertising services, and our financial condition and results of operations.

Our quarterly operating results are difficult to predict and may fluctuate significantly from period to period in the future.

Our quarterly operating results are difficult to predict and may fluctuate significantly from period to period based on the seasonality of consumer spending and corresponding advertising trends in China. In addition, advertising spending generally tends to decrease during January and February each year due to the Chinese Lunar New Year holiday. We also experience a slight decrease in revenues during the hot summer months of July and

August each year, when there is a relative slowdown in overall commercial activity in urban areas in China. As a result, you may not be able to rely on period to period comparisons of our operating results as an indication of our future performance. Factors that are likely to cause our operating results to fluctuate, such as the seasonality of advertising spending in China, a deterioration of economic conditions in China and potential changes to the regulation of the advertising, Internet and wireless communications industries in China, are discussed elsewhere in this prospectus. If our revenues for a particular quarter are lower than we expect, we may be unable to reduce our operating expenses for that quarter by a corresponding amount, which would harm our operating results for that quarter relative to our operating results from other quarters.

Our failure to maintain existing relationships or obtain new relationships with businesses that allow us to access to desirable locations and platforms on which we operate our network could harm or reverse our growth potential and our ability to increase our revenues.

Our ability to generate revenues from advertising sales depends largely upon our ability to provide large networks of flat-panel displays placed in desirable building, commercial and store locations, of advertising poster frames placed in residential complexes, to secure desirable locations of large outdoor LED digital billboards, throughout major urban areas in China and access to wireless communications and Internet service providers. We also depend on the ability of our third-party location provider to secure desirable LED digital billboard locations for our outdoor LED network. This, in turn, requires that we develop and maintain business relationships with real estate developers, landlords, property managers, hypermarkets, retailers and other businesses and locations in which we rent space for our displays and digital billboards, and wireless communications network and Internet service providers and websites. Although a majority of our display placement agreements and advertising frame placement agreements have terms ranging from three to five years and two to three years, respectively, and upon expiration give us the right to renew the agreement on terms no less favorable than those offered by competing bidders, we may not be able to maintain our relationships with them on satisfactory terms, or at all. If we fail to maintain our relationships with landlords and property managers, or if a significant number of our existing display or advertising frame placement agreements are terminated or not renewed or if we fail to maintain our relationship with our location provider of LED billboard space, advertisers may find advertising on our networks unattractive and may not wish to purchase advertising time slots or advertising frame space on our networks, which would cause our revenues to decline and our business and prospects to deteriorate. Moreover, if we are unable to maintain relationships with wireless communications network operators and Internet service providers, we would be unable to maintain our mobile handset advertising and Internet advertising services networks.

Under some of our display placement agreements in Guangzhou, Shenzhen, Dalian and Chongqing, the property manager has the right to terminate the agreement if landlords or tenants in the building lodge complaints about our flat-panel displays. In addition, some of our display placement agreements in other cities allow the property manager to terminate the agreement if we fail to keep each flat-panel display operational for a minimum amount of time each year. If these tenants complain about our displays, or if the property manager claims we have failed to keep the flat-panel displays operational for the stipulated number of days each year, we may be required to remove our panels from these commercial locations.

In accordance with PRC real estate laws and regulations, prior consent of landlords and property managers is required for any commercial use of the public areas or facilities of residential properties. With regard to our network of advertising poster frames and some of our flat-panel displays placed in the elevators and public areas of residential complexes, we have entered into frame or display placement agreements with property managers and landlords. For those frame or display placement agreements entered into with property managers, we intend to obtain or urge property managers to obtain consents from landlords. However, if the landlords of a residential complex object to our placing advertising poster frames or flat-panel displays in the elevators and public areas of the complex, we may be required to remove our advertising poster frames or flat-panel displays from the complex and may be subject to fines. We may not be able to successfully expand our out-of-home advertising network into new regions or diversify our network into new advertising networks or media platforms, which could harm or reverse our growth potential and our ability to increase our revenues.

If we are unable to obtain or retain desirable placement locations for our flat-panel displays, advertising poster frames and outdoor LED billboards on commercially advantageous terms or if the supply of desirable locations diminishes or ceases to expand, we could have difficulty in maintaining or expanding our network, our operating margins and earnings could decrease and our results of operations could be materially and adversely affected.

Our location costs, which include lease payments to landlords and property managers under our display placement agreements, maintenance and monitoring fees and other associated costs, comprise a significant portion of our cost of revenues. In 2005, our location costs accounted for 61.7% of our cost of revenues and 24.0% of our total revenues, respectively. In 2006, our location costs accounted for 66.2% of our cost of revenues and 24.3% of our total revenues, respectively. For the six months ended June 30, 2007, our location costs accounted for 73.7% of our cost of revenues and 33.3% of our total revenues, respectively. In the future, we may need to increase our expenditures on our display and frame placement agreements to obtain new and desirable locations, to renew existing locations, and to secure favorable exclusivity and renewal terms. In addition, lessors of space for our flat-panel displays, advertising poster frames and LED billboards may charge increasingly higher display location lease fees, or demand other compensation arrangements, such as profit sharing. If we are unable to pass increased location costs on to our advertising clients through rate increases, our operating margins and earnings could decrease and our results of operations could be materially and adversely affected.

In addition, in more developed cities, it may be difficult to increase the number of desirable locations in our network because most such locations have already been occupied either by us or by our competitors, or in the case of outdoor LED billboards, because the placement of outdoor installments may be limited by municipal zoning and planning policies. In recently developing cities, the supply of desirable locations may be small and the pace of economic development and construction levels may not provide a steadily increasing supply of desirable commercial and residential locations. If, as a result of these possibilities, we are unable to increase the placement of our out-of-home television and poster frame advertising networks into commercial and residential locations that advertisers find desirable, we may be unable to expand our client base, sell advertising time slots and poster frame space on our network or increase the rates we charge for time slots and poster frame space, which could decrease the value of our network to advertisers.

If we are unable to attract advertisers to advertise on our networks, we will be unable to maintain or increase our advertising fees and the demand for time on our networks, which could negatively affect our ability to grow revenues.

The amounts of fees we can charge advertisers for time slots on our out-of-home television networks depend on the size and quality of our out-of-home television networks and the demand by advertisers for advertising time on our out-of-home television networks. Advertisers choose to advertise on our out-of-home television networks in part based on the size of the networks and the desirability of the locations where we have placed our flat-panel displays and where we lease LED digital billboards as well as the quality of the services we offer. If we fail to maintain or increase the number of locations, displays and billboards in our networks, diversify advertising channels in our networks, or solidify our brand name and reputation as a quality provider of advertising services, advertisers may be unwilling to purchase time on our networks or to pay the levels of advertising fees we require to remain profitable.

In addition, the fees we can charge advertisers for frame space on our poster frame network depends on the quality of the locations in which we place advertising poster frames, demand by advertisers for frame space and the quality of our service. If we are unable to continue to secure the most desirable residential locations for deployment of our advertising poster frames, we may be unable to attract advertisers to purchase frame space on our poster frame network.

Our failure to attract advertisers to purchase time slots and frame space on our networks will reduce demand for time slots and frame space on our networks and the number of time slots and amount of frame space we are able to sell, which could necessitate lowering the fees we charge for advertising time on our network and could negatively affect our ability to increase revenues in the future.

Our acquisitions of Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL, Allyes and any future acquisitions may expose us to potential risks and have an adverse effect on our ability to manage our business.

Selective acquisitions, such as our recent acquisitions of Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL and Allyes, form part of our strategy to further expand our business. If we are presented with appropriate opportunities, we may acquire additional businesses, services or products that are complementary to our core business. Our integration of the acquired entities into our business may not be successful and may not enable us to expand into new advertising platforms as well as we expect. This would significantly affect the expected benefits of these acquisitions. Moreover, the integration of Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless and Allyes into our operations has required, and will continue to require, significant attention from our management. Future acquisitions will also likely present similar challenges.

The diversion of our management's attention and any difficulties encountered in any integration process could have an adverse effect on our ability to manage our business. In addition, we may face challenges trying to integrate new operations, services and personnel with our existing operations. Our recent acquisitions and possible future acquisitions may also expose us to other potential risks, including risks associated with unforeseen or hidden liabilities, the diversion of resources from our existing businesses and technologies, our inability to generate sufficient revenue to offset the costs, expenses of acquisitions and potential loss of, or harm to, relationships with employees and advertising clients as a result of our integration of new businesses and new regulations governing cross-border investment by PRC residents. In addition, we cannot assure you that we will be able to realize the benefits we anticipate from acquiring Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL, Allyes and other companies, or that we will not incur costs, including those relating to intangibles or goodwill, in excess of our projected costs for these transactions. The occurrence of any of these events could have a material and adverse effect on our ability to manage our business, our financial condition and our results of operations.

There may be unknown risks inherent in our acquisitions of Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL and Allyes, which could result in a material adverse effect on our business.

Although we have conducted due diligence with respect to the major acquisitions we have undertaken and undertake, we may not be aware of all of the risks associated with the targets of such acquisitions including Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL and Allyes. Any discovery of adverse information concerning Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL or Allyes since we acquired these entities could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition and results of operations. While we are entitled to seek indemnification in certain circumstances, successfully asserting indemnification or enforcing such indemnification could be costly and time consuming or may not be successful at all.

Our recent entry into mobile handset advertising and Internet advertising services through our acquisitions of Focus Media Wireless and Allyes, respectively, may expose us to risks associated with operating in the telecommunications and Internet industries in China which could materially affect our financial condition or results of operation.

In March 2006, we completed our acquisition of Focus Media Wireless, which operates a mobile handset advertising service over China Mobile's and China Unicom's mobile telecommunications networks. As a result, we now operate a portion of our advertising network on mobile telecommunications networks and are subject to risks associated with operations in the telecommunications sector in China. In addition, in March 2007, we acquired Allyes, which operates an Internet advertising agency and service technology business. Our operation of the business of Allyes subjects us to risks associated with operations in the Internet sector in China. These potential risks include:

- loss or deterioration of our relationship with China Mobile or China Unicom, the two primary mobile telecommunications operators in China that currently provide wireless value-added services to mobile phone users;
- loss or deterioration of our relationship with Internet service providers who use our mobile handset advertisement platform;

- failure to reach traditional advertisers and to take advantage of marketing networks through our existing business;
- changes in operating policies or guidelines by mobile telecommunications operators applicable to all wireless value-added service providers using their platforms or which restrict content supplied by others to us;
- regulation of the telecommunications sector in China that could impose burdensome approval or licensing requirements on value-added service providers such as advertising companies that sell advertising time on mobile telecommunications networks;
- a decision by either or both China Mobile and China Unicom to directly enter into the mobile handset advertising business;
- consumer dissatisfaction with, or any related regulations restricting, the use or “pushing” of unsolicited advertisements, commonly known as “spam”;
- the performance and reliability of the Internet infrastructure and mobile telecommunications network;
- changes in technology in the Internet and mobile telecommunications industries; and
- the continued growth of the Internet, e-commerce industries and wireless value-added services.

As a result of any such change or event, the operation of our advertising network using the mobile telecommunications networks of the mobile telecommunications operators in China may be disrupted, which could in turn lower our advertising revenues or result in higher operating costs to us, and we cannot assure you that our financial condition and results of operation would not be materially adversely affected.

In addition, under PRC law, the services offered by Focus Media Wireless may be deemed value-added telecommunication services, which requires an operation permit that has a valid period of five years. Focus Media Wireless has been granted the operation permit for its wireless advertising operations. If the permit is revoked or if we are unable to renew the operation permit upon expiration, we will be required to suspend our services relating to our mobile handset advertising network, and our advertising service revenue derived from this portion of our network would be adversely affected.

One or more of our regional distributors could engage in activities that are harmful to our reputation in the industry and to our business.

As of June 30, 2007, we covered approximately 40 out of the approximately 90 cities where we provide our commercial location network through contractual arrangements with regional distributors. Under these arrangements, we provide our business model and operating expertise to local advertising companies in exchange for their acting as regional distributors of our advertising services. We also sell our flat-panel displays to our regional distributors, who are responsible for developing and maintaining an advertising network in office buildings and other commercial locations in the city where they operate. We also grant our regional distributors the right to use our “Focus Media” brand name and logo. However, our contractual arrangements with our regional distributors do not provide us with control or oversight over their everyday business activities, and one or more of our regional distributors may engage in activities that violate PRC laws and regulations governing the advertising industry and advertising content, or other PRC laws and regulations generally. Some of our regional distributors may not possess all the licenses required to operate an advertising business, or may fail to maintain the licenses they currently hold, which could result in local regulators suspending the operations of the network in those cities. In addition, we do not independently review the advertising content that our regional distributors display on the portion of our commercial location network that they operate independently, and our regional distributors may include advertising content on their part of the commercial location network and violate PRC advertising laws or regulations or expose them and us to lawsuits or result in the revocation of their business license. If any of these events occurs, it could harm our reputation in the industry.

Failure to manage our growth could strain our management, operational and other resources and we may not be able to achieve anticipated levels of growth in the new networks and media platforms we are beginning to operate, either of which could materially and adversely affect our business and growth potential.

We have been rapidly expanding, and plan to continue to rapidly expand, our operations in China. We must continue to expand our operations to meet the demands of advertisers for larger and more diverse network coverage and the demands of current and future landlords and property managers for installing and configuring flat-panel displays, advertising poster frames and outdoor LED billboards in our existing and future commercial, store, residential and curbside locations. This expansion has resulted, and will continue to result, in substantial demands on our management resources. It has also increased our need for a reliable supply of equipment, particularly flat-panel displays and large LED digital billboards for our out-of-home television networks which are manufactured by a few third-party contract assemblers according to our specifications. To manage our growth, we must develop and improve our existing administrative and operational systems and, our financial and management controls and further expand, train and manage our work force. As we continue this effort, we may incur substantial costs and expend substantial resources in connection with any such expansion due to, among other things, different technology standards, legal considerations and cultural differences. We may not be able to manage our current or future international operations effectively and efficiently or compete effectively in such markets. We cannot assure you that we will be able to efficiently or effectively manage the growth of our operations, recruit top talent and train our personnel. Any failure to efficiently manage our expansion may materially and adversely affect our business and future growth.

As we continue to expand into new networks and new media platforms, we expect the percentage of revenues derived from our commercial location network to decline. However, the new advertising networks and media platforms we pursue may not present the same opportunities for growth that we have experienced with our commercial location network and, accordingly, we cannot assure you that the level of growth of our networks will not decline over time. Moreover, we expect the level of growth of our commercial location network to decrease as many of the more desirable locations have already been leased by us or our competitors.

If advertisers or the viewing public do not accept, or lose interest in, our out-of-home advertising network, our revenues may be negatively affected and our business may not expand or be successful.

The market for out-of-home advertising networks in China is relatively new and its potential is uncertain. We compete for advertising spending with many forms of more established advertising media. Our success depends on the acceptance of our out-of-home advertising network by advertisers and their continuing interest in these mediums as components of their advertising strategies. Our success also depends on the viewing public continuing to be receptive towards our advertising network. Advertisers may elect not to use our services if they believe that consumers are not receptive to our networks or that our networks do not provide sufficient value as effective advertising mediums. Likewise, if consumers find some element of our networks, such as the audio feature of our commercial location, in-store and outdoor LED billboard networks, to be disruptive or intrusive, commercial locations and stores may decide not to place our flat-panel displays in their properties and advertisers may view our advertising network as a less attractive advertising medium compared to other alternatives. In that event, advertisers may determine to reduce their spending on our advertising network. If a substantial number of advertisers lose interest in advertising on our advertising network for these or other reasons, we will be unable to generate sufficient revenues and cash flow to operate our business, and our advertising service revenue, liquidity and results of operations could be negatively affected.

If the Internet and, in particular, Internet marketing are not broadly adopted in China, our ability to generate revenue and sustain profitability from Allyes could be materially and adversely affected.

Our future revenues and profits from our online advertising agency business we operate through Allyes are dependent in part upon advertisers in China increasingly accepting the use of the Internet as a marketing channel, which is at an early stage in China. Penetration rates for personal computers, the Internet and broadband in China are all relatively low compared to those in more developed countries. Furthermore, many Chinese Internet users are not accustomed to using the Internet for e-commerce or as a medium for other transactions. Many of our current and potential clients have limited experience with the Internet as a marketing channel, and have not historically devoted a significant portion of their marketing budgets to Internet marketing and promotion. As a result, they may not consider the Internet as effective in promoting their products and services as traditional print and broadcast media.

The growth of our online advertising agency business is substantially dependent on the acceptance of the cost-per-thousand-impressions, or CPM Internet advertising sales model, and certain performance-based Internet advertising sales models, including CPC and CPA models, by industry participants in China.

The most prevalent Internet advertising sales model in China currently is cost-per-day, whereby web publishers are paid based on the number of days an Internet ad is on display without regard to the ad's effectiveness or the number of times the ad is displayed. We believe that the full advantages of Internet marketing in general and our Internet marketing solutions specifically can only be fully realized when more sophisticated Internet advertising sales models such as cost-per-thousand-impressions, or CPM, cost-per-click, or CPC, and cost-per-action, or CPA, are used to purchase ad space. If CPM, CPC and CPA fail to gain acceptance in China, our Internet marketing solutions will be less attractive to industry participants, and the market for those solutions may develop more slowly than we expect or even decline, which would materially and adversely affect our prospects and our business. In addition, if industry participants in China favor other newly-developed Internet advertising sales models incompatible with CPM, CPC or CPA, sales of our Internet marketing solutions may suffer and our revenue and profitability may be materially and adversely affected.

If the delivery of ads or the use of cookies is limited or blocked, our ability to update and expand our user data would be hindered and demand for our Internet marketing solutions could decline.

Our business may be adversely affected by practices and technologies that impair or undermine the performance of our Internet marketing solutions. For example, Internet users may use software designed to filter or prevent the delivery of Internet ads, including pop-up and pop-under ads; block, disable or remove cookies used by our Internet marketing technologies; or misrepresent measurements of advertising effectiveness. In particular, because we rely on cookies to obtain data about Internet users for our database of user information, widespread usage of software in China that disables or removes cookies would limit our ability to update and expand our user information and hinder our ability to provide effective targeted Internet marketing solutions to our clients. We cannot assure you that the proportion of Internet users who employ these or other similar technologies will not increase, thereby diminishing the efficiency of our Internet marketing solutions and causing demand for those solutions to decline.

Our role through Allyes as a supplier of ad space may harm our reputation as an independent purchasing agent and the reputation of our performance-based advertising network as a marketplace for ad space.

We currently participate in both the purchase and supply of Internet ad space through our online advertising agency business. We also facilitate purchases by our clients of ad space on our performance-based advertising network and may act as sales representative to other web publishers in the future. In addition, we supply ad space that we purchase from web publishers on our performance-based advertising network from time to time to advertisers. Our role as a supplier of ad space might harm both our reputation as an independent purchasing agent and the reputation of our performance-based advertising network as a marketplace for ad space. If our reputation as an independent purchasing agent or the reputation of our performance-based advertising network is harmed, our clients may not purchase ad space from us and our business, financial condition and results of operations could be materially and adversely affected.

Our Internet advertising business could be materially and adversely affected if we are unable to introduce new or enhanced Internet marketing services and technologies that meet our clients' requirements.

Our future success depends in part upon our ability to enhance and integrate our existing Internet marketing services and technologies that we provide through Allyes and to introduce new, competitively priced services and technologies with features that meet evolving client requirements, all in a timely and cost-effective manner. A number of factors, including the following, could have a negative impact on the success of our services and technologies:

- our failure to anticipate changes in clients' requirements;
- our competitors' introduction of new services and technologies ahead of our new services and technologies, or their introduction of superior or cheaper services and technologies;
- our failure to adapt to Internet advertising technology trends and evolving industry standards; and
- delays or difficulties in technology integration, customization or development.

The business and prospects of our online advertising agency business could be harmed if "click-through" fraud is not detected.

We are exposed to the risk of fraudulent clicks on ads posted on the performance-based advertising network of Allyes by individuals seeking to increase the advertising fees paid to our web publishers. We may in the future have to refund revenue that our advertisers have paid to us and that was later attributed to click-through fraud. Click-through fraud occurs when an individual clicks on an ad displayed on a website for the sole intent of generating the revenue share payment to the publisher rather than to view the underlying content. From time to time we have experienced fraudulent clicks on the performance-based advertising network of Allyes and we do not allow our advertisers to be charged for such fraudulent clicks. This negatively affects the profitability of our online advertising agency business, and this type of fraudulent act could hurt our brand. If fraudulent clicks are not detected, the affected advertisers may experience a reduced return on their investment in our performance-based advertising network, which could lead the advertisers to become dissatisfied with our online advertising agency business, and in turn lead to loss of advertisers and the related revenue. Furthermore, fraudulent clicks directed at our performance-based advertising network or at other performance-based advertising platforms might encourage the perception among advertisers in China that performance-based sales models like CPC and CPA are not effective, which could slow or even reverse the development of those sales models in China. This could adversely affect our business and our prospects.

System failures could significantly disrupt the operations of our online advertising agency business, which would cause us to lose clients or ad inventory.

Our ability to successfully provide clients with Internet marketing services and our performance-based advertising network, and our ability to access user information depends on the continuing and uninterrupted performance of our systems. Sustained or repeated system failures that interrupt our ability to provide services to clients, including failures affecting our ability to deliver ads quickly and accurately and to access our user information base to provide targeted solutions, would reduce significantly the attractiveness of our services to advertisers and web publishers. Our online advertising agency business could be materially and adversely affected by any damage or failure that impacts data integrity or interrupts or delays our operations. Our computer systems are vulnerable to damage from a variety of sources, including telecommunications failures, power outages, malicious or accidental human acts, and natural disasters. Moreover, despite network security measures, our servers are potentially vulnerable to physical or electronic break-ins, computer viruses and similar disruptive problems in part because we cannot control the maintenance and operation of our third-party data centers. Despite the precautions taken, unanticipated problems affecting our systems could cause interruptions in the delivery of our solutions in the future and our ability to provide a record of past transactions. Our data centers and systems incorporate varying degrees of redundancy. All data centers and systems may not automatically switch over to their redundant counterpart. We carry no business insurance policies to compensate us for losses that could occur due to any failures in our systems.

If our Internet marketing technologies contain design or performance defects, our reputation and business may be harmed and we may need to expend significant resources to address liability.

Technologies as complex as ours may contain design and/or performance defects which are not detectable even after extensive internal testing. Such defects may become apparent only after widespread commercial use. Any design or performance defects in our Internet marketing technologies could have a material and adverse effect on our reputation and business. It is not clear whether China's existing product liability laws apply to technology products like ours. We cannot assure you that if our Internet marketing technologies are found to have design or performance defects, we will not be liable for product liability claims in China. We do not carry any product liability insurance. Our contracts with our clients currently do not contain provisions to completely limit our exposure to liabilities resulting from product liability claims. Although we have not experienced any product liability claims to date, we cannot assure you that we will not do so in the future.

Additionally, we rely on our Internet marketing technologies (particularly our ad serving technology) to enhance our Internet marketing services and our performance-based advertising network. Any defect in those technologies could hinder the effectiveness of our Internet marketing services and our performance-based advertising network, which would have a material and adverse effect on our competitiveness, business and future prospects.

We may be liable for content that we serve onto web publishers' websites, which could increase our expenses.

We purchase ad space and then serve our clients' ads into that ad space. We are liable under PRC law to ensure that the content of the ads that we serve are fair and accurate and are in full compliance with applicable law. Additionally, we may be liable to third-parties for content in our clients' ads that we serve on web publishers' websites or deliver through our performance-based advertising network if those ads contain artwork, text or other content that violates third-parties' copyrights, trademarks, or other intellectual property rights or if the content is defamatory. We typically indemnify web publishers against liability arising from the content or nature of ads that we serve on their websites. Any claims or counterclaims against us could harm our reputation, be time-consuming, could result in costly litigation and could divert management's attention.

The successful operation of our business depends upon the performance and reliability of the Internet infrastructure and fixed telecommunications networks in China.

Our business depends on the performance and reliability of the Internet infrastructure in China. Almost all access to the Internet is maintained through state-owned telecommunication operators under the administrative control and regulatory supervision of the Ministry of Information Industry of China. In addition, the national networks in China are connected to the Internet through international gateways controlled by the PRC government. These international gateways are the only channels through which a domestic user can connect to the Internet. We cannot assure you that a more sophisticated Internet infrastructure will be developed in China. We or our clients may not have access to alternative networks in the event of disruptions, failures or other problems with China's Internet infrastructure. In addition, the Internet infrastructure in China may not support the demands associated with our growth strategies. For example, we intend to expand our sales of rich media technologies, which are bandwidth-intensive. Limited bandwidth in China may hamper the effectiveness of our rich media technologies, which could harm our prospects and business and require us to purchase additional servers in our content distribution network.

We depend on the leadership and services of Jason Nanchun Jiang, who is our founder, chairman, chief executive officer and our largest shareholder, and our business and growth prospects may be severely disrupted if we lose his services.

Our future success is dependent upon the continued service of Jason Nanchun Jiang, our founder, chairman and chief executive officer and our largest shareholder. We rely on his industry expertise and experience in our business operations, and in particular, his business vision, management skills, and working relationships with our employees, our other major shareholders, many of our clients and landlords and property managers of the locations in our network. We do not maintain key-man life insurance for Mr. Jiang. If he was unable or unwilling to continue in his present position, or if he joined a competitor or formed a competing company in violation of his employment agreement and noncompetition agreement, we may not be able to replace him easily or at all. As a result, our business and growth prospects may be severely disrupted if we lose his services.

We may need additional capital and we may not be able to obtain it, which could adversely affect our liquidity and financial position.

We believe that our current cash and cash equivalents and cash flow from operations will be sufficient to meet our anticipated cash needs including for working capital and capital expenditures, for the foreseeable future. We may, however, require additional cash resources due to changed business conditions or other future developments. If these sources are insufficient to satisfy our cash requirements, we may seek to sell additional equity or debt securities or obtain a credit facility. The sale of convertible debt securities or additional equity securities, could result in additional dilution to our shareholders. The incurrence of indebtedness would result in increased debt service obligations and could result in operating and financing covenants that would restrict our operations and liquidity.

Our ability to obtain additional capital on acceptable terms is subject to a variety of uncertainties, including:

- investors' perception of, and demand for, securities of alternative advertising media companies;
- conditions of the U.S. and other capital markets in which we may seek to raise funds;
- our future results of operations, financial condition and cash flows;
- PRC governmental regulation of foreign investment in advertising services companies in China;
- economic, political and other conditions in China; and
- PRC governmental policies relating to foreign currency borrowings.

We cannot assure you that financing will be available in amounts or on terms acceptable to us, if at all. Any failure by us to raise additional funds on terms favorable to us could have a material adverse effect on our liquidity and financial condition.

If we are unable to adapt to changing advertising trends and the technology needs of advertisers and consumers, we will not be able to compete effectively and we will be unable to increase or maintain our revenues which may materially and adversely affect our business prospects and revenues.

The market for out-of-home advertising requires us to continuously identify new advertising trends and the technology needs of advertisers and consumers, which may require us to develop new features and enhancements for our advertising network. The majority of our displays use 17-inch LCD screens. We also have a growing number of displays that use larger LCD and plasma screens as well as large size LED digital billboards. Portions of our poster frame network are being upgraded to use digital poster LCD displays. Through our recent acquisition of Focus Media Wireless, we now also provide advertising services to mobile phone users over the mobile phone networks of China Mobile and China Unicom, while Allyes provides online advertising services to advertising customers. In the future, subject to relevant PRC laws and regulations, we may use other technology, such as cable or broadband networking, advanced audio technologies and high-definition panel technology. We may be required to incur development and acquisition costs in order to keep pace with new technology needs but we may not have the financial resources necessary to fund and implement future technological innovations or to replace obsolete technology. Furthermore, we may fail to respond to these changing technology needs. For example, if the use of wireless or broadband networking capabilities on our advertising network becomes a commercially viable alternative and meets all applicable PRC legal and regulatory requirements, and we fail to implement such changes on our commercial location network and in-store network or fail to do so in a timely manner, our competitors or future entrants into the market who do take advantage of such initiatives could gain a competitive advantage over us. If we cannot succeed in developing and introducing new features on a timely and cost-effective basis, advertiser demand for our advertising networks may decrease and we may not be able to compete effectively or attract advertising clients, which would have a material and adverse effect on our business prospects and revenues.

We may be subject to, and may expend significant resources in defending against, government actions and civil suits based on the content and services we provide through our digital out-of-home advertising networks mobile handset advertising network or Internet advertising services network.

PRC advertising laws and regulations require advertisers, advertising operators and advertising distributors, including businesses such as ours, to ensure that the content of the advertisements they prepare or distribute are fair and accurate and are in full compliance with applicable law. Violation of these laws or regulations may result in penalties, including fines, confiscation of advertising fees, orders to cease dissemination of the advertisements and orders to publish an advertisement correcting the misleading information. In circumstances involving serious violations, the PRC government may revoke a violator's license for advertising business operations.

As an out-of-home advertising service provider, we are obligated under PRC laws and regulations to monitor the advertising content that is shown on our out-of-home advertising networks for compliance with applicable law. In addition, each of our regional distributors is obligated under PRC laws and regulations to monitor the advertising content shown on the portion of our out-of-home television advertising network each of them operates. In general, the advertisements shown on our out-of-home television advertising network and the portion of our advertising network operated by our regional distributors have previously been broadcast over public television networks and have been subjected to internal review and verification of such networks. We and our regional distributors are still separately required to independently review and verify these advertisements for content compliance before displaying the advertisements. In addition, where a special government review is required for specific product advertisements before broadcasting, we and our regional distributors are separately obligated to confirm that such review has been performed and approval has been obtained. We employ, and our regional distributors are required under the terms of our agreements with them to employ, qualified advertising inspectors who are trained to review advertising content for compliance with relevant PRC laws and regulations. In addition, for advertising content related to specific types of products and services, such as alcohol, cosmetics, pharmaceuticals and medical procedures, we and our distributors are required to confirm that the advertisers have obtained requisite government approvals including the advertiser's operating qualifications, proof of quality inspection of the advertised products, government pre-approval of the contents of the advertisement and filing with the local authorities. We endeavor to comply, and encourage our regional distributors to take measures to comply, with such requirements, including by requesting relevant documents from the advertisers. Starting in January 2006, we began to operate a network of advertising poster frames placed primarily in elevators and public areas of residential complexes. The advertisements shown on our poster frame network are defined as print advertisements under PRC laws and regulations and are also subject to the same legal requirements as advertisements shown on our out-of-home television advertising networks. Outdoor advertisements must be registered with the local branch of the State Administration for Industry and Commerce, or SAIC, before dissemination, and advertising distributors are required to submit a registration application form and the content of the advertisement to the local SAIC and receive an advertising registration certificate from the local SAIC. Our reputation will be tarnished and our results of operations may be adversely affected if advertisement shown on our out-of-home television advertising networks, poster frame network or outdoor LED network is provided to us by our advertising clients in violation of relevant PRC advertising laws and regulations or that the supporting documentation and government approvals provided to us by our advertising clients in connection with such advertising content are not complete or that the advertisements that our regional distributors have procured for broadcasting on our network have not received required approval from the relevant local supervisory bodies or are not content compliant.

In addition, we commenced operation of our outdoor LED billboard network in April 2006. The placement and installation of LED billboards are subject to municipal zoning requirements and governmental approvals, including application for an outdoor advertising registration certificate for each LED billboard subject to a term of use of no more than six years for each LED billboard. If the existing LED billboards placed by our LED location provider or us are required to be removed, the attractiveness of this portion of our advertising network will be diminished. Moreover, failure by an owner of LED billboards to maintain outdoor advertising registration certificates would result in the inability to lease or market such space for the placement of advertisements.

China has also enacted regulations governing telecommunication service providers and the distribution of news and other information. In the past, the Chinese government has stopped the distribution of information over the Internet and telecommunications networks that it believes to violate Chinese law, including content that is pornographic or obscene, incites violence, endangers national security, is contrary to the national interest or is defamatory. China Unicom and China Mobile also have their own policies regarding the distribution of inappropriate content by wireless value-added service providers and have punished certain providers for distributing inappropriate content, including the imposition of fines and service suspensions. Focus Media Wireless undertakes to the telecommunication operators which grant us access to their mobile phone networks that we will not distribute any advertisements with illegal content. We require the Internet service providers which use our mobile handset advertising platform to provide us the same undertaking, but we cannot completely control the content of their advertisements. If any of the content that we deliver through our mobile handset advertising network is found to violate Chinese laws and regulations or the policies of China Mobile and China Unicom, we could be subject to fines or suspensions.

Moreover, civil claims may be filed against us for fraud, defamation, subversion, negligence, copyright or trademark infringement or other violations due to the nature and content of the information displayed on our advertising network. If consumers find the content displayed on our advertising network to be offensive, landlords, property managers, other location providers or telecommunication network operators may seek to hold us responsible for any consumer claims or may terminate their relationships with us.

In addition, if the security of our content management system is breached through the placement of unauthorized compact flash, or CF' cards in our flat-panel displays and unauthorized images, text or audio sounds are displayed on our advertising network, viewers or the PRC government may find these images, text or audio sounds to be offensive, which may subject us to civil liability or government censure despite our efforts to ensure the security of our content management system. Any such event may also damage our reputation. If our advertising viewers do not believe our content is reliable or accurate, our business model may become less appealing to viewers in China and our advertising clients may be less willing to place advertisements on our advertising network.

We may be subject to intellectual property infringement claims, which may force us to incur substantial legal expenses and, if determined adversely against us, may materially disrupt our business.

We cannot be certain that our advertising displays or other aspects of our business do not or will not infringe upon patents, copyrights or other intellectual property rights held by third parties. Although we are not aware of any such claims, we may become subject to legal proceedings and claims from time to time relating to the intellectual property of others in the ordinary course of our business. If we are found to have violated the intellectual property rights of others, we may be enjoined from using such intellectual property, and we may incur licensing fees or be forced to develop alternatives. In addition, we may incur substantial expenses in defending against these third party infringement claims, regardless of their merit. Successful infringement or licensing claims against us may result in substantial monetary liabilities, which may materially and adversely disrupt our business.

Unauthorized use of our intellectual property by third parties, and the expenses incurred in protecting our intellectual property rights, may adversely affect our business.

We regard our copyrights, trademarks, trade secrets and other intellectual property as critical to our success. Unauthorized use of the intellectual property used in our business may adversely affect our business and reputation.

We have historically relied on a combination of trademark and copyright law, trade secret protection and restrictions on disclosure to protect our intellectual property rights. We enter into confidentiality and invention assignment agreements with all our employees. We cannot assure you that these confidentiality agreements will not be breached, that we will have adequate remedies for any breach, or that our proprietary technology will not otherwise become known to, or be independently developed by, third parties.

We are in the process of registering in China many of the trademarks used in our business. We cannot assure you that any of our trademark applications will ultimately proceed to registration or will result in registration with scope adequate for our business. Some of our pending applications or registration may be successfully challenged or invalidated by others. If our trademark applications are not successful, we may have to use different marks for affected services or technologies, or enter into arrangements with any third parties who may have prior registrations, applications or rights, which might not be available on commercially reasonable terms, if at all.

In addition, policing unauthorized use of our proprietary technology, trademarks and other intellectual property is difficult and expensive, and litigation may be necessary in the future to enforce our intellectual property rights. Future litigation could result in substantial costs and diversion of our resources, and could disrupt our business, as well as have a material adverse effect on our financial condition and results of operations.

We face significant competition, and if we do not compete successfully against new and existing competitors, we may lose our market share, and our profitability may be adversely affected.

We compete with other advertising companies in China. We compete for advertising clients primarily on the basis of network size and coverage, location, price, the range of services that we offer and our brand name. We also face competition from other out-of-home television advertising network operators for access to the most desirable locations in cities in China. Individual buildings, hotels, restaurants and other commercial locations and hypermarket, supermarket and convenience store chains may also decide to independently, or through third-party technology providers, install and operate their own flat-panel television advertising screens. Our in-store network faces competition with similar networks operated by domestic out-of-home advertising companies, including Shanghai Xicheng Cultural Dissemination Co., Ltd., also known as CGEN. Our Internet advertising services compete with those provided by domestic and international advertising agencies, including the WPP Group. We also compete for overall advertising spending with other alternative advertising media companies, such as Internet, wireless communications, street furniture, billboard, frame and public transport advertising companies, and with traditional advertising media, such as newspapers, television, magazines and radio.

In the future, we may also face competition from new entrants into the out-of-home television advertising sector. Our sector is characterized by relatively low fixed costs and, as is customary in the advertising industry, we do not have exclusive arrangements with our advertising clients. In addition, since December 10, 2005, wholly foreign-owned advertising companies are allowed to operate in China, which may expose us to increased competition from international advertising media companies attracted to opportunities in China.

Increased competition could reduce our operating margins and profitability and result in a loss of market share. Some of our existing and potential competitors may have competitive advantages, such as significantly greater financial, marketing or other resources, or exclusive arrangements with desirable locations, and others may successfully mimic and adopt our business model. Moreover, increased competition will provide advertisers with a wider range of media and advertising service alternatives, which could lead to lower prices and decreased revenues, gross margins and profits. We cannot assure you that we will be able to successfully compete against new or existing competitors.

We do not maintain any business liability disruption or litigation insurance coverage for our operations, and any business liability, disruption or litigation we experience might result in our incurring substantial costs and the diversion of resources.

The insurance industry in China is still at an early stage of development. Insurance companies in China offer limited business insurance products and do not, to our knowledge, offer business liability insurance. While business disruption insurance is available to a limited extent in China, we have determined that the risks of disruption, cost of such insurance and the difficulties associated with acquiring such insurance on commercially reasonable terms make it impractical for us to have such insurance. As a result, we do not have any business liability, disruption or litigation insurance coverage for our operations in China. Any business disruption or litigation may result in our incurring substantial costs and the diversion of resources.

These have been historical deficiencies with our internal controls and these remain areas of our internal and disclosure controls that require improvements, and we are exposed to potential risks from legislation requiring companies to evaluate controls under Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002.

While we believe that we currently have adequate internal control procedures in place, we are still exposed to potential risks from legislation requiring companies to evaluate controls under Section 404 of the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002. Under the supervision and with the participation of our management, we have evaluated our internal controls systems in order to allow management to report on, and our registered independent public accounting firm to attest to, our internal controls, as required by Section 404 of the Sarbanes–Oxley Act. We have performed the system and process evaluation and testing required in an effort to comply with the management certification and auditor attestation requirements of Section 404. As a result, we have incurred additional expenses and a diversion of management’s time. If we are not able to continue to meet the requirements of Section 404 in a timely manner or with adequate compliance, we might be subject to sanctions or investigation by regulatory authorities, such as the SEC or the Nasdaq Global Market. Any such action could adversely affect our financial results and the market price of our ADSs.

In connection with their audit of our consolidated financial statements as of and for the period ended December 31, 2006, our auditors identified one significant deficiency under standards established by the Public Company Accounting Oversight Board (United States), or the PCAOB, in our internal accounting controls. Specifically, the auditors noted that, with regard to determination of related party status, we lack a process for timely review of changes in relationships with companies that were excluded from related party status in prior years, namely with Everease Advertising & Communication Ltd., or Everease. Following the identification of this significant deficiency, we have consulted with our audit committee and are taking remedial steps to address the deficiency, including reviewing our policies for the evaluation of transactions with past related party companies. If we are unable to implement solutions to any weaknesses in our existing internal and disclosure controls and procedures, or if we fail to maintain an effective system of internal and disclosure controls in the future for our company and for companies that we acquire, we may be unable to accurately report our financial results or prevent fraud and investor confidence and the market price of our ADSs may be adversely impacted.

Risks Relating to Regulation of Our Business and to Our Structure

If the PRC government finds that the agreements that establish the structure for operating our China business do not comply with PRC governmental restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry, we could be subject to severe penalties.

Substantially all of our operations are or will be conducted through Focus Media Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd., or Focus Media Technology, Framedia Investment and Beijing Dotad Technology Co., Ltd., or Dotad Technology, our indirectly wholly-owned operating subsidiaries in China, Focus Media Digital Information Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd., or Focus Media Digital, a 90%-owned subsidiary of Focus Media Technology, and New Allyes Information Technology Co., Ltd., or New Allyes Technology, which we collectively refer to as our PRC operating subsidiaries, and through our contractual arrangements with several of our consolidated affiliated entities in China. PRC regulations require any foreign entities that invest in the advertising services industry to have at least two years of direct operations in the advertising industry outside of China. Since December 10, 2005, foreign investors have been allowed to own directly 100% of PRC companies operating an advertising business if the foreign entity has at least three years of direct operations in the advertising business outside of China or less than 100% if the foreign investor has at least two years of direct operations in the advertising industry outside of China. We do not currently directly operate an advertising business outside of China and cannot qualify under PRC regulations any earlier than two or three years after we commence any such operations outside of China or until we acquire a company that has directly operated an advertising business outside of China for the required period of time. Accordingly, our PRC operating subsidiaries are currently ineligible to apply for the required licenses for providing advertising services in China. Substantially all of our advertising business is currently provided through our contractual arrangements with our PRC operating subsidiaries’ consolidated affiliated entities in China, which we collectively refer to as our PRC operating affiliates, including Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries with regard to our out-of-home television networks, Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia and New Structure Advertisement with regard to our poster frame network, Focus Media Wireless with regard to our mobile handset advertising network, and seven PRC companies with regard to our online advertising agency business which operate the business of Allyes, and which we refer to as the Allyes operating affiliates. Our PRC operating affiliates are currently owned in each case either (i) by two PRC citizens designated by us or (ii) by two PRC entities owned by our subsidiaries or by our designated appointees. Our PRC operating affiliates and certain of their respective subsidiaries hold the requisite licenses to provide advertising services in China. Our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries directly operate our advertising network. We have been and are expected to continue to be dependent on these PRC operating affiliates and their subsidiaries to operate our advertising business for the foreseeable future. We have entered into contractual arrangements with PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries, pursuant to which we, through our PRC operating subsidiaries, provide technical support and consulting services to our PRC operating affiliates and their subsidiaries. In addition, we have entered into agreements with our PRC operating affiliates and each of their shareholders which provide us with the substantial ability to control these affiliates and their existing and future subsidiaries.

If we, our existing or future PRC operating subsidiaries and affiliates are found to be in violation of any existing or future PRC laws or regulations or fail to obtain or maintain any of the required permits or approvals, the relevant PRC regulatory authorities, including the SAIC, which regulates advertising companies, would have broad discretion in dealing with such violations, including:

- revoking the business and operating licenses of our PRC subsidiaries and affiliates;
- discontinuing or restricting our PRC subsidiaries' and affiliates' operations;
- imposing conditions or requirements with which we or our PRC subsidiaries and affiliates may not be able to comply;
- requiring us or our PRC subsidiaries and affiliates to restructure the relevant ownership structure or operations; or
- restricting or prohibiting our use of the proceeds of this offering to finance our business and operations in China.

The imposition of any of these penalties would result in a material and adverse effect on our ability to conduct our business.

We rely on contractual arrangements with our PRC operating affiliates and their subsidiaries and shareholders for our China operations, which may not be as effective in providing operational control as direct ownership.

We have in the past relied, and to a lesser but significant extent will continue in the future to rely, on contractual arrangements with our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries and shareholders to operate our advertising business. For a description of these contractual arrangements, see the sections titled "Our Corporate Structure" and "Related Party Transactions". These contractual arrangements may not be as effective in providing us with control over our PRC operating affiliates and their subsidiaries as direct ownership. If we had direct ownership of our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries, we would be able to exercise our rights as a shareholder to effect changes in the board of directors of those companies, which in turn could effect changes, subject to any applicable fiduciary obligations, at the management level. However, under the current contractual arrangements, as a legal matter, if our PRC operating affiliates or any of their subsidiaries and shareholders fails to perform its or his respective obligations under these contractual arrangements, we may have to incur substantial costs and resources to enforce such arrangements, and rely on legal remedies under PRC law, including seeking specific performance or injunctive relief, and claiming damages, which we cannot assure you to be effective. For example, if Jason Nanchun Jiang were to refuse to transfer his equity interest in Focus Media Advertisement to us or our designee when we exercise the purchase option pursuant to these contractual arrangements, or if Mr. Jiang were otherwise to act in bad faith toward us, then we may have to take legal action to compel him to fulfill his contractual obligations. In addition, Focus Media Advertisement, which holds certain of the business licenses required to operate our advertising network in China, is jointly owned and effectively managed by Mr. Jiang and Mr. Yu. Similarly, each of the Allyes operating affiliates, which hold the licenses necessary to operate the business of Allyes, is jointly owned by a set of two PRC nationals. Accordingly, it may be difficult for us to change our corporate structure or to bring claims against our PRC operating affiliates if they do not perform their obligations under its contracts with us or if any of the PRC citizens who hold the equity interest in our PRC operating affiliates do not cooperate with any such actions.

Many of these contractual arrangements are governed by PRC law and provide for the resolution of disputes through either arbitration or litigation in the PRC. Accordingly, these contracts would be interpreted in accordance with PRC law and any disputes would be resolved in accordance with PRC legal procedures. The legal environment in the PRC is not as developed as in other jurisdictions, such as the United States. As a result, uncertainties in the PRC legal system could limit our ability to enforce these contractual arrangements. In the event we are unable to enforce these contractual arrangements, we may not be able to exert effective control over our operating entities, and our ability to conduct our business may be negatively affected.

Contractual arrangements we have entered into among our subsidiaries and affiliated entities may be subject to scrutiny by the PRC tax authorities and a finding that we owe additional taxes or are ineligible for our tax exemption, or both, could substantially increase our taxes owed, and reduce our net income and the value of your investment.

Under PRC law, arrangements and transactions among related parties may be subject to audit or challenge by the PRC tax authorities. If any of the transactions we have entered into among our subsidiaries and affiliated entities are found not to be on an arm's-length basis, or to result in an unreasonable reduction in tax under PRC law, the PRC tax authorities have the authority to disallow our tax savings, adjust the profits and losses of our respective PRC entities and assess late payment interest and penalties. See "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operation — Taxation" for a discussion of the transactions referred to above. A finding by the PRC tax authorities that Focus Media Digital, Shanghai Focus Media Advertising Agency Co., Ltd., or Focus Media Advertising Agency, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement or New Structure Advertisement are ineligible for their tax exemptions, would substantially increase our taxes owed and reduce our net income and the value of your investment. As a result of this risk, you should evaluate our results of operations and financial condition without regard to these tax savings.

We rely principally on dividends and other distributions on equity paid by our wholly-owned operating subsidiaries to fund any cash and financing requirements we may have, and any limitation on the ability of our operating subsidiary to pay dividends to us could have a material adverse effect on our ability to conduct our business.

We are a holding company, and we rely principally on dividends and other distributions on equity paid by our PRC operating subsidiaries for our cash requirements, including the funds necessary to service any debt we may incur. If any of our PRC operating subsidiaries incurs debt on its own behalf in the future, the instruments governing the debt may restrict their ability to pay dividends or make other distributions to us. In addition, the PRC tax authorities may require us to adjust our taxable income under the contractual arrangements our PRC operating subsidiaries currently have in place with our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries in a manner that would materially and adversely affect our PRC operating subsidiaries' ability to pay dividends and other distributions to us. Furthermore, relevant PRC laws and regulations permit payments of dividends by our PRC operating subsidiaries only out of their retained earnings, if any, determined in accordance with PRC accounting standards and regulations. Under PRC laws and regulations, each of our PRC operating subsidiaries is also required to set aside a portion of its net income each year to fund specific reserve funds. These reserves are not distributable as cash dividends. In addition, subject to certain cumulative limits, the statutory general reserve fund requires annual appropriations of 10% of after-tax income to be set aside prior to payment of dividends. As a result of these PRC laws and regulations, our PRC operating subsidiaries and our PRC operating affiliates are restricted in their ability to transfer a portion of their net assets to us whether in the form of dividends, loans or advances. As of December 31, 2006, the amount of these restricted portions was approximately $223,386,461. Any limitation on the ability of our PRC operating subsidiaries to pay dividends to us could materially and adversely limit our ability to grow, make investments or acquisitions that could be beneficial to our businesses, pay dividends, or otherwise fund and conduct our business.

Our business operations may be affected by legislative or regulatory changes.

There are no existing PRC laws or regulations that specifically define or regulate out-of-home television or mobile handset advertising. Changes in laws and regulations or the enactment of new laws and regulations governing placement or content of out-of-home advertising or distribution of mobile handset advertising, our business licenses or otherwise affecting our business in China may materially and adversely affect our business prospects and results of operations. For example, the PRC government has promulgated regulations allowing foreign companies to hold a 100%-interest in PRC advertising companies starting from December 10, 2005. We are not certain how the PRC government will implement this regulation or how it could affect our ability to compete in the advertising industry in China.

PRC regulation of loans and direct investment by offshore holding companies to PRC entities may delay or prevent us from using funds to make loans or additional capital contributions to our PRC operating subsidiaries and affiliates.

As an offshore holding company of our PRC operating subsidiaries and affiliates, we may make loans to our PRC subsidiaries and consolidated PRC affiliated entities, or we may make additional capital contributions to our PRC subsidiaries. Any loans to our PRC subsidiaries or consolidated PRC affiliated entities are subject to PRC regulations and approvals. For example:

- loans by us to Focus Media Technology, Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology, or New Allyes Technology or any other of our foreign invested enterprises, to finance its activities cannot exceed statutory limits and must be registered with the PRC State Administration of Foreign Exchange or its local counterpart; and
- loans by us to our PRC operating affiliates or their respective subsidiaries, which are domestic PRC enterprises, must be approved by the relevant government authorities and must also be registered with the PRC State Administration of Foreign Exchange or its local counterpart.

We may also determine to finance Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital and New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement or any of our foreign invested enterprises through Focus Media Technology, Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology and New Allyes Technology or our other PRC operating affiliates, by means of capital contributions. These capital contributions must be approved by the PRC Ministry of Commerce or its local counterpart. Because our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries are domestic PRC enterprises, we are not likely to finance their activities by means of capital contributions due to regulatory issues relating to foreign investment in domestic PRC enterprises, as well as the licensing and other regulatory issues discussed in "Regulation of Our Industry" in this prospectus. We cannot assure you that we can obtain these government registrations or approvals on a timely basis, if at all, with respect to future loans or capital contributions by us to Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement Framedia Investment, Focus Media Advertisement, Dotad Technology, New Allyes Technology or any of their respective subsidiaries. If we fail to receive such registrations or approvals, our ability to use our funds and to capitalize our PRC operations would be negatively affected which would adversely and materially affect our liquidity and our ability to expand our business.

Risks Relating to the People's Republic Of China

Substantially all of our assets are located in China and substantially all of our revenues are derived from our operations in China. Accordingly, our business, financial condition, results of operations and prospects are subject, to a significant extent, to economic, political and legal developments in China.

The PRC's economic, political and social conditions, as well as governmental policies, could affect the financial markets in China and our liquidity and access to capital and our ability to operate our business.

The PRC economy differs from the economies of most developed countries in many respects, including the amount of government involvement, level of development, growth rate, control of foreign exchange and allocation of resources. While the PRC economy has experienced significant growth over the past, growth has been uneven, both geographically and among various sectors of the economy. The PRC government has implemented various measures to encourage economic growth and guide the allocation of resources. Some of these measures benefit the overall PRC economy, but may also have a negative effect on us. For example, under current PRC regulations, starting December 10, 2005, foreign entities are allowed to directly own 100% of a PRC advertising business if the foreign entity has at least three years of direct operations of an advertising business outside of China, or to directly own less than 100% of a PRC advertising business if the foreign entity has at least two years of direct operations of an advertising business outside of China. This may encourage foreign advertising companies with more experience, greater technological know-how and larger financial resources than we have to compete against us and limit the potential for our growth. Moreover, our financial condition and results of operations may be adversely affected by government control over capital investments or changes in tax regulations that are applicable to us.

The PRC economy has been transitioning from a planned economy to a more market-oriented economy. Although the PRC government has implemented measures since the late 1970s emphasizing the utilization of market forces for economic reform, the reduction of state ownership of productive assets and the establishment of improved corporate governance in business enterprises, a substantial portion of productive assets in China is still owned by the PRC government. In addition, the PRC government continues to play a significant role in regulating industry development by imposing industrial policies. The PRC government also exercises significant control over China's economic growth through the allocation of resources, controlling payment of foreign currency-denominated obligations, setting monetary policy and providing preferential treatment to particular industries or companies. Since late 2003, the PRC government implemented a number of measures, such as raising bank reserves against deposit rates to place additional limitations on the ability of commercial banks to make loans and raise interest rates, in order to slow down specific segments of China's economy which it believed to be overheating. These actions, as well as future actions and policies of the PRC government, could materially affect our liquidity and access to capital and our ability to operate our business.

The PRC legal system embodies uncertainties which could limit the legal protections available to you and us.

The PRC legal system is a civil law system based on written statutes. Unlike common law systems, it is a system in which decided legal cases have little precedential value. In 1979, the PRC government began to promulgate a comprehensive system of laws and regulations governing economic matters in general. The overall effect of legislation over the past 26 years has significantly enhanced the protections afforded to various forms of foreign investment in China. Each of our PRC operating subsidiaries and affiliates is subject to PRC laws and regulations. However, these laws, regulations and legal requirements change frequently, and their interpretation and enforcement involve uncertainties. For example, we may have to resort to administrative and court proceedings to enforce the legal protection that we enjoy either by law or contract. However, since PRC administrative and court authorities have significant discretion in interpreting and implementing statutory and contractual terms, it may be more difficult to evaluate the outcome of administrative and court proceedings and the level of legal protection we enjoy than in more developed legal systems. For example, these uncertainties may impede our ability to enforce the contracts we have entered into with the Group. In addition, such uncertainties, including the inability to enforce our contracts, could materially and adversely affect our business and operation. In addition, intellectual property rights and confidentiality protections in China may not be as effective as in the United States or other countries. Accordingly, we cannot predict the effect of future developments in the PRC legal system, particularly with regard to the advertising industry, including the promulgation of new laws, changes to existing laws or the interpretation or enforcement thereof, or the preemption of local regulations by national laws. These uncertainties could limit the legal protections available to us, including our ability to enforce our agreements with the Group, and other foreign investors, including you.

If tax benefits currently available to us in PRC were no longer available under the new Enterprise Income Taxes (EIT) law which will be effective on January 1, 2008, our effective income tax rates for our PRC operations could increase.

We are incorporated in the Cayman Islands where no income taxes are imposed.

We generated substantially all our net income from our PRC operations. Our China operations are conducted through various subsidiaries and variable interest entities, or VIEs. Pursuant to the PRC Income Tax Laws, our subsidiaries and VIEs are generally subject to EIT at a statutory rate of 33%, which comprises 30% national income tax and 3% local income tax. Some of the Company's subsidiaries and VIEs are newly incorporated enterprises engaged in advertising industry which are entitled to a two-year tax exemption holiday, commencing from the first operating year. One of our VIEs, Beijing Focus Media Wireless Co., Ltd., is a qualified new technology enterprise and under PRC Income Tax Laws are subject to a preferential tax rate of 15%, plus a three-year tax exemption followed by three years with a 50% reduction in the tax rate, commencing from the first profitable year.

On March 16, 2007, the PRC National People's Congress passed the China Corporate Income Tax Law which will change the income tax rates for most enterprises from 33% at the present to 25%. This new law will become effective on January 1, 2008. There will be a transition period for enterprises, whether foreign-invested or domestic, which currently receive preferential tax treatments granted by relevant tax authorities. Enterprises that are subject to an enterprise income tax rate lower than 25% may continue to enjoy the lower rate and gradually transition to the new tax rate within five years after the effective date of the new law. Enterprises that are currently entitled to exemptions or reductions from the standard income tax rate for a fixed term may continue to enjoy such treatment until the fixed term expires. Preferential tax treatments will continue to be granted to industries and projects that are strongly supported and encouraged by the state, and enterprises that qualify as "new and high technology enterprises strongly supported by the state" will be entitled to a 15% enterprise income tax rate.

Most of the Company's subsidiaries and VIEs are expected to transition from 33% to 25% starting from January 1, 2008. Those that currently enjoy a lower tax rate of 15% will gradually transition to the uniform tax rate of 25% from 2008 to 2012 unless the company obtains the "new and high technology enterprise" status under the new tax law.

We may be deemed a Chinese resident enterprise under the EIT Law and be subject to PRC taxation on our worldwide income.

The EIT Law also provides that enterprises established outside of China whose "de facto management bodies" are located in China are considered "resident enterprises" and will generally be subject to the uniform 25% enterprise income tax rate as to their global income, including income we receive from our subsidiaries. The EIT Law, however, does not define the term "de facto management bodies" and it is currently unclear under what situations an enterprise's "de facto management body" would be considered to be located in China. Substantially all of our management is currently based in China, and may remain in China after the effectiveness of the EIT Law. Therefore, we may be treated as a Chinese resident enterprise for enterprise income tax purposes. The tax consequences of such treatment are currently unclear, as they will depend on regulations that have not yet been issued that would implement the EIT Law, and on local tax authorities' ability to follow such regulations in tax administration. See "Dividends payable by us to our foreign investors may become subject to withholding taxes under PRC tax laws" and "Gains on the sales of our shares or ADSs may become subject to PRC income taxes" below.

Recent PRC regulations relating to offshore investment activities by PRC residents may increase our administrative burden and restrict our overseas and cross-border investment activity. If our shareholders who are PRC residents fail to make any required applications and filings under such regulations, we may be unable to distribute profits and may become subject to liability under PRC laws.

The PRC National Development and Reform Commission, or NDRC, and SAFE recently promulgated regulations that require PRC residents and PRC corporate entities to register with and obtain approvals from relevant PRC government authorities in connection with their direct or indirect offshore investment activities. These regulations apply to our shareholders who are PRC residents and may apply to any offshore acquisitions that we make in the future.

Under the SAFE regulations, PRC residents who make, or have previously made, direct or indirect investments in offshore companies will be required to register those investments. In addition, any PRC resident who is a direct or indirect shareholder of an offshore company is required to file with the local branch of SAFE, with respect to that offshore company, any material change involving capital variation, such as an increase or decrease in capital, transfer or swap of shares, merger, division, long term equity or debt investment or creation of any security interest over the assets located in China. If any PRC shareholder fails to make the required SAFE registration, the PRC subsidiaries of that offshore parent company may be prohibited from distributing their profits and the proceeds from any reduction in capital, share transfer or liquidation, to their offshore parent company, and the offshore parent company may also be prohibited from injecting additional capital into their PRC subsidiaries. Moreover, failure to comply with the various SAFE registration requirements described above could result in liability under PRC laws for evasion of applicable foreign exchange restrictions.

We cannot assure you that all of our shareholders who are PRC residents will comply with our request to make or obtain any registrations or approvals required under these regulations or other related legislation. Furthermore, as the regulations are relatively new, the PRC government has yet to publish implementing rules, and much uncertainty remains concerning the reconciliation of the new regulations with other approval requirements. It is unclear how these regulations, and any future legislation concerning offshore or cross-border transactions, will be interpreted, amended and implemented by the relevant government authorities. The failure or inability of our PRC resident shareholders to comply with these regulations may subject us to fines and legal sanctions, restrict our overseas or cross-border investment activities, limit our ability to inject additional capital into our PRC subsidiaries and the ability of Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement, Framedia Investment or New Allyes Technology, our PRC subsidiaries, to make distributions or pay dividends, or materially and adversely affect our ownership structure. If any of the foregoing events occur, our acquisition strategy and business operations and our ability to distribute profits to you could be materially and adversely affected.

The PRC tax authorities may require us to pay additional taxes in connection with our acquisitions of offshore entities that conducted their PRC operations through their affiliates in China.

Our operations and transactions are subject to review by the PRC tax authorities pursuant to relevant PRC laws and regulations. However, these laws, regulations and legal requirements change frequently, and their interpretation and enforcement involve uncertainties. For example, in the case of some of our acquisitions of offshore entities that conducted their PRC operations through their affiliates in China, we cannot assure you that the PRC tax authorities will not require us to pay additional taxes in relation to such acquisitions, in particular where the PRC tax authorities take the view that the previous taxable income of the PRC affiliates of the acquired offshore entities needs to be adjusted and additional taxes be paid. In the event that the sellers failed to pay any taxes required under PRC law in connection with these transactions, the PRC tax authorities might require us to pay the tax, together with late-payment interest and penalties. See “Management’s Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations — Acquisitions”.

A new PRC rule on mergers and acquisitions may subject us to sanctions, fines and other penalties and affect our future business growth through acquisition of complementary business.

On August 8, 2006, six PRC government and regulatory authorities, including the PRC Ministry of Commerce and the Chinese Securities Regulatory Commission, or the CSRC, promulgated a rule entitled “Provisions regarding Mergers and Acquisitions of Domestic Enterprises by Foreign Investors,” or the New M&A Rule, which became effective on September 8, 2006. The New M&A Rule, among other things, requires that an offshore specific purpose vehicle, or SPV, formed for the listing purpose through acquisition of PRC domestic entity and controlled by PRC residents should obtain approval from the CSRC prior to publicly listing its securities on an overseas stock market. Based on consultation with the International Department of the CSRC regarding its interpretation of the New M&A Rule, our PRC counsel, Global Law Offices, advised us that the CSRC approval was not required for this offering. However, we cannot assure you that the relevant PRC government agency, including the Ministry of Commerce or other applicable departments of the CSRC, would reach the same conclusion as our PRC counsel. If the CSRC or other PRC regulatory body subsequently determines that the CSRC’s approval was required for this offering, we may face sanctions by the CSRC or other PRC regulatory agencies. In such event, these regulatory agencies may impose fines and penalties on our operations in the PRC, limit our operating privileges in the PRC, delay or restrict the repatriation of the proceeds from this offering into the PRC, or take other actions that could have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, results of operations, reputation and prospects, as well as the trading price of our ADSs.

The New M&A Rule also established additional procedures and requirements that could make merger and acquisition activities by foreign investors more time-consuming and complex, including requirements in some instances that the Ministry of Commerce be notified in advance of any change-of-control transaction in which a foreign investor takes control of a PRC domestic enterprise. In the future, we may grow our business in part by acquiring complementary businesses, although we do not have any plans to do so at this time. Complying with the requirements of the New M&A Rule to complete such transactions could be time-consuming, and any required approval processes, including obtaining approval from the Ministry of Commerce, may delay or inhibit the completion of such transactions, which could affect our ability to expand our business or maintain our market share.

Restrictions on currency exchange may limit our ability to utilize our revenues effectively.

Substantially all of our revenues and operating expenses are denominated in Renminbi. The Renminbi is currently convertible under the “current account”, which includes dividends, trade and service-related foreign exchange transactions, but not under the “capital account”, which includes foreign direct investment and loans. Currently, each of our PRC subsidiaries may purchase foreign exchange for settlement of “current account transactions”, including payment of dividends to us, without the approval of SAFE. However, we cannot assure you that the relevant PRC governmental authorities will not further limit or eliminate our ability to purchase foreign currencies in the future. Since a significant amount of our future revenues will be denominated in Renminbi, any existing and future restrictions on currency exchange may limit our ability to utilize revenues generated in Renminbi to fund our business activities outside China, if any, or expenditures denominated in foreign currencies. Foreign exchange transactions under the capital account are still subject to limitations and require approvals from, or registration with, the State Administration of Foreign Exchange and other relevant PRC governmental authorities. This could affect the ability of each of Focus Media Technology and Framedia Investment to obtain foreign exchange through debt or equity financing, including by means of loans or capital contributions from us.

Fluctuations in exchange rates could result in foreign currency exchange losses.

Because our earnings and cash and cash equivalent assets are denominated in Renminbi and the net proceeds from this offering will be denominated in U.S. dollars, fluctuations in exchange rates between U.S. dollars and Renminbi will affect the relative purchasing power of these proceeds and our balance sheet and earnings per share in U.S. dollars following this offering. In addition, appreciation or depreciation in the value of the Renminbi relative to the U.S. dollar would affect our financial results reported in U.S. dollar terms without giving effect to any underlying change in our business or results of operations. Since July 2005 the Renminbi is no longer pegged solely to the U.S. dollar. Instead, it is reported to be pegged against a basket of currencies, determined by the People’s Bank of China, against which it can rise or fall by as much as 0.3% each day. For example, on November 6, 2007 the Renminbi was revalued against the U.S. dollar to approximately RMB 7.4515 to the U.S. dollar. The Renminbi may appreciate or depreciate significantly in value against the U.S. dollar in the long term, depending on the fluctuation of the basket of currencies against which it is currently valued or it may be permitted to enter into a full float, which may also result in a significant appreciation or depreciation of the Renminbi against the U.S. dollar. Fluctuations in the exchange rate will also affect the relative value of any dividend we issue in the future which will be exchanged into U.S. dollars and earnings from and the value of any U.S. dollar-denominated investments we make in the future.

Very limited hedging transactions are available in China to reduce our exposure to exchange rate fluctuations. To date, we have not entered into any hedging transactions in an effort to reduce our exposure to foreign currency exchange risk. While we may decide to enter into hedging transactions in the future, the availability and effectiveness of these hedges may be limited and we may not be able to successfully hedge our exposure at all. In addition, our currency exchange losses may be magnified by PRC exchange control regulations that restrict our ability to convert Renminbi into foreign currency.

Any future outbreak of severe acute respiratory syndrome or avian flu in China, or similar adverse public health developments, may severely disrupt our business and operations.

From December 2002 to June 2003, China and other countries experienced an outbreak of a new and highly contagious form of atypical pneumonia now known as severe acute respiratory syndrome, or SARS. On July 5, 2003, the World Health Organization declared that the SARS outbreak had been contained. Since September 2003, however, a number of isolated new cases of SARS have been reported, most recently in central China in April 2004. During May and June of 2003, many businesses in China were closed by the PRC government to prevent transmission of SARS. In addition, many countries, including China, have encountered incidents of the H5N1 strain of bird flu, or avian flu. This disease, which is spread through poultry populations, is capable in some circumstances of being transmitted to humans and is often fatal. A new outbreak of SARS or an outbreak of avian flu may result in health or other government authorities requiring the closure of our offices or other businesses, including office buildings, retail stores and other commercial venues, which comprise the primary locations where we provide our digital out-of-home advertising services. Any recurrence of the SARS outbreak, an outbreak of avian flu or a development of a similar health hazard in China, may deter people from congregating in public places, including a range of commercial locations such as office buildings and retail stores. Such occurrences would severely impact the value of our digital out-of-home advertising networks to advertisers, significantly reduce the advertising time purchased by advertisers and severely disrupt our business and operations.

Risks Relating to this Offering, Our ADSs and Our Trading Markets

The price of our ADSs has been volatile and may continue to be volatile, which may make it difficult for holders to resell the ADSs when desired or at attractive prices.

The trading price of our ADSs has been and may continue to be subject to wide fluctuations. Since July 13, 2005, the closing prices of our ADSs on the Nasdaq Global Market has ranged from $8.90 to $66.30 per ADS and the last reported sale price on November 6, 2007 was $65.10. From July 13, 2005 until April 10, 2007, we used an ADS-to-share ratio of 10-to-one. Starting April 11, 2007, we reduced this ratio to five-to-one. All ADS trading prices on the Nasdaq set forth in this prospectus, including historical trading and closing prices, have been adjusted to reflect the new ADS-to-share ratio of five-to-one. Our ADS price may fluctuate in response to a number of events and factors. The financial markets in general, and the market prices for many PRC companies in particular, have experienced extreme volatility that often has been unrelated to the operating performance of such companies.

In addition to market and industry factors, the price and trading volume for our ADSs may be highly volatile for specific business reasons. Factors such as variations in our revenues, earnings and cash flow, announcements of new investments, cooperation arrangements or acquisitions, and fluctuations in market prices for our advertising network could cause the market price for our ADSs to change substantially. Any of these factors may result in large and sudden changes in the volume and price at which our ADSs will trade. We cannot give any assurance that these factors will not occur in the future.

The sale or availability for sale of substantial amounts of our ADSs could adversely affect their market price.

In connection with this offering, we have agreed not to sell any ordinary shares or ADSs for 90 days after the date of this prospectus without the written consent of the Merrill Lynch and subject to certain exceptions. The underwriters may from time to time continue to release other securities of ours that are currently subject to lock-up, subject to applicable regulations of the National Association of Securities Dealers, or NASD. We cannot predict what effect, if any, market sales of securities held by our significant shareholders or any other shareholder or the availability of these securities for future sale will have on the market price of our ADSs. See “Underwriting” and “Shares Eligible for Future Sale” for a more detailed description of the restrictions on selling our securities after this offering.

We have in the past failed to comply with Nasdaq Marketplace Rules, including the timely filing of our annual report and maintaining a majority of independent directors on our board of directors.

Our failure to timely file our 2006 annual report on Form 20-F subjected us to delisting review by the Nasdaq Listing Qualifications Panel. See “— Our failure to timely file the 2006 annual report on Form 20-F as a result of allegations raised by an anonymous investor holding a short position in our ADSs may subject us to shareholder litigation and delisting review, either of which may materially and adversely affect our business”. In addition, in the past we previously failed to maintain a majority of independent directors on our board of directors, which put us out of compliance with Nasdaq Marketplace Rule 4350. See “Management”. On October 4, 2007, we received a letter from Nasdaq Listing Qualifications notifying us that we had regained compliance with all Nasdaq listing qualifications by filing our annual report for 2006.

Our historical failure to comply with Nasdaq Marketplace Rules has on one occasion subjected us to delisting review. If for any reason we fail to maintain compliance with Nasdaq Marketplace Rules in the future, we could be subject to additional delisting procedures and sanctions, which could affect our reputation and the market value of our securities, and could result in shareholder litigation, which may divert the attention of our management and force us to expend resources to defend against such claims. Any litigation may have a material and adverse effect on our business and future results of operations.

A significant percentage of our outstanding ordinary shares is beneficially owned by Jason Nanchun Jiang, our founder, chairman and chief executive officer, and as a result, he may have significantly greater influence on us and our corporate actions by nature of the size of his shareholdings relative to our public shareholders.

Following this offering, Jason Nanchun Jiang will beneficially own approximately 10.53% of our outstanding ordinary shares, or 10.37% if the underwriters exercise their option to purchase additional ADSs in full. Accordingly, Jason Nanchun Jiang has significant influence in determining the outcome of any corporate transaction or other matter submitted to the shareholders for approval, including mergers, consolidations and the sale of all or substantially all of our assets, election of directors and other significant corporate actions. Further, Jason Nanchun Jiang is also an 85% shareholder of our affiliated PRC entity, Focus Media Advertisement, with which we have contractual arrangements that are essential to our business. The continuing cooperation of Focus Media Advertisement, and its shareholders, branches and subsidiaries, is important to our business. Without Jason Nanchun Jiang's consent, we could be prevented from entering into transactions or conducting business that could be beneficial to us. Accordingly, Mr. Jiang's control of Focus Media Advertisement could hinder any change in control of our business, particularly where such change of control would benefit shareholders other than Mr. Jiang. It would be difficult for us to change our corporate structure if any disputes arise between us and Mr. Jiang or if he fails to carry out his contractual and fiduciary obligations to us. Thus, Jason Nanchun Jiang's interests as an officer and employee may differ from his interests as a shareholder or from the interests of our other shareholders, including you.

Anti-takeover provisions in our charter documents may discourage any hostile acquisition attempt by a third party, which could limit our shareholders' opportunity to sell their shares at a premium.

Our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association include provisions that could limit the ability of others to acquire control of us, modify our structure or cause us to engage in change-of-control transactions. These provisions could have the effect of depriving our shareholders of an opportunity to sell their shares at a premium over prevailing market prices by discouraging third parties from seeking to obtain control of us in a tender offer or similar transaction.

For example, our board of directors will have the authority, without further action by our shareholders, to issue preference shares in one or more series and to fix the powers and rights of these shares, including dividend rights, conversion rights, voting rights, terms of redemption and liquidation preferences, any or all of which may be greater than the rights associated with our ordinary shares. Preference shares could thus be issued quickly with terms calculated to delay or prevent a change in control or make removal of management more difficult. In addition, if the board of directors issues preference shares, the market price of our ordinary shares may fall and the voting and other rights of the holders of our ordinary shares may be adversely affected.

In addition, some actions require the approval of a supermajority of at least two thirds of our board of directors which, among other things, would allow our non-independent directors to block a variety of actions or transactions, such as a merger, asset sale or other change of control, even if all of our independent directors unanimously voted in favor of such action, further depriving our shareholders of an opportunity to sell their shares at a premium. In addition, our directors serve terms of three years each, which terms are not staggered. The length of these terms could present an additional obstacle against the taking of action, such as a merger or other change of control, that could be in the interest of our shareholders.

We are a Cayman Islands company and, because judicial precedent regarding the rights of shareholders is more limited under Cayman Islands law than under U.S. law, you may have less protection of your shareholder rights than you would under U.S. law.

Our corporate affairs are governed by our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association, the Cayman Islands Companies Law and the common law of the Cayman Islands. The rights of shareholders to take action against the directors, actions by minority shareholders and the fiduciary responsibilities of our directors to us under Cayman Islands law are to a large extent governed by the common law of the Cayman Islands. The common law of the Cayman Islands is derived in part from comparatively limited judicial precedent in the Cayman Islands as well as from English common law, which has persuasive, but not binding, authority on a court in the Cayman Islands. The rights of our shareholders and the fiduciary responsibilities of our directors under Cayman Islands law are not as clearly established as they would be under statutes or judicial precedent in some jurisdictions in the United States. In particular, the Cayman Islands has a less developed body of securities laws than the United States. In addition, some U.S. states, such as Delaware, have more fully developed and judicially interpreted bodies of corporate law than the Cayman Islands.

As a result of all of the above, public shareholders may have more difficulty in protecting their interests in the face of actions taken by management, members of the board of directors or controlling shareholders than they would as public shareholders of a U.S. company.

Judgments obtained against us by our shareholders may not be enforceable.

We are a Cayman Islands company and substantially all of our assets are located outside of the United States. All of our current operations are conducted in the PRC. In addition, most of our directors and officers are nationals and residents of countries other than the United States. A substantial portion of the assets of these persons are located outside the United States. As a result, it may be difficult for you to effect service of process within the United States upon these persons. It may also be difficult for you to enforce in U.S. courts judgments obtained in U.S. courts based on the civil liability provisions of the U.S. federal securities laws against us and our officers and directors, most of whom are not resident in the United States and the substantial majority of whose assets are located outside of the United States. In addition, there is uncertainty as to whether the courts of the Cayman Islands or the PRC would recognize or enforce judgments of United States courts against us or such persons predicated upon the civil liability provisions of the securities laws of the United States or any state. In addition, there is uncertainty as to whether such Cayman Islands or PRC courts would be competent to hear original actions brought in the Cayman Islands or the PRC against us or such persons predicated upon the securities laws of the United States or any state.

The voting rights of holders of ADSs are limited by the terms of the deposit agreement.

Holders of our ADSs may only exercise their voting rights with respect to the underlying ordinary shares in accordance with the provisions of the deposit agreement. Upon receipt of voting instructions from a holder of ADSs in the manner set forth in the deposit agreement, the depositary will endeavor to vote the underlying ordinary shares in accordance with these instructions. Under our amended and restated memorandum and articles of association and Cayman Islands law, the minimum notice period required for convening a general meeting is ten days. When a general meeting is convened, you may not receive sufficient notice of a shareholders' meeting to permit you to withdraw your ordinary shares to allow you to cast your vote with respect to any specific matter at the meeting. In addition, the depositary and its agents may not be able to send voting instructions to you or carry out your voting instructions in a timely manner. We will make all reasonable efforts to cause the depositary to extend voting rights to you in a timely manner, but we cannot assure you that you will receive the voting materials in time to ensure that you can instruct the depositary to vote your shares. Furthermore, the depositary and its agents will not be responsible for any failure to carry out any instructions to vote, for the manner in which any vote is cast or for the effect of any such vote. As a result, you may not be able to exercise your right to vote and you may lack recourse if your ordinary shares are not voted as you requested.

The depositary for our ADSs will give us a discretionary proxy to vote our ordinary shares underlying your ADSs if you do not vote at shareholders' meetings, except in limited circumstances, which could adversely affect your interests.

Under the deposit agreement for the ADSs, the depositary will give us a discretionary proxy to vote our ordinary shares underlying your ADSs at shareholders' meetings if you do not vote, unless:

- we have failed to timely provide the depositary with our notice of meeting and related voting materials;
- we have instructed the depositary that we do not wish a discretionary proxy to be given;

- we have informed the depositary that there is substantial opposition as to a matter to be voted on at the meeting;
- a matter to be voted on at the meeting would have a material adverse impact on shareholders; or
- voting at the meeting is made on a show of hands.

The effect of this discretionary proxy is that you cannot prevent our ordinary shares underlying your ADSs from being voted, absent the situations described above, and it may make it more difficult for shareholders to influence the management of our company. Holders of our ordinary shares are not subject to this discretionary proxy.

You may not receive distributions on our ordinary shares or any value for them if it is illegal or impractical to make them available to you.

The depositary of our ADSs has agreed to pay you the cash dividends or other distributions it or the custodian for our ADSs receives on our ordinary shares or other deposited securities after deducting its fees and expenses. You will receive these distributions in proportion to the number of our ordinary shares your ADSs represent. However, the depositary is not responsible if it is unlawful or impractical to make a distribution available to any holders of ADSs. For example, it would be unlawful to make a distribution to a holder of ADSs if it consists of securities that require registration under the Securities Act but that are not properly registered or distributed pursuant to an applicable exemption from registration. The depositary is not responsible for making a distribution available to any holders of ADSs if any government approval or registration required for such distribution cannot be obtained after reasonable efforts made by the depositary. We have no obligation to take any other action to permit the distribution of our ADSs, ordinary shares, rights or anything else to holders of our ADSs. This means that you may not receive the distributions we make on our ordinary shares or any value for them if it is illegal or impractical for us to make them available to you. These restrictions may have a material and adverse effect on the value of your ADSs.

You may be subject to limitations on transfer of your ADSs.

Your ADSs are transferable on the books of the depositary. However, the depositary may close its books at any time or from time to time when it deems expedient in connection with the performance of its duties. The depositary may close its books from time to time for a number of reasons, including in connection with corporate events such as a rights offering, during which time the depositary needs to maintain an exact number of ADS holders on its books for a specified period. The depositary may also close its books in emergencies, and on weekends and public holidays. The depositary may refuse to deliver, transfer or register transfers of our ADSs generally when our books or the books of the depositary are closed, or at any time if we or the depositary thinks it is advisable to do so because of any requirement of law or any government or governmental body, or under any provision of the deposit agreement, or for any other reason.

We have not determined a specific use for a portion of our net proceeds from this offering and we may use these proceeds in ways with which you may not agree.

We have not determined a specific use for a portion of our net proceeds of this offering. Our management will have considerable discretion in the application of these proceeds received by us. You will not have the opportunity, as part of your investment decision, to assess whether the proceeds are being used appropriately. You must rely on the judgment of our management regarding the application of the net proceeds of this offering. The net proceeds may be used for corporate purposes that do not improve our profitability or increase our ADS price. The net proceeds from this offering may also be placed in investments that do not produce income or lose value.

Dividends payable by us to our foreign investors may become subject to withholding taxes under PRC tax laws.

Under the EIT Law, dividends payable to foreign investors which are “derived from sources within the PRC” may be subject to income tax at the rate of 20% by way of withholding. Since we are a holding company and substantially all of our income will come from dividends that we receive from our PRC subsidiaries, dividends that we declare from such income may be deemed “derived from sources within the PRC” for purposes of the EIT Law and therefore subject to a 20% withholding tax. While the EIT Law stipulates that such taxes may be exempted or reduced, no rules or guidance implementing the EIT Law have been issued yet, and it is unclear under what circumstances, and to what extent, such tax would be exempted or reduced.

The EIT Law also provides that dividend income between “qualified resident enterprises” is exempted income, which may imply that dividends we receive from our PRC subsidiaries would be exempt from tax, but we cannot assure you that we will be able to obtain such treatment for dividends paid to us by our PRC subsidiaries. Moreover, if we are deemed to be a PRC resident enterprise under the EIT law, a foreign investor in us may be able to claim the benefits of any income tax treaty between his or her resident country and China. We cannot assure you, however, that treaty benefits will be available to you (for example with respect to the withholding tax rate on dividends) even if we are deemed a PRC resident enterprise.

If we are required under the EIT Law to withhold PRC income tax on our dividends payable to our foreign shareholders and ADSs holders, the value of your investment in our ADSs may be materially and adversely affected.

Gains on the sales of our shares or ADSs may become subject to PRC income taxes.

Under the EIT Law, our foreign enterprise shareholders and enterprise ADSs holders may be subject to a 20% income tax upon any gains they realize from the transfer of their shares or ADSs, if such income is regarded as income from “sources within the PRC.” What will constitute “sources within the PRC” and whether or not there will be any exemption or reduction in taxation for our foreign corporate investors, however, are unclear since no rules or guidance concerning the new tax law has been issued yet. If our foreign shareholders and ADSs holders are required to pay PRC income tax on the transfers of their shares or ADSs, the value of your investment in our ADSs may be materially and adversely affected.

This prospectus also contains data relating to the advertising industry that includes projections based on a number of assumptions. The advertising market may not grow at the rates projected by market data, or at all. The failure of these markets to grow at the projected rates may have a material adverse effect on our business and the market price of our ADSs. In particular, the relatively new and rapidly changing nature of the out-of-home advertising sector subjects any projections or estimates relating to the growth prospects or future condition of our sector to significant uncertainties. Furthermore, if any one or more of the assumptions underlying the market data

Table of ContentsOUR CORPORATE STRUCTURE*Our History

Our predecessor company, Shanghai Aiqi Advertisement Co., Ltd., or Aiqi Advertisement, was established by immediate family members of Jason Nanchun Jiang in September 1997 and operated as an advertising agency. In May 2003, Aiqi Advertisement discontinued its advertising agency business, was renamed Shanghai Focus Media Advertisement Co., Ltd., commenced operation of our out-of-home television advertising network in China and reorganized its shareholdings. At the same time, we entered into arrangements with Focus Media Advertisement that resulted in the consolidation of Focus Media Advertisement. Following this reorganization Jason Nanchun Jiang continued to hold a controlling interest in Focus Media Advertisement.

In conjunction with the change in our business model in May 2003 and to facilitate foreign investment in our company, we established our offshore holding company, Focus Media Holding Limited as a company registered in the British Virgin Islands in April 2003. In April 2005, we completed the process of changing Focus Media Holding Limited's corporate domicile to the Cayman Islands and we are now a Cayman Islands company. On July 13, 2005, our ADSs were listed for quotation on the Nasdaq Global Market. Throughout our operating history, we have expanded our existing businesses and entered into new business areas through acquisitions. The following paragraphs present the material acquisitions we have entered into during the past three years.

In January 2006, we acquired Framedia, which operates networks of advertising poster frames placed primarily in elevators and public areas of residential complexes in China. In February 2006, we acquired Target Media. Target Media operated an out-of-home advertising network using flat-panel displays placed in elevator lobbies and other public areas in commercial buildings, hospitals, hotels, banks, residential buildings, convenience stores and other locations in cities in China. Following the acquisition of Target Media, we combined Target Media's network into our existing commercial location and in-store networks. Other than holding their existing contracts, the former Target Media entities no longer conduct any operations, and the combined network is operated through our existing corporate entities. In March 2006, we acquired Focus Media Wireless, which operates a mobile handset advertising delivery platform on the mobile telecommunications networks of China Mobile and China Unicom. In September 2006, we acquired a 70% equity interest in ACL, which through its affiliated PRC entity, leases screen time from movie theaters in cities in China, which it then sells as screen time slots to advertisers. We continue, from time to time, to make acquisitions to expand our existing networks and to enter into new areas of business. For instance, in the first half of 2007, we acquired companies to expand our mobile handset advertising network and outdoor LED billboard network as well as entering into the Internet advertising business through several acquisitions including Allyes. We expect that acquisitions will continue to be an important component of our growth strategy.

In March 2007, we acquired Allyes, which operates an Internet advertising services and technology business.

Our Corporate Structure and Contractual Arrangements

Substantially all of our operations are conducted in China as follows:

- with regard to the operation of our out-of-home television networks, through Focus Media Technology, our indirect wholly-owned subsidiaries in China, Focus Media Digital, a 90%-owned subsidiary of Focus Media Technology, and New Focus Media Advertisement, a 90%-owned subsidiary of Focus Media Digital, and through our contractual arrangements with several of our consolidated affiliated entities in China, including Focus Media Advertisement, and its subsidiaries. Focus Media Advertisement owns the remaining 10% equity interest in Focus Media Digital and New Focus Media Advertisement;
- with regard to the operation of our poster frame network, through Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia and New Structure Advertisement, each of which is 90% owned by Focus Media Advertisement and 10% owned by Focus Media Advertising Agency, respectively;
- with regard to the operation of our mobile handset advertising network, through Focus Media Wireless, which is 90% owned by Focus Media Advertisement and 10% owned by Focus Media Advertising Agency, respectively; and

- with regard to the operation of the Internet advertising marketing agency business of Allyes, through seven PRC operating companies, which we refer to as the Allyes operating affiliates, each of which is owned by PRC citizens.

Each of Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology, Allyes Information Technology Co., Ltd. and their respective affiliated entities and shareholders, have entered into contractual arrangements substantially similar to those control agreements entered into among Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisements, Focus Media Advertisement and its shareholders and subsidiaries. See “Related Party Transactions — Agreements Among Us, Our Wholly Foreign-Owned Enterprises, Our PRC Operating Affiliates and Their Shareholders and Subsidiaries”.

In connection with its entry into the World Trade Organization, China is required to relax restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry in China. Accordingly, PRC regulations stipulate that starting from December 10, 2005, foreign investors are allowed to directly own 100% of PRC companies operating an advertising business if the foreign entity has at least three years of direct operations in the advertising business outside of China or to directly own less than 100% if the foreign entity has at least two years of direct operations in the advertising business outside of China. We do not currently directly operate an advertising business outside of China and cannot qualify for direct ownership of a PRC advertising company under PRC regulations any earlier than two or three years, respectively, after we commence any such operations or until we acquire a company which has directly operated an advertising business for the required period of time. We do not currently know how or when we will be able to qualify under these regulations. Even if we do qualify in the future, it may be burdensome or not cost effective for us to meet the required criteria for direct ownership. If and when we qualify for direct ownership, we intend to explore the commercial feasibility of changing our current structure, including possibly direct ownership of Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries, taking into consideration relevant cost, market, competitive and other factors. In the event we take such steps, we cannot assure you that we will be able to identify or acquire a qualified foreign company for a possible future restructuring or that any restructuring we may undertake to facilitate direct ownership will be successful.

The following diagram of our current corporate structure includes our primary businesses and the primary entities involved in the operation of those businesses and excludes dormant entities and entities, which aside from holding existing contracts, no longer conduct any operations:

- (2) Agreements that give us effective control over our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries, as described in "Related Party Transactions".
- (3) Agreement that transfer a substantial portion of the economic benefits of our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries to us, as described in "Related Party Transactions".
- (4) Each of our PRC operating affiliates is owned by two PRC shareholders, which are in each case either (i) two PRC citizens designated by us or our subsidiaries or (ii) by two PRC entities owned by our subsidiaries or by our designated appointees.
- (5) The wholly-owned entities relating to our out-of-home television network operations include New Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital and New Focus Media Digital. Accordingly, since we have not been involved in the direct operation of an advertising business outside of China, our domestic PRC subsidiaries, Focus Media Technology, Framedia Investment, Focus Media Digital and New Allyes Technology, which are considered foreign-invested, are currently ineligible to apply for the required advertising services licenses in China. Our advertising business is currently mainly provided through contractual arrangements with our consolidated affiliated entities in China, including (i) Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries with regard to our commercial location, in-store and outdoor LED networks, (ii) Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia and New Structure Advertisement with regard to our poster frame network, (iii) Focus Media Wireless with regard to our mobile handset advertising network, and (iv) each of the seven Allyes operating affiliates, and each of their respective shareholders with regard to our Internet advertising services network. Focus Media Advertisement is owned by two PRC citizens, Jason Nanchun Jiang, our chairman and chief executive officer, and Jimmy Wei Yu, one of our directors. Each of Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia, New Structure Advertisement and Focus Media Wireless is owned by Focus Media Advertisement and Focus Media Advertising Agency. Each of the Allyes operating affiliates is owned by two PRC citizens. Each of Focus Media Advertisement, several of its subsidiaries, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement, Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia, New Structure Advertisement, Focus Media Wireless, and the Allyes operating affiliates, which we refer to collectively as our PRC operating affiliates, holds the requisite licenses to provide advertising, telecommunications or Internet services in China, as applicable. In 2006, we began operating a portion of our advertising business through our 90%-owned indirect subsidiary Focus Media Advertisement after which time we will no longer entirely rely on contractual arrangements with our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries and shareholders for the operation of our advertising business.

We have been and are expected to continue to be dependent on our PRC operating affiliates to operate our advertising business until we acquire them as our wholly-owned subsidiaries. We and Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement, Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology, New Allyes Information Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. and New Allyes Technology, which we refer to as our wholly-foreign owned entities, have entered into contractual arrangements with their respective PRC operating affiliates and shareholders, pursuant to which:

- we are able to exert effective control over our PRC operating affiliates;
- a substantial portion of the economic benefits of our PRC operating affiliates will be transferred to us; and
- each of our wholly-foreign owned entities or their respective designees has an exclusive option to purchase all or part of the equity interests in our PRC affiliated entities or their respective nominee holders, or, in some cases, all or part of the assets of our PRC affiliated entities, in each case when and to the extent permitted by PRC law.

Each of our contractual arrangements with our PRC affiliated entities and their respective shareholders and subsidiaries can only be amended with the approval of our audit committee or another independent body of our board of directors. See "Related Party Transactions" for further information on our contractual arrangements with these parties.

In the opinion of Global Law Office, our PRC legal counsel:

- the respective ownership structures of Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective PRC operating affiliates and subsidiaries are in compliance with existing PRC laws and regulations;
- the contractual arrangements among Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective PRC operating affiliates, subsidiaries and shareholders, in each case governed by PRC law are valid, binding and enforceable, and will not result in any violation of PRC laws or regulations currently in effect; and
- the PRC business operations of Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective PRC operating affiliates and subsidiaries as described in this prospectus, are in compliance with existing PRC laws and regulations in all material respects.

We have been advised by our PRC legal counsel, however, that there are substantial uncertainties regarding the interpretation and application of current and future PRC laws and regulations. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the PRC regulatory authorities, in particular the SAIC which regulates advertising companies, will not in the future take a view that is contrary to the above opinion of our PRC legal counsel. We have been further advised by our PRC counsel that if the PRC government finds that the agreements that establish the structure for operating our PRC advertising business do not comply with PRC government restrictions on foreign investment in advertising businesses, we could be subject to severe penalties. See “Risk Factors — If the PRC government finds that the agreements that establish the structure for operating our China business do not comply with PRC governmental restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry, we could be subject to severe penalties”, “— Our business operations may be affected by legislative or regulatory changes” and “— The PRC legal system embodies uncertainties which could limit the legal protections available to you and us”.

Table of ContentsUSE OF PROCEEDS

We estimate that we will receive net proceeds from this offering of approximately $312.5 million, or approximately $438.2 million if the underwriters exercise their option in full to purchase additional ADSs, after deducting underwriting discounts and the estimated offering expenses payable by us. We will not receive any of the proceeds from the sale of ADSs by the selling shareholders.

We anticipate using the net proceeds of this offering to fund potential acquisitions. We may use any remaining amounts for our future general corporate purposes.

The foregoing represents our current intentions with respect to the use of the net proceeds of this offering based upon our present plans and business conditions, but our management will have significant flexibility and discretion in applying the net proceeds of the offering. The occurrence of new business opportunities, unforeseen events or changed business conditions may result in application of the proceeds of this offering in a manner other than as described in this prospectus. At this time, we have not entered into advanced discussions or negotiations with respect to any potential material acquisitions.

To the extent that the net proceeds we receive from this offering are not immediately applied for the above purposes, we intend to invest our net proceeds in short-term, interest bearing debt instruments or bank deposits. These investments may have a material adverse effect on the U.S. federal income tax consequences of your investment in our ADSs. It is possible that we may become a passive foreign investment company for United States federal income tax purposes, which could result in negative tax consequences for you. These consequences are described in more detail elsewhere in this prospectus.

In utilizing the proceeds of this offering in the manner described above, as an offshore holding company of our PRC operating subsidiaries and affiliates, we may make loans to our PRC subsidiaries and consolidated PRC affiliated entities, or we may make additional capital contributions to our PRC subsidiaries. Any loans to our PRC subsidiaries or consolidated PRC affiliated entities are subject to PRC regulations and approvals. For example:

- loans by us to Focus Media Technology and Focus Media Digital through Focus Media Technology, each a foreign invested enterprise, to finance its activities cannot exceed statutory limits and must be registered with the State Administration of Foreign Exchange or its local counterpart; and
- loans by us to Focus Media Advertisement or its subsidiaries, which are domestic PRC enterprises, must be approved by the relevant government authority and must also be registered with the State Administration of Foreign Exchange or its local counterpart.

We may also determine to finance Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement through Focus Media Technology, Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology or New Allies Information by means of capital contributions. These capital contributions must be approved by the PRC Ministry of Commerce or its local counterpart. Because Focus Media Advertisement, Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia, New Structure Advertisement, Focus Media Wireless, New Allies Information and their respective subsidiaries are domestic PRC enterprises, we are not likely to finance their activities by means of capital contributions due to regulatory issues relating to foreign investment in domestic PRC enterprises, as well as the licensing and other regulatory issues discussed in "Regulation of Our Industry". We cannot assure you that we can obtain these government registrations or approvals on a timely basis, if at all, with respect to future loans or capital contributions by us to Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement, Framedia Investment, Focus Media Wireless, Focus Media Advertisement, New Allies Information or any of their respective subsidiaries.

Table of ContentsDIVIDEND POLICY

We have not previously declared any dividends. In 2004, we recorded deemed dividends of $8.3 million, $2.2 million and $13.4 million in connection with our Series A, Series B and Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares, of which $4.9 million of the deemed dividend related to the difference between the fair value at that time of the Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares and ordinary shares in connection with a sale of 9,729,600 ordinary shares by Jason Nanchun Jiang, our chairman and CEO, to a third-party investor, which shares were redesignated as Series C-1 convertible redeemable preference shares. These deemed dividends were not cash dividends and upon conversion of our Series A, Series B and Series C-1 and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares into ordinary shares, we are no longer required to record deemed dividends prospectively. We currently intend to retain all available funds and any future earnings for use in the operation and expansion of our business and do not anticipate paying any cash dividends on our ordinary shares, or indirectly on our ADSs, for the foreseeable future.

Future cash dividends, if any, will be at the discretion of our board of directors and will depend upon our future operations and earnings, capital requirements and surplus, general financial condition, shareholders' interests, contractual restrictions and other factors as our board of directors may deem relevant. In addition, we can pay dividends only out of our profits or other distributable reserves. Any dividend we declare will be paid to the holders of ADSs, subject to the terms of the deposit agreement, to the same extent as holders of our ordinary shares, less the fees and expenses payable under the deposit agreement. Other distributions, if any, will be paid by the depositary to holders of our ADSs in any means it deems legal, fair and practical. Any dividend will be distributed by the depositary, in the form of cash or additional ADSs, to the holders of our ADSs. Cash dividends on our ADSs, if any, will be paid in U.S. dollars. See "Description of American Depositary Shares".

Our operating businesses are currently conducted in China and substantially all of our revenues and expenses are denominated in Renminbi. The People's Bank of China, or PBOC, sets and publishes daily a base exchange rate with reference primarily to the supply and demand of Renminbi against a basket of currencies in the market during the prior day. The PBOC also takes into account other factors, such as the general conditions existing in the international foreign exchange markets. Since 1994, the conversion of Renminbi into foreign currencies, including Hong Kong dollars and U.S. dollars, has been based on rates set by the PBOC, which are set daily based on the previous day's inter-bank foreign exchange market rates and current exchange rates in the world financial markets. From 1994 to July 20, 2005, the official exchange rate for the conversion of Renminbi to U.S. dollars was generally stable. Although PRC governmental policies were introduced in 1996 to reduce restrictions on the convertibility of Renminbi into foreign currency for current account items, conversion of Renminbi into foreign exchange for capital items, such as foreign direct investment, loans or securities, requires the approval of the State Administration for Foreign Exchange and other relevant authorities. On July 21, 2005, the PRC government introduced a managed floating exchange rate system to allow the value of the Renminbi to fluctuate within a regulated band based on market supply and demand and by reference to a basket of currencies. On the same day, the value of the Renminbi appreciated by 2.0% against the U.S. dollar. Since then, the PRC government has made, and may in the future make, further adjustments to the exchange rate system. The PBOC announces the closing price of a foreign currency traded against the Renminbi in the inter-bank foreign exchange market after the closing of the market on each working day, and makes it the central parity for the trading against the Renminbi on the following working day.

The conversion of Renminbi into U.S. dollars in this prospectus is based on the noon buying rate in The City of New York for cable transfers of Renminbi as certified for customs purposes by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. For your convenience, this prospectus contains translations of Renminbi at $1.00 to RMB 7.6120, which was the prevailing rate on June 30, 2007. The prevailing rate at November 6, 2007 was $1.00 to RMB 7.4515. We make no representation that any Renminbi or U.S. dollar amounts could have been, or could be, converted into U.S. dollars or Renminbi, as the case may be, at any particular rate, the rates stated below, or at all. The PRC government imposes controls over its foreign currency reserves in part through direct regulation of the conversion of Renminbi into foreign exchange and through restrictions on foreign trade.

Table of ContentsSELECTED CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL AND OPERATING DATA

The following selected consolidated financial information has been derived from our consolidated financial statements. Our consolidated financial statements are prepared by including the financial statements of Focus Media Advertisement, formerly Aiqi Advertising, through May 2003 and our consolidated financials, which include the consolidation of Focus Media Advertisement, Shanghai Perfect Media, Focus Media Wireless and the entities that operate our Internet advertising services network as variable interest entities, thereafter and are presented in accordance with U.S. GAAP. Our statements of operations for 2004, 2005 and 2006 and our balance sheets as of December 31, 2005 and 2006 are derived from those financial statements that has been included elsewhere in this prospectus.

Our selected consolidated financial information for the years ended December 31, 2002 and 2003 have been derived from Focus Media Advertisement audited consolidated financial statements, which are not included in this prospectus. Our statement of operations for each of the six months ended June 30, 2006 and 2007 and balance sheet data as of June 30, 2006 and 2007 has been derived from our unaudited consolidated financial data which has been included elsewhere in this prospectus. We have prepared the unaudited consolidated financial data on the same basis as the audited consolidated financial statements and have included, in our opinion, all adjustments, consisting only of normal and recurring adjustments, that we consider necessary for a fair presentation of the financial information set forth in those statements. Our historical results for any prior or interim period are not necessarily indicative of results to be expected for a full fiscal year or for any future period. The selected consolidated financial information for the periods and as of the dates indicated should be read in conjunction with our financial statements and the accompanying notes and "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operations".

Prior to May 2003, we operated as an advertising agency, the operations and services of which differ markedly from our current business. As an advertising agency, we assisted media companies in selling their advertising time or space to companies seeking to advertise in exchange for a commission. In May 2003, we ceased acting as an advertising agency and commenced our current business as an operator of an out-of-home advertising network, consisting first of our commercial location network. In April 2005, we commenced commercial operations of our in-store network and through our acquisition of Framedia, we commenced operation of our poster frame network on January 1, 2006. In February 2006, we acquired Target Media and in March 2006, we acquired Focus Media Wireless. In March 2007, we acquired Allies.

Overview

Our out-of-home advertising network consists of (i) our digital out-of-home advertising networks, comprising our commercial location network, in-store network and poster frame network, (ii) our mobile handset advertising network; and (iii) our Internet advertising services network. We have experienced significant revenue and earnings growth, and the size of our network has grown significantly since we commenced our current business operations in May 2003.

The significant increase in our operating results since we commenced our current business operations is attributable to a number of factors, including the substantial expansion of our digital out-of-home advertising networks, the ongoing expansion of our mobile handset advertising network, the introduction of Internet advertising services into our platform, the successful execution and integration of strategic acquisitions, such as Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless, ACL and Allyes, and the growing acceptance of our multi-platform network as an appealing advertising medium by our clients.

We expect our future growth to be driven by a number of factors and trends including:

- Overall economic growth in China, which we expect to contribute to an increase in advertising spending in major urban areas in China where consumer spending is concentrated;
- Our ability to increase sales of advertising time slots and extend the duration of our advertising cycle on our commercial location and in-store networks;
- Our ability to increase sales of frame space on our poster frame network;
- Our ability to expand our client base through promotion of our services and cross-selling;
- Our ability to identify and create new advertising channels by establishing separate advertising networks that enable advertisers to target a diverse range of consumer groups with specific demographic profiles;
- Our ability to successfully enter into the mobile handset advertising business, in part through our recent acquisition of Focus Media Wireless;
- Our ability to successfully operate and market our new outdoor LED billboard network;
- Our ability to successfully operate and market our new Internet advertising services network; and
- Our ability to acquire and integrate companies that operate advertising businesses complementary to our existing operations.

Because our primary source of revenue is our advertising service revenue, we focus on factors that directly affect our advertising service revenue such as the size and scope of our network, the quality of the locations where we place our network and the price we charge for our advertising time slots after taking into account any discounts.

As we continue to expand our network, we expect to face a number of challenges. We have expanded our network rapidly, and we, as well as our competitors, have occupied many of the most desirable locations in China's major cities. In order to continue expanding our network in a manner that is attractive to potential advertising clients, we may continue to enter into new advertising media platforms and to establish additional stand-alone networks that provide effective channels for advertisers. In addition, we must react to continuing technological innovations, such as the potential uses of wireless and broadband technology in our network, and changes in the regulatory environment.

Our financial results for 2006 also include those of Framedia that we acquired on January 1, 2006, of Target Media that we acquired on February 28, 2006 and, starting in the second quarter of 2006, those of Focus Media Wireless that we acquired in March 2006. Starting in March 2007, our financial results also include those of Allyes, the acquisition of which we completed in March 2007.

Revenues

In 2004, 2005 and 2006, and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, we had total revenues of $29.2 million, $68.2 million, $211.9 million and $170.6 million, respectively. We generate revenues from the sale of advertising time slots on our digital out-of-home advertising networks, from the sale of frame space on our poster frame network, from advertising services through our mobile handset advertising network and, since April 2007, from Internet advertising services and software. Our advertising service revenue includes the sale of advertising time slots on our network, as well as a small amount of revenue attributable to other advertising related services we provide to our advertising clients. We also derive revenues from the sale of our flat-panel displays to regional distributors, which we refer to as our advertising equipment revenue. In 2004, 2005 and 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, our advertising service revenue accounted for 90.1%, 98.0%, 99.1% and 99.6% of our total revenues, respectively. Advertising Service Revenue

Sources of Revenue. We derive most of our total revenues from the sale of time slots and frame space on our digital out-of-home advertising networks to unrelated third parties and to some of our related parties. We report our advertising revenue between related and unrelated parties because historically more than 10% of our advertising service revenues came from clients related to some of our directors. Our advertising services to related parties were provided in the ordinary course of business on the same terms as those provided to our unrelated advertising clients on an arm's-length basis.

Our advertising service revenue is recorded net of any sales discounts and agency rebates from our standard advertising rate cards that we may provide to our advertising clients. These discounts include volume discounts and other customary incentives offered to our advertising clients, including additional broadcast time for their advertisements if we have unused time slots or frame space available in a particular city's advertising cycle, and represent the difference between our standard rate card and the amount we charge our advertising clients. Our advertising clients include advertisers that directly engage in advertisement placements with us and advertising agencies retained by some advertisers to place advertisements on the advertiser's behalf. We occasionally agree to pay advertising agency customers sales rebates calculated on the revenues generated by them. We expect that our advertising service revenue will continue to be the primary source, and constitute the substantial majority of, our revenues for the foreseeable future.

Our advertising service revenue reflects a deduction for business taxes and related surcharges incurred in connection with our operations. Their revenues are subject to a sales tax consisting of approximately 5.55% business tax and a cultural industries tax ranging from 0% to 4.0% on revenues earned from their advertising services provided in China. We deduct these amounts from our advertising service revenues to arrive at our total revenues attributable to advertising services.

Factors that Affect Our Advertising Service Revenue

Digital Out-of-home Advertising Service Revenues

Prices for advertising services on our digital out-of-home advertising networks also vary significantly from city to city as income levels, standards of living and general economic conditions vary significantly from region to region in China, which in turn affect the advertising rates we are able to charge for time slots and frame space.

Commercial Location Network

Our advertising service revenue derived from our commercial location network is directly affected by the average price we charge for the advertising package provided to our customers, after taking into account any discount offered, as well as by the following factors:

- LCD display network. The number of flat-panel displays in our network and the desirability, quality and pedestrian traffic of the locations where we are able to lease space to install our flat-panel displays and;
- Outdoor LED billboard network. The number of publicly placed LED billboards in our network and the desirability, quality and pedestrian traffic of the locations of the LED billboards we own or lease from third-parties; and
- Movie theater advertising network. The number of movie theaters in which we have leased screen time, our expansion into additional theaters, and the length of the leased screen time, which is currently three minutes per screening per theater prior to movie screenings at movie theaters.

In-store Network

Our advertising service revenue derived from our in-store network is directly affected by the number of flat-panel displays in our network, the number of hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores in the network, and the average price we charge for the advertising package provided to our customers, after taking into account any discount offered.

Table of ContentsPoster Frame Network

Our advertising service revenue derived from our poster frame network is directly affected by:

- the number of frames in our poster frame network. We sell frame space on our poster frame network on a per frame basis. Increasing the number of residential and other locations on our poster frame network allows us to increase the number of frames on our network, thereby increases the available frame space for sale to advertisers. As we upgrade the network to incorporate more digital poster frames, we will also increase the available space as multiple advertisements can be placed on a digital frame on time-shared basis; and
- the average price we charge for frame space on a per frame basis, after taking into account any discount offered.

Mobile Handset Advertising Service Revenues

Our advertising service revenue derived from our mobile handset advertising network is directly affected by:

- the number of messages we deliver to mobile phone users. We charge advertisers fees based on the number of successfully delivered messages; and
- the average price we charge per message.

Internet Advertising Service Revenues

As of March 2007, we derive revenue from our Internet advertising business operated by Allyes. Our advertising service revenue derived from our Internet advertising services is directly affected by:

- the number of customers who purchase agency services from us. We agree to provide advertising agency services and technology, and we charge fees based on the size and duration of the advertising campaign and the number of daily impressions or “hits” on the Internet advertisement; and
- our ability to identify relevant Internet user traffic and deliver effective advertisements for our advertising clients

Network Expansion. Many of the most desirable locations for our digital out-of-home advertising network have been occupied, either by our network as a result of our expansion or by our competitors. As a result, we will need to rely on means other than the rapid increase in the number of locations, flat-panel displays, LED billboards and advertising poster frames in order to continue growing our revenues. We have focused, and expect to continue to focus, on developing new channels in our out-of-home television advertising networks and entering into new types of advertising media operations to continue to grow our revenues and to address these potential capacity constraints on our existing network. These steps have included: (1) expanding our digital out-of-home advertising network through increasing the size and scope of our existing commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks, and adding new media such as LED billboards and movie theater screens to our out-of-home television networks, (2) establishing discrete stand-alone channels on our commercial location network, such as our premier A and B office building, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels and (3) expanding our media platform into new areas such as mobile handset advertising services and Internet advertising services and software packages. We expect to continue to explore opportunities to open up additional channels on our existing network and to enter into new advertising media platforms in China. We intend to continue expanding our out-of-home advertising network both through increasing the number of locations, displays and advertising poster frames on our commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks and through strategic acquisition of competitors and businesses that complement our existing out-of-home advertising network. In addition, we entered into new advertising platforms through Focus Media Wireless’ mobile handset advertising network and our outdoor LED billboard network, and into Internet advertising services through our recent acquisition of Allyes. We believe these measures will enable us to continue the future growth of our business.

Seasonality. Our advertising service revenue is subject to key factors that affect the level of advertising spending in China generally. In addition to fluctuations in advertising spending relating to general economic and market conditions, advertising spending is also subject to fluctuations based on the seasonality of consumer spending. In general, a disproportionately larger amount of advertising spending is concentrated on product launches and promotional campaigns prior to the holiday season in December. In addition, advertising spending generally tends to decrease in China during January and February each year due to the Chinese Lunar New Year holiday as office buildings and other commercial venues in China tend to be closed during the holiday. We believe this effect will be less pronounced with regard to advertising spending on our in-store network, as we believe commercial activity in hypermarkets and supermarkets is stable or even enhanced during the period of Chinese Lunar New Year. We also experience a slight decrease in revenues during the hot summer months of July and August each year, when there is a relative slowdown in overall commercial activity in urban areas in China. Our past experience, although limited, indicates that our revenues would tend to be lower in the first quarter and higher in the fourth quarter of each year, assuming other factors were to remain constant, such as our advertising rates and the number of available time slots on our network.

Revenue Recognition. We typically sign standard advertising contracts with our advertising clients, which require us to run the advertiser's advertisements on our network in specified cities for a specified period, typically from four to twelve weeks. We do not bill our advertising clients under these contracts until we perform the advertising service by broadcasting the advertisement on our network. Advertising service revenues are recognized in accordance with Topic 13 of Staff Accounting Bulletin ("SAB") "Revenue Recognition (SAB 101 and SAB 104)" when all four of the following criteria are met: (i) persuasive evidence of agreement exists; (ii) delivery of service has occurred; (iii) the price is both fixed and determinable; and (iv) collection of the resulting receivable is reasonably assured.

For digital out-of-home advertising revenues, net of agency rebates are recognized ratably over the period in which the advertisement is displayed. Revenue collected from our poster frame network is recognized in substantially the same manner as revenues collected under the advertising contracts used for our commercial location and in-store networks. For mobile handset advertising revenues, advertising revenues primarily consists of service revenue for delivering advertisement and other messages to the targeted mobile phone devices through channels provided by telecommunication vendors. Revenues from such services, net of agency rebates, are recognized when these messages are delivered to the vendor's channels. For Internet advertising services revenue, revenues primarily consist of revenues from advertising and advertising-related services and revenues from sales of Adforward software. We sell Adforward subscriptions and perpetual licenses, from which revenues are recognized in accordance with the Statement of Position ("SOP") No. 97-2 "Software Revenue Recognition", as amended by SOP No. 98-9, "Modification of SOP No. 97-2, Software Revenue Recognition, With Respect to Certain Transactions." Under SOP No. 97-2, revenues are recognized for subscription arrangements ratably over the subscription period for those with fixed fees and as earned (based on actual usage) under our variable fee arrangements. For perpetual license agreements, revenue is generally recognized when delivery has occurred, software has been installed and training has been provided as we do not currently have vendor-specific objective evidence of fair value, or VSOE, for either installation or training services. When we are considered as an agent, we recognize revenue on a net basis.

We generally collect our advertising service fees by billing our advertising clients within 60 to 90 days after completion of the advertising contract and book these unbilled or unpaid amounts as accounts receivable until we receive payment or determine the account receivable to be uncollectible.

Our accounts receivable are general unsecured obligations of our advertising clients and we do not receive interest on unpaid amounts. We make specific reserves for accounts that we consider to be uncollectible. We also provide a general reserve for uncollectible accounts that we reassess on an annual basis. We made no provision for uncollectible accounts in 2003. In 2004, 2005, 2006 and six months ended June 30, 2007, we made provision of $173,837, $396,657, $1,308,554 and $4,163,933, respectively, for accounts receivable that were outstanding for longer than six months. The average number of days outstanding of our accounts receivable, including from related parties, was 51, 70, 66 and 91, respectively, as of December 31, 2004, 2005, 2006 and June 30, 2007.

Other Revenue

We also derive a portion of our total revenues from the sale of flat-panel displays to our regional distributors on a cost-plus basis, and franchise fee which we record as other revenue. Other revenue represented 9.9%, 2.0%, 0.9%

and 0.4% of our total revenues in 2004, 2005 and 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. Other revenue derived from sale of flat-panel displays is recorded net of the 17% value added tax to which equipment sales in China are subject. We expect that other revenue as a percentage of our total revenues will continue to be low.

Cost of Revenues

Our cost of revenues consists of costs directly related to the offering of our advertising services and costs related to our sales of advertising equipment.

The following table sets forth our cost of revenues, divided into its major components, by amount and percentage of our total revenues for the periods indicated:

Advertising Service Costs

Our cost of revenues related to the offering of our advertising services on our advertising network consists of location costs, flat-panel display depreciation costs, amortization of acquired intangible assets and other cost items, including salaries for and travel expenses incurred by our network maintenance staff and costs for materials.

Our location costs for our out-of-home television networks consist of:

- rental fees and one-time signing payments we pay to landlords, property managers and stores pursuant to the display placement agreements we enter into with them;
- commissions and public relations expenses we incur in connection with developing and maintaining relationships with landlords and property managers; and
- maintenance fees for keeping our displays in proper operating condition.

Generally, we capitalize the cost of our media displays and recognize depreciation costs on a straight-line basis over the term of their useful lives, which we estimate to be five years. The primary factors affecting our depreciation costs are the number of flat-panel displays in our network and the unit cost for those displays, as well as the remaining useful life of the displays.

Amortization of acquired intangible assets consists of operating and broadcasting rights, lease agreements, completed technology and others. We expect our results of operations for a period of at least seven years beginning in 2006 to be negatively affected by the amortization of intangible assets in relation to, among other things, material contracts and customer lists as a result of several acquisitions, particularly Framedia, Target Media, Focus Media Wireless and Allyes.

Our other cost of revenues consists of salary for and travel expenses incurred by our network maintenance staff and costs for materials and maintenance in connection with the upkeep of our advertising network. The primary factor affecting our other costs of revenues is the size of our network maintenance staff. As the size of our network increases, we expect our network maintenance staff, and associated costs, to increase in absolute terms, but to decrease as a percentage of total revenues.

Commercial Location Network. Location costs are the largest component of our cost of revenues for our commercial location network. The primary factors affecting the amount of our location costs include the number of display placement agreements we enter into and the rental fees we pay under those agreements. We expect these costs to decrease as a percentage of our advertising service revenue for our commercial location network in the future, as our advertising service revenue for our commercial location network is expected to increase faster than the additional cost we incur from entering into new display placement agreements and any increases we may experience in renewing existing display placement agreements. However, when our display placement agreements expire, we may be unable to renew these agreements on favorable terms and the rental fee portion of our location costs attributable to these existing locations could increase. As we continue to increase the size of our network and as we update and replace our existing displays with new technology, our depreciation costs in connection with our commercial location network are expected to increase.

In-store Network. The primary costs of revenues connected with our in-store network are location costs resulting from rental and maintenance fees and depreciation costs for our displays. We expect these costs to continue to increase in 2007 as we expand our in-store network.

Poster Frame Network. The primary costs of revenues connected with our poster frame network are location costs resulting from rental fees. Depreciation costs for our frames and other costs for salary and maintenance fees also account for a significant portion of cost of revenues for our poster frame network. We expect these costs to increase in 2007 as we expand and upgrade our poster frame network but to decrease as a percentage of advertising service revenue for our poster frame network.

Mobile Handset Advertising Network. The primary costs of revenues connected with our mobile handset advertising network are message costs charged by telecommunications network operations. We expect these costs to increase as the number of advertising messages and campaigns on this network increases.

Internet Advertising Services Network. The primary costs of revenues connected with our Internet advertising services network are advertising space leasing costs charged by gateway websites and research and development costs in connection with the development of Internet advertising software packages. We expect these costs to increase as we continue to expand this part of our business as Internet use continues to grow in China.

Other Costs

Other costs consists of the amounts we pay to the contract assembler who purchases the components and assembles them into the flat-panel displays we sell to our regional distributors. Other costs were 6.6%, 1.4%, 0.4%, 0.4% and 0.2% of our total revenues in 2004, 2005, 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2006 and June 30, 2007, respectively. The primary factors affecting other costs are the number of flat-panel displays we sell and the unit cost we pay to our contract assembler for each such flat-panel display.

Table of ContentsOperating Expenses and Net Income

Our operating expenses consist of general and administrative, selling and marketing expenses, other operating income. In 2004, our operating expenses also included a goodwill impairment loss. The following table sets forth our operating expenses, divided into their major categories by amount and as a percentage of our total revenues for the periods indicated.

General and Administrative. General and administrative expenses primarily consist of salary and benefits for management, finance and administrative personnel, share-based compensation expense for our administrative staff, office rental, maintenance and utilities expenses, depreciation of office equipment, other office expenses and professional services fees. General and administrative expenses were 13.7%, 13.4%, 12.1% and 11.9% of our total revenues in 2004, 2005 and 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. Salaries and benefits accounted for 20.2%, 26.9%, 23.3% and 19.7% of our general and administrative expenses in 2004, 2005, 2006 and six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. We expect that our general and administrative expenses will be relatively stable as a percentage of total revenues in the near term but to increase in absolute terms as we hire additional personnel and incur additional costs in connection with the expansion of our business and with being a publicly traded company, including costs of enhancing our internal controls.

Selling and Marketing. Our selling and marketing expenses primarily consist of salaries and benefits, share-based compensation expense for our sales staff, marketing and promotional expenses, amortization of certain acquired intangible assets such as customer base, and other costs related to supporting our sales force. Selling and marketing expenses were 11.9%, 14.0%, 12.2% and 13.5% of our total revenues in 2004, 2005, 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. As we acquired more of our regional distributors, continue to expand our client base and have commenced operation of new advertising platforms, we increased our sales force, which resulted in an increase in salary expenses. We now budget approximately 15% of our advertising revenues to be used for selling and marketing in 2007. We expect selling and marketing expenses to remain relatively stable as a percentage of total revenues.

Share-based Compensation. Prior to 2006, our share-based compensation expense relating to general and administrative and selling and marketing primarily consists of the amortized portion of deferred share-based compensation recognized by us. We issued options representing 10.87% of our issued share capital under our 2003 Employee Share Option Scheme, or the 2003 Option Plan. In addition, we have issued options representing 3.95% of our issued share capital under our 2005 Share Option Plan, or the 2005 Option Plan. Our share-based compensation relating to general and administrative accounted for 11.6%, 7.5%, 23.8% and 23.2% of our general and administrative expenses in 2004, 2005, 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. Share-based compensation relating to selling and marketing accounted for 0.8%, 0.5%, 8.1% and 18.0% of our selling and marketing expenses in 2004, 2005, 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. The share-based compensation has increased following the effectiveness, as of January 2006, of Statement of Financial Accounting

Standards No. 123(R) relating to share-based compensation, which requires us to record the fair value of such awards as compensation expense. As a result, we recorded total share-based compensation expense of $8.4 million and $9.4 million for 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively.

Critical Accounting Policies

We prepare our financial statements in conformity with U.S. GAAP, which requires us to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities on the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the financial reporting period. We continually evaluate these estimates and assumptions based on the most recently available information, our own historical experience and on various other assumptions that we believe to be reasonable under the circumstances. Since the use of estimates is an integral component of the financial reporting process, actual results could differ from those estimates. Some of our accounting policies require higher degrees of judgment than others in their application. We consider the policies discussed below to be critical to an understanding of our financial statements as these policies address some of the most significant accounts in our financial statements and their application places the most significant demands on our management's judgment.

Share-based Compensation

Through 2005, we accounted for our share option plan using the intrinsic value method under Accounting Principles Board, or APB, No. 25. Effective the beginning of 2006, we adopted Statement of Financial Accounting Standards, or SFAS, No. 123-R, "Share-Based Payment", and elected to adopt the modified prospective application method. SFAS No. 123-R requires us to use a fair-value based method to account for share-based compensation. Accordingly, share-based expense is measured at the grant date, based on the fair value of the award, and is recognized as expense over the employees' requisite service period. Our share option plans are described in Note 10 to our consolidated financial statements.

We estimated the fair value of share options granted using the Black-Scholes-Merton option pricing model, which requires the input of highly subjective assumptions, including the estimated expected life of the share options, estimated forfeitures and the price volatility of the underlying shares. The assumptions used in calculating the fair value of share options represent management's best estimates, but these estimates involve inherent uncertainties and the application of management judgement. As a result, if factors change and we use different assumptions, our share-based compensation expense could be materially different in the future. In addition, we estimate our expected forfeiture rate and recognize the expense only for those shares expected to vest. These estimations are based on past employee retention rates and our expectations of future retention rates. We will prospectively revise our estimated forfeiture rates based on actual history. Our compensation expense may change based on changes to our actual forfeitures of these share options.

Income Taxes

We account for income taxes under the provisions of SFAS No. 109, "Accounting for Income Taxes", with the required disclosures as described in Note 11 to our consolidated financial statements. We record a valuation allowance to reduce our deferred tax assets to the amount that we believe is more likely than not to be realized. In the event we were to determine that we would be able to realize our deferred tax assets in the future in excess of their recorded amount, an adjustment to our deferred tax assets would increase our income in the period such determination was made. Likewise, if we determine that we would not be able to realize all or part of our net deferred tax assets in the future, an adjustment to our deferred tax assets would be charged to our income in the period such determination is made. We record income tax expense on our taxable income using the balance sheet liability method at the effective rate applicable to each of our affiliated entities in China in our consolidated statements of operations and comprehensive income.

Goodwill and Long-lived Assets Impairment

We test goodwill for possible impairment on an annual basis as of December 31 of each year and at any other time if an event occurs or circumstances change that would more likely than not reduce the fair value of a reporting

unit below its carrying amount. Circumstances that could trigger an impairment test between annual tests include, but are not limited to:

- a significant adverse change in the business climate or legal factors;
- an adverse action or assessment by a regulator;
- unanticipated competition;
- loss of key personnel;
- the likelihood that a reporting unit or a significant portion of a reporting unit will be sold or disposed of;
- a change in reportable segments;
- results of testing for recoverability of a significant asset group within a reporting unit; and/or

As of December 31, 2004, 2005, 2006 and June 30, 2007, we had a goodwill balance of $9.1 million, $13.3 million, $739.7 million and $924.2 million, respectively, which is not deductible for tax purposes. We incurred a goodwill impairment loss of $58,397 in 2004 in connection with our acquisition of Perfect Media which is part of the commercial location reporting segment. In conducting our annual impairment test, we undertook a valuation of Perfect Media using the expected present value of cash flow and the income approach valuation methods, which resulted in a goodwill impairment loss of $58,397 in 2004, indicating that the value of Perfect Media was less than what we paid at the time we acquired it.

The fair value of each reporting unit is determined by allocating our total fair value among our reporting units using a certain valuation technique. We may incur additional goodwill impairment charges in the future although we cannot predict whether this will occur when we perform our goodwill impairment test each year.

We test long-lived assets for possible impairment if an event occurs or circumstances change that would more likely than not reduce the fair value of an asset group below its carrying amount. Asset recoverability is an area involving management judgement, requiring assessment in two steps as to whether the carrying value of assets can be supported by (1) the undiscounted future cash flows and (2) the net present value of future cash flows derived from such assets using cash flow projections which have been discounted at an appropriate rate. In calculating the net present value of the future cash flows, certain assumptions are required to be made in respect of highly uncertain matters such as revenue growth rates, gross margin percentages and terminal growth rates.

Taxation

Cayman Islands, the British Virgin Islands and Hong Kong

Under the current laws of the Cayman Islands, the British Virgin Islands and Hong Kong, neither Focus Media Holding Limited, incorporated in the Cayman Islands, nor Infoachieve Limited and Dotad Holdings Limited, incorporated in the British Virgin Islands, are subject to tax on its income or capital gains. Focus Media Hong Kong, our wholly owned subsidiary incorporated in Hong Kong, is subject to profits tax rate of 17.5% on its assessable profits, yet interest derived from deposits placed in Hong Kong with authorized institutions are exempted from the Hong Kong profits tax. In addition, payment of dividends by either company is not subject to withholding tax in those jurisdictions.

PRC

Our PRC entities are subject to PRC business tax. We primarily pay business tax on gross revenues generated from our advertising services. Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement and Framedia Advertisement, pay a 5% business tax, whereas Focus Media Wireless pays a 3% business tax on the gross revenues derived from advertising services and this business tax is deducted from total revenues in calculating the net revenues. Focus Media Technology and Focus Media Digital pay a 5% business tax on the gross revenues derived from their contractual arrangements with Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries and these taxes are primarily recorded in operating expenses.

In addition to business tax and cultural industries tax imposed on our advertising business and VAT imposed on our sales of advertising equipment. Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital and Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries, including Focus Media Advertising Agency and New Focus Media Advertisement, are subject to PRC enterprise income tax on their taxable income, except to the extent some of them enjoy temporary tax exempt status as described in further detail below.

Pursuant to PRC law, enterprise income tax is generally assessed at the rate of 33% of taxable income. Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries and New Focus Media Advertisement are currently subject to this 33% enterprise income tax. State Administration of Taxation and its delegates of the PRC are authorized to grant an exemption from enterprise income tax of up to two years to newly established domestic companies that have no direct foreign ownership and that are financially independent and engaged in consulting services, technology services or the information industry, which includes advertising services. A qualifying company must apply for this tax-exempt status for each of the two years separately. Focus Media Digital and Focus Media Advertising Agency were established in October 2004 and both were granted exemptions from enterprise income tax in 2004 and 2005. In 2006 and 2007, we continued our tax exempt status through New Focus Media Advertisement, New Focus Media Agency, Focus Media Defeng Advertisement, New Structure Advertisement and Focus Media Wireless, which were established during the period from October 2005 to June 2006 and have obtained tax-exempt approval for 2006 and 2007.

In November 2004, Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Advertisement and some of its subsidiaries sold all of their flat-panel display equipment to Focus Media Digital at fair market value. As a result of this sale, Focus Media Technology and Focus Media Advertisement recorded a non-cash charge to earnings in the aggregate of $4,773,030 in the fourth quarter of 2004, which reflected the difference between the fair market value of the equipment and its then current book value. In addition, since its establishment, through December 31, 2005, Focus Media Advertising Agency has generated revenue by selling time slots on our advertising network and pays a dissemination fee to Focus Media Advertisement and its certain subsidiaries, which places advertisements for Focus Media Advertising Agency's clients on our network. Finally, Focus Media Agency also license technology used in our business operations from Focus Media Digital in exchange for license fees paid to Focus Media Digital. As a result of Focus Media Agency's amortization of the license fee paid to Focus Media Digital, it incurred a charge to earnings of $3.7 million in the fourth quarter of 2004. See "Related Party Transactions" for further information on these transactions and contractual agreements. Although these transactions were eliminated upon consolidation as transactions among members of our consolidated companies for financial accounting purposes, they did have the affect of reducing our total income tax expense and increasing our after tax net income in 2004.

As a result of these transactions, our effective tax rates were 71.6% and 2.8% in 2004 and 2005, respectively. Excluding the non-recurring non-cash charge resulting from the change in fair value of derivative liability associated with Series B convertible redeemable preference shares and goodwill impairment loss, our effective tax rate for 2004 would have been 7.0%. The tax savings resulting from the non-cash charge to earnings from the write-down of flat-panel display equipment in 2004 and the charge to earnings from the amortization of the license fee paid in 2004 will not continue in the future.

In December 2005, we established New Focus Media Advertisement which has received tax-exempt approval for 2006 and 2007. We further incorporated New Focus Media Agency and Focus Media Defeng Advertisement in 2006 which also received tax-exempt approval for 2006 and 2007. Besides, New Structure Advertisement, which was incorporated in October 2005, also received its tax-exempt approval for 2006 and 2007. Focus Media Wireless, as a high-tech company incorporated in Zhonguancun District, Beijing, China, is exempted from income tax from 2006 to 2008, plus a 50% reduction holiday from 2009 to 2011.

In December 2005, Focus Media Digital sold all of its flat-panel display equipment to New Focus Media Advertisement at fair market value and Focus Media Digital sold all of its technology to New Focus Media Advertisement in January 2006 at a fixed fee. As of January 2006, New Focus Media Advertisement generates revenue by selling time slots on our advertising network and pays a dissemination fee to Focus Media Advertisement and its certain subsidiaries, which places advertisements for New Focus Media Advertisement's clients on our network. Both New Focus Media Agency and Focus Media Defeng Advertisement act as advertising agencies for New Focus Media Advertisement and receive agency fees. While these transactions are eliminated upon consolidation as they are transactions among members of our consolidated group for financial accounting purposes, they effectively reduce our effective tax rate to 1.3% for 2006. We also expect these transactions will reduce our total income tax expense and increase our after tax net income in 2007. See “Related Party Transactions” for further information on these transactions and contractual agreements. In addition, upon expiration of these tax exemptions, we will consider available options, in accordance with applicable law, that would enable us to qualify for further tax exemptions, if any, to the extent they are then available to us.

Under PRC law, arrangements and transactions among related parties may be subject to audit or challenge by the PRC tax authorities. If any of the transactions described above are found not to be on an arm’s-length basis, or to result in an unreasonable reduction in tax under PRC law, the PRC tax authorities have the authority to disallow our tax savings, adjust the profits and losses of our respective PRC entities and assess late-payment interest and penalties. A finding by the PRC tax authorities that we are ineligible for the tax savings we achieved in 2004, 2005 and 2006, or that we expect to achieve in 2007, or that Focus Media Digital, Focus Media Advertising Agency, New Focus Media Advertisement, New Structure Advertisement, or Framedia Advertisement are ineligible for their tax exemptions, would substantially increase our taxes owed and reduce our net income and the value of your investment. As a result of this risk, you should evaluate our results of operations and financial condition without regard to these tax savings. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to Regulation of Our Business and to Our Structure — Contractual arrangements we have entered into among our subsidiaries and affiliated entities may be subject to scrutiny by the PRC tax authorities and a finding that we owe additional taxes or are ineligible for our tax exemption, or both, could substantially increase our taxes owed, and reduce our net income and the value of your investment.”

On March 16, 2007, the PRC National People’s Congress passed the China Corporate Income Tax Law which will change the income tax rates for most enterprises from 33% at the present to 25%. This new law will become effective on January 1, 2008. There will be a transition period for enterprises, whether foreign-invested or domestic, which currently receive preferential tax treatments granted by relevant tax authorities. Enterprises that are subject to an enterprise income tax rate lower than 25% may continue to enjoy the lower rate and gradually transition to the new tax rate within five years after the effective date of the new law. Enterprises that are currently entitled to exemptions or reductions from the standard income tax rate for a fixed term may continue to enjoy such treatment until the fixed term expires. Preferential tax treatments will continue to be granted to industries and projects that are strongly supported and encouraged by the state, and enterprises that qualify as “new and high technology enterprises strongly supported by the state” will be entitled to a 15% enterprise income tax rate.

Most of the Company’s subsidiaries and VIEs are expected to transition from 33% to 25% starting from January 1, 2008. Those that currently enjoy a lower tax rate of 15% will gradually transition to the uniform tax rate of 25% from 2008 to 2012 unless the company obtains the “new and high technology enterprise” status under the new tax law.

Recently Issued Accounting Standards

In February 2007, the FASB issued SFAS No. 159, The Fair Value Option for Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities, (“SFAS 159”). SFAS No. 159 permits entities to choose to measure many financial instruments and certain other items at fair value. SFAS No. 159 is effective for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007.

In September 2006, the FASB issued SFAS No. 157, “Fair Value Measurements” (“SFAS 157”), which defines fair value, establishes a framework for measuring fair value in generally accepted accounting principles, and expands disclosures about fair value measurements. SFAS 157 applies under most other accounting pronouncements that require or permit fair value measurements and does not require any new fair value measurements. This statement is effective for financial statements issued for fiscal years beginning after November 15, 2007, and interim periods within those fiscal years, with earlier application encouraged. The provisions of SFAS 157 should be applied prospectively as of the beginning of the fiscal year in which the statement is initially applied, except for a limited form of retrospective application for certain financial instruments. The Group is currently evaluating the impact, if any, of this statement on the consolidated combined financial statements.

Since we commenced our current business operations in May 2003, we have acquired numerous companies to expand the coverage of our network in China and to acquire businesses that are complementary to our operations. See “Our Recent Significant Acquisitions” for descriptions of the most recent such acquisitions.

Some of the businesses we acquired had entities located both in and outside of China. The consideration we paid for these businesses was made in two parts, one part for the entity located in China, and the other part for the entity located outside of China. For consideration paid to acquire entities located in China, we withheld on behalf of sellers who are natural persons 20% of the amount by which the acquisition price exceeded the registered capital of such PRC entity as required under the PRC Individual Income Tax Law and related implementation rules. We were not required to and did not withhold any tax in connection with payments made to acquire the entities located outside of China. See “Risks Relating to the People’s Republic of China — The PRC tax authorities may require us to pay additional taxes in connection with our acquisitions of offshore entities that conducted their PRC operations through their affiliates in China”.

Quarterly Results of Operation

The following table presents unaudited consolidated quarterly financial data by amount for each of the eight quarters in the period from September 30, 2005 to June 30, 2007. You should read the following table in conjunction with our audited consolidated financial statements and related notes included elsewhere in this prospectus. We have prepared the unaudited consolidated quarterly financial information on substantially the same basis as our audited consolidated financial statements and using information derived from our unaudited consolidated financial statements which are not included in this prospectus. Certain quarterly financial information related to each fiscal quarters of the fiscal year ended December 31, 2006 are presented differently from previously announced information in the Forms 6-K furnished to the SEC on May 26, 2006, August 21, 2006, November 20, 2006 and February 26, 2007 as a result of the following:

Advertising agency rebates for each fiscal quarter of the fiscal year ended December 31, 2006. We classified $88,537, $624,365, $425,807, $257,205 and $774,260 advertising agency rebates, respectively, as selling expenses rather than as a reduction of revenues in the quarter ended March 31, June 30, September 30, December 31, 2006 and March 31, 2007, respectively. This adjustment resulted in a decrease in the originally reported gross margin and a decrease to reported selling expenses from our filings on Form 6-K dated May 26, 2006, August 21, 2006, November 20, 2006, February 26, 2007 and June 12, 2007, respectively. The foregoing reclassifications did not affect net income or earnings per share.

Results of Operations

Total Revenues. Our total revenues increased substantially from $83.3 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $170.6 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 due primarily to an increase in our advertising service revenue.

Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network. Advertising service revenue from our digital out-of-home advertising network, which includes our commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks, increased 60.8% from $79.5 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $127.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007, primarily due to a 59.6% increase in revenues from our commercial location network and a 97.0% increase in revenues from our poster frame network.

- Commercial location network. Advertising service revenue from our commercial location network increased significantly from $51.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $82.7 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. The increase in advertising service revenue is attributable to: (i) continued acceptance of our media by an increasing number of advertising clients; (ii) the steady expansion of our media network, including the number of LCD displays and LED billboards on our network; and (iii) the sale of tailored advertising packages including through the seven specialized channels on our commercial location network and by targeting advertising campaigns on specific lists of buildings requested by advertising clients.
- In-store network. Advertising service revenue from our in-store network, increased 17.8% to $13.9 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 from $11.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006. 2007, up from 35,511 as of June 30, 2006. The number of hypermarkets in our networks, where we derives most of our in-store network revenue, increased from 872 as of June 30, 2006 to 1,205 as of June 30, 2007.

- Poster frame network. Advertising service revenue from our poster frame network increased 97.0% to $31.2 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 compared to $15.8 million for the same period in 2006. This increase in revenue is primarily attributable to robust sales as the total number of frames installed nearly doubled from 82,200 as of June 30, 2006 to 161,435 as of June 30, 2007.

Mobile Handset Advertising Network. Advertising service revenue from our mobile handset advertising network increased from $3.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $16.9 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 due to the increasing acceptance by advertisers of mobile handset advertising as telecommunications services and mobile handset ownership continues to grow in China.

Internet Advertising Services Network. We commenced providing Internet advertising services and software solutions in March 2007 upon our acquisition of Allyes. Advertising service revenue from our Internet advertising services network totalled $25.2 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 attributable primarily to sales of our digital media services, sales of our performance-based advertising service 'SmartTrade' and sales of our Internet advertising software package 'AdForward'.

Cost of Revenues. Our cost of revenues increased significantly from $36.5 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $76.7 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 due to increases in costs of expanding and maintaining our digital out-of-home advertising networks and mobile handset advertising network as well as from costs related to our Internet advertising services network, which we began to incur in April 2007 upon the acquisition of Allyes.

Digital out-of-home advertising costs. Cost of revenues associated with our digital out-of-home advertising networks increased 49.6% from $34.1 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $51.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. This increase is primarily attributable to increased costs associated with the expansion of our commercial location network and an increase in the number of LED billboards.

- Net advertising service cost — commercial location network. Our net advertising service cost for our commercial location network increased substantially from $19.7 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $30.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. This increase was due to (i) the substantial increase in our advertising service business on our commercial location network between these two periods including substantial increases in our location costs due to a substantial increase in the number of commercial locations where we entered into display placement agreements, (ii) an increase in flat-panel display depreciation costs as a result of an increase in the number of flat-panel displays we own and operate directly from 69,446 as of June 30, 2006 to 85,101 as of June 30, 2007; (iii) our acquisition of 5 regional distributors during this period, (iv) an increase in other direct costs associated with maintaining the network and (v) payments associated with our lease of curbside LED billboards and screen time at movie theaters.
- Net advertising service cost — in-store network. We incurred $10.2 million in net advertising service cost for our in-store network for the six months ended June 30, 2007 compared to $8.4 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006, consisting of location costs and depreciation costs relating to the installation and maintenance of our in-store network.

Net advertising service cost — mobile handset advertising network. Net advertising service cost associated with our mobile handset advertising network increased significantly from $2.4 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $7.3 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. These costs consist primarily of message costs charged by mobile operators.

Net advertising service cost — Internet advertising service network. We incurred net advertising service costs of $18.4 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. These costs consist primarily of advertising space leasing costs charged by gateway websites.

Gross Profit. As a result of the foregoing, our gross profit increased by 101.5% from $46.5 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $93.6 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. Our overall gross margin decreased during the same period from 55.8% to 54.8% primarily due to the addition of our Internet advertising services network in the first half of 2007, which has lower margins. For the six months ended June 30, 2007, our gross margin for our digital out-of-home advertising network amounted to 60.1%, including gross margins for our commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks of 62.8%, 26.4% and 67.9%, respectively, compared to a gross margin for our digital out-of-home advertising networks of 61.0% for the six months ended June 30, 2006, including gross margins of 62.0%, 29.3% and 62.0% for our commercial location, in-store and poster frame networks, respectively. - General and Administrative. General and administrative expenses increased substantially from $10.7 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $20.3 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 mainly due to an increase in the size of our administrative staff and corresponding increases in expenses for salary and benefits as our operations have grown, increases in share-based compensation expense and increases in costs associated with being a publicly listed company.
- Selling and Marketing. Selling and marketing expenses increased substantially from $9.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $23.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 due to increases in marketing and promotional expenses by our sales force, and in salary and benefits associated with the expansion of our sales force as well as share-based compensation expenses.

- Interest Income. Interest income increased from $1.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $4.6 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007. This interest income was the result of a significant increase in our cash and cash equivalents balances resulting from our follow-on public offerings.
- Income Taxes. Our income taxes were $1.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 with an effective tax rate of 3.6% compared to $3.3 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007 with an effective tax rate of 5.7%. The increase resulted from newly acquired subsidiaries with higher effective tax rates.

Net Income. As a result of the foregoing, our net income increased 106.9% from $26.1 million for the six months ended June 30, 2006 to $54.0 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007.

- Commercial location network. Advertising service revenue from our commercial location network increased significantly from $61.4 million in 2005 to $132.1 million, including $13.8 million to related parties in 2006. The increase in advertising service revenue for our commercial location network is attributable to:
  - An increase in the number of flat-panel displays on our network from 48,226 as of December 31, 2005 to 85,460 as of December 31, 2006 including our regional distributors;
  - Our network reach increased from 58 cities as of December 31, 2005, including 26 cities directly operated by our company and 32 cities operated by our regional distributors, to 91 cities as of December 31, 2006, including 51 cities directly operated by our company and 40 cities operated by our regional distributors;
  - We gained an additional seven minutes of advertising cycle time from each of the regional distributors we acquired between January 1, 2006 and December 31, 2006; and
  - The increase in the average selling price was largely due to increased demand in our Tier II cities, while the average selling price of our advertising services in our Tier I cities increased between these two periods.
- In-store network. Advertising service revenue from our in-store network, which commenced operations in April 2005, totaled $26.9 million in 2006. We expect the contribution to our total revenues from our in-store network to increase in the near future.
- Poster frame network. We generated $40.9 million in net revenues from our poster frame network in 2006. We commenced operation of our poster frame network in 2006 following our acquisition of Framedia.

Mobile handset advertising network. We generated $10.1 million in net revenues from our mobile handset advertising network in 2006. We commenced operations of this network in May 2006.

Other revenues increased from $1.3 million in 2005 to $1.9 million in 2006, primarily from license fees that we received from our overseas franchise companies. By the end of 2006, we granted licenses to approximately 10 overseas franchise companies using the Focus Media brand in operating local LCD advertising networks in India, Malaysia, Indonesia, the Philippines, the Gulf Cooperation Council region (including Saudi Arabia), Hong Kong, Taiwan and Singapore.

Cost of Revenues. Our cost of revenues increased significantly from $26.7 million in 2005 to $81.4 million in 2006 due to increases in our net advertising service cost for our commercial location network, our in-store network and two new business lines: our poster frame network and mobile handset advertising network.

Net Advertising Service Cost — Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network. Our net advertising service cost for our digital out-of-home advertising network increased significantly from $25.7 million in 2005 to $74.6 million in 2006, primarily as a result of substantial growth in the size of our commercial location network and in-store network as well as costs associated with our poster frame network following our acquisition of Framedia.

- Net advertising service cost — commercial location network. Our net advertising service cost for our commercial location network increased substantially from $18.3 million in 2005 to $42.8 million in 2006. This increase was due to the substantial increase in our advertising service business on our commercial location network between these two periods. Our location costs increased substantially from $11.3 million in 2005 to $25.8 million in 2006 due to a substantial increase in the number of commercial locations where we entered into display placement agreements. Our rental fees increased as a percentage of total revenues between these two periods as a result of (1) a significant increase in the number of locations in our commercial location network, including those previously operated by Target Media; and (2) average increased rental payments for the renewal of display placement agreements in the more desirable locations on our commercial location network. Flat-panel display depreciation costs increased from $3.4 million in 2005 to $9.2 million in 2006, as a result of an increase in the number of flat-panel displays we own and operate directly from 45,049 as of December 31, 2005 to 80,623 as of December 31, 2006 and to our acquisition of Target Media and 3 regional distributors during this period. Other cost of revenues related to net advertising service cost increased from $3.2 million in 2005 to $6.1 million in 2006 as a result of (1) increase in number of personnel responsible for monitoring the network following the acquisition of Target Media; (2) an increase in the volume of CF cards we purchased even as the per-unit cost of CF cards decreased and (3) an increase in salary and benefit expenses for personnel responsible for location relations and display placement agreements with landlords and property managers and for maintaining and monitoring our network.

- Net advertising service cost — in-store network. We began incurring net advertising service cost relating to our in-store network in April 2005 when we launched our in-store network. We incurred $18.1 million in net advertising service cost for our in-store network in 2006, consisting of location costs of $12.7 million and depreciation costs relating to the installation and maintenance of our in-store network amounting to $3.5 million.
- Net advertising service cost — poster frame network. We began incurring net advertising service cost relating to our poster frame network in 2006 following our acquisition of Framedia. We incurred $13.6 million in net advertising service cost for our poster frame network in 2006, consisting primarily of frame costs and depreciation costs relating to the installation and maintenance of the poster frames.
- Net advertising service cost — mobile handset advertising network. We began incurring net advertising service cost relating to our mobile handset advertising network in 2006 following our acquisition of Dotad, now known as Focus Media Wireless. We incurred $6.1 million in net advertising service cost for our mobile handset advertising network in 2006, primarily consisting of message costs charged by mobile network providers
- Other cost. We incurred net advertising equipment costs of $975,747 in 2005 compared to $764,959 in 2006, which decrease reflects the fact that we have acquired many of our fastest-growing regional distributors. We expect net advertising equipment costs to continue to decrease.

Gross Profit. As a result of the foregoing, our gross profit increased from $41.5 million in 2005 to $130.5 million in 2006 and our overall gross margin increased during the same period from 60.8% to 61.6%. The increase in our gross margin was due to a combination of the continuous increase in the sell-out rate and cost optimization.

Operating Expenses. Our operating expenses increased significantly from $18.7 million in 2005 to $50.1 million in 2006. This increase was primarily due to increases in our selling and marketing expenses and in our general and administrative expenses associated with the growth of our business.

- General and Administrative. General and administrative expenses increased substantially from $9.1 million in 2005 to $25.7 million in 2006 mainly due to an increase in the size of our administrative staff and corresponding increases in expenses for salary and benefits as well as accounting and administrative costs related to being a public company. In addition, in connection with the options granted to our directors, employees and consultants since July 2004, we recorded stock-based compensation of $6.1 million in 2006 following the adoption of SFAS No. 123 (revised 2005), “Share-Based Payment”.
- Selling and Marketing. Selling and marketing expenses increased substantially from $9.6 million in 2005 to $25.8 million in 2006 due to increases in marketing and promotional expenses by our sales force and in salary and benefits associated with the expansion of our sales force.

Income from Operations. As a result of the foregoing, we had income from operations of $22.8 million in 2005 compared to $80.4 million in 2006.

Income Before Income Taxes and Minority Interest. Income before income taxes and minority interest was $24.4 million in 2005 compared to $84.3 million in 2006.

- Interest Income, net. Interest income, net of interest expenses increased from 1.8 million in 2005 to $4.3 million in 2006. This interest income was the result of a significant increase in our cash and cash equivalents balances resulting from cash payments collected from our advertising operations and proceeds from our follow-on offerings.
- Other Expense, net. We recorded net other expense of $161,148 in 2005 compared to other income of $287,539, in 2006.
- Income Taxes. Our income taxes were $694,453 in 2005 compared to $1,043,538 in 2006.
- Minority Interests. We had minority interests expense of $144,433 and $104,773 in 2005 and 2006, respectively, in connection with the pro rata income attributable to minority shareholders of our subsidiaries.

Net Income. As a result of the foregoing, we recorded net income of $83.2 million in 2006 compared to net income of $23.5 million in 2005.

Year Ended December 31, 2005 Compared to Year Ended December 31, 2004

Total Revenues. Our total revenues increased substantially from $29.2 million in 2004 to $68.2 million in 2005 due to an increase in our advertising service revenue which was partially offset by a decrease in advertising equipment revenue.

Our total advertising service revenue increased significantly from $26.3 million in 2004 to $66.9 million in 2005.

Digital out-of-home advertising network. Advertising service revenue from our digital out-of-home advertising network, which in 2004 and 2005 consisted of only our commercial location network, increased significantly from $26.3 million in 2004 to $61.4 million, including $7.2 million to related parties in 2005. The increase in advertising service revenue for our commercial location network is attributable to:

- Increased acceptance of our network among our advertising clients, which we believe is primarily due to the increased coverage and effectiveness of our network that grew from 15,415 flat-panel displays as of December 31, 2004 to 48,226 displays as of December 31, 2005, including our regional distributors;
- Our network reach increased from 34 cities as of December 31, 2004, including 11 cities directly operated by our company and 23 cities operated by our regional distributors, to 58 cities as of December 31, 2005, including 26 cities directly operated by our company and 32 cities operated by our regional distributors;
- We gained an additional seven minutes of advertising cycle time from each of our regional distributors after we acquired them between January 1, 2005 and December 31, 2005; and
- On July 1, 2005, we extended the cycle time in our directly operated Tier II cities from nine minutes to twelve minutes.

The decrease in the average selling price was largely due to growth in sales of advertising services with lower selling prices in our Tier II cities, while the average selling price of our advertising services in our Tier I cities increased between these two periods.

In-store network. Advertising service revenue from our in-store network, which commenced operations in April 2005, totaled $5.5 million in 2005. We expect the contribution to our total revenues from our in-store network to increase in the near future.

Our advertising equipment revenue decreased from $2.9 million in 2004 to $1.3 million in 2005. This decrease was primarily attributable to our acquisition of a number of our regional distributors during 2004 and 2005 because, following each acquisition, we no longer sell flat-panel displays to each former regional distributor. This decrease was also partially attributable to decreased sales to our existing regional distributors, as the initial installation of the network in their respective cities of operation was largely completed in 2004 and the first quarter of 2005. We expect advertising equipment revenue to remain stable or decrease over time as we continue to acquire our existing regional distributors and as the most desirable cities for the establishment of similar networks by regional distributors become saturated.

Cost of Revenues. Our cost of revenues increased significantly from $8.7 million in 2004 to $26.7 million in 2005 due to increases in our net advertising service cost for our commercial location network and our in-store network and in our net advertising equipment cost.

- Net advertising service cost. Our net advertising services cost for our digital out-of-home advertising network which during 2004 and 2005 consisted only of commercial location network, increased substantially from $6.8 million in 2004 to $18.3 million in 2005. This increase was due to the substantial increase in our advertising service business on our commercial location network between these two periods. Our location costs increased substantially from $4.6 million in 2004 to $11.3 million in 2005 due to a substantial increase in the number of commercial locations where we entered into display placement agreements. Our rental fees increased as a percentage of total revenues between these two periods as a result of (1) a significant increase in the number of locations in our commercial location network (2) increased rental payments for the renewal of display placement agreements in the more desirable locations on our commercial location network offset in part by lower rental payments paid for new locations in our commercial location network because of a further reduction in the number of available desirable locations that command more expensive rental fees. Flat-panel display depreciation costs increased from $774,375 in 2004 to $3.4 million in 2005, as a result of an increase in the number of flat-panel displays we own and operate directly from 12,786 as of December 31, 2004 to 45,049 as of December 31, 2005 and to our acquisition of 14 regional distributors during this period. Other cost of revenues related to net advertising service cost increased from $1.4 million in 2004 to $3.2 million in 2005 as a result of (1) an increase in the volume of CF cards we purchased even as the per-unit cost of CF cards decreased and (2) an increase in salary and benefit expenses for personnel responsible for location relations and display placement agreements with landlords and property managers and for maintaining and monitoring our network.
- Net advertising service cost — in-store network. We began incurring net advertising service cost relating to our in-store network in April 2005 when we launched our in-store network. We incurred $7.4 million in net advertising service cost for our in-store network in 2005, consisting of location costs and depreciation costs relating to the installation and maintenance of our in-store network.
- Net advertising equipment cost. We incurred net advertising equipment costs of $1.9 million in 2004 compared to $975,747 in 2005, which decrease reflects the fact that we have acquired many of our fastest-growing regional distributors. We expect net advertising equipment costs to continue to decrease.

Gross Profit. As a result of the foregoing, our gross profit increased from $20.5 million in 2004 to $41.5 million in 2005 although our overall gross margin decreased during the same period from 70.0% to 60.8%. The decrease in our gross margin was largely a result of increased rental payments, including fixed initial payments, to stores and depreciation costs incurred as we launched our in-store network.

Operating Expenses. Our operating expenses increased significantly from $7.5 million in 2004 to $18.7 million in 2005. This increase was primarily due to increases in our business tax, our selling and marketing expenses and in our general and administrative expenses associated with the growth of our business, such as salaries and costs associated with preparing to become a publicly listed company.

- General and Administrative. General and administrative expenses increased substantially from $4.0 million in 2004 to $9.1 million in 2005 mainly due to an increase in the size of our administrative staff and corresponding increases in expenses for salary and benefits as well as accounting and administrative costs relating to being a public company. In addition, in connection with the options granted to our directors, employees and consultants since July 2004, we recorded stock based compensation of $683,186 in 2005.
- Selling and Marketing. Selling and marketing expenses increased substantially from $3.5 million in 2004 to $9.6 million in 2005 due to increases in marketing and promotional expenses by our sales force, and in salary and benefits associated with the expansion of our sales force.

Income from Operations. As a result of the foregoing, we had income from operations of $13.0 million in 2004 compared to $22.8 million in 2005.

Income Before Income Taxes and Minority Interest. Income before income taxes and minority interest was $1.3 million in 2004 compared to $24.4 million in 2005, which included interest income and other income (expenses) and change in fair value of series B convertible redeemable preferred shares in 2004.

- Interest Income, net. Interest income increased from $9,739 in 2004 to $1.8 million in 2005. This interest income was the result of a significant increase in our cash and cash equivalents balances resulting from cash payments collected from our advertising operations, sales of our preference shares and proceeds from our initial public offering.
- Other Expense, net. We recorded net other expense of $3,843 in 2004 compared to other expense of $161,148 in 2005.
- Change in Fair Value of Series B Convertible Redeemable Preferred Shares. We incurred a change in fair value of series B convertible redeemable preferred shares of $11.7 million in 2004. Upon the occurrence of our initial public offering in July 2005, all outstanding preference shares were converted into ordinary shares, and accordingly we did not incur any change in fair value of series B convertible redeemable preferred shares in 2005.
- Income Taxes. Our income taxes were $907,550 in 2004 compared to $694,453 in 2005, which decrease resulted from the fact that in 2005, we derived most of our revenue from Focus Media Advertising Agency, which had no tax liability during this period, whereas during 2004, we derived most of our revenues from Focus Media Advertisement, which had tax liability.
- Minority Interest. We had minority interest income of $13,516 and minority interest expense of $144,433 in 2004 and 2005, respectively, in connection with the pro rata income attributable to minority shareholders of four of our subsidiaries.

Net Income. As a result of the foregoing, we recorded net income of $23.5 million in 2005 compared to net income of $372,752 in 2004.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

Cash Flows and Working Capital

To date, we have financed our operations primarily through cash generated from operating activities and sales of equity in private and public transactions. As of June 30, 2007, we had approximately $187.6 million in cash and cash equivalents. As we have expanded our network, entered into a large number of display placement agreements, increased our acquisition of regional distributors and related businesses, and made strategic acquisitions, our cash needs for such acquisitions, the purchase of flat-panel displays, payment of our location and maintenance costs and employee costs increased significantly and accounted for the net cash used in investing activities. Our cash and cash equivalents primarily consist of cash on hand and liquid investments with original maturities of three months or less that are deposited with banks and other financial institutions. We generally deposit our excess cash in interest bearing bank accounts. Although we consolidate the results of our PRC operating affiliates in our consolidated financial statements and we can utilize their cash and cash equivalents in our operations through our PRC operating affiliates, we do not have direct access to the cash and cash equivalents or future earnings of our PRC operating affiliates. However, these cash balances can be utilized by us for our normal operations pursuant to our agreements with our PRC operating affiliates that provide us with effective control over our PRC operating affiliates. In addition, we have access to the cash flows of Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries through contractual arrangements with our subsidiaries Focus Media Technology and Focus Media Digital, which provide technical and other services in exchange for fees. See "Related Party Transactions — Agreements Among Us, Our Wholly Foreign-Owned Subsidiaries, Our PRC Operating Affiliates and Their Shareholders and Subsidiaries".

We expect to require cash in order to fund our ongoing business needs, particularly the location costs connected with the placement of our television displays, to fund the ongoing expansion of our network and for payments in connection with our acquisitions. Other possible cash needs may include the upgrading of technology on our network as well as any payment of claims that could be made against us. We have not encountered any difficulties in meeting our current cash needs.

The following table shows our cash flows with respect to operating activities, investing activities and financing activities in 2004, 2005 and 2006 and for the six months ended June 30, 2006 and 2007:

	For The Year Ended December 31,			For the Six Months Ended June 30,
	2004	2005	2006	2006	2007
	(In thousands of U.S. dollars)
Net cash provided by operating activities	$ 4,045	$ 11,269	$ 93,355	$ 17,393	$ 56,568
Net cash (used) in investing activities	(11,070)	(117,667)	(121,994)	(98,668)	(158,126)
Net cash provided by financing activities	28,978	119,169	153,521	167,476	116,583
Net increase in cash and cash equivalent	21,953	13,984	127,958	86,031	22,981

We had net cash provided by operating activities of $4.0 million, $11.3 million, $93.4 million and $56.6 million for 2004, 2005, 2006 and six months ended June 30, 2007, respectively. This was primarily attributable to net income generated from the operation of our advertising network, and adjusted by share-based compensation expense, minority interests, depreciation and amortization expenses, bad debt provision expenses, and change in current assets and liabilities.

We had net cash used in investing activities of $158.1 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007, primarily in connection with the acquisition of companies, including Allyes, prepayments made to acquire certain companies engaged in poster frame advertising business, mobile handset advertising business, outdoor billboards advertising business and Internet advertising services business, purchase of equipment used to expand our networks, and rental deposits paid for locations on our out-of-home television, poster frame and outdoor LED billboard networks. Our acquisition of Allyes involved our payment of $70.0 million in cash and issuance of $154.3 million of our ordinary shares to the seller parties at a fixed value of $7.726 per ordinary share. We had net cash used in investing activities of $122.0 million in 2006, primarily in connection with the acquisition of companies, including Target Media and Focus Media Wireless, subsidiaries and regional distributors, purchase of equipment used to expand our networks, and rental deposits paid for locations on our out-of-home television, poster frame and outdoor LED billboard networks. Our acquisition of Framedia involved our payment of $39.6 million in cash and issuance of $55.4 million of our ordinary shares to the seller parties at a fixed value of $2.456 per ordinary share. In addition, in connection with the earn-out payment for Framedia, we issued an additional 35,830,619 Focus Media ordinary shares, at a fair value of $6.639 per ordinary share, to the seller parties in 2007. Pursuant to the share purchase agreement we entered into with E-Times and Skyvantage, we paid the seller parties $5.0 million. We also paid $94.0 million in cash and issued 77 million ordinary shares to the shareholders of Target Media. The issuance of such additional ordinary shares will also result in lower earnings per share or per ADS when we calculate our earnings for 2007 than would otherwise be the case were such additional shares not issued. We had net cash used in investing activities of $117.7 million in 2005, primarily in connection with the acquisition of companies, subsidiaries and regional distributors, purchase of equipment used to expand our commercial location and in-store networks, and rental deposits paid for locations on both our commercial location and in-store networks. We had net cash used in investing activities of $11.1 million in 2004. This was primarily attributable to our purchase of property and equipment for the operation of our network, rental deposits made in connection with our display placement agreements and our acquisition of eleven businesses, eight of which were our former regional distributors.

We had net cash provided by financing activities of $116.6 million for the six months ended June 30, 2007, primarily from the proceeds of $115.0 million, net of issuance costs, from our follow-on offering in January 2007. $153.5 million net cash was provided by financing activities in 2006, primarily from the proceeds of $142.7 million, net of issuance costs, from our follow-on offerings. $119.2 million net cash was provided by financing activities in 2005, primarily from the proceeds of our initial public offering in July 2005. We had net cash provided by financing activities of $29.0 million in 2004. This was attributable to the proceeds from the issuance of our Series B and Series C-2 convertible redeemable preference shares, offset slightly by the repayment of a short-term loan from one of our shareholders.

We believe that our current cash and cash equivalents, cash flow from operations and the proceeds from our recent follow-on offerings will be sufficient to meet our anticipated cash needs, including for working capital and capital expenditures, for the foreseeable future. These additional cash needs may include costs associated with the expansion of our network, such as the purchase of flat-panel displays, LED digital billboards, digital poster frames and increased location cost, including in connection with our acquisitions of business and regional distributors. We are also required under PRC law to set aside 10% of our after-tax profits into a general reserve fund. We expect that revenues from operation of our advertising network and the proceeds from our offerings will be sufficient to cover any such obligations and costs. We may, however, require additional cash resources due to changed business conditions or other future developments. If these sources are insufficient to satisfy our cash requirements, we may seek to sell debt securities or additional equity securities or obtain a credit facility. The sale of convertible debt securities or additional equity securities could result in additional dilution to our shareholders. The incurrence of indebtedness would result in debt service obligations and could result in operating and financial covenants that would restrict our operations. We cannot assure you that financing will be available in amounts or on terms acceptable to us, if at all.

From time to time, we evaluate possible investments, acquisitions or divestments and may, if a suitable opportunity arises, make an investment or acquisition or conduct a divestment.

Contractual Obligations and Commercial Commitments

The following table sets forth our contractual obligations and commitments with definitive payment terms on a consolidated basis which will require significant cash outlays in the future as of December 31, 2006.

	Payments Due December 31
	Total	2007	2008	2009	2010	Thereafter
Display and poster frame placement agreement obligations	$ 107,242	$ 46,186	$ 31,363	$ 19,098	$ 8,683	$ 1,912
Office premise lease obligations	4,198	1,971	1,153	773	251	50
Total contractual obligations	$ 111,440	$ 48,157	$ 32,516	$ 19,871	$ 8,934	$ 1,962

Other than certain leasing arrangements relating to the placement of our flat-panel and office premises, as of December 31, 2006, we did not have any long-term debt obligations, operating lease obligations or purchase obligations.

As of December 31, 2006, we had no other indebtedness, material contingent liabilities, or material mortgages or liens. We intend to meet our future funding needs primarily through net cash provided from operating activities and the proceeds of this offering. Our objective is to maintain the safety and liquidity of our cash. Therefore we intend to keep our cash and cash equivalents in short-term bank deposits and short-term bonds.

By June 30, 2007, the Group completed several business acquisitions in which the considerations were partially or fully contingent on future earnings targets for the one to three years ended from the respective dates of acquisition. The aggregate contingent consideration is estimated by management to be approximately $292.5 million, of which $42.8 million has been paid out as deposit for acquisition of subsidiaries. The rest of the payment is contingent on future earnings targets over the next one to four fiscal years.

Capital Expenditures

The following table sets forth our historical capital expenditures for the periods indicated. Actual future capital expenditures may differ from the amounts indicated below.

	For The Year Ended December 31,			For the Six Months Ended June 30,
	2004	2005	2006	2006	2007
	(In thousands of U.S. dollars)
Total capital expenditures	$ 6,373	$ 36,765	$ 22,878	$ 11,608	$ 25,265

Table of Contents

Our capital expenditures were made primarily to acquire flat-panel displays for our advertising network. Our capital expenditures are primarily funded by net cash provided from operating activities. We expect our capital expenditures in 2007, in an amount of approximately $40.0 million, to primarily consist of purchases of components for our flat-panel displays and new digital poster frames as we continue to expand our commercial location network and in-store network and expand and upgrade our poster frame network. We also intend to upgrade our financial, accounting systems and internal control systems. As opportunities arise, we may make additional acquisitions of regional distributors and other businesses that complement our operations. We believe that we will be able to fund these upgrades and equipment purchases through the revenues we generate, and do not anticipate that these obligations will have a material impact on our liquidity needs.

Foreign Exchange

We maintain our accounts in Renminbi and substantially all of our revenues and expenses are denominated in Renminbi, while we report our financial results in U.S. dollars. Fluctuations in exchange rates, primarily those involving the U.S. dollar against the Renminbi, may affect our reported operating results in U.S. dollar terms. In addition, we will receive the proceeds of this offering in U.S. dollars and changes in the U.S. dollar/Renminbi exchange rate could affect the buying power of those proceeds. Under the current foreign exchange system in the PRC, our operations in the PRC may not be able to hedge effectively against currency risk, including any possible future Renminbi devaluation. Moreover, due to the recent devaluation of the U.S. dollar against the Euro and several other currencies, the PRC government recently revised its decade-old policy of pegging the value of the Renminbi to the U.S. dollar. As of July 21, 2005 the Renminbi is no longer pegged solely to the U.S. dollar. Instead, it will be pegged against a basket of currencies, determined by the People's Bank of China, against which it can rise or fall by as much as 0.3% each day. For example, on July 21, 2005 the Renminbi was revalued against the U.S. dollar to approximately RMB 8.11 to the U.S. dollar, representing an upward revaluation of 2.1% of the Renminbi against the U.S. dollar, as compared to the exchange rate on the previous day. See "Risk Factors — Risks Relating to the People's Republic of China — Fluctuations in exchange rates could result in foreign currency exchange losses".

Restricted Net Assets

Relevant PRC laws and regulations permit payments of dividends by our PRC subsidiaries only out of their retained earnings, if any, as determined in accordance with PRC accounting standards and regulations. In addition, PRC laws and regulations require that annual appropriations of 10% of after-tax income should be set aside prior to payment of dividends as a general reserve fund. As a result of these PRC laws and regulations, our PRC subsidiaries and our affiliated PRC entities are restricted in their ability to transfer a portion of their net assets to us whether in the form of dividends, loans or advances. As of December 31, 2005 and 2006, the amount of our restricted net assets was approximately $75.9 million and $223.4 million, respectively.

Off-Balance Sheet Commitments and Arrangements

We have not entered into any financial guarantees or other commitments to guarantee the payment obligations of any third parties. In addition, we have not entered into any derivative contracts that are indexed to our own shares and classified as shareholder's equity, or that are not reflected in our consolidated financial statements. Furthermore, we do not have any retained or contingent interest in assets transferred to an unconsolidated entity that serves as credit, liquidity or market risk support to such entity. Moreover, we do not have any variable interest in any unconsolidated entity that provides financing, liquidity, market risk or credit support to us or engages in leasing, hedging or research and development services with us.

Quantitative and Qualitative Disclosures About Market Risk

Interest Rate Risk

Our exposure to interest rate risk primarily relates to the interest income generated by excess cash, which is mostly held in interest-bearing bank deposits. We have not used derivative financial instruments in our investment portfolio. Interest earning instruments carry a degree of interest rate risk. We have not been exposed nor do we anticipate being exposed to material risks due to changes in market interest rates. However, our future interest income may fall short of expectations due to changes in market interest rates.

Foreign Currency Risk

Substantially all our revenues and expenses are denominated in Renminbi. We have not had any material foreign exchange gains or losses. Although in general, our exposure to foreign exchange risks should be limited, the value of your investment in our ADSs will be affected by the foreign exchange rate between U.S. dollars relative to the Renminbi because the value of our business is effectively denominated in Renminbi, while the ADSs will be traded in U.S. dollars. Furthermore, a decline in the value of the Renminbi could reduce the U.S. dollar equivalent of the value of the earnings from, and our investments in, our subsidiaries and PRC-incorporated affiliates in China. In addition, appreciation or depreciation in the value of the Renminbi relative to the U.S. dollar would affect our reported financial results in U.S. dollar terms. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to the People’s Republic of China — Fluctuations in exchange rates could result in foreign currency exchange losses”.

Inflation

In recent years, China has not experienced significant inflation, and thus inflation has not had a significant effect on our business historically. According to the National Bureau of Statistics of China, the change in the Consumer Price Index in China was 0.7%, (0.8)%, 1.2%, 3.9%, 1.8% and 1.5% in 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005 and 2006, respectively.

Table of ContentsBUSINESS*Overview

We are China's leading multi-platform digital media company, operate the largest out-of-home advertising network in China using audiovisual digital displays, based on the number of locations and number of flat-panel television displays in our network, and also are a leading provider of Internet marketing solutions in China. It is our goal to create the largest multi-platform digital advertising network in China, reaching urban consumers at strategic locations and point-of-interests over a number of media formats, including audiovisual television displays in buildings and stores, advertising poster frames and other new and innovative media, such as outdoor LED digital billboard, mobile handset advertising networks and Internet advertising platforms. As of June 30, 2007, our out-of-home advertising network consists of our digital out-of-home advertising network, our mobile handset advertising network and our Internet advertising services network:

Our Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network which focuses on providing out-of-home advertising through LCD flat-panel televisions displays, LED billboards, movie screens, and poster and digital frames, includes our commercial location network, in-store network and poster frame network:

Our Mobile Handset Advertising Network, which refers to our mobile handset advertising services using wireless access protocol or WAP, short messaging service, or SMS, and mixed messaging services, or MMS, offered on the mobile telecommunications networks of China Mobile Communications Corporation, or China Mobile, and China United Telecommunications Corporation, or China Unicom; and

Our Internet Advertising Services Network, which refers to our Internet advertising agency and advertising services technology, including performance-based software suites.

We derive revenue principally by:

- selling advertising time slots on our out-of-home television networks, which include our commercial location network and our in-store network;

- selling advertisements on our mobile handset advertising network; and
- providing advertising agency and technology services and software for online advertising.

Table of Contents

A majority of the content displayed on our commercial location and in-store networks consists of advertisements which are broadcast repeatedly approximately 60 times throughout a day. Advertisements on our outdoor LED billboard network are broadcast repeatedly approximately 120 times throughout a day.

Our poster frame network consists of advertising poster frames placed in elevators and public areas in residential complexes and commercial locations. Our advertising posters include both traditional printed posters as well as digital LCD poster frames with integrated sound, all-angle and remote control technologies. Generally two or three advertising poster frames can be placed in each elevator.

Advertisements on our mobile phone advertising network are advertisements that are sent to mobile phone users over China Mobile and China Unicom's networks.

Our Internet advertising services network, which we acquired through our acquisition of Allyes in March 2007, uses proprietary software applications to provide online ad publishing, creative production, tracking, targeting, and performance analysis. We also provide performance-based online advertising services providing advertisers with pay by CPA (cost-per-action), directly link advertising cost with performance. Our Internet advertising services network has integrated advertising resources from over 5,000 popular websites, making it the largest performance-based online advertising network in China.

As of December 31, 2006, over 4,000 advertisers purchased advertising time on our advertising networks. Our five largest advertising clients in terms of revenue, which include leading international and domestic brand name advertisers, were Dong Feng Auto (including joint venture brands with Toyota and Peugeot), China Mobile, Samsung, NEC and Motorola, which together accounted for approximately 10.1% of our revenue in 2006.

Our network has the following key features:

- Substantially all of the content we broadcast or place on our digital out-of-home advertising network consists of advertisements.
- The advertising cycle on our commercial location network consists of advertising content broadcast repeatedly approximately 60 times per day, approximately 120 times per day in the case of our outdoor LED network, and is sold to advertising clients according to advertising packages purchased from us, and for three minutes before the screening of each showing of a film in the case of our movie theater advertising network.
- The advertising cycle of our out-of-home television advertising networks is broadcast repeatedly for approximately twelve-hours per day.
- The majority of our flat-panel displays contain a 17-inch LCD screen, while the remainder contain larger size plasma or LCD screens.
- Over 160,000 450 mm x 600 mm advertising poster frames, including, as of August 31, 2007, approximately 7,000 digital poster frames have been installed in elevators on our poster frame network.
- Approximately 200 5' x 5' LED digital billboards that we lease from a third party and that are installed on the street-sides in major shopping districts and other locations with high pedestrian traffic in Shanghai.
- A mobile handset advertising platform that delivers approximately eight million messages per day with a customer base of over 100 wireless value-added service providers in China and a database of over 70 million mobile handset users with SMS, MMS or WAP capability.
- An Internet advertising services network that offers performance-based advertising services and Internet advertising publishing software suites.

Since we commenced our current business operations in May 2003, we have experienced significant growth in our network and in our financial results. As of June 30, 2007, we operated our commercial location network directly in over fifty major cities throughout China, including Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou and Shenzhen. As of June 30, 2007, we covered approximately 40 additional cities through contractual arrangements with regional distributors. Between January 1, 2005 and June 30, 2007, the number of displays in our commercial location network increased from 15,415 to 89,687. As of June 30, 2007, our outdoor LED billboard network consisted of approximately 200 leased 5' x 5' digital billboards placed along curbsides in high-pedestrian traffic areas in Shanghai. We had installed over 161,435 advertising poster frames and our in-store network consisted of 41,322 flat-panel displays placed in 3,995 store locations in our directly operated cities, including 1,205 hypermarkets, 734 supermarkets and 2,056 convenience stores.

Our Competitive Strengths

We believe we have the following competitive strengths:

Effective and Focused Advertising Network Accepted by Both Advertisers and Consumers.

Since commencing our current business operations in May 2003, we have created an advertising network that:

- Targets Segmented Consumer Groups. Our flat-panel displays, LED billboards and poster frames are primarily placed in venues that have a high concentration of consumers with higher-than-average disposable incomes or that have a high concentration of consumers who are likely to be interested in particular types of products and services. As a result, our network enables advertisers to target consumers with demographic profiles attractive to them. Moreover, our network allows advertisers to further segment these consumers through separate specified advertising channels, such as our premier A and B office building, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels, which are marketed as stand-alone channels of our commercial location network. Because our network is able to target specific consumer groups, it allows advertisers to more cost-effectively reach consumers with demographic profiles desirable to them.
- Reaches Captive Viewers in Low Distraction Environments. Our displays are placed in lobbies, near elevator banks, in elevators, on high-traffic urban curbsides and in other environments where there are few broadcast or display media competing for viewers' attention, which we believe increases the effectiveness of our network.
- Tailored Advertising Solutions. Through the various media platforms and specialized channels on our network, we are able to offer tailored advertising solutions to our customers to enable them to target the consumers and locations that are most important to them. For example, we are increasingly providing custom advertising packages to our customers that focus exclusively on a certain suite of buildings, networks and channels accordingly to their requests and needs.

We believe these characteristics and advantages of our business model have made us an effective and well-accepted alternative advertising medium with a strong market position that enables us to compete successfully in China's advertising market.

The Largest Digital Out-of-home Advertising Network in China with Nationwide Coverage.

We believe we operate the largest digital out-of-home advertising network in China based on the number of locations and the number of displays in our network. As of June 30, 2007, we operated:

- 85,010 flat-panel displays installed in over 90 cities in China, and through our regional distributors, we also operated approximately 4,677 flat-panel displays in approximately 40 cities in China;
- 41,322 flat-panel displays installed in 1,205 hypermarkets, 734 supermarkets and 2,056 convenience stores in cities in China; and
- 161,435 poster frames available for sale installed in elevators primarily in residential buildings. As of August 31, 2007, our poster frame network also included 6,796 digital poster frames;
- over 200 5' by 5' LED digital billboards placed in high pedestrian traffic outdoor locations in Shanghai; and
- the right to broadcast advertising on movie theater screens for three minutes prior to the screening of each movie in major cities in China.

Out-of-home Advertising Network with Multiple Media Platforms Provides Advertisers with Complementary and Reinforcing Avenues to Reach Targeted Consumers.

Our network provides advertisers with multiple advertising media to reach their target audience. Our network currently enables advertisers to reach (1) consumers with higher than average incomes through our commercial location network, (2) consumers at the point-of-purchase through our in-store network, (3) consumers as they leave and return home through our poster frame network, (4) mobile handset users throughout the day via our mobile handset advertising network, (5) urban consumers throughout the day via our strategically placed outdoor LED billboards in shopping and high pedestrian traffic areas in Shanghai and (6) internet users through our performance-based Internet advertising services and software suites. By offering advertisers a range of advertising media that can reach consumers during different times of the day in a wide variety of locations, we believe our network has enhanced appeal to advertisers over competitors who offer limited advertising media or channels to advertisers. We believe that by offering multiple advertising media platforms, we enable advertisers to reach a wide range of consumers with complementary and mutually reinforcing advertising campaigns and are better able to attract advertisers who want to reach targeted consumer groups through a number of different advertising media in different venues and at different times of the day.

Sustainable Competitive Advantages through the Size of Our Network and Our Exclusive, Renewable Agreements.

We believe the following factors provide us with a sustainable business advantage over existing and prospective competitors:

- Early Market Presence and Coverage in Many of the Most Desirable Locations. We were one of the first companies to establish a large-scale out-of-home television advertising network in commercial buildings and other commercial locations in China. By recognizing this market opportunity and entering this sector early, we have occupied many of the most desirable locations and have grown the size of our network, which we believe has created high barriers to entry for potential competitors. We believe that we have secured a high percentage of the most desirable locations in many of China's major urban centers, and that this early mover advantage is important because landlords and building managers typically permit only one out-of-home television advertising network operation in each building. We believe that, through our acquisition of Target Media, we have enhanced these advantages. Through our acquisition of Framedia, we also have gained a strong market presence in the poster frame advertising market in residential complexes. We also believe we have established the first outdoor LED digital billboard advertising network in China, currently comprising over 200 5' x 5' LED digital billboards placed in high pedestrian traffic outdoor locations in Shanghai that we lease from a third-party location provider.

- Large-scale Network that Attracts Advertising Clients. Our multi-platform out-of-home advertising network includes flat-panel displays located in a wide range of commercial, retail locations and in-store locations in over 90 cities in China, poster frames placed in residential complexes in cities in China, LED digital billboards placed in high pedestrian curbside locations in Shanghai, and advertising services provided to mobile handset users. We believe the extent of our network coverage makes us more attractive to advertising clients than competing networks. Through the number of advertising media platforms we operate and the national scope of our network, we enable advertising clients to reach a wide audience in urban consumer markets across China. We believe the size and scope of our network has attained a scale that draws advertising clients to our network and gives us a competitive edge over competing networks as well as over many traditional advertising media.
- Exclusive and Renewable Display Placement Agreements. As of June 30, 2007, the majority of our display placement agreements on our out-of-home television advertising networks give us the exclusive right to place our flat-panel displays in the elevator and lobby areas of the locations in which we operate and, in the cities we operate directly, give us the right to renew the contract under terms that are no less favorable than those offered by competing bidders, enabling us to maintain exclusive coverage of many of the most desirable locations in our network for significant lengths of time.

We believe our high market share of desirable locations in key cities in China, the wide extent of our network coverage and the exclusivity and renewal terms contained in the majority of our display placement agreements with landlords and property managers create higher barriers to entry for potential competitors than other out-of-home and outdoor advertising business models.

Our Brand Name And Reputation Have Attracted A Large Base Of Leading Advertising Clients.

We believe we have established a well recognized brand name in the advertising industry in China by developing a reputation for innovative and effective delivery of large-scale yet focused high-quality advertising to consumers with desirable demographic profiles. This has enabled us to develop a strong client base consisting of major international and brand name advertisers such as Dong Feng Auto (including joint venture brands with Toyota and Peugeot), China Mobile, Samsung, NEC and Motorola, which together accounted for approximately 10.1% of our revenue in 2006. All of our top ten advertisers based on total advertising contracts in 2005 had entered into advertising contracts with us in 2006. Moreover, the total contract amount accounted for by our top ten advertisers increased by approximately 123.5% from 2005 to 2006. In addition, as of December 31, 2006, more than 4,000 advertisers purchased advertising time on our out-of-home television display networks. The strength and depth of our client base enhance our reputation in the industry and position us to further expand our advertising network.

We believe our acquisitions of Framedia, Focus Media Wireless and Allyes have further enhanced our brand name as a leading digital media company in China.

Strong Management and Sales Team with Extensive Industry Experience.

We have assembled a management and sales team with extensive experience in China's advertising industry. Jason Nanchun Jiang, our founder, chairman, chief executive officer and a principal shareholder, has over 10 years of experience in China's advertising industry, including his previous experience until 2003 as chief executive officer of Shanghai Everease Advertising Corporation, or Everease. Daniel Wu, our chief financial officer, has over six years of experience in investment banking, including for Merrill Lynch and Lehman Brothers, and served as chief financial officer of Harbour Networks, a telecommunications equipment provider in China. In August 2005, we hired our chief operating officer Cindy Chan, who was deputy general manager for iMPACT, ZenithOptimedia's outdoor media department and the largest outdoor media buyer in China. With our acquisition of Framedia, Zhi Tan, who was chairman and chief executive officer of Framedia and now serves as our president and director. Following our acquisition of Target Media, David Yu, the founder and former chairman and chief executive officer of Target Media, continues to act as co-chairman. Following our acquisition of Allyes, David Zhu, the founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Allyes, had added his entrepreneurial and management expertise and remains on as chief executive officer of Allyes. In addition, we employ experienced and knowledgeable managers to run operations in each of the cities we operate directly. Our marketing managers have many years of experience in the advertising industry in China and have worked for a number of major domestic and international advertising firms in China. We believe the strength, experience and diverse background of our management and sales teams have enabled us to expand our advertising network, enhance our reputation in our industry and build up a strong client base.

Our Strategies

Our objective is to become the number one multi-platform digital media company in China. We intend to achieve this objective by implementing the following strategies:

Enhance Our Market Position and Revenues by Expanding Our Networks.

We intend to aggressively expand our out-of-home digital media networks in order to erect barriers to expansion and entry by current and prospective competitors, enhance critical mass appeal to our advertisers, and increase our fee rates and revenues. To achieve this goal, we intend to increase the number of locations, flat-panel television displays, poster frames and LED billboards in our network. We intend to aggressively enter into new display and poster frame placement agreements to increase the number of locations in which we install our flat-panel television displays and poster frames in order to enhance our current position in many of the most desirable locations in key urban areas in China.

Identify And Create New Networks and Advertising Channels that Target Specific Consumer Demographics and Expand Network Capacity.

In-store Network. We commenced commercial operations of our in-store network in April 2005, enabling our advertising clients to target consumers at the time and place where consumers are likely to purchase a range of consumer and household products. As of June 30, 2007, we had placed 41,322 flat-panel displays in 3,995 locations on our in-store network. We intend to expand this network and will continue to strengthen efforts to enter into long-term and exclusive relationships with hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores and to market this service to advertisers.

Targeted Advertising Channels. We have placed flat-panel television displays in office buildings, shopping malls, restaurants, beauty parlors, golf country clubs, automobile repair shops, banks, pharmacies, airports, hospitals and other commercial locations. As many of these venues are suitable for targeting specific consumer groups, we have begun to separate some of them into distinct stand-alone networks and to market them to specific advertising clients who wish to advertise their products and services to targeted consumer groups. Currently, our premier A and B office building, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels are marketed as independent channels of our commercial location network, as we believe these channels are attractive to a diverse range of advertisers who wish to target consumers likely to frequent these venues. We believe our ability to identify and create focused advertising networks distinguishes us from our competitors and attracts additional advertising clients who will use our services to reach their target consumers in a more effective manner.

Complementary Advertising Media Platforms. We intend to continue expanding the scope of our advertising activities and type of media platforms we employ by entering into new types of advertising media businesses, such as large-size outdoor LED digital billboards, telecommunications channels such as Focus Media Wireless, and online opportunities such as Allyes. We believe by expanding our business into complementary media businesses that focus on venues and at periods of the day less comprehensively covered by traditional advertising media, we will enhance the value of our advertising services to advertisers and provide us with a competitive advantage over existing and potential competitors. We intend to continue expanding into new and complementary advertising media platforms, which will enable us to provide advertisers with additional advertising platforms to reach targeted consumers.

Table of ContentsPromote Our Brand Name and Augment Our Service Offerings to Attract a Wider Client Base and Increase Revenues.

Enhancing our brand name in the industry will allow us to solidify and broaden our client base by enhancing market awareness of our services and our ability to target discrete consumer groups more effectively than mass media. We believe the low cost of reaching consumers with higher-than-average disposable incomes through our network and our development of additional advertising media platforms and channels within our network we plan to develop in the future can enable advertisers to reach that goal. As we increase our advertising client base and increase sales, demand for and sale of time slots and frame space on our network will grow.

Continue to Explore New Digital Media Opportunities to Target Segmented Consumer Groups.

Consumer acceptance of technology-driven advertising and entertainment media, including the Internet and advanced mobile communications systems, is a feature of the advertising industry in China. We intend to identify and take advantage of new opportunities in the PRC advertising market in order to enhance our ability to target segmented consumer groups through innovative advertising techniques and media. As new opportunities that fit our brand image, business model and strategy present themselves, we expect to expand our operations and continue to pursue innovative advertising techniques and media that provide effective solutions to advertising clients and target consumers with desirable demographic profiles as we have already done with our acquisitions of Focus Media Wireless and Allies.

Our Network

Our network includes:

- our digital out-of-home advertising network, including our commercial location network (LCD display, outdoor LED billboard and movie theater advertising networks), in-store network and poster frame network;
- our mobile handset advertising network; and
- our Internet advertising services network.

Digital Out-of-home Advertising NetworksCommercial Location Network

LCD display network. The majority of displays on our LCD display network are currently placed in high-traffic areas of commercial office buildings. The locations in our LCD display network also include shopping malls, banks and hotels as well as more specialized locations such as hospitals, beauty parlors and golf country clubs. We market our LCD display network to advertisers of consumer products and services, such as automobiles, home electronics, mobile communications devices and services, cosmetics, health products and financial services. As of June 30, 2007, our LCD display network, including the portions of our LCD display network operated by our regional distributors, was comprised of approximately 89,687 flat-panel displays placed in over 90 cities throughout China. We operate our LCD display network directly in approximately 50 cities and indirectly through contractual arrangements with regional distributors in approximately 40 additional cities. We have established joint ventures in several cities outside of mainland China, including Hong Kong, Taipei and Singapore through contracts with local operators which operate local commercial location networks and which license our brand name. None of these arrangements outside of China currently constitutes a material part of our business.

As we expand the number of venues in our LCD display network, we continue to separate certain types of venues into distinct stand-alone channels of this network. As of June 30, 2007, we had established seven such stand-alone channels that are marketed as separate focused channels of our LCD display network: our premier office building A and B, travel, fashion, elite, IT mall and healthcare channels. We believe that by increasingly offering new advertising channels on our out-of-home television networks, we will be able to offer advertisers more targeted and effective audience reach, thereby enabling us to increase our advertising rates.

Expanding our network through regional distributors enables us to provide our advertisers with broader nationwide coverage and to test, develop and evaluate these regional advertising markets without our having to incur start-up and ongoing expenses at the early stages of their development. We also seek to acquire our regional distributors when we believe it is more likely for us to benefit economically from the full integration of their operations into our network. We do not have the contractual right to purchase our regional distributors, and any such acquisition must be negotiated with each regional distributor separately.

Each of our regional distributors operates independently from us and is responsible for independently complying with all relevant PRC laws and regulations including those related to advertising. We periodically monitor our regional distributors to ensure they have obtained all required licenses and are complying with regulations relating to advertising content. See “Risks Relating to Our Business and Industry — One or more of our regional distributors could engage in activities that are harmful to our reputation in the industry and to our business”.

Outdoor LED billboard network. In April 2006, we commenced operations of an outdoor LED billboard network consisting of 5' x 5' LED digital billboards that are installed on the street-sides in major shopping districts and other locations with high pedestrian traffic in Shanghai. Full-color audiovisual commercials are displayed on the digital billboards in a repeating six-minute cycle. The commercials displayed on the LED billboards are highly visible even during bright daylight. As of June 30, 2007, the number of the LED billboards in our street-side outdoor LED billboard network in prime commercial and shopping areas reached approximately 200. We market this part of our network under the name “iStreet Network”.

Movie theater advertising network. We operate our movie theater advertising network by leasing screen time from movie theaters in cities in China. We then sell this leased screen time as time slots to advertisers. We have the right to three minutes of screen time prior to the screening of each movie shown in the theater.

In-store Network

As part of our growth strategy, we commenced operations of our in-store network in April 2005. As of June 30, 2007, we had placed 41,322 flat-panel displays in 1,205 hypermarkets, 734 supermarkets and 2,056 convenience stores throughout China. We believe the rapid expansion of hypermarkets and other chain retail stores in China provides opportunities and incentives for advertisers to take advantage of in-store television advertising networks such as our in-store network. Our in-store network primarily attracts advertisers of food and beverage products, household, kitchen and bathroom products, and household appliances.

Poster Frame Network

We own and operate a network of traditional and digital advertising poster frames deployed primarily in the elevators and public areas of residential complexes under the brand name “Framedia”. We place two or three advertising frames in each elevator in which we lease space and sell frame space to advertising clients on a per frame basis for periods of two weeks or longer. As of June 30, 2007, we had installed 161,435 poster frames including 6,796 digital poster frames in cities throughout China. Our digital frames use high-resolution LCD displays with integrated sound, all-angle viewing and remote control technologies. We believe the new media format provides a more effective advertising media to our advertising customers.

Mobile Handset Advertising Network

Through Focus Media Wireless, we operate an advertising delivery platform on the mobile telecommunications networks of China Mobile and China Unicom. Focus Media Wireless delivers SMS-, MMS- and WAP-based advertisements to mobile handset users accessed through service providers in China. Focus Media Wireless receives a fee from advertisers for delivering advertisements and pays mobile service providers a fee for accessing their networks. It also sells advertising to other mobile handset service providers and to traditional advertisers. As of June 30, 2007, Focus Media Wireless had accumulated a database of over 70 million mobile handset users with SMS, MMS or WAP capability to whom it can deliver advertisements, based on which Focus Media Wireless is able to deliver advertisements tailored to the users' consumer preferences based on information in the database such as a user's historical purchases, handset model and other indicative data.

Table of ContentsInternet Advertising Services Network

In March 2007, we completed the acquisition of 100% of the equity interests in Allyes. Allyes is a leading Internet advertising agency and provider of Internet advertising technology in China. Its proprietary software application suite, 'AdForward', which covers all aspects of online ad publishing, creative production, tracking, targeting, and performance analysis, is used by independent commercial websites and ad agencies in China. Based on the significant number of Internet advertising campaigns it has executed since its inception in 2000, its widely-used Internet application software and its unique tracking technology, Allyes has accumulated a large database of Internet viewers, segmented based on individual behavior. Allyes initiated the performance-based online advertising model in China. Its advertising network, 'SmartTrade', allows advertisers to pay by CPA (cost-per-action), and directly links advertising cost with performance. SmartTrade has integrated advertising resources from over 5,000 popular websites, making it one of the largest performance-based online advertising networks in China, and generating over 300 million daily impressions as of June 30, 2007. We have also expanded our Internet services network through acquisitions such as our purchase in July 2007 of a 70% equity stake in Beijing Wonder Advertising Company Ltd., also known as WonderAd.

Advertising Clients, Sales and Marketing

Our Advertising Clients. The quality and coverage of our network has attracted a broad base of international and domestic advertising clients. As of December 31, 2006, more than 4,000 advertisers purchased advertising time slots on our out-of-home television networks. Our advertising clients include leading international and domestic brand name advertisers such as Dong Feng Auto (including joint venture brands with Toyota and Peugeot), China Mobile, Samsung, NEC and Motorola, which were our five largest customers and together accounted for 10.1% of our total revenues in 2006. Our top ten customers in 2006 accounted for 22.2% of our total revenues in that year.

No single advertising client accounted for more than 4% of our revenues in 2006. We believe the appeal and effectiveness of our advertising network is largely evidenced by the number of advertising clients who place multiple advertising campaigns on our network, which is reflected in the percentage increase of advertising fees we receive from clients over time.

Sales. We employ an experienced advertising sales force in each city in which we operate. We provide in-house education and training to our sales force to ensure they provide our current and prospective clients with comprehensive information about our services, the advantages of using our advertising networks as marketing channels, and relevant information regarding the advertising industry. Our sales team is organized by city, industry and client accounts. We also market our advertising services from time to time by placing advertisements on third-party media, including primarily magazines and Internet websites. We maintain separate sales teams for our poster frame network, our mobile handset advertising network and our Internet advertising services network. We have begun engaging in cross-selling initiatives to enable existing and potential advertising clients to take advantage of our multi-platform advertising network.

Advertising Contracts. We offer advertisers five-, fifteen- or thirty-second time slots on our out-of-home television advertising networks, including our commercial location, in-store, outdoor LED billboard and movie theater advertising networks. For our commercial location network, our standard advertising package includes a time slot on our entire network or a particular channel in each city in which the advertiser wishes to display the advertisement. For our movie theater advertising network, time slots are sold on a regional or entire network basis. Our sales are made pursuant to written contracts with commitments ranging from one week to several months. Our advertising rates vary by city and by the number of cities in which the advertisement is placed, as well as by the length of the time slot purchased and the duration of the advertising campaign. We generally require our clients to submit advertising content at least seven days prior to the campaign start date. We also reserve the right to refuse to disseminate advertisements that are not in compliance with content requirements under PRC laws and regulations.

Advertising contracts for our in-store network, outdoor LED billboard network and movie theater advertising network are substantially similar to those used for our commercial location network. Advertising clients generally purchase time slots on our in-store network on a chain-by-chain basis, while time slots on the outdoor LED billboard network cover the entire network and contracts on our movie theater advertising network are done on regional or entire network basis.

For our poster frame network, advertising clients purchase frame space on a per-frame basis for terms of two weeks or more. For our mobile handset advertising network, our contracts agree to deliver advertising messages to mobile devices based on specific selection criteria set by the advertisers. For our Internet advertising services network, we provide Internet advertising solutions for advertisers tailored to their needs.

Network Monitoring and Evaluation. We provide a number of services in connection with each client's advertising campaign following the sales process. Our network operations team monitors the displays in our network on a daily basis. They are also responsible for compiling reports that are supplied under some of our agreements to clients as evidence of the broadcast of their advertisements on our network. The report generally includes a list of buildings where our client's advertisements were broadcast as well as photographs of representative television displays showing their advertisements being displayed. The advertising campaign reports are provided to our clients for information purposes and do not constitute a customer acceptance provision. The reports we provide to our clients may also contain portions prepared by independent third-party research companies that verify the proper functioning of our flat-panel displays and the proper dissemination of the advertisement, by conducting on-site evaluations and polls to analyze the effectiveness of and public reaction to the advertisement.

Aside from third-party verification services, we and our regional distributors conduct substantially all client services using our own employees or the employees of the relevant regional distributor. In Beijing and Guangzhou, we contract some of these services to third-party agents. These agents provide us with network development, installation, maintenance, monitoring and reporting services.

Market Research. We believe our advertising clients derive substantial value from our ability to provide advertising services targeted at specific segments of consumer markets. Market research is an important part of evaluating the effectiveness and value of our business to advertisers. We conduct market research, consumer surveys, demographic analysis and other advertising industry research for internal use to evaluate new and existing advertising channels. We also purchase or commission studies containing relevant market study data from reputable third-party market research firms, such as Nielsen Media Research, CTR Market Research and Sinomonitor. Our acquisition of iResearch Consulting Co., Ltd. in September 2007 has also provided us with enhanced in-house market research capabilities. iResearch is a market research company focusing on the Internet and new media industries in urban areas of China. We typically consult such studies to assist us in evaluating the effectiveness of our network to our advertisers. A number of these studies contain research on the numbers and socio-economic and demographic profiles of the people who visit the locations of our network.

Programming

Substantially all of the content on our digital out-of-home advertising networks consists of audiovisual television advertising provided to us by our advertising clients. We also provide a limited amount of time for landlords and property managers to display location-specific information, building announcements and related promotional material on our network. We do not produce or create any of the advertising content shown on our network, except our own marketing content. All of the advertising content displayed on the portion of the network we operate directly is reviewed by qualified members of our staff to ensure compliance with PRC laws and regulations, while our agreements with our regional distributors require each of them to review the contents shown on the portion of the network they operate for compliance with PRC laws and regulations. See "Regulation of Our Industry — Regulation of Advertising Services — Advertising Content".

Advertisements on our poster frame network consist of full-color glossy advertising posters designed and provided by our advertising clients.

Pricing

For information regarding factors affecting our pricing, refer to "Factors that Affect Our Advertising Service Revenue" in "Management's Discussion and Analysis of Financial Condition and Results of Operation".

Table of ContentsRelationships with Location Providers

We install our flat-panel displays in selected spaces we lease in office buildings and other commercial locations, hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores. We install our advertising poster frames in elevators and other public areas in residential complexes. Establishing and maintaining long-term relationships with landlords and property managers is a critical aspect of our business. We employ a team of location relationship personnel in each city in which we operate directly who are responsible for identifying desirable locations, negotiating display and frame placement agreements and engaging in ongoing site placement relations.

In addition to helping us expand our network, our location relationship personnel ensure that the needs and concerns of landlords and property managers are being met and addressed effectively and on a timely basis. These concerns generally include ensuring that the flat-panel displays are properly installed and are in proper working condition. We undertake to landlords and property managers in our network to maintain the proper operation of our flat-panel displays. We generally rely on our own employees to install, maintain, monitor and repair our flat-panel displays and advertising poster frames. Each of our flat-panel displays is inspected at least once daily.

We enter into display placement agreements with individual landlords, property managers, hotels, shopping malls and chain store companies under which we generally pay a fixed annual rent in exchange for the right to display advertising and commercial media in lobby and elevator areas in the case of our commercial location network and in specific product areas in the major aisles and near check-out counters in hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores in the case of our in-store network. In Beijing and Guangzhou, we contract a portion of the location development, monitoring and maintenance work to local agents. We attempt to maintain terms favorable to our network operations in our display placement agreements, such as long-term leases and exclusivity provisions. We are not reliant on any one landlord or property manager for a material portion of our network coverage and as of June 30, 2007, no individual landlord or property manager accounted for more than 1% of the locations in our commercial location network. As hypermarkets, supermarkets and convenience stores have control over multiple locations, a smaller number of display placement agreements and contractual arrangements account for a larger percentage of our in-store network coverage.

We believe that landlords and property managers generally do not view us as a major source of revenue and are instead primarily attracted to our flat-panel displays as an innovative and visually pleasing medium that complements their public areas and that provides an engaging means of conveying building-related information to their tenants. In connection with certain of our display placement agreements, we agree to provide concessions and services, such as displaying building-related notifications, publicity and other information provided by the landlord or property manager or granting time slots to the landlord or property manager for their own promotional purposes.

Our display placement agreements have initial terms ranging anywhere from one to ten years. As of June 30, 2007, we had the right under the majority of our display placement agreements to renew the display placement agreements provided that the terms offered by us are no less favorable than those offered by competing bidders. The rental terms and fees under our display placement agreements vary considerably depending on the city, location of the building, size of the building and number of flat-panel displays that may be installed. Under our display placement agreements, we retain ownership of the flat-panel displays.

We enter into similar frame placement agreements for the deployment of our advertising poster frames in elevators and public areas of residential complexes and commercial buildings. The majority of our frame placement agreements have terms of two to three years, and contain exclusivity and best offer renewal rights.

Technology and Suppliers

Out-of-home television advertising is a relatively new advertising medium that owes its development in large part to the emergence of new technologies, such as low-cost, light-weight, flat-panel television displays and compact storage technology. The primary hardware required for the operation of our business consists of components that comprise the flat-panel displays we use in our advertising network. We also develop and install software in our flat-panel displays to assist us with the configuration, editing and operation of our advertising content cycles. Maintaining a steady supply of our proprietary flat-panel displays is important to our operations and the growth of our advertising network.

We design the distinctive shape of our flat-panel displays, identify suppliers of component parts used in our displays and contract the assembly of our flat-panel displays to third-party contract assemblers. Our contract assemblers are responsible for purchasing the component parts from suppliers we identify each month and assembling the flat-panel displays according to our specifications using components purchased in off-the-shelf form from wholesale distributors. We select component suppliers based on price and quality. As there are many qualified alternative suppliers for our equipment, our obligation to our current contract assemblers is not exclusive. We have never experienced any material delay or interruption in the supply of our flat-panel displays.

Our services provided through Allyes use proprietary ad serving solutions that assist advertisers, advertising agencies and web publishers in creating and delivering Internet ads, monitoring and analyzing website traffic, tracking the performance of advertising campaigns and implementing direct marketing. Most of the Allyes software applications, from Internet marketing technologies to the applications that operate our servers, are proprietary and were developed in-house by Allyes' research and development team.

Research and Development

We intend to continue to develop a more advanced model of flat-panel display that uses mobile communications and wireless technology to receive, store, configure and play back advertising content. Whether or not we deploy this newer technology will depend upon cost and network security. We are also developing related software systems that will enable us to configure and run the content on our advertising network in conjunction with mobile communications systems. We also continue to develop proprietary software and systems in connection with the operation of and provision of services through our online advertising services business through Allyes.

Patents and Trademarks

We believe that the value of our advertising network derives from its effectiveness in reaching a large number of consumers with higher-than-average disposable incomes in urban areas. To a great extent, our business model does not rely on advanced or sophisticated technology or on proprietary trade secrets because our flat-panel displays are assembled with components purchased in off-the-shelf form from wholesale distributors. We endeavor to protect certain of the designs and operating software we use in each generation of our flat-panel displays. We currently hold design patents for our new model of flat-panel display and our software. We have the right to use several trademarks relating to the "Focus Media" brand name in China and in Singapore. We also have the right to use several trademarks relating to the "Framedia" brand name in China. Following our acquisition of Allyes, we also acquired all of its intellectual property including that held by its subsidiaries and affiliates.

We do not know if our trademark applications will lead to registered trademarks with the scope of the goods and services we seek, if at all, or whether any trademark we have registered or may receive registration in the future will be challenged or invalidated. See Risk Factor on "Unauthorized use of our intellectual property by third parties, and the expenses incurred in protecting our intellectual property rights, may adversely affect our business." We have also obtained copyright registration for a number of our software. We will continue to assess appropriate occasions for seeking trademark, copyright and other intellectual property protections for those aspects of our business that we believe provide significant competitive advantages.

The technology developed by Allyes enables us to collect and use data derived from user activity on the Internet. Although we believe that we have the right to use this information and to compile it in our databases, we cannot assure you that any trade secret, copyright or other protection will be available for this information. In addition, our clients and other parties may claim rights to this information.

Competition

We compete with other advertising companies in China including companies that operate out-of-home or telecommunications-based advertising media networks, such as JCDecaux, ClearMedia, WPP and CGEN. We compete for advertising clients primarily on the basis of network size and coverage, location, price, the range of services that we offer and our brand name. We also compete for overall advertising spending with other alternative advertising media companies, such as Internet, wireless telecommunications, street furniture, billboard, frame and public transport advertising companies, and with traditional advertising media, such as newspapers, television, magazines and radio.

Employees

As of June 30, 2007, we had a total of 4,445 full-time employees and no part-time employees. The following table sets out the number of staff by business area as of June 30, 2007:

	Number of Employees(1)	Percentage
Sales and marketing	1,250	28.1%
Operations	2,112	47.5%
Management and administration	1,083	24.4%
Total number of employees	4,445	100%

(1) This excludes employees our regional distributors and agents who are not directly under our employ.

As required by PRC regulations, we participate in various employee benefit plans that are organized by municipal and provincial governments, including pension, work-related injury benefits, maternity insurance, medical and unemployment benefit plans. We are required under PRC law to make contributions to the employee benefit plans at specified percentages of the salaries, bonuses and certain allowances of our employees, up to a maximum amount specified by the local government from time to time. Members of the retirement plan are entitled to a pension equal to a fixed proportion of the salary prevailing at the member's retirement date.

Generally we enter into a three-year standard employment contract with our officers and managers and a one-year standard employment contract with other employees. According to these contracts, all of our employees are prohibited from engaging in any activities that compete with our business during the period of their employment with us. Furthermore, the employment contracts with officers or managers include a covenant that prohibits officers or managers from engaging in any activities that compete with our business for two years after the period of their employment with us.

Facilities

We currently maintain our headquarters at 28-30/F, Zhao Feng World Trade Building, 369 Jiangsu Road, Shanghai 200050, People's Republic of China. We also have offices in more than 50 other cities including those operated by our regional distributors.

Legal Proceedings

On March 16, 2006, Shanghai Xicheng Cultural Dissemination Co., Ltd., also referred to as CGEN, brought a suit against us in Shanghai No. 1 Intermediate People's Court on the grounds of unfair competition. CGEN, which is developing a network of flat-panel displays in hypermarkets and supermarkets, claims to have established an exclusive business relationship with the Hymart chain of supermarkets in Shanghai. Hymart notified us that it had requested in writing to terminate its relationship with CGEN. In CGEN's pleadings, it alleges that Focus Media encouraged and supported Hymart to allegedly violate its agreement with CGEN, resulting in losses to CGEN. In its pleadings, CGEN has requested that the court order Focus Media to cease any alleged unfair competitive behavior, to undo the effects of any alleged unfair competition and to pay RMB 13,570,920 (US$1.7 million) to CGEN. On July 25, 2007, we received the civil judgment of first instance by the Shanghai No. 1 Intermediate People's Court which issued a ruling dismissing the case. CGEN has appealed that ruling. We intend to defend against CGEN's claims to the fullest extent of the law. However, there can be no assurance that we will prevail in any such litigation. We believe the outcome of this suit, even if adversely determined, will not have a material adverse effect on our business or results of operations.

Except as disclosed above, we are not currently a party to any material legal proceeding. From time to time, we may be subject to various claims and legal actions arising in the ordinary course of business.

Table of ContentsOUR RECENT SIGNIFICANT ACQUISITIONS*Allyes

In March 2007, we completed the acquisition of Allyes Information Technology Company Limited, and its wholly-owned PRC subsidiaries New Allyes Information Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. and Allyes Information Technology (Shanghai) Co., Ltd. and their affiliated PRC operating companies. David Zhu, the founder, former chairman and chief executive officer of Allyes, signed an employment agreement with Focus Media and remains as the chief executive officer of Allyes.

The following is a brief summary of material provisions of the share purchase agreement. This summary is qualified in its entirety by reference to the actual Allyes Share Purchase Agreement.

Purchase Price. We paid the selling shareholders of Allyes $70 million in cash and 19,969,080 Focus Media ordinary shares upon closing in March 2007. In addition, if Allyes's audited annual net income for the twelve month period ending March 31, 2008 is greater than $9 million, we will issue our ordinary shares to the Allyes selling shareholders equal in value to 25 times the amount by which Allyes's audited annual net income for such twelve month period exceeds $9 million, up to a maximum amount not to exceed $75 million in our ordinary shares, based upon a fixed price per ordinary share of $7.726. Fifty percent of the ordinary shares received by the Allyes selling shareholders at the first closing are locked up for 180 days from March 28, 2007, with the remaining ordinary shares locked up until 365 days from March 28, 2007. The ordinary shares to be received in connection with the earn out, if any, will not be subject to any lock-up.

Representations and Warranties. In the share purchase agreement, the Allyes selling shareholders made customary representations and warranties to us, which generally survive for a period of fifteen months following the closing date. However, a number of specified representations and warranties survive for longer periods. We made customary representations and warranties to the Allyes selling shareholders, which survive for a period of one year following the closing date.

Covenants. The definitive share purchase agreement includes customary covenants relating to, among other things, the conducting of the business in the ordinary course prior to closing, notification of certain matters, confidentiality, non-compete agreements for key employees, treatment of related party accounts and preparation of financial statements.

Indemnification. The management shareholders have agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from any breach of any representation or warranty, covenant or other agreement made by the management shareholders in the share purchase agreement, including but not limited to losses arising out of materially inaccurate disclosures made in Allyes's financial statements; losses arising out of failure to report any material changes in Allyes or its affiliates; losses arising out of failure to adequately disclose terms of any material contracts of Allyes or its affiliates; and losses arising out of any tax or legal liabilities.

The non-management shareholders have also agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from any breach of any representation or warranty, covenant or other agreement made by the non-management shareholders in the share purchase agreement.

The Allyes selling shareholders collectively shall not be liable to indemnify losses greater than the aggregate consideration of the share purchase agreement, and each selling shareholder is only liable up to the product of (x) the amount of his percentage equity interest in the company prior to the closing multiplied by (y) the aggregate consideration of the share purchase agreement. The Allyes selling shareholders are not obligated to indemnify our losses until and unless such losses exceed $1 million. If our losses exceed $1 million, the Allyes selling shareholders are liable for all amounts including the first $1 million. Management shareholders will be jointly and severally liable. Non-management shareholders will be severally but not jointly liable.

We have agreed to indemnify the Allyes selling shareholders for damages resulting from any breach of any representation or warranty, covenant or other agreement of ours in the share purchase agreement. Our indemnification obligations are capped at the aggregate consideration of the share purchase agreement.

Amounts of losses are subject to insurance recoveries and other mitigating circumstances. Indemnification payments may be made in-kind with Focus Media ordinary shares received under the share purchase agreement.

Under the terms of the transaction, we also granted certain registration rights to the former shareholders of Allyes. See “Shares Eligible for Future Sale”.

Control Over Allyes

New Allyes Technology, which is our wholly-owned indirect subsidiary, entered into a series of agreements with the Allyes operating affiliates and their current respective shareholders that provide us with effective control over the Allyes operating affiliates while enabling the Allyes business to be consolidated with Allyes Information Technology Company Limited, which is our wholly-owned direct subsidiary. See “Our Corporate Structure” and “Related Party Transactions — Agreements Among Us, Our Wholly Foreign-Owned Subsidiaries, Our PRC Operating Affiliates and Their Shareholders”.

Framedia

On January 1, 2006, we completed the acquisition of Infoachieve Limited, and its affiliate Framedia Advertisement by purchasing 100% of the shares of Infoachieve from Total Team, through which the former shareholders held their respective interests in Infoachieve. Framedia installs and deploys advertising poster frames mainly inside elevators and throughout the public areas of residential complexes in major cities in China and sells frame space to advertising clients.

Share Purchase Agreement

On October 15, 2005, we entered into a share purchase agreement to acquire the business of Infoachieve, its subsidiary and affiliated PRC entities, by purchasing 100% of the shares in Infoachieve from Total Team. Voting Rights. Under the terms of the share purchase agreement, after we issue shares to Total Team on behalf of the seller parties, each of the shareholders of Total Team is required to exercise their voting rights in Focus Media's shares independently of each other and Total Team's authorized representative is required to solicit a proxy statement from each shareholder indicating how the votes to which each shareholder is entitled should be voted. In the event a shareholder does not provide a proxy, the shareholder will be deemed to have abstained and Total Team will not be entitled to cast such votes.

Indemnification. The seller parties have agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from inaccuracies of their representations and warranties or failure to perform their obligations under the share purchase agreement. The seller parties' indemnification obligation is limited to the total consideration we are to pay to them. If the seller parties indemnify us using our common shares, the value of such shares shall be the value of the shares when any indemnified losses become payable. If the seller parties' lock-up agreements are still in effect at such time, they may dispose of only those shares that cover the amount of the indemnified losses.

See "Item 4.C Information on Our Company — Organization Structure — Our Corporate Structure and Contractual Arrangements" and "Item 7.B Major Shareholders and Related Party Transactions — Related Party Transactions — Agreements Among Us, Our Wholly Foreign-Owned Subsidiaries, Our PRC Operating Affiliates and Their Shareholders".

Target Media

On February 28, 2006, we acquired Target Media, its affiliated PRC entity Shanghai Target Media and its subsidiary Target Multi-Media, by purchasing 100% of the shares of Target Media from its shareholders. Target Media and several of its principal shareholders, including David Feng Yu, its chairman of the board of directors and SII International Holding Limited, are referred to as the seller parties. Collectively, Target Media's shareholders, including The Carlyle Group, are referred to as the Target Media selling shareholders.

The following is a brief summary of material provisions of the share purchase agreement. This summary is qualified in its entirety by reference to the share purchase agreement filed as an exhibit to our registration statement.

The cash portion of the purchase price will be paid in three installments. The first installment of $45 million was paid at closing on February 28, 2006. The second installment of $25 million was paid on April 28, 2006. The final installment of $24 million was paid on July 31, 2006.

However, a number of specified representations and warranties survive for longer periods or indefinitely. In the definitive share purchase agreement, the Target Media selling shareholders also made customary representations and warranties to us, which generally survive for a period of six months following the closing date. which generally survive for a period of six months following the closing date. However, a number of specified representations and warranties survive for longer periods or indefinitely.

Covenants. The definitive share purchase agreement includes customary covenants relating to, among other things, notification of certain matters, public announcements, non-competition of certain persons, treatment of related party accounts and preparation of financial accounts. The share purchase agreement also contains covenants requiring us to enter into employment agreements with key employees of Target Media.

We agreed under the definitive share purchase agreement and the employment agreement with Mr. David Feng Yu to appoint him as co-chairman of the board of directors and president of Focus Media upon the completion of the acquisition. We also agreed to increase our board of directors from five to seven members at closing, and to assist in the nomination and appointment of David Feng Yu, the founder, chairman and chief executive officer of Target Media, and a nominee of David Feng Yu to fill the additional seats at the first annual meeting of our shareholders following the closing. The director nominated by David Feng Yu will qualify as an independent director for the purpose of complying with NASDAQ listing standards and Sarbanes-Oxley Act requirements so that a majority of our board of directors continues to be independent. See "Item 6.A Directors, Senior Management and Employees — Directors and Senior Management". We have also agreed to permit The Carlyle Group to appoint an observer to our board of directors for a limited period of time.

Indemnification. The seller parties have agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from inaccuracies of their representations and warranties or failure to perform their obligations under the share purchase agreement; losses arising out of indebtedness of Target Media not reflected in its financial statements; losses arising out of or pursuant to terms of the contracts of Target Media that were not disclosed to us prior to the closing date due to their commercially sensitive nature and those terms are not in the ordinary course of business of Target Media; and certain tax liabilities.

Two Target Media selling shareholders that hold an approximately 49.7% equity interest in Target Media, or collectively, the Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders, have agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from inaccuracies of representations and warranties in relation to Target Media and the Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders, respectively, or failure of Target Media or the Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders to perform their respective obligations under the share purchase agreement. The Target Media selling shareholders other than the Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders and The Carlyle Group, or collectively, the Non-Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders, have agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from inaccuracies of representations and warranties in relation to Target Media and the Non-Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders, respectively, or failure of the Non-Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders to perform their obligations under the share purchase agreement. The Carlyle Group has agreed to indemnify us for damages resulting from inaccuracies of representations and warranties in relation to The Carlyle Group, or failure of The Carlyle Group to perform its obligations under the share purchase agreement.

The indemnification obligations of all Target Media selling shareholders (excluding The Carlyle Group) are limited to US$80 million, provided that the Controlling Target Media Selling Shareholders shall be responsible for indemnifying us up to $325 million for additional losses arising out of several specified claims, including such contracts not disclosed to us prior to the closing of the acquisition, which contracts contain clauses that are out of ordinary course of Target Media's business. The indemnification obligation of The Carlyle Group is limited to $16.3 million, except for a breach with respect to their ownership of the shares they are selling to us.

For so long as the shares received by Target Media selling shareholders in this acquisition are restricted from sales in the open market by either the lock-up, or securities laws, the Target Media selling shareholders have the right to settle any indemnification obligation by paying us in kind with our ordinary shares, valued at one-tenth of the closing price of our ADSs (each of which represents ten of our ordinary shares) on the business day prior to the payment of such shares.

We have agreed to indemnify the seller parties for damages resulting from inaccuracies of our representations and warranties or failure to perform our obligations under the share purchase agreement. Certain of our indemnification obligations are capped at $39 million, while several specified indemnification obligations of our company are capped at the total consideration to be paid to the selling shareholders.

Table of ContentsREGULATION OF OUR INDUSTRY

We operate our business in China under a legal regime consisting of the State Council, which is the highest authority of the executive branch of the National People's Congress, and several ministries and agencies under its authority including the SAIC.

China's Advertising Law was promulgated in 1994. In addition, the State Council, SAIC and other ministries and agencies have issued regulations that regulate our business, which are discussed below.

Limitations on Foreign Ownership in the Advertising Industry

The principal regulations governing foreign ownership in the advertising industry in China include:

- The Catalogue for Guiding Foreign Investment in Industry (2004); and
- The Administrative Regulations on Foreign-invested Advertising Enterprises (2004).

These regulations require foreign entities that directly invest in the advertising industry to have at least two years of direct operations in the advertising industry outside of China. Since December 10, 2005, foreign investors have been permitted to own directly a 100% interest in advertising companies in China, but such foreign investors are also required to have at least three years of direct operations in the advertising industry outside of China. PRC laws and regulations do not permit the transfer of any approvals, licenses or permits, including business licenses containing a scope of business that permits engaging in the advertising business. In the event we are able to qualify to acquire the equity interest of Focus Media Advertisement under the rules allowing complete foreign ownership, Focus Media Advertisement would continue to exist as the holder of the required advertising license consistent with current regulatory requirements.

Since we have not been involved in advertising outside of China for the required number of years, our domestic PRC operating subsidiaries, which are considered foreign invested, are currently ineligible to apply for the required advertising services licenses in China. Our advertising business is currently mainly provided through our contractual arrangements with our consolidated affiliated entities in China, including Focus Media Advertisement and its subsidiaries, New Focus Media Advertisement, Framedia Advertisement, Guangdong Framedia, New Structure Advertisement, Focus Media Wireless and the Allyes operating affiliates. Each of our PRC operating affiliates is currently owned or controlled either by Jason Nanchun Jiang and Jimmy Wei Yu, both of whom are PRC citizens, or by PRC companies owned by them or by us. Our PRC operating affiliates and certain of their respective subsidiaries hold the requisite licenses to provide advertising services in China. We, Focus Media Technology, Focus Media Digital, New Focus Media Advertisement, Framedia Investment, Dotad Technology and New Allyes Technology have entered into a series of contractual arrangements with our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries and shareholders under which:

- we are able to exert effective control over our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries;
- a substantial portion of the economic benefits of our PRC operating affiliates and their respective subsidiaries will be transferred to us; and
- we have an exclusive option to purchase all or part of the equity interests in our PRC operating affiliates and all or part of the equity interests in Focus Media Advertisement's subsidiaries that are owned by Focus Media Advertisement or its nominee holders, as well as all or a part of the assets of our PRC operating affiliates, in each case when and to the extent permitted by PRC law.

See "Our Corporate Structure" and "Related Party Transactions".

In the opinion of Global Law Office, our PRC legal counsel,

- the respective ownership structures of Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective PRC affiliates and subsidiaries are in compliance with existing PRC laws and regulations;
- the contractual arrangements (i) among Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective PRC affiliates, subsidiaries and PRC shareholders, in each case governed by PRC law are valid, binding and enforceable, and will not result in any violation of PRC laws or regulations currently in effect; and

- the PRC business operations of Focus Media, Framedia, Focus Media Wireless, Allyes and their respective affiliates and subsidiaries as described in this prospectus, are in compliance with existing PRC laws and regulations in all material respects.

We have been advised by our PRC legal counsel, however, that there are substantial uncertainties regarding the interpretation and application of current and future PRC laws and regulations. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the PRC regulatory authorities, in particular the SAIC which regulates advertising companies, will not in the future take a view that is contrary to the opinion of our PRC legal counsel. We have been further advised by our PRC counsel that if the PRC government determines that the agreements establishing the structure for operating our PRC advertising business do not comply with PRC government restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry, we could be subject to severe penalties. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to Regulation of Our Business and to Our Structure — If the PRC government finds that the agreements that establish the structure for operating our China business do not comply with PRC governmental restrictions on foreign investment in the advertising industry, we could be subject to severe penalties”.

Regulation of Advertising Services

Business License for Advertising Companies

The principal regulations governing advertising businesses in China include:

- The Advertising Law (1994);
- The Advertising Administrative Regulations (1987); and
- The Implementing Rules for the Advertising Administrative Regulations (2004).

These regulations stipulate that companies that engage in advertising activities must obtain from the SAIC or its local branches a business license which specifically includes operating an advertising business within its business scope. Companies conducting advertising activities without such a license may be subject to penalties, including fines, confiscation of advertising income and orders to cease advertising operations. The business license of an advertising company is valid for the duration of its existence, unless the license is suspended or revoked due to a violation of any relevant law or regulation. We do not expect to encounter any difficulties in maintaining our business licenses. Each of Focus Media Advertisement, its subsidiaries and New Focus Media Advertisement has obtained, or in the case of some of our new directly-operated cities, are in the process of obtaining such a business license from the local branches of the SAIC as required by the existing PRC regulations. Some of our regional distributors may not possess all the licenses required to operate an advertising business, or may fail to maintain the licenses they currently hold. We periodically monitor our regional distributors to ensure they have obtained all required licenses and are complying with regulations relating to advertising content, although it is possible that one or more of our regional distributors may not be in compliance with all PRC regulations at all times. To our knowledge, all of our regional distributors have received, or are in the process of obtaining, the licenses required to operate an advertising business. If we learn that any of our regional distributors are not in compliance with applicable terms and regulations we notify such regional distributors of the need to complete any necessary procedures and to report any developments to us. If a regional distributor fails to complete the steps necessary to receive the required licenses, we will take steps to terminate the contract with such regional distributor. See “Risk Factors — Risks Relating to Our Business and Industry — One or more of our regional distributors could engage in activities that are harmful to our reputation in the industry and to our business”.

Advertising Content

PRC advertising laws and regulations set forth certain content requirements for advertisements in China, which include prohibitions on, among other things, misleading content, superlative wording, socially destabilizing content or content involving obscenities, superstition, violence, discrimination or infringement of the public interest. Advertisements for anesthetic, psychotropic, toxic or radioactive drugs are prohibited. It is prohibited to disseminate tobacco advertisements via broadcast or print media. It is also prohibited to display tobacco advertisements in any waiting lounge, theater, cinema, conference hall, stadium or other public area. There are also specific restrictions and requirements regarding advertisements that relate to matters such as patented products or processes, pharmaceuticals, medical instruments, agrochemicals, foodstuff, alcohol and cosmetics. In addition, all advertisements relating to pharmaceuticals, medical instruments, agrochemicals and veterinary pharmaceuticals advertised through radio, film, television, newspaper, magazine, out-of-home and other forms of media, together with any other advertisements which are subject to censorship by administrative authorities according to relevant laws and administrative regulations, must be submitted to the relevant administrative authorities for content approval prior to dissemination. We do not believe that advertisements containing content subject to restriction or censorship comprise a material portion of the advertisements shown on our network.

Advertisers, advertising operators and advertising distributors are required by PRC advertising laws and regulations to ensure that the content of the advertisements they prepare or distribute are true and in full compliance with applicable law. In providing advertising services, advertising operators and advertising distributors must review the prescribed supporting documents provided by advertisers for advertisements and verify that the content of the advertisements comply with applicable PRC laws and regulations. In addition, prior to distributing advertisements for certain commodities which are subject to government censorship and approval, advertising distributors are obligated to ensure that such censorship has been performed and approval has been obtained. Violation of these regulations may result in penalties, including fines, confiscation of advertising income, orders to cease dissemination of the advertisements and orders to publish an advertisement correcting the misleading information. In circumstances involving serious violations, the SAIC or its local branches may revoke violators' licenses or permits for advertising business operations. Furthermore, advertisers, advertising operators or advertising distributors may be subject to civil liability if they infringe on the legal rights and interests of third parties in the course of their advertising business.

We employ qualified advertising inspectors who are trained to review advertising content for compliance with relevant laws and regulations.

Outdoor Advertising

The Advertising Law stipulates that the exhibition and display of outdoor advertisements must not:

- utilize traffic safety facilities and traffic signs;
- impede the use of public facilities, traffic safety facilities and traffic signs;
- obstruct commercial and public activities or create an eyesore in urban areas;
- be placed in restrictive areas near government offices, cultural landmarks or historical or scenic sites; and
- be placed in areas prohibited by the local governments from having outdoor advertisements.

In addition to the Advertising Law, the SAIC promulgated the Outdoor Advertising Registration Administrative Regulations on December 8, 1995, as amended on December 3, 1998, which governs the outdoor advertising industry in China.

Outdoor advertisements in China must be registered with the local SAIC before dissemination. The advertising distributors are required to submit a registration application form and other supporting documents for registration. After review and examination, if an application complies with the requirements, the local SAIC will issue an Outdoor Advertising Registration Certificate for such advertisement. The content of the outdoor advertisement must be submitted for filing with the local SAIC.

The placement and installation of LED billboards are subject to municipal zoning requirements and governmental approvals, including application for an outdoor advertising registration certificate for each LED billboard subject to a term of use of no more than six years for each LED billboard. If the existing LED billboards placed by our LED location provider or us are required to be removed, the attractiveness of this portion of our advertising network will be diminished. Moreover, failure by an owner of LED billboards to maintain outdoor

Print Advertising

Following our acquisition of Framedia on January 1, 2006, we also operate a network of advertising poster frames placed primarily in the elevators and public areas of residential complexes. The advertisements shown on our poster frame network are defined as “normal print advertisements” under the Print Advertisements Administrative Regulations promulgated by the SAIC on January 13, 2000, as amended on November 30, 2004, or the Print Advertisements Regulations. Under these regulations, print advertisements must not be placed in areas prohibited by laws or regulations from posting print advertisements.

Regulation of Telecommunications Value-added Service Providers

The Telecommunications Regulations (2000), or the Telecom Regulations, and the Administrative Measures for Telecommunications Business Operating License (2002), or the Telecom License Measures, contain provisions governing providers of telecommunications services, including value-added service providers. The Telecom Regulations categorize all telecommunication services businesses in China as either infrastructure telecommunication services businesses or value-added telecommunication services businesses. The latter category includes SMS, MMS and WAP services. Under the Telecom Regulations, certain services are classified as being of a value-added nature and require the commercial mobile operator of such services to obtain an operating license, including online data processing and transaction processing, call centers and Internet access. The Telecom Regulations also set forth extensive guidelines with respect to different aspects of telecommunications operations in China. Under the Telecom License Measures, an approved value-added telecommunication services provider must conduct its business in accordance with the specifications recorded on its value-added telecommunication services operating license. Under PRC law, it is unclear whether the services offered by Focus Media Wireless should be deemed value-added telecommunication services, which requires an operation permit which has a valid period of five years. Focus Media Wireless has applied for an operation permit for its wireless advertising operations. If Focus Media Wireless is deemed by the PRC regulatory authorities to be providing value-added telecommunication services but an operation permit is not issued or if, once issued, it is revoked or if we are unable to renew its operation permit upon its expiration, we will be required to suspend our services relating to our mobile handset advertising network, and our advertising service revenue derived from this portion of our network would be adversely affected. See “Risk Factors — Our recent entry into mobile handset and Internet advertising services through our acquisition of Focus Media Wireless and Allies may expose us to risks associated with operating in the telecommunications and Internet industries in China which could materially affect our financial condition or results of operation”.

Regulation of Foreign Exchange in Certain Onshore and Offshore Transactions

In January and April 2005, the PRC State Administration of Foreign Exchange, or SAFE, issued two rules that require PRC residents to register with and receive approvals from SAFE in connection with their offshore investment activities. SAFE has announced that the purpose of these regulations is to achieve the proper balance of foreign exchange and the standardization of the cross-border flow of funds.

On October 21, 2005, SAFE issued the Notice on Issues Relating to the Administration of Foreign Exchange in Fund-raising and Reverse Investment Activities of Domestic Residents Conducted via Offshore Special Purpose Companies, or Notice 75, which became effective as of November 1, 2005. Notice 75 replaced the two rules issued by SAFE in January and April 2005 mentioned above.

According to Notice 75:

- prior to establishing or assuming control of an offshore company for the purpose of financing that offshore company with assets or equity interests in an onshore enterprise in the PRC, each PRC resident, whether a natural or legal person, must complete the overseas investment foreign exchange registration procedures with the relevant local SAFE branch;

- an amendment to the registration with the local SAFE branch is required to be filed by any PRC resident that directly or indirectly holds interests in that offshore company upon either (1) the injection of equity interests or assets of an onshore enterprise to the offshore company, or (2) the completion of any overseas fund raising by such offshore company; and
- an amendment to the registration with the local SAFE branch is also required to be filed by such PRC resident when there is any material change involving a change in the capital of the offshore company, such as (1) an increase or decrease in its capital, (2) a transfer or swap of shares, (3) a merger or division, (4) a long term equity or debt investment, or (5) the creation of any security interests over the relevant assets located in China.

Moreover, Notice 75 applies retroactively. As a result, PRC residents who have established or acquired control of offshore companies that have made onshore investments in the PRC in the past are required to complete the relevant overseas investment foreign exchange registration procedures by March 31, 2006. Under the relevant rules, failure to comply with the registration procedures set forth in Notice 75 may result in restrictions being imposed on the foreign exchange activities of the relevant onshore company, including the payment of dividends and other distributions to its offshore parent or affiliate and the capital inflow from the offshore entity, and may also subject relevant PRC residents to penalties under PRC foreign exchange administration regulations.

As a Cayman Islands company, and therefore a foreign entity, if Focus Media Holding purchases the assets or equity interest of a PRC company owned by PRC residents in exchange for our equity interests, such PRC residents will be subject to the registration procedures described in Notice 75. Moreover, PRC residents who are beneficial holders of our shares are required to register with SAFE in connection with their investment in us.

As a result of the lack of implementing rules and other uncertainties relating to the interpretation and implementation of Notice 75, we cannot predict how these regulations will affect our business operations or strategies. For example, our present or future PRC subsidiaries' ability to conduct foreign exchange activities, such as remittance of dividends and foreign-currency-denominated borrowings, may be subject to compliance with such SAFE registration requirements by relevant PRC residents, over whom we have no control. In addition, we cannot assure you that any such PRC residents will be able to complete the necessary approval and registration procedures required by the SAFE regulations. We require all the shareholders in Focus Media Holding who are PRC residents to comply with any SAFE registration requirements, but we have no control over either our shareholders or the outcome of such registration procedures. Such uncertainties may restrict our ability to implement our acquisition strategy and adversely affect our business and prospects.
